FUNERAL OF QUEEN ALEXANDRA FORTNIGHT HENCE DEPENDING ON ARRIVAL OF FOREIGN MOURNERS

No Modern Precedent For Ceremonial at Death of Dowager Queen.

NATION HUSHED.

St. Paul's Great Bell Tolled First Time Since Edward's Death.

LONDON, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Just as the populace was hurrying homewards from the day's labors Friday the news of the death at Sandringham of Queen Mother Alexandra reached London. The evening papers were on the streets quickly with mourning borders. Official bulletins were posted at the Mansion House and Marlborough House, so the whole city was soon acquainted with the sad news.

The great bell of St. Paul's tolled for an hour—from 8 to 9—last night. This bell is only used on the death of Royalty, the last occasion being the death of King Edward.

Parliament had already adjourned before word arrived of the Dowager Queen's passing. Many official and private functions were abandoned last night, but the news came too late to arrange for closing the theatres. There will, however, be a general closing on the day of the funeral, arrangements for which will not be decided until the King has been consulted.

To Rest With Husband.

The Lord Chamberlain's department is responsible in these matters. There is no modern precedent for the funeral of a mother of a reigning British monarch. For an exact parallel the Lord Chamberlain will have to go back to the death of Catherine of France, mother of Henry VI., in 1488. It is expected, however, that the ceremonial observed at the funeral of Queen Adelaide, in 1849, when Queen Victoria, her niece, was on the throne, will be followed, namely, that the body will be brought to London, with lying in state and a funeral procession. The body will then be taken to Windsor, and placed in the Royal vault beside King Edward, in St. George's Chapel. This has been the burial place of the Royal family for the past 150 years, the only exception being Queen Victoria, who rests beside the Prince Consort, in Frogmore Mausoleum.

King George may decide to omit the lying in state. It is believed that in a general way the London ceremonial of the funeral of King Edward will be followed, but without the military accompaniments.

The date will probably be about a fortnight hence, depending on the convenience of the mourners from Danish and other foreign courts. All the foreign Ambassadors and Ministers were notified immediately of the death of Alexandra and they sent messages of condolence to Austen Chamberlain, the Foreign Secretary, as the King's representative. The Queen of Spain cancelled her arrangements for a visit to the Drury Lane Theatre to-day.

Pageant Dispersed.

The postponement of the Guildhall luncheon in honor of the Prince of Wales came very suddenly when it was learned that Alexandra was at the verge of death, and that the Prince was desirous of being at the bedside. Hundreds of guests had already arrived at the Guildhall, unaware of the postponement as there was no time to make it known to all those invited. Thousands of persons had already gathered along the route of the procession, and as word was passed that the pageant was not to be held they dispersed.

The Prince was greatly concerned at being compelled to make such a sudden change in the plans. He wrote a personal letter to the Lord Mayor expressing regret and sorrow at having to put all to such much personal inconvenience and expense. He hoped they would understand how unsuitable it would be to carry out the programme.

Many signs of public mourning were seen on the streets last evening. Flags on public buildings were at half-mast and a number of the larger shops in the West-End extinguished the lights in their windows.

Most of the motion picture performances were stopped and announcements of the Queen Mother's death and her portrait was thrown on the screen, accompanied by funeral marches.

The broadcasting station carried the news to the tiniest hamlets. Most of last night's radio programs were changed, omitting the lighter features and substituting in some cases funeral orations.

THERE WILL BE A MEETING OF LOCAL 191 A.F. OF M. ON SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 22ND AT 3 P.M., IN THE LABOR HALL. NOMINATION OF OFFICERS. FULL ATTENDANCE IS REQUESTED.
SECRETARY-TREASURER.

Sole Remaining Toll Gate Road In Ontario Is Public

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 21.—Canadian Press. — The end of the career of what is believed to be the last remaining toll gate in Ontario as such, was decided here on Friday, when the shareholders of the Sarnia-Florence Road passed a resolution authorizing the directors to wind up the private company now owning the road and divide several assets among the shareholders and hand the road over to Lambton county for upkeep in the future a county road. The Sarnia-Florence highway was built by private interests in 1863 to join this city with the oil fields of Petrolia and Oil Springs.

ADMIRALTY SAYS COLLISION SANK BRITISH MONITOR

Swedish Steamer Captain Says His Craft Sustained Heavy Shock.

TIME COINCIDES.

Submarine Would Have Flooded—Crew Perished Immediately.

LONDON, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press)—The loss of the monitor submarine M-1 with 68 lives last week now appears to have been due to a collision with a Swedish steamer, the Admiralty announced today. Information sent by the captain of the steamer Vidar, now at Stockholm, that he felt a shock at the time and in the vicinity of the submarine's disappearance leads to the conclusion that the M-1 struck the Vidar and sank immediately.

The Admiralty statement was issued after an examination of the Vidar's hull. The Admiralty thinks the collision occurred while the submarine was submerged, and adds, "Under the circumstances it is certain that the M-1 was rapidly and completely flooded and that the crew perished immediately." The Vidar is a freighter of 2,159 gross tons.

REICHRAT APPROVES LOCARNO TREATIES

Safety Measures Will Be Placed Before the Reichstag Next Week.

BERLIN, Nov. 21 (United Press)—The Reichrat today approved the Locarno Safety Treaties by a vote of 46 to 4, with 14 abstaining.

The Reichrat, somewhat similar to the American Senate, has delegates from each German state.

The treaties come up next week in the Reichstag on a vote to approve their signing. The passage now appears certain.

Kafel Tried To Kill Wife; She Gave Birth To Girl

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 21 (Canadian Press). — Jacob Kafel, charged with intent to kill his wife because he was disappointed when she gave birth to a daughter and not a son, was allowed to plead guilty to assault when his wife refused to testify. The assault charge was filed with a warning to Kafel.

POTATOES UP TO $3.00 A BAG AGAIN TO-DAY

EGGS 60 CENTS.

Apples Plentiful, With Baxters and Spies $3 and $4 a Bag.

The farmers' market was filled to overflowing this morning with the patrons who jammed the basket section and circulated about the carts at the curb. In the upper hall the fine warm atmosphere seemed to be conducive to conversation, and people were talking in little groups everywhere, while the busy buyers with filled baskets dodged about them and wormed their way through the chatty throngs blocking the passages.

Fowl was to be had everywhere. Old and young members of the barnyard families of many a nearby farm came to the market this morning to tempt the purchasers of Sunday dinners. Geese and ducks were 25 cents a pound, and dry-picked chickens might be bought for 20 cents a pound, with other birds priced at 22 and 23 cents.

Eggs were 60 cents a dozen and butter ranged in price from 42 to 48 cents a pound.

One lady had doughnuts at 30 cents a dozen, fat round ones, plentifully besprinkled with sugar, and pickled beans in pint sealers were 35 cents. A young girl had some dainty things in wools for the baby and her doll, including pink and blue bordered jackets at $1.25 and $1.40 and bootees at 50 cents for the baby and 25 cents for the doll's supplies. Painted flowers for use in tall jars were another offering this morning.

Downstairs, potatoes were offered at $3 and $3.25 a bag. Apples were plentiful, Baxters and Spies selling respectively at $3 and $4 a barrel. Green pears were 50 cents for a large basket and V. Crebar had his tomatoes still holding out well, selling for 15 cents a berry box and $1 for the six-quart basket.

UNATTACHED CITY VETERANS ACCREDIT COL. A. P. MILLER THEIR WINNIPEG DELEGATE

MANY SPEAKERS.

Half of Men Present Decide to Enter Legion Through G.W.V.A.

The unattached war veterans of Peterborough held an enthusiastic meeting last evening and various speakers supported the question of Unity, the gathering finally resolving itself into a recruiting field for the G.W.V.A., half of those present joining. The chairman, George Melton, called the meeting to attention, and announced a two minute period of silence as a mark of respect for the late Queen Mother Alexandra. After gathing in the Armouries, it was unanimously decided by the meeting to take advantage of the offer of the Great War Veterans in placing their hall at their convenience. The meeting adjourned and moved over in a body to the hall of the Great War Veterans. George Melton, the chairman, outlined the objects of the meeting, and said it was to show the veterans of Peterborough that the only way to obtain Unity was to all get into one organized body.

Major Sutton.

Major Sutton in his opening remarks said "Soldiers we were and soldiers we are." He stated that he had come to the meeting to help out and that he had continually urged the union of veterans as it was a good thing for the veteran and a good thing for the country. The instrument to power for the veterans is one big organization, he said, and the time is now ripe. The G.W.V.A. and other organizations have thrown in their charters in order that the question of Unity may be a reality and it is now up to the individual veteran to help out also. A good many things, he said, have been said by different members of organizations, but they are all bosh. The time was, he said, when the veterans' organizations were thought by the citizens to be out for what they could get, but that day is now past. Any organization which the unattached veterans form will be a good one, and will bear a good name. There are still veterans and veterans' dependents who have to be looked after. If it become known in the years to come, he said, that any ob-

CHATHAM CALLS FOR NEW CHIEF

MAY RE-APPLY.

CHATHAM, Ont., Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press).—The Chatham Police Commission, in special session Friday afternoon, decided to reorganize the local force by notifying Chief Daniel MacLachlin and his seven men that their contract expires at the end of the year and that they will advertise for a new Chief and seven officers. All but the Chief will be entitled to apply for the positions. The Commission has acted in such way that none of the force are dismissed or requested to resign.

This system or reorganization was decided upon as the best means of ending controversial matters which grew out of an enquiry into charges of alleged irregularities on the part of Chief MacLachlin, preferred by Constables Sinnett and Henley. On five of the charges which involved allegations that the Chief had not accounted to the city for fines, the Judge ruled that these were not proven. With respect to a sixth charge that he had stolen an automobile cushion, the Judge ruled that the Chief's explanation was not satisfactory, but that the count was not proven and was drummed up for the purpose of getting the Chief "in bad."

Professional Faster Insane After Watching Girl Eating

PARIS, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press).—The sight of a young woman eating a chocolate eclaire with great relish outside his glass cage, caused Albert Wolly, a professional faster, to go violently insane. After gazing fixedly at the fast disappearing dainty in the girl's fingers, Wolly suddenly rose, seized his chair, and smashed the glass, in an effort to reach the food.

He was taken to hospital, raving. The faster was on the twelfth of his scheduled thirty foodless and sleepless days, and had been an attraction in the busy Paris thoroughfare, where his cage was installed in a large hall.

FAMILY SERVICE HELD FOR QUEEN AT SANDRINGHAM

BOOK COMPLETED.

Last Entry Made in Visitors' Book Just Before Her Death.

SANDRINGHAM, Eng., Nov. 21 (Canadian Press) — Private family services for Dowager Queen Alexandria were conducted today by her chaplain, Rev. Dr. Grant, in the bedroom of Sandringham House, where the body is lying. King and Queen and other near relatives attended.

Dr. F. J. William, who attended the Queen in her fatal illness told the press correspondents: "Queen Alexandria was conscious to the last. She uttered no word. The end was the most peaceful anyone could possibly wish."

A singular coincidence occurred in connection with her death. The visitors' book of Sandringham House, in use for thirty-five years, was completed, the final signature on the last page being made within a few hours of the Queen's passing.

Britain in Mourning

LONDON, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press) — All Great Britain stood with bowed heads mourning the passing of the beloved Dowager Queen Alexandra. Flags flew at half mast and many buildings were draped in black.

When the announcement was made at Sandringham that Alexandra was dead, little crowds that had gathered outside the gates, all of whom knew her, silently bared their heads and sadly wended their way homeward.

The newspapers today came out in deep mourning.

It is thought that the funeral will not take place before a fortnight, so that all relatives in Europe will have time to reach London.

Danish Court Mourns.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press).—The Danish Court today went into mourning for the Dowager Queen Alexandra of Great Britain, who before her marriage to the late King Edward was a Danish Princess. The mourning period will last for three weeks.

The aged and feeble former dowager Empress of Russia, who was Alexandra's favorite sister, this morning declared her intention of going to England for the funeral. It is understood, however, that King Christian persuaded the grief-stricken old lady to abandon the plan, which might prove too great a strain although her health is better than for a long time.

Coolidge Cables.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press)—President Coolidge has cabled King George an expression of sympathy from himself and Mrs. Coolidge over the death of Queen Mother Alexandra.

Coal Mine In His Back Yard Removes Worry Over Strike

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Nov. 21. (Associated Press).—The anthracite suspension means nothing in the life of Charles B. Zimmerman, a Shamokin manufacturer, who sunk a shaft to mine hard coal in his own back yard yesterday.

An outcropping of the celebrated red ash anthracite vein was discovered in Zimmerman's yard. The deposit was described as a "nest" of coal that lies over a limited surface in the flat section of the city. The mineral rights in the section are owned by the lot holders.

TOLEDO WOMEN ARE VICTIMS OF MAN WITH CLUB

Four Have Been Slugged on Head During Past Week.

SEVEN SINCE MAY.

Assault By Unknown Man Has Proved Fatal in Two Cases.

TOLEDO, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press). — Another woman was slugged here last night, the fourth this week, and the seventh since last May, while hundreds of police officers, assisted by scores of railroad detectives and civilians, conducted one of the most sweeping man-hunts in the history of Toledo. Two of the attacks resulted in the death of the woman and a check today showed the other five victims in a serious condition from shocks and injuries. Last night's attack was like the preceding ones. The clubber leaped at his victim, Mrs. J. G. Knight, 36, from behind a tree, and crashed his weapon across her head before she had time to scream for help.

EXHIBITION FOR NEW YORK SHOW

Trent Waterways Association Will Be Represented at Motor Boat Show.

NEW SECRETARY.

Following expressions of gratitude for the work performed by the past secretary, Leon Frazer, the executive of the Trent Waterway Development Association, which met yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce, turned its attention to matters of general business. G. K. Fraser, honorary president, introduced the matter of sending an exhibit to the New York Motor Boat Show, and a resolution to the effect that, granted the customary co-operation of the Dominion Government, such an exhibit would be placed, was adopted.

Frank G. Stinson was officially installed as secretary-treasurer of the association, and in a brief address paid a tribute to the work of his predecessor.

The president, F. D. Kerr, K.C., commented on the great work of which the Trent Waterway system was capable by bringing a heavy quota of the tourist trade to the district surrounding Peterborough. A case in point which he used to illustrate was the trip of Messrs. Hoag and Wilson, who had seen fit to use the Trent Waterway in their transcontinental trip route.

G. G. Fraser was named as representative at the meeting of the Tourist Association of Ontario, which will be held on November 27.

TWO DIVORCE NOTICES

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press).—Notice of intention to apply for divorce at the next session of Parliament is given in this week's issue of The Canada Gazette by John Wilson, Toronto, from Sarah Wilson, now residing in the City of New York; and Ethel Gildea Brown, Dorval, Que., from Arthur Edward Brown, Montreal.

THE WEATHER

The weather to-day was beautiful, and was a pleasant contrast to the cloudy, murky and damp conditions, of which we have had more than sufficient of late. The prospects for to-morrow are excellent. There are no unsettled conditions anywhere to the westward, and the barometer is high. If we are to have another disagreeable Sunday. Nature will have to make some "quick change" movements. We will hope for the best, but still keep our umbrella handy.—W. P.

Dr. Young Issues Writ Naming Dr. N.H. Sutton In Action for Slander

Claim For Damages Arises Out of Statements Made in Course of Campaign Carried Out in Peterborough During the Past Week.

$25,000 SAID TO BE AMOUNT NAMED

Suit Brought in Behalf of City M.O.H. By Gordon and O'Brien—No Statement Issued By Either of the Parties To-day.

In consequence of statements said to have been made by Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Officer of health, during the past week, Dr. T. W. H. Young has instructed his solicitors, Gordon and O'Brien, to issue a writ taking action against Dr. Sutton for damages for slander.

The amount claimed in the suit is said to be $25,000.

When interviewed, Dr. Sutton had not been served, and had no statement to make.

Dr. Sutton has this week been campaigning in the interests of "Better Health in Peterborough", speaking on Monday at the Rotary Club luncheon, on Tuesday at a Board of Health meeting, and on Friday at the Kiwanis luncheon. It is believed that the statements complained of were made at one of these meetings.

J. H. Seels, President of the Rotary Club, and Charles Cook, President of the Kiwanis Club, said today that no notification had been given them of anything untoward in the meetings held this week. They had no information as to the action, and no request had been made for the names of witnesses. In any event, it was not probable that they would give an information without consulting the respective executives.

Neither of the parties would say to what statement the writ refers.

PEACE REMOTE IN COAL FIELDS

MINERS OPPOSED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press).—Peace seemed more remote in the anthracite fields today because of reports that the operators had agreed to insist upon an arbitration clause in any agreement that may be made. The United Mine Workers are firmly opposed to arbitration. While nothing official has been announced as to the details of the discussion and decision at the anthracite operators' conference here, Thursday, today's New York Times says a definite decision was taken on the arbitration question. To an undisclosed spokesman for the operators is credited the general impression of the mine owners that the suspension must continue some time longer before the state of mind is reached from which a settlement can come.

BEATTY OPPOSED TO WATERWAY

Not Convinced That Benefits Would Outweigh Other Objections.

NOT PRACTICABLE.

TORONTO, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press).—"I have never been convinced that the advantages of a deep waterway from Montreal to the Lakes would outweigh the disadvantages of demurrage," said E. W. Baetty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway in an interview with The Toronto Star. "I do not think that ocean going boats could afford to make a journey to the head of the Lakes," said Mr. Beatty. Mr. Beatty admitted that the deep waterways project would mean considerable saving in the shipment of grain from the head of the Lakes to Montreal "but I believe it will be transhipped there to ocean going steamers," he said. "I am not convinced that the scheme is practicable."

POSTPONEMENT TILL FEBRUARY MADE BY COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF RAISING BECK MEMORIAL FUND

Multiplicity of Calls on Citizens at Present Time is One Reason.

NO SYMPATHY.

After discussing the matter from all angles, the local committee in charge of raising money for the Beck memorial fund decided that the present time is not opportune for such a campaign, and that February would be a more suitable time to start the canvass. The campaign has therefore been postponed.

The members gathered in Hooper's parlors last evening to discuss the situation. Three factors contributed to their decision: first, the approach of the Christmas season with its extra demands on the pockets of the citizens; second, the fact that many churches are now making their annual canvass for subscriptions for the ensuing year; and, third, that the people of Peterborough are not sufficiently acquainted with the purpose of the fund, and are not in sympathy with the project.

It was explained by those who spoke that the Queen Alexandra Sanitarium was for the treatment of consumptives, whether they could pay or not. Owing to the number who are unable to pay, the Sanitarium has always had a deficit, but this has been made up from the purse of Sir Adam Beck and his friends. Now that he is no longer present to take care of the deficits, the money must be raised from some other source, and it was thought that this endowment fund would be a fitting testimonial to the late Sir Adam from those who have benefitted from the policies of the Hydro-Electric.

Superstitntion Of Chinese Junkmen Causes Court Case Ship Rammed Junk Which Wished To Escape Devils

By Randal Gould, United Press Staff Correspondent.

PEKING, Nov. 20.—Following a claim against the American steamer, Meiren, alleging that she sank Chinese junks and drowned some Chinese, the Foreign Office to-day presented another claim against the United States, declaring that a United States' navy guard killed two Chinese and wounded nine others.

Sinking junks is not entirely an uncommon occurrence in Chinese waters. Mariners proceed on the theory that the junks must get out of their way or else take the consequences, for they know of the Chinese superstition that "it is good luck" for a big steamer to cut across the stern of a junk—and miss it. These Chinese believe that the cutting across process drives away the "devils" with which Chinese life is supposed to be beset.

ITALIAN SENATE APPROVES BILL

AIMED AT MASONS

ROME, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press).—By a vote of 208 to 6, the Senate last evening approved a bill against secret societies with 21 members abstaining from voting.

Before the vote was taken Premier Mussolini addressed the Upper House briefly, stating that his anti-Masonic feelings dated from his Socialist days.

Mussolini further declared that Free Masonry did not recruit its followers from the upper working classes, but from the professional classes. Thos proves, he said, that the princippal object of Free Masons was the advance of their own careers.

GERMAN SOCIALIST ASSAILS MUSSOLINI

Declares Locarno Treaty Is Depreciated Because It Bears Dictator's Signature.

BERLIN, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Dr. Rudolf Hilferding, the Socialist leader, who once was Minister of Finance, assailed Premier Mussolini of Italy in the Reichstag yesterday in discussing the Italo-German trade treaty. He declared that the treaty "has depreciated because it bears the signature of Mussolini, whose speech is in diametrical opposition to the spirit of Locarno."

TEMPLETON'S RHEUMATIC CAPSULES

FROM THE PULPITS OF CITY CHURCHES

To-morrow Will Probably Be Observed as Memorial For Queen Mother.

Services in Peterborough Churches tomorrow, in common with those in Churches throughout the British Empire, will probably be in the nature of memorial services for the late Queen Mother, Alexandra. These have been definitely announced in All Saints', St. John's, and Knox, and others may be decided later.

* * *

For some three months in the United Church careful and extensive preparatory work has been carried on leading up to an intensive campaign in support of the Missionary interests of the Church. An amount of 4,000,000 is required and this has been distributed through Conferences and Presbyteries to congregations. The six Churches of Peterborough are allotted $19,800, and the canvas opens tomorrow. The same dates—November 22 to November 29— are being observed throughout Canada. The local congregations are thoroughly organized and expect to reach their allotments.

* * *

The Anglican Churches of the city, forming part of the official Church of England and being the traditional Church of the British Royal Family, will pay special tribute tomorrow to the late Queen Mother Alexandra. Morning prayer in both St. John's and All Saints' will be of a memorial nature, Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave and Rev. J. D. Patterson officiating in these Churches respectively. At St. John's in the evening, Rev. Dr. Blagrave will preach on "The World's Great Thirst."

* * *

At St. Andrew's United Church tomorrow morning there will be installed five elders recently elected by the congregation. They are J. Wells Fraser; Bert Lockington; James McDonald; Dr. Moir and T. D. Young. The ritual of installation to be used is a very ancient Presbyterian form and possesses both spiritual dignity and beauty. This is likely to be an impressive service. Rev. J. W. Gordon, pastor of the Church, will be in charge. In the evening the pastor's subject will be "The Responsibility of Fellowship". Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park is the soloist.

* * *

"The Duty of the Hour" will be the subject by Rev. R. T. Richards at Mark street United Church tomorrow morning, and in the evening he wil speak on "Christ's Law of Responsibility."

* * *

The preacher tomorrow night in St. James' United Church will be Rev. A. J. Langford, of Trinity Church.

* * *

As an exchange of pulpits for the occasion, Rev. J. D. Richardson of St. James' will preach in Trinity tomorrow night. His subject will be "A Challenge to a Choice." Rev. A. J. Langford will occupy his own pulpit in the morning, speaking on "What Shall We Do?" The music will be under direction of Miss Clarry.

* * *

At Murray Street Baptist Church Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose will tomorrow morning speak on "The Bible and Science." There will be special anthems by the Choir, and a selection by "The Graham Quartet."

* * *

After an absence of several weeks, during which he visited Rome, France, and other European centres, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien tomorrow takes up again the work of his dicese. He was tendered a wonderful reception on Wednesday on his return, and it is anticipated that his parishioners will take advantage of the opportunity to join in the Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral tomorrow.

* * *

Mrs. Bridget Kinnaird, of Belfast, Ireland, will continue her series of reminiscences at Truth Mission tomorrow. Her husband, John Kinnaird, will give selections on the chimes.

* * *

Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, for many years Clerk of the Presbytery of Peterborough, will be the preacher in St. Paul's. His subject in the morning will be "The Inheritance of Our Fathers," and in the evening: "Scarlet Sins Forgiven." Miss Greta LeBarr is soloist.

* * *

At Springville Church Rev. A. H. McConnachie will tomorrow speak on "Life's Compensations."

TO PREACH AT ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Professor John Dow is Coming to Knox United Church.

BOY ACCUSES FATHER.

Witness in Trial of Father For Murder.

MINNEDOSA, Man., Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press):—Testifying that he had overheard his father confide to his mother a gruesome story of how he had killed M. Czayra, Mike Kooten took the stand Friday in the trial of his father on a charge of murder.

According to the youth, his father had acknowledged the slaying, disposing of the body of his victim in a near-by bush. He also told of finding blood-stained clothing in the house. Kooten, the boy said, had spent money freely shortly after the disappearance of Czayra. Other witnesses stated that the accused had displayed unusual wealth shortly after the murder, paying off debts and treating his friends royally. The case is proceeding.

TEST IN U. S.

The eyes of the world are watching the United States in its test of national prohibition, Miss Anna Adams Gordon, president of the national and world women's Christian temperance unions, this week told the national organization in its fifty-first annual convention. The success or failure of this test will determine future action of other countries in securing temperance and abolition of the liquor traffic, she said.

SCHOOL AT HOME HAPPY FUNCTION

A PLEASANT TIME

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 21. — The annual "At Home," given by the teachers and students of the High School in the auditorium, Friday night proved another of those model social function so characteristic of this entertainment. The students, properly chaperoned and in pleasant surroundings, with their friends enjoyed an evening of pleasant association. The decorations in the auditorium and lunch rooms were tasteful and appropriate, red black and yellow, the colors of the school being in evidence everywhere. The lunch tables, 14 in number, with covers for four on each, were decorated with these colors and on each table was a candle of the same color scheme. A large school flag was displayed on the wall.

Anything like confusion was prevented by the supper arrangements, the guests being entertained in relays, so that there was no crowding and no interruption in the dancing programme. The first lunch was served while the remainder of the audience were dancing numbers 9 and 10, and so on up to the last number, the guests being provided with number tickets on entering the building. For each lunch there were volunteer waiters, a boy and girl student for each row of tables. The greater portion of the provisions was donated by the students and their friends, so that the expense of the affair was kept down to the minimum. The entire net receipts will be turned over to the maintenance fund of the school.

Principal E. H. Gregg made a model host as usual, and looked after the comfort of his large number of guests. He was assisted by his staff of assistants and the following students, acting as an executive committee, co-operated with the teachers in the management of the affair: Misses Helen McDonald, Nellie Ford, Cherrie Turner, Margery Ackerman, WinnieSanders, Doris Bonneycastle, and Messrs. Jack Haig, Jack McAvoy, Gerald Bailey, Basil Reynolds, Howard Davidson and Douglas McComb.

The Board of Education was represented by Major J. M. Bygott, chairman, and Wesley Stephens, secretary, and a large number of the parents of the students enjoyed the evening with the younger generation.

HUNTERS RETURN LADEN WITH GAME

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 21. — The event of the week in Lakefield has been the return of the hunters, an event full of interest to nearly every family in the village. On Wednesday evening the Parry Sound contingent, which landed in Peterboro in the early evening was conveyed to the village by one of Dr. M. P. Kennedy's motor buses, the second bus following with its load of game. The arrival of the first bus with its crowd of hunters, unshaven, unshorn, tired but very happy animated the village which has been rather quiet for the past fortnight, but the arrival of the load of game brought out a fair crowd in a few minutes The cream of the hunting stories were told but there are plenty more in reserve to last till the curling season absorbs the attention of the men.

The Eel Lake Hunt Club returned on Thursday evening after two weeks outing, the first week they had splendid luck, but the last week was poor for sport.

On Monday, November 23, Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Young of Young's Point are celebrating their golden wedding and many friends will visit them on this very happy occasion. This is, also the centennial of the landing of the Youngs at Young's Point. One hundred years ago, Mr. Young's grandparents settled there. This lends a special historical interest to the affair. In this young country the celebration of a centennial is a unique event and one which all delight to honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Young and their family have the good wishes, not only of the residents of their own village, but of the community at large.

TRAGIC DEATH OF HUNTSMAN

Bullet From Companion's Rifle Shattered Knee and He Bled To Death.

NEAR PEMBROKE.

PEMBROKE, Nov. 21. (Canadian Press). — Martin Dahl, aged 26 years, of Dacre, died in a most tragic manner while out hunting near Griffith, according to word received here by his sister, Sister Ophelia, of St. Joseph's Convent. With a party of hunters, who were near Griffith, Dahl and a lad 22 years of age, Michael Mulvihill, were carrying home a deer. They saw another deer and Dahl gave chase. He had gone only a short distance when Mulvihill tripped, his rifle discharging, and the bullet shattered Dahl's knee. Mulvihill was unable to stop the flow of blood, and with the wolves howling around them, they stayed there, Dahl dying at midnight.

RYAN'S PARTNER NOW CAPTURED

Gordon Simpson Was One of Gang Which Robbed Bank.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press). — Gordon Simpson, one of the notorious "Red" Ryan gang, who made a sensational escape from Portsmouth Penitentiary about two and a half years ago, was captured by the New York City Police last night. A telegram informing Chief of Police Dickson of the arrest was received at detective headquarters early this morning. The specific charge against Simpson in Toronto is that of, with "Red" Ryan and others, holding up the Oakwood branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, on September 27, 1923, and robbing it of about $6,000. Simpson, the telegram says, was picked up on the photographs and description of him given in a circular issued by the police shortly after the robbery.

"Will Morning Never Come?"

"IF I could only sleep I believe my nerves would soon be all right, but night after night I lie awake and think about everything under the sun.

"What chance is there of getting better so long as this goes on?"

"None. Nerve force is being exhausted nearly twenty-four hours of every day, and there is no rest and sleep in which to replenish the waste."

"One thing sure I cannot stand it much longer, for I know that every week—yes, every day—finds me more restless and nervous, and less able to stand the strain of the day's work."

"I suppose the doctor could give me something to make me sleep, but I don't want that. I am weak enough now. I want something to build up strength rather than to tear down the tissues of the body."

"I believe I will try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I have often heard of it, but never thought I would need to use it. I was always so strong and healthy."

"This nervous trouble is a peculiar ailment. No one would believe what I suffer from sleeplessness and nervousness. I do not look like an invalid, but I certainly am one."

"One thing sure I shall not spend another sleepless night before I begin using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I expect it will take a little time to get my nerves right, but I shall get half a dozen boxes and give it a try out. Something seems to tell me that I shall not be disappointed."

You are protected against imitations by the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, which are on every box of the genuine Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 60c a box, all dealers or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Canada.

THE EXAMINER'S VIEW.

Dr. Sutton, during the course of his speech to the Kiwanis Club yesterday, and directing this portion of his remarks to the Examiner, deprecated a "Hush-hush" policy as detrimental to the city's interest.

So far as can be recalled, this paper has not advocated a "Hush-hush" policy about health matters, or any other subject of public interest.

What the Examiner does object to is that Peterboro should be heralded throughout the country as a city only 12 7-10 efficient in its health agencies when even the District M.O.H. admits that, were credit to be given for the work done by all local agencies, 50 per cent. would be a much more accurate score.

It seems to the Examiner that Peterboro's reputation in the respect could have been much better guarded by Dr. Sutton without altering the effectiveness of his indictment of the Health Department.

It would have been a simple matter to have reported somewhat to this effect: "I have gone into the health conditions in Peterboro and I find that, tested according to the score sheet recommended by competent authorities, this city's health work, including the activities of all local agencies, would obtain a score of 50 points out of a possible 100. In this score, however, I consider the Health Department responsible for only 12 7-10 points, for I cannot give it credit for what is done by other agencies."

A report of that nature with a detailed schedule showing just what is being done by these other agencies, in addition to the Board of Health, would have prevented the idea going abroad that Peterboro has been doing next to nothing in protecting its citizens.

THE OUTLAWRY OF WAR.

The moral public opinion of the world is more and more uniting on the resolve to outlaw war as a means of settling international disputes, says the Brantford Expositor. Dean Shailer Mathews of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, expressed the truth when he said: "Heretofore international law has consisted largely of an insistence on politeness in killing. Today, moral relations between nations of the earth are in the making." The phrase, "politeness in killing," may perhaps be harshly frank, but it is expressive of the truth. That was the object of the Hague conventions and the Declaration of London. It was legitimate to kill with high explosive shells, but no nation of gentlemen would use dum-dum bullets. It was proper to slay with the bayonet, but reprehensible to murder with liquid fire, or acid, or poison.

There was a time when agreements of this character were looked upon as a distinct advance in civilized warfare. The atrocities of the Great War, however, aroused the public opinion of the world to the consciousness that all war, no matter how humane, is horrible butchery and unworthy of civilized peoples. Out of this came the conception of the League of Nations. Since war cannot be controlled, the only solution is to seek to exterminate war, and to bring about the settlement of international disputes by judicial arbitration. The world is nearer the goal of international peace today than it has been at any time in its history. The prestige of the League of Nations is greater than ever, following the Locarno Peace Pacts, and the prevention of the conflict between Greece and Bulgaria.

THE QUEEN MOTHER.

Not only was she a beautiful and gracious Queen whose love for her family helped to endear her to the British people, but her life was characterized by a burning desire to be of service to her people.

It would be impossible to recall here the wide field of Queen Alexandra's personal activities. The list would be too long.

But it is scarcely too much to say that there has scarcely been an institution, scarcely a hospital, society or club, scarcely a movement or any appeal which has for its aim the non-political reform of some injustice, the alleviation of misery, destitution or ill-fortune, the cure or prevention of sickness, or the reward of humble courage, that cannot bear witness to some direct or indirect act of sympathy or assistance.

To feed the hungry, to clothe the naked, to heal the sick, to bring consolation into the homes of mourners, to open out an avenue of hope for the wounded in life's battles—these were the cares of Queen Alexandra during her long residence in the country of her adoption.

Close even beneath the surface, the womanly heart throbbed in sympathy with life's incidents and accidents, and Queen Alexandra was not less herself when bent on some errand of mercy and when, scarcely more richly dressed than the little one's purse, she comforted a child in the hospital bed, than when, in all the splendor of her royal position, a blaze of diamonds and pearls, she stood beside the late King on the dais of the throne itself.

Through all her life's work ran the same golden thread of tactful, often of silent, intervention, and many a lame dog has gone rejoicing on his way again all ignorant that the hand that helped him over the stile was that of the gracious lady whom the world has known since 1910 as the Queen Mother.

OCCUPATIONAL DISEASES.

When it is considered that in Canada and the United States there is an estimated loss to working people of nearly eight hundred million days in the year due to illness, the attention called by the Ontario Department of Public Health, in its recent report, to the growth of occupational diseases takes on additional significance. It is only in recent years that serious thought has been given to this subject, and the deeper it is studied the more urgent appears the need of seeking preventive measures. Obviously not all this illness is the direct result of industrial hazard. Statistics are not available to indicate what proportion can be so credited, but the statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of New York, addressing an industrial conference in Buffalo last December, made the significant statement that the expectation of life of non-industrial workers at the age of 20 was five years greater than those engaged in industrial pursuits.

The question in a broad way is aligned with other social factors, as wages and working conditions, methods of living, and such other influences as may affect the physical power of resistance, so that measures taken to lessen occupational diseases are usually associated with more general welfare work. This, indeed, is the aim of the Division of Industrial Hygiene of the Health Department. By co-operating with physicians and nurses employed in industrial work, with the Occupational Diseases Committee of the Ontario Medical Association, the Workmen's Compensation Board and the Factory Inspection Branch of the Department of Labor, it is hoped not only to remove some of the danger in hazardous occupations, but also to educate the persons involved to the necessity of adopting precautionary measures.

In most countries which have undertaken it at all this work is in a somewhat embryonic stage, and basic information from which to draw general conclusions is lacking. The Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario is gradually adding to the list of occupational diseases calling for compensation, and is thus inducing industrial groups to seek preventive resources. In Great Britain reports are required periodically in specific classes, such as lead and other forms of poisoning, anthrax and ulceration due to the use of pitch, tar, oils and dyes. In many of the States of the Union the problem of industrial hygiene and the necessity for reporting cases of occupational diseases have not been brought home to the medical profession. Probably the most earnest effort at studying the subject is made at the Massachusetts General Hospital, where all cases indicating industrial origin are referred to the industrial clinic. It was here found that out of 5,000 cases examined 2,000 were suffering from disorders caused by industrial work. In 1921 Prussia began to give the subject attention by dividing the country into four industrial medical districts, each in charge of a physician, who was required to make a scientific inquiry into the causes of occupational diseases, give advice and assistance, and report on prevention and treatment. The question was made the subject of report at the congress of the International Federation of Trade Unionists in Vienna last year, and in a limited way was considered by the International Labor Conference at Geneva.

Now that it is receiving attention, it seems strange that industry, which has directed so much thought to mechanical equipment, to save wear and tear on plant and to keep it always to the highest point of efficiency, has neglected to give at least equal consideration to the human machine. The impression has prevailed too long that when the human part of the plant began to show signs of wear it could be thrown to the discard without loss. Happily a revised appreciation of values, both economic and humanitarian, has brought a new outlook for the worker.—The Globe.

BRITANNIA RESURGENS.

British captains of industry complain that the doleful and misleading descriptions of old country conditions forwarded by press correspondents, and even by visiting men of affairs, have had a retarding influence on business recovery. The impression has actually been created in other countries that Great Britain is practically down and out and is no longer to be dreaded as an industrial and business competitor. Judgments of this nature pronounced for doom, have had wide circulation, the gloom being deepened by the figures of unemployment displayed prominently in the foreground. That they are far wide of the mark is the opinion of those who look below the surface and are cognizant of Britain's real position. Sir John Power, Conservative M.P. for Wimbledon, now visiting this Continent, when interviewed by the representative of the New York Times on his arrival in New York, took the opportunity to dispel some of these pessimistic forebodings, and incidentally revealed his own unbounded faith in the future of his country. No indication of impending defeat can be found in the picture he draws of Great Britain today:

> Great Britain has made enormous progress toward normalcy. Things are not done easily in a democracy where one is at liberty to shout his loudest. There are more people employed in industry in Great Britain today than there ever were in the history of the country. The practical stoppage of the immigration for virtually eleven years, coupled with the natural increase of, the population, has resulted in some 4,500,000 persons, after deducting the 1,000,000 killed in the war, being added to the population. Of these, some have found their way out of the country and the balance are those who are unemployed.
> Britain's trade has not ye treached its pre-war volume, but our proportion of the world's trade is 2 or 3 per cent. higher than it ever was, and it is impossible to expect it to recover entirely until the mind of Europe is once again turned towards industry instead of war. The export trade is one-third of our trade, but taking the whole volume, the trade of Great Britain is greater than it ever was. The returns for income tax to the Chancellor of the Exchequer were greater last year than they ever were. We have our troubles, and many of them, but all talk of decline and decay of Britain is unmitigated rubbish. We have not lost the capacity of managing our affairs. Excluding the charges on our enormous national debt, due to the war, and our war pensions, our national expenditures only exceed our pre-war expenditures by £9,000,000.

I doubt if any nation in the world can show an equal record. We are paying our way; we are paying our debts externally and we have reduced our national debt by some £500,000,000. We have even taken upon ourselves the burden of social reforms to provide pensions for widows and children. We are the most heavily taxed people in the world, and unperturbed by the clamor of politicians out of office, and Jeremiahs, our country pursues its way, undeviating and stolidly, a nation of traders on the one hand and the greatest civilizing and humanizing influence in the world on the other.

GEORGE STREET SOCIETY NAMED

New Body Will Be Known as "Men of George Street United Church."

MONTHLY MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the "Men of George Street United Church," to use the official title as decided on, was held on an evening of this week in the lecture room of the church. There was a good attendance drawn by the interest that is shown in the new organization and the objects in view for church betterment and increased interest in schemes of the church outside the weekly Sunday services. All are interested in the Sunday services, as members of the congregation, but there are other matters, often neglected in which the society or association find it may prove helpful.

The official name had been held over for formal adoption. Several names, or titles, were suggested, and after discussion that, as noted above, was adopted. It seemed difficult to devise a title that would express the proposed function of the gathering and at the same time not infringe on activities already named and in church service. And while not exactly satisfactory, the name selected was approved.

The committee to which had been referred certain matters, reported, and the report was formally adopted. The church now issues a weekly calendar or programme, which contains the notices as usually delivered from the pulpit at the morning and evening sessions on Sundays, thus relieving the pastor from what had always seemed a ten-minute advertising recital. A fairly large number of the calendars had been provided and distributed in the pews, but some remonstrance came that the seats in the galleries had not been supplied to satisfaction. It was decided to have additional numbers printed that none might be without. It may be noted that the men of the association have undertaken to cover the expense of publication.

It is the aim of the committee having charge of the routine of each evening to supply some feature of interest, apart from formal business, and that presented took the form of a number of impromptu speeches, topics to which to speak, being supplied. Mr. J. E. Smith took charge of this feature, having previously prepared the list of topics. These were typed on slips of paped, placed in a hat (that of the President), and mixed, and each of the combatants on being called, came forward and picked a winner. Those sharing in the elocutionary exercises were J. E. Renwick, H. W. Hamblin, H. J. Boyce, E. C. Hatch, Dr. J. E. Middleton, Thomas Barrie, Thos. T. Pratt, and Dr. N. Foote.

All, considering the emergency under which the exercise was carried on, handled the several subjects very well indeed. From memory all cannot be recalled, but Mr. Renwick discussed the old, old problem: "Why Do Girls Leave Home." The general conclusion reahed by Mr. Renwick was that the girls left the home because someone asked them so to do. He had, he said, a variety of impressions, but these were mostly cloudy, and in any event he might be called to account for his statements and that might, they all recognized, be embarrassing.

Mr. Hatch was asked to explain: "Why do the ushers fill the back seats of the church first, leaving late comers to be ushered to the front, resulting in personal embarrassment?" This allegation brought a flat denial from an usher who was present, and he only subsided when he was reminded that Mr. Hatch was the one to speak to the question. The views of the speaker were not very positive, either way, and he left the subject for further elucidation, as well he might. It seemed to bring up a problem in metaphysics, with which he decided not to wrestle.

Other topics were fished out of the hat. Dr. Middleton was implored to give his impressions on "Did the prevalent use of the automobile affect the attendance in church on a Sunday," and said that so far as the church in which he was concerned, there did not seem to be a material difference as contrasted with five or six years ago. The subject was one ,if to be discussed, should not be considered lightly, but follow on serious reflection.

Mr. Tom Pratt was invited to tell of "The most thrilling moment (or event) of his life." Mr. Pratt's life, it would be inferred, had not been particularly exciting or leading to situations very much out of the common, but he told of an incident, which he witnessed as a bystander, and the event furnished a thrill. At the conclusion of the series a few minutes were given over to criticism after which refreshment was served and I enjoyed. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Todd offered, standing with a sandwish in one hand and a cup of coffee in the other, advice as to method, manner and delivery and suggested ways in which one could acquire a speaking acquaintance with plain, decent English, the foundation of all facility in verbal expression.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—For actual sale at the Union Stock Yards this week there were around 7,000 head of cattle for sale. With a slowdown in direct shipments from the West to the packers, these receipts were not too heavy for the trade, and everything in the butchers' line was sold. Prices were stronger this week and the medium to choice butchers' were fully 25 cents a cwt. higher. This advance was also carried into the cows, with the exception of canners, which were firm and steady.

The exporters bought about 600 head and would have taken more. Prices here were not materially changed ,and the advances would not exceed 10 to 15 cents a cwt. Export steers sold from $7.50 to $8.10; short keeps, $6 to $7.25; heifers, $5.75 to $7.50; cows, $5.25 to $6, and bulls, $5 to $5.50.

In the handyweight butchers', prices have got up to $7.25 a cwt. for the choice and to $6.75 a cwt for good mixed killers. Average medium quality handyweights are around $6 a cwt. and common butchers' with a show of fat are good for $5 a cwt. Choice and kosher cows are $5.50 a cwt., and good cows up to $5. Medium quality cows are bringing $4 to $4.25, and common cows $3 to $3.50 a cwt. All the canners are being taken ta $2.50 to $2.75 a cwt. There was a good stocker and feeder trade this week at firm prices and some buying orders were not able to be filled.

Three cars of calves were sent to Buffalo this week, and this buying put the price up 50 cents a cwt. Best veal calves were 12 cents, and good calves 10 to 11 cents. Medium calves brought 9, and common ones 7 cents a pound. Grassers sold from 4 to 5 1-2 cents

Lambs were firm all week at 13 1-2 to 13 3-4 cents a pound on those under 100 pound each. Heavy lambs and bucks were 10 to 11 cents. Top handyweight sheep sold at 7 cents, and were generally firmer.

The scarcity of hogs has led to sharp competition in the country, and the price is up a dollar a cwt. from a week ago. Wednesday's hogs sold at $12.25 a cwt. f.o.b. There is no specified market for next week, but sellers are not expecting any change for the worse.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press)—Although wheat prices went decidedly higher today and July reached a new top record for the season, buying power based on adverse crop news from Argentina became exhausted for at least the time being, and the market tumbled back, losing most of the gain. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, at the same as Thursday's finish to 1-2c higher, December 159 3-8 to 159 1-2, and May 165 1-8 to 156 1-4, with corn 3-8 to 7-8c down, oats unchanged to 1-8c higher, and provisions unchanged to a set-back of 30c.

Price upturns today in the wheat market here were made in the face of a world of profit-taking sales, which, however, formed more of a weight at last than could be withstood. Moreover, notwithstanding that export purchasing today reached a total of as much as 2,000,00 bushels, indications pointed to a halt on the part of exporters in acceding to the late advances in price. Before the Chicago rise in values today had culminated, though, the market here showed an overnight jump of more than 3 cents a bushel and quotations in Argentine as up about 8 to 11 cents.

Extremely pessimistic wheat crop advices from Argentina were circulated and the Liverpool market displayed greater strength than did Chicago. According to a report from one crop expert, the

CAPTAIN FOLEY EXONERATED BY U. S. NAVY COURT

NAVAL ENQUIRY.

Mrs. Lansdowne's Counsel Demands That Court Disperse Itself.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press). — The Shenandoah Naval Court of Enquiry exonerated Captain Paul Foley Friday of the charge made by Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne, that he had sought to sway her testimony before that tribunal last month.

In holding that Captain Foley was not guilty either of seeking to cause false testimony to be offered or of seeking by "improper means to influence" the widow of the Shenandoah's commander, the court finally disposed of the case, as the judgment is not subject to review by higher authority.

While the court was announcing this decision, Secretary Wilbur referred to Rear-Admiral Campbell, judge advocate general of the Navy, a letter from Joseph E. Davies, counsel for Mrs. Lansdowne, asking that the court itself be dispersed because of the manner in which it conducted the enquiry into the charge against its former judge-advocate.

Study of the points raised in the letter and of the court record was begun immediately, but it probably will be several days before action is taken.

MARAUDING BEAR SHOT IN VICTORIA

Had Ravaged Sheep Folds in Neighboring County.

LINDSAY, Nov. 21.—The big, black, sheep-eating bear which has been creating havoc in the northern part of Victoria County for the past several weeks, has at last been run to earth. Bruin's taste ran solely to fresh mutton, and he is credited with devouring five sheep belonging to Mr. D. Gillespie and slaughtering nine in Mr. Grosell's flock at Miner's Bay.

His greed finally led to his capture by Messrs. Ira and Joseph Gillespie. The bear, which weighed 200 pounds, was cut into roasts and steaks and distributed among the neighbors.

Flood Of Money For Italy's $100,000,000 Amer. Loan

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. Canadian Press. — Heavy over-subscription of the $100,000,000 Italian government currency stabilization bond issues was announced yesterday by J. P. Morgan & Co., who headed the nation-wide banking syndicate through which the bonds were sold. Subscription books were closed less than two hours after they had been opened, and while no detailed figures were available, it is understood that orders exceeded $200,000,000.

The bonds were admitted to trading on a "when issued" basis on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, selling between 94½, the subscription price, and 94 7-8.

HURON RECOUNT APPEAL BEFORE SUPREME COURT

CONTRARY TO ACT.

Statement of Premier King —Expect Parliament Opening Dec. 10.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press).—"We are counting on the House opening on December 10," stated Premier W. L. Mackenzie King, as he emerged from the Privy Council chamber yesterday afternoon, following a session of the Cabinet Council which extended over several hours.

The Prime Minister stated, however, that a definite announcement of the date of the opening of the next Parliament would hardly be available until about November 30.

Premier King intimated that in the event of Parliament convening next month, as expected, the House may possibly adjourn for recess before Christmas until about the end of February.

"The decision in North Huron is contrary to the Act," declared Premier King, in referring to the decision handed out Thursday on the election recount, giving the seat for that riding to the Conservative over the Progressive candidate, previously reported to have been elected. "Action will be taken," replied the Prime Minister, when asked if any steps would be taken in the matter.

Later, Premier King stated that he had received advice by telegram that an appeal against the decision on the recount was being entered in the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Friday's meeting of the Cabinet Council, it is understood, dealt with a large number of routine matters. Practically all the members of the Cabinet were in attendance.

CASTE SYSTEM WAS EXPLAINED

FIVE DIVISIONS.

An interesting account of the rise of the caste system in India was given Thursday night in the Gilmour Memorial Church by Miss Robinson, of Bobcaygeon, who spent several years in India as principal of a boarding school for Hindu boys.

Although India had many religions, said Miss Robinson, the Hindu religion was alone in its insistence upon caste divisions. The origin of the system was lost in the mists of antiquity. Tradition declared that all the castes were the offspring of a great deity. The Brahmins, the highest caste, were believed to have sprung from the god's head, and consequently, all intellectcal duties were restricted to them. None but the members of this class were considered worthy of being educated.

The members of the second class, the warriors, were believed to be parts of the shoulders of the god and on this caste devolved all martial duties. From them also were recruited the princes and rulers. They were not called upon to do any thinking — this was left to the Brahims, and no attention was paid to their education.

Further down the scale came the artisans and weavers, who were said to have come from the thighs of the god. Members of this caste followed the occupations of their ancestors. The son of a weaver became a weaver in turn right down the ages. At present, said Miss Robinson, there were some evidences of revolt against this system, but the members of this caste were still far from complete emancipation from the thraldom of precedent.

The fourth caste, which were described as having come from the feet of the god, were the shopkeepers.

These divisions represented the four original castes, but in process of time, new divisions and sub-divisions led to the formation of nearly 2,000 groups, varying in social standing, their members having absolutely no intercourse with any beyond those attached to their particular group.

Further down the social scale, said the speaker, were forty million inhabitants of India who were outcasts, belonging to no caste whatever, and regarded as being in virtual bondage to the members of the various castes. Deeply in debt financially to their so-called superiors, their lives and destinies were at the mercy of the castes. It was no uncommon thing, said Miss Robinson, for an unfortunate outcaste to be born into a debt, contracted by his parents, and which he vainly struggled to pay off till the day of his death.

Regarded as being little better than animals, and unworthy of the slightest effort on the part of educationist and reformer, this section had undoubtedly fallen to an exceedingly low standard, and present the most difficult problem to the European missionary and social reformer. Missionaries who were themselves regarded by Hindus as outcasts and on a level with the lowest strata of Hindu society, concentrated much of their efforts on this despised section, and most of the converts to Christianity were drawn from the no caste people. As an illustration of the gross folly of the Brahmin contempt for these people, Miss Robinson pointed out that many of them proved singularly apt in acquiring knowledge in the European schools in India, instancing, as an example of a low caste youth who became internationally well known, Dr. Joshee, a Hindu orator, who lately toured Canada and addressed many crowded gatherings during his stay in this country.

The meeting was under the auspices of the Baptist Mission Circle. Mrs. Gordon Mann occupied the chair.

COOLIDGE ASKS U. S. JOIN COURT

Country Could Perform No Better Service For International Peace.

STRONG APPEAL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—President Calvin Coolidge made an earnest and unqualified plea to the country to join the World Court. Speaking at the dinner of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, held in the Waldorf Astoria, he told more than 1,000 business leaders that the United States could perform no service of greater value to international concord and peace. The President's call to the United States to assume its place in world ranks, stronger than any he had previously uttered, came at the close of an address in which he had surveyed the relationship of business to the Government and had outlined his opposition to the over-regulation of industry. The future of the nation, he said, now in the midst of prosperity unprecedented, demands thorough development of business, the elimination of waste in materials and men, and the realization that business itself had purged itself of "trusts."

PETER SMITH FAILS UNDER PRISON DIET

Former Provincial Treasurer Has Gone Into Steady Decline at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Nov. 21.— (Canadian Press.)— It has been learned here that the condition of Peter Smith, one time provincial treasurer of the Province of Ontario, who was sentneced to a prison term and a heavy fine for alleged complicity in defrauding the province, is causing some concern to prison authorities. Prison discipline and diet, it is said, have gone hard with the ex-treasurer, who has gone into steady decline. Fears are even entertained that unless parole is soon granted for the ex-minister, he may not live to complete his sentence, of which he still has nearly two years to seve.

Preston Features Trade On Toronto Mine 'Change

TORONTO, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press).—Exceptionally heavy trading took place on the Mining Exchange today, but prices remained on the whole steady. A turnover of over 167,000 shares of Preston was a feature, it being sold up to 11, from which it eased to 10 at the close, for a net gain of two and a half points. Consolidated West Dome and Goldale were left unchanged after a heavy morning. Lorrain advanced five-eights and Catle Tretheway three.

Toronto Stocks Maintain Peace In Short Session

Smelters sold down to 148, then recovered to 140¾, a net loss of half a point. Brazilian eased down three-quarters at 75¼, and Canadian Canners Preferred improved three-eights at 67. British Columbia Fishing was also firm, advancing five-eights at 58¾. British American Oil eased a point and International Nickel three-quarters, while International Petroleum strengthened seven-eighths.

Wheat Price Ascension Scores New Record High

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press.) — Climbing prices in the wheat market to-day quickly outdid yesterday's topmost figures. Particular strength was shown by the July delivery, which went to a new high price record of the season. The volume of trading was the largest that has been witnessed in a long while and was characterized by a general purchasing movement based almost entirely on reports indicating a substantial reduction of the wheat held in Argentina, as compared with what had been looked for. Opening 1 1-2 to 3 3-8c. higher, new style, Dec. 161 1-4 to 162 and May 157 3-4 to 158, was followed by material further gains and then by a moderate reaction.

Selling Price Renewal Cause Reactionary Price

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—A renewal of selling pressure against motor shares which again showed a lack of strong organized support turned the course of prices reactionary in to-day's stock market. Although the trade news was largely favorable, the raising of the San Francisco Federal reserve re-discount rate to 4 per cent., leaving the New York bank the only one at 3½ per cent., and the establishment of a new low level for the year by French francs had a depressing effect on the speculative sentiment. Chrysler sold down to 187, as against a recent high of 253. U.S. Cast Iron Pipe broke 96 points and Coca-Cola, Mack Truck, U. S. Industrial, Hudson Motors, Radio Corporation and American Can, sold off 3 to 6 points. A sudden advance of 3 points in Chesapeake and Ohio brought about some short covering in other quarters toward the close. Federal Mining and Smelting Common also showed independent strength by climbing six points to a new high record. The closing was heavy. The total sales approximated 100,000 shares.

BETTER OUTLOOK IN OIL MARKET

Surplus Stocks of Crude and Refined Held By Companies.

OUTPUT LESS.

Fundamental conditions in the petroleum industry continue to improve slowly but steadily, and the situation to-day is much better than it has been in several months, according to current trade opinion. The improvement was partly reflected in the trading in oil stocks on the exchanges. Trade leaders pointed out that while surplus stocks of both crude and refined were still above the totals reported for the corresponding period last year, the surplus was held by the stronger companies with consequent small likelihood of these stocks being dumped on the market. So-called "distress" gasoline, the offering of which by smaller refiners reduced prices during the Summer months had disappeared, it was said.

Attention was also called to the fact that while production of crude oil was falling steadily, consumption was greater, and it was predicted that the demand for oils this Winter would exceed that of any previous Winter. This applied not only to gasoline, the Winter demand for which has increased steadily owing to the increased use of closed automobiles and also to the increase in bus lines which operate throughout the year, but also to fuel and lubricants. The demand for the former it was said, shows the influence of the anthracite strike, while the movement in the latter is due to improved industrial conditions. The use of gas for heating purposes as a substitute for coal calls for a larger consumption of gas oil, and record sales of kerosene were reported.

Crude Output Declining.

Regarding the production of crude, declines have been reported in the daily average output for six consecutive weeks, and further losses are expected to be reported during the Winter when production is normally on the downward grade. This reduction in output has developed in spite of the drilling of some large wells during recent weeks. Most of these wells, however, have failed to hold their initial output, and the settled production of the older wells continues to grow gradually smaller. In the Garber pool, for instance, some wells were brought in recently with initial production of 12,000 barrels daily, but one of these is now producing only about 100 barrels a day.

In view of this situation, a more cheerful feeling prevails in producing circles, and the opinion is expressed that no further price reductions will occur for some time to come. In fact, in some quarters the prediction is made that crude prices will advance before the close of the year. In the Pennsylvania district, for instance, premiums of 25 cents a barrel were offered during the last few weeks by smaller refiners who had been unable to get sufficient oil at the posted prices to meet their requirements. Such a situation is usually followed by an advance in the posted prices. The establishment of premiums for light crude in the Mid-Continent district is also expected almost any day.

Refined Prices Higher.

Prices for refined products have been marked up lately. Kerosene is up about 1 cent a gallon, but this rise usually develops as Winter approaches. The significant development has been the advance of about 1 cent a gallon in the wholesale price of gasoline in the Mid-Continent field during the last few weeks. There have also been a few isolated increases in the price to consumers.

In spite of the low prices of refined oils during the latter part of the Summer, earnings of many of the Standard and independent companies will be the best reported for any year since 1920, and in some instances will establish a new annual record. This favorable showing is attributed to the fact that the increased volume of business more than offset the lower prices. Another factor in the situation is that many of the companies are reaping the benefits of the low-priced inventory carried over from the previous year.

The larger earnings reports have already resulted in announcements of dividend increases and resumption of dividend payments. Several stock dividends and extra cash payments also have been declared, and according to reports in the financial district additional Christmas dividends will be declared by some of the larger independent companies within the next few weeks, either in the form of cash or stock dividends.

LOCAL FACTORIES ARE BUSIER; BASIC CONDITIONS IMPROVING

Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia Tells Secret of Success and Brings Inspiring Message to Citizens—More Savings Needed.

J. Wells Fraser, Manager of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, said in an interview regarding the industrial outlook, that it seems to be generally conceded by the heads of the larger banks, that business conditions have lately been showing signs of improvement, and to him it seems that the bottom of industrial depression has been reached. He said that his opinions were based on the fact that nearly all the local factorie have larger orders on their books now than they had for the same period last year. The Quaker Oats, he said, are operating night shifts; B. F. Ackerman, Sons & Co. are very busy on Western orders, a result of good crops in the West. "I have heard," he said, "but this is only hearsay, that orders are on the increase with the Canadian General Electric Company, and I understand that the Brinton Carpet Company are increasing their plant, which is an indication of progress."

He said that crops in the district had been generally good and there is apparently less unemployment than for some time. In Mr. Fraser's opinion, one of the principal obstacles to increasing prosperity is the tendency of the people to live beyond their means. Money could always be found for amusements and gasoline, and few people appear to realize that a substantial savings account is a desirable basis of credit. He said if the same amount of energy was put into work that was put into having a good time the results would surprise the people, and what better satisfaction is there than work well accomplished? "Work and save," he said, "and good times are bound to come."

INTERESTING REVIEW OF VISIT TO OLD LAND GIVEN EXAMINER BY BISHOP O'BRIEN TO-DAY

South of England Charmed His Lordship—Lauds Beautitful Devon.

ITALY TRANQUIL.

County Brought From Chaos and Anarchy To Peace and Prosperity.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien was interviewed this morning by The Examiner, with regard to his impressions on times and conditions in the Old Land. His Lordship felt that it would be presumptuous on his part, being only a casual visitor, to give as facts opinions that he might have framed with regard to the different places visited, but he gave his impressions "for what they were worth."

As he had wished to visit the South of England, he landed at Plymouth and visited beautiful Devon on his way to London. He again visited the south when he was taking ship to France. The Bishop was loud in his admiration for the beauties of Southern England, particularly rural England. To the Bishop, London is always London, the seat of a mighty empire, where the fortunes and the future of the entire world are seriously discussed. Like the rest of the world, England and London are still suffering from the shock of the Great War, and this is particularly noticeable with regard to the number of men out of employment. The Government, however, seems to have things well in hand and no doubt work will be provided in due time.

As on his previous trip to London, the Bishop this time also made a thoughtful study of the English system of education, which he admires very much. He was particularly struck with the efficiency of the three kinds of denominational, or as we would call them in this country, separate schools—Anglican, Catholic and Noncomformist. The system of taaxtion and Government aid to all of these schools is, in the mind of the Bishop, the fairest and most equitable system known.

His Lordship found the general populace opposed to any such thing as Socialism or Bolshevism, and notwithstanding present difficulties he has no doubt whatever that the country will come through safely. While in England, he also visited Oxford University.

In France, His Lordship spent some time in the central and southern districts, but did not go to the war zone, which he visited five years ago. In France, he said, everyone appears to be working. The fall in the value of the franc seems to have aided commerce in France, as business generally is excellent. Manufacturers have an abundance of orders, to such an extent that there is even a shortage of labour. No doubt because of conditions brought about by the war, there is a good deal of unrest in France.

The Bishop visited Lisieux, the home of the recently canonized Saint Therese, also the parish of the saintly Cure of Ars, also the great shrines of Paray-le-Monial and Lourdes.

Prosperity in Italy

In Italy, the Bishop found conditions to be excellent. The present government, while dominated by a dictator, has brought the country from chaos and anarchy to peace and prosperity. No doubt the millions of people who are visiting Rome this year in connection with the Jubilee Year have added greatly to the prosperity of the country, nevertheless, a strong arm was needed to wrest authority from the hands of Socialists and Communists, and this has been successfully done by Signor Mussolini. Italy today is enjoying an enviable position when the peace and happiness of the people and the prosperity of the country are taken into account.

On account of the importance of the audience which His Lordship had with the Holy Father, Pope Pius 11th, he will speak of this at length on some Sunday evening in the Cathedral, the date to be announced later, and will also address a pastoral letter to the diocese of Peterborough.

During his stay in Italy, the Bishop visited Genoa, Naples, Pompeii and Vesuvius, and also enjoyed a delightful trip on the Mediterranean from Naples to Marseilles.

In conclusion, the Bishop said he was firmly of the opinion that there is no better country to live in than our own country of Canada, and no spot preferable to our own city of Peterbrough. His Lordship once again expressed his deep gratitude for the splendid home-coming reception which he received from the citizens of Peterborough on Wednesday evening.

CHAPMAN GETS 2ND REPRIEVE

By Move to Return Him to Complete Sentence at Atlanta.

HEARING NOV. 25.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 21.—Gerald Chapman will not be hanged on December 3. He must be reprieved again by Governor Trumbull in order that a decision may be reached as to whether he is to serve out in Atlanta Prison the remainder of a sentence of 25 years before he is called on to pay the death penalty for the slaying of a New Britain policeman.

It will be many months before a final decision is reached on this point, since ultimate appeal to the United States Supreme Court seems inevitable by one or more of the three parties involved in this latest move to save the highwayman, mail robber and murderer from the gallows.

This move takes the form of a writ of habeas corpus which Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas said Saturday he would sign on Monday, ordering the Warden of Wethersfield State Prison to produce Chapman in the United States Court here on Wednesday, November 25, at 11:30 a.m., at which time the legal battle to return him to Atlanta Penitentiary or keep him in Connecticut for hanging will begin.

His lawyers will use in their argument Chief Justice William H. Taft's own opinion in the Ponzi case, that the Federal Government zealously insists upon the complete fulfillment of a sentence imposed by a Federal Court, regardless of convictions and sentences recorded in State courts.

His imprisonment in the Connecticut State Prison is held by Chapman in his petition to be unlawful and the change from confinement at Atlanta Penitentiary to the State institution a serious menace to his health.

"There is grave danger unless he is transferred and returned to the penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.," says the petition, "that he will quickly either lose his mind or his health."

This will be Chapman's first public appearance since the prison doors closed on him on April 4, when he was convicted and sentenced to die. It will also be the first time that a condemned man has been taken out of the State prison for court action after his appeal to the State Supreme Court has been denied.

By bringing the Federal Government into the case Chapman's counsel insures a long legal conflict which will go at least to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and thence, in all likelihood, to the Supreme Court. The sentence which is now being convoked to save the desperado from the noose was imposed after his conviction for the New York mail robbery of 1921. It was interrupted when he escaped from Atlanta.

When Warden Scott presents Chapman in court Monday the State will be represented by State Attorney Alcorn. The United States Attorney General will direct District Attorney Cohen to appear on behalf of the Government.

This is Chapman's second reprieve from death.

He was sentenced last April to be hanged in June, but Governor Trumbull at that time reprieved him, pending a Supreme Court appeal until December 3.

Has Full Sentence to Serve.

Should Chapman win his fight to be sent back to Atlanta to serve out his full sentence he would remain there at least a full twenty-five years, for to the original sentence of that term there would be added penalties for his two escapes from the Federal authorities.

Chapman was sentenced for the New York mail robbery in August, 1922. He made his first escape from Atlanta Penitentiary the following March and his second from prison at Athena in April, so that he had served less than a year of the original twenty-five-year sentence.

He has not been well, and should he be returned to Atlanta to serve the full Federal sentence it is unlikely that he would live to be sent back to Connecticut for hanging at the age of 62, which he will attain in twenty-five years more.

FAIR MANAGERS PROPOSE LOWER RAILWAY RATES

Would Increase Attendance at Fall Fairs and Swell Railway Traffic.

MEET IN OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 21—(Canadian Press. — Railway passenger rates during exhibition time came in for considerable discussion during the afternoon session Thursday of the Canadian Association of Exhibitions now in session at the Chateau Laurier, here. The fair managers and secretaries present generally felt that considerably lower rates than now prevail would mean both increased traffic and revenue to the railway companies and added attendance to the fall fairs.

W. R. Cummings, Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa, pointed out that while the earlier dates at the Ottawa fair and others, had added to the general attendance, they had also resulted in keeping the farmer away, and that this (one of the prime objects of the exhibition) was lost. He thought that this was a question that should be given serious consideration.

During the afternoon tribute was paid to the great interest which Mr. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, was showing in the agricultural exhibitions. Hon. Mr. Motherwell's keen interest in the big exhibitions, had been of great benefit, it was stated.

The third annual meeting in 1926, will be held sometime during the Royal Winter Fair, and at Toronto.

Officers elected for the forthcoming year follow:

P. W. Abbott, Edmonton, President; Colonel S. E. Frances, Sherbrooke, Vice-President; Sid W. Johns, Saskatoon, Secretary-Treasurer; J. K. Paisley, Ottawa, and Jas. Rettie, Brandon, members of the executive.

Mr. Paisley is the past president, and is presiding over the Ottawa meeting.

SANTA WELCOMED BY MANY CHILDREN

Large Crowds Gathered Around Local Store to Witness Arrival.

Santa made his preliminary visit to Peterboro today and the reception he received from the youth assembled to greet him left little to be desired. The kindly old fellow stated that owing to the fact that there was no snow near here, he was forced to leave his reindeer in the northern wilds and made the remainder of his trip by airplane. As his first appearance was made on the roof of one of the larger stores, although nobody saw the 'plane, this tale seems plausible enough. Leaning over the coping he enquired solicitously as to the general health of the boys and girls and they immediately replied that they were feeling fine. He climbed up a ladder which miraculously dropped itself against the chimney and to the delight of all beholders, looked as if he was about to descend by that route. Unfortunately, as he explained, there was an excessively hot fire in the furnace and he was not able to go down that way. His next appearance was made through a hole in the pavement, when he shook hands with the excited throng of youth—yes, and age, too!

Junk, Dollars and Nature Features You'll Like

No One Will Ever Dig Up History Of Peterborough From Its Back Yards

If Tut-Ankh-Amen Had Had Junk Dealers There Would Have Been No Household Utensils Buried With Him —Where Does All the Junk Go?

PETERBOROUGH, along with most progressive cities does not accumulate a hodge-podge of lares and penates with passing years. The old stove which gramma and gramp. swore by and at, years ago, has disappeared and in its place shimmers a glistening thing of tile and nickle by which a roast may be cooked with coal, wood, gas or electricity, as the fancy of the fair, modern domestic dictates. But what of the late incumbent?—the dethroned monarch of the kitchen, which had glutted his passions with costly coal, until, with grates burned out by the very fire of its being, it was doomed for the discard. With legs disjointed, oven door swinging grotesquely on one hinge and dampers banged and battered, it was dragged from its position by cussing huskies who blamed the poor inanimate thing for all the bruises and bumps. Out of the back door it was lugged, down through the garden and it was dropped as close to the fence as it could be placed and there left, a marred and useless relic of a certain age in stove manufacture.

Not long, however, in these days does that stove linger by the fence to rust out the remainder of its days, for in almost every community there is some enterprising individual who has his eyes skinned for such decrepit utensils and so it is that the stove which the modern man discarded as useless may return to the same man later in the form of a body for his car or a garden rake or even another and better stove. Not one jot or tittle of that ancient heater is wasted, as it is sent back to the melting pots and in company with others of its class and many materials of similar metal it is again given a form which man may employ for his use.

Peterborough citizens have thus made a great stride ahead of the Egyptian and similar ancients who, to rid themselves of excess utensils buried them with the dead. Today they are dug up and find themselves the centre of controversial strife. This age will never be identified by the rare discovery of a corrugated washboard, for the junk men meticulously search out those treasures and rend the precious zinc from its housing of wood.

Rubber Not Wasted.

RUBBER materials are not allowed to molder and decay in the fence corners; bones are collected and utilized as soap and fertilizer. Bone charcoal is a sugar clarifier. Rags are sorted carefully and made again into cloth and it is a fact that the tatters of a tramp may in due course clothe the wealthiest merchant on George Street. Of all the materials known to the use of man nothing is wasted excepting glass and safety razor blades; glass is not reclaimed in Canada, as it is in England, and nobody knows what becomes of the razor blades of which there would be sufficient for one of those end-to-end—pass-a-given-point statisticians to work upon.

George Stevens Proud.

GEORGE STEVENS, of East City is a dealer in junk and is proud of the fact.

"Why shouldn't I be proud of it?" he asked, "I'mgiving new life to all those rags and rusty relics. People think that they're done, down and out—that they have accomplished their purpose; why sure it's only started. That old iron gets better and better everytime it goes through the furnace, those ashes which show that people were given warmth will provide soap to keep them clean, those rags will keep people stylishly and comfortably clad some day. I'm giving new life to all that cast-off stuff.

"This is one of the biggest jobs on earth today. It would take a hundred big books to tell all about it and I could talk all day on the matter and then just have it nicely introduced."

Mr. Stevens consented, however, to present a boiled-down account of the junk business to the Examiner and here it is.—

Bones were given the first consideration—cow bones and horse bones—who would think that the frame work of these domestic animals would some day grace milady's boudoir table or the fore-front of the good husband's shirt in the form of combs, brush-backs, jewelry boxes and buttons. The shanks which carried a noble steed so bravely are sawed and hacked until useful knick-knacks are evolved. In the ancient days it is recorded that a certain Biblical hero utilized a certain bone in a passage of arms and it is remotely possible that the traffic in bones received its inception in that auspicious event.

The greater part of the bone material is used for fertilizer, however, so that old Dobbin, although long since passed away may return to the dust which he spurned while hauling a plow, and again perform a task for his master by wheedling the little seeds to sprout and grow. Before the bones are ground, the oil must be extracted and this is done by a boiling process. The grease which comes to the top is skimmed off and is carted away to the soap factory under the reassuring name of "vegetable" oil. The bone is then ground and released as fertilizer or a sugar-clarifying agent. Granulated sugar receives its crisp and delectable appearance from contact with the humble and unassuming particles of bone meal.

The hoofs of cattle and horses are collected and shipped away to a city for the edification and diversion of the people who love to bask in the delicate aroma which identifies a glue factory. The horns of those western steers Peterborough people see nightly browsing peacefully in the canyon or on some wild "stampede" with the rancher's daughter right in front of them, are used in the manufacture of high-grade combs and other "tortoise shell" materials.

Scrap Iron.

SCRAP Iron is in a category of its own, and its ramifications extend over half a dozen classes. Wrought iron is not melted but merely run through a series of rollers until it resembles blood in colour and consistency. Before being placed on these rollers every particle of dirt and rust is screened and sifted away so that there are absolutely no impurities in the metal which flows so red at the final rolling stage. Master workmen sieze this glowing fluid and fashion it to suit their purpose.

Cast iron is thrust in a gigantic cupola, melted and run into molds, while malleable iron is baked in ovens. Steel returns to the mills and there is no haphazard work there for every rail or piece of structural steel turned out is graded and made according to some specified tensile strength. Men who know steel sort the odds and ends of junk and classify the units as thoroughly as any botanist ever distinguished a family of flora. Mr. Stevens said that the strength of a scrap metal product was greater than that of one made from fresh pigs (lady, the pig in this case, is a lump of raw iron.) Copper, brass and lead are sorted, cleaned and melted after which they are either rolled in sheets or poured into molds as pigs. Solder and babbit are made from a combination of tin, zinc and lead, according to the proportions in which the constituents are used.

Handling Waste Paper.

THERE are many institutions in Peterborough which are concerned in the collecting of all kinds of waste paper—old magazines, newspapers, ancient love letters and other correspondence—nearly anything made of paper is collected and shipped in bulk to some dealer in a larger centre, from that dealer it is released to another, who would have a mammoth staff of pickers and sorters. All the different kinds of scrap paper are classified as good for writing stock, wall paper, or news-print. It is sorted for colour and consistency and again shipped to specialist mills which are operating on stationery, wall papers, or news-print. One firm might accept white stock but would refuse all colored scrap. The paper is then boiled and shredded into a pulp, mixed with other constituents and eventually is again placed on the market as fine bond paper, for use in mural treatment, or to form the base for the news of the world.

There are thirty-four different classifications of rubber specified in a list submitted to junk collectors by a New York reclaiming firm. This will give some idea sa to the thoroughness of detail in the junk business. The various kinds of rubber which it is permissible to ship, are roughly classified as auto tires and tubes, rubber boots and hose of the airbrake, fire or garden varieties. There is very little pure rubber used in the manufacture of these articles and after being reclaimed the material may come back in the form of mats or packing for engines.

Rags Reclaimed.

RAGS are graded and sorted into classes as woollens or cottons and at the end of the process an expert would be able to state as a positive certainty whether the sheep which supplied the wool were natives of Australia or Canada. All wool is torn by spiked wheels into shoddy and sold to woollen mills, who mix a percentage of that material with the fresh yarns and as is the case with the steel industry, the strength of the yarns is tested and the ultimate cost of the goods depends on that tested strength and the wear-resisting qualities.

Cotton is used in the manufacture of high-grade papers and gun cotton. It is quite probable that many a Peterborough shirt was used for blowing one of the enemy to bits in the late war.

The coarser material is used for making horse blankets and heavy felts. All of the rags sent for any purpose are thoroughly cleansed and sterilized, picked apart and re-woven. In this country there is no one firm with sufficient machinery to carry on all the processes of dessication and construction. The various processes may be carried out by many different factories, and the rags which in their prime decked the backs of Peterborough citizens may even now be circulating through 500 different factories.

Even Wood Ashes.

WOOD ashes are used for the manufacture of soap. Those who lived formerly in the country may call to mind the fever which afflicted mothers. The ashes which were collected in the winter time were stored in a barrel and when spring came this barrel was placed on a sheet of tin and water was poured in at the top. In due course lye would begin to trickle into a bucket from the lip of the tin. When sufficient was collected the lye was poured into a big "potash kittle" and boiled. Chunks of fat were thrown in to thicken the mass and the result of the labor was a jelly-like soap which grandmothers loved and little boys hated, for its cleansing properties.

Ashes collected by the junk man are shipped away and the same process is carried out on a gigantic scale. Soap is the destiny of wood ashes, whether they like it or not. The ashes of the autocratic lump of coal are valueless except as a filler for roads.

"Everything that man wears or uses becomes eventually the legitimate property of the junk man" concluded Mr. Stevens "and it can be easily imagined that in collecting the junk of the city I am performing no mean task. If it were not done, unsightly and unprofitable heaps of rubbish would rapidly accumulate. Rust and decay would reduce the materials to nothingness, and disease might possibly result.

"The junk man, whose business may be considered disreputable by some turns these valuable materials once again into useful channels for the service of mankind."

UNATTACHED VETERANS HELD A BIG MEETING

jects which the veterans get behind is a good and a proper one, then the citizens of Canada will get behind us. He stated that he had always been of the opinion that the veterans must lead, because they individually and collectively have had a wider experience of life, political and otherwise, and have a vast store of practical experience that should be used in running the country. That is the big thing to be obtained by one big legion of veterans and if they move with a purpose to get on with the work in a sensible manner, nothing can stop tehm. "You who have served your Country can be of service to your fellow men," he said, "and it is a worthwhile job and should continue with you until the Last Post sounds."

Col. A. P. Miller

Colonel Miller briefly reviewed the work which he had covered in the interests of Unity. He stated that Peterborough had not played any part in getting delegates to attend the conference that was held in Toronto and that he wished to correct the impression that the local veterans had not been given a chance to do this and in support of his contention quoted a notice that had appeared in The Examiner. He stated that he would not have been the delegate to this convention only they could get no one else to go. He stated that a motion had been put through the 21st Batt. club giving him the authorized credentials. At the Toronto conference, he said, there were representatives of every veteran body and they were all assembled in the purpose of Unity, agreeing to sink their differences in the one great cause and as a result they gave the delegates who are going to the convention in Winnipeg almost a free hand. "You who sank your differences overseas can surely do it now," he said, "and if there had not been service oversea how could you have withstood the trials and temptations that beset your paths from time to time?" He stated that he had been criticized for calling this meeting outside the G.W.V.A. Hall and that he considered it was his duty as a delegate to do everything in his power to consummate Unity. He said that his purpose was to get all veterans together and that he had heard that a number of veterans did not want to enter the G.W.V.A. Hall and that nothing had ever given him more pleasure than the unanimous vote taken at the preceding meeting in the Armories that the meeting should adjourn and move over to the G.W.V.A. Hall. The only way to obtain Unity is by getting together and talking things over, he said, and any information given him would be presented to the general conference in Winnipeg. "Your education as a result of your experience overseas has been a broad one. We in Canada have not heard as much of this new movement as we should," said Col. Miller, going on to explain that it was the result of the four big British organizations getting together, and the results were so good that it was decided to extend it to take in the whole of the British Empire. It will be a wonderful power in Canada, he said, and power is a valuable thing, but it must be used properly in order to obtain results.

Captain Rev. P. Costello.

Captain Costello stated that he was in full accord with the idea of having a unified body of veterans throughout the whole country. "I have a great respect and love for all returned men," he said, "and why should not that spirit exist in the heart of every returned man, a spirit that has been instilled into us all through sacrifice. It is up to the returned man to make himself appreciated, not so much for what he has done himself but for the protection of the old veteran." He stated that in his line of life he had came across more of the veterans who are feeling the effects of the struggle than the average man. "Some day you men will feel the effects of sleeping out in the rain and slush. Stand up and assert your rights in this matter; you stood by the country in her hour of need, and gave your best; why should you be tramped on now? The experience of the returned man has been such that it has made him shy. The Canadian as a soldier, would back up from nothing on the Western front, and if we don't exert this same spirit now we will soon be in the corner." He said that the veterans were not hanging back from any spirit of illwill. The fact was that the average veteran simply does not think of himself. There is that dual spirit in the soul of man, love of God and love of country, that makes a man stand up for his country. "We all should be boosters," he said. "Talk unity to the returned man in the street. There was a machine over there that the enemy could not stop, it was the result of unity. Why not have it now?"

Colonel Fee.

Colonel Fee stated that he had been one of those who had held aloof from joining any of the organizations, but from this on, he said. "I am going to join up and do my part for the returned man."

Captain D. G. Melton.

Captain Melton said that the matter of unification should have the support of every returned man in Canada, but that they should not forget the work that has been done by the existing organizations. He said that the Peterboro branch of the G.W.V.A. had done wonderful work. "It is up to us all," he said, "to do our level best to spread this gospel of unity to our comrades in the city, so that the best results may be achieved."

Colonel J. Mills.

Colonel Mills was of the opinion that the war would soon be forgotten. He stated that this was a fast age, and it was up to the veterans not to let them forget. "You who have served in France," he said, "have suffered and will undoubtedly feel the results of your hardships as you grow older. If the G.W.V.A. passes away we must not forget to give it credit for the work it has accomplished for the veterans and the veterans' dependents. As an organization they have done great work. Those veterans," he said, "who objected to entering the G.W.V.A. hall must get rid of these ideas for the good of the cause."

Major Clifton.

Major Clifton said that he appreciated the motives of Colonel Miller in representing the unattached veterans and felt that they owed Colonel Miller a debt of gratitude for the manner which he had acted in their interests.

Major G. G. WinterBottom.

Major Winterbottom thanked the veterans for accepting the offer of the G.W.V.A. and using their hall. He stated that he was for unity and that he wanted to see it prosper, irrespective of name. The G.W.V.A., he said, has been struggling along. He stated that the G.W.V.A. owned the building and it was up to the returned men to get in on the ground floor before the amalgamation took place, so that they could have a say in its affairs. "You will not obtain harmony if you let petty jealousies stand in your way," he said, "and when most of you were needed here you stood aloof. If aims and objects are worth anything they are worth the trouble of getting into this Association and then when the amalgamation goes through we will have a united Peterborough. The aims and ideals of the G.W.V.A. are exactly the same as that of the new legion and are worthy of your support. Major Winterbottom placed himself on record as saying "if you can get 200 men to join the G.W.V.A. I will place my resignation on the table and we will give you a free hand in this great cause."

"No, sir, you never can tell what old dame Nature will do this time of year. This time last year, we had a bon-fire of leaves and you boys or somebody threw a couple of handfuls of horse chestnuts into it while my back was turned and the "pesky critters" decided they had had enough of the heat and they all exploded at once. Do you remember that, Wess?"

But Wess Johnson, the famous Robin Hood of the boy band of the Merry Men of the Greenwood, was silent.

It was Saturday morning, before breakfast.

Now, Saturday morning, either before or after breakfast should be just Saturday morning, according to Nature and the clock and the calendar. But listen! Are you open to reason?

Well, if you are open to reason, I will tell you.

Wess was silent. And the reason he was silent is this:

Saturday in Boyland is boy freedom, or it ought to be, and it is a red letter day, or it ought to be, but silent Wess stood in his pajamas, looking out the bedroom window, upon a very beautiful, a very soft and gentle, and a very very thorough snow storm.

"Good-bye football game!" said Wess.

"Well I know, Wes," said his father, "but I was just saying how different last year was. Don't you remember how the chestnuts exploded and blew the fire all to pieces and you and the boys laughed so much? You were popping teasing jokes."

Mr. Johnson felt badly for his lad, because, don't you see, the Yellow Cats had defeated the Merry Men at football and this was to be the day for the Merry Men to wipe out the stain. Of course everybody knew that the Yellow Cats would not have won, unless Robin Hood had ordered his four best men to play on the Yellow Cat side, but still, this was to be the big game, and here it was snowing hard and cold.

Poor Wess, standing at the window in his pajamas, looked more like a circus clown trying to mock real happiness than he looked like the Robin Hood he really was at heart.

"You had better hurry and get dressed and shovel the sidewalks before you go", said Mr. Johnson.

"Good bye game and welcome the merry ha-ha from the cats forever more," gloomily grumbled Wess, as he sat on the bed to put his stockings on inside out, either by accident or just for relief to his feelings.

Now, it so happens that the town had an old street sweeper. And it so happens that Mr. Johnson saw that it had stopped snowing. And it so happens that there was only about half an inch of snow on the hard ground, with the air cold and hardy any sun. That is very important, as we shall see later.

Mr. Johnson hurried away with an early breakfast, making Wess rather peeved by remarking that he was going to see old dame nature about the weather. Wess thought it a poor joke.

Well, after breakfast, Wess cleared the sidewalks and went over to the little log cabin headquarters of the Merry Men. There it was, resting quietly and snow covered, among the bare trees, just beyond the cedar-rail fence.

Not long after the gloomy Robin Hood had lighted a fire in the fireplace of the cabin, who should come in but the brave Little John, Don Bonter.

"Rotten' luck, eh?" said Little John.

"Well, I wouldn't care," said Robin Hood, "onl ythat big blow, Tom Catt, will kid us all winter."

Little John had forgotten to shut the door properly, so that it was off the latch. Jimmy Britton, our comical Friar Tuck was not a wise woodsman, or he would have noticed smoke issuing from the chimney. He arrived and heard no voices from the gloomy interior, so thought he was first. He decided to take in an armful of wood and start a fire.

Just as Jimmy and his lazy man's load of wood got to the door he slipped and fell against the door for support, thinking it was fastened.

"You're a fine bird, you are!" exclaimed Little John, "Aren't you satisfied with our fire? Wantta break the house all down on our heads?"

Just then about a dozen Merry Men arrived, and they laughed so much that Friar Tuck had to do it all over again, for fear somebody missed seeing it the first time.

The boys had settled down to tell stories and Presto Chango otherwise known as Roy Preston, made the boys forget the snow for a while, as he told about watching a spotted Sandpiper down near the mill-pond, one day during bird migrations.

"Yes, it was a neat trick all right, which that bird pulled off" said Roy, "I never knew he was at home except in shallow water, where he wades and seeks food, but this one was chased by a pigeon hawk and say! I though he was a gonner for sure, when I saw the hawk strike for him, but Little Mr. Tip-up or Mr. Tetter-tail as some folks call him, was not such a fool. He had a trick up his sleeve. Just as the hawk struck, Mr. Tip-up tipped down into the water. He did a neat dive and when he came up, the hawk was gone.'

Bang! Bang- went the door. It was Tom Catt again. "Ya Merry Guys are not going to get out of a good beating just for a little snow," he announced, and the continued, "we know you are afraid, but Mr. Johnson has played you a mean trick, he has hitched up a team to the old town sweeper and the field is swept clean as a whistle and the ground is hard and dry. So you can figure on the Yellow Cats being there at two o'clock, if you have nerve enough to come over and see us sweep your team off the field without the aid of any street sweepers either." Then he was off through the trees.

"Dads' a regular guy sure, fellows!" proudly remarked Wess. "I thought he was teasing this morning, and...."

"Gimme that horn' 'cried Little John, seizing Robin Hood's horn and blowing three ear splitting blasts himself. "Three cheers for Robin Hood's father."

And the Merry Men cheered for sure. And they went home and dressed for the game and Bernie Brown scored so many times against the Yellow Cats, that the cats were hopelessly beaten and Tom Catt blamed it all on Mr. Johnson and the street sweeper and Robin Hood blew a blast and led a cheer, not for the defeated cats, but for the old town sweeper and joking Mr. Johnson.

SANTA HERE.

First Visit of Year To City Made This Morning.

Santa Claus made his first appearance of the year in Peterborough, when he entertained a crowd of children that packed the Simcoe and George Street corners this morning about 10 o'clock. Santa chose a fairly warm morning for his visit, but did not appear to suffer from lack of snow or his reindeer troupe. He apparently arrived by the air route, for he addressed the children through the medium of a megaphone from the roof of the Turnbull Company's establishment descending later to the Toyland section of the same store, where the big premises were filled to overflowing for his visit.

England is acknowledged to have the best girl hockey payers in the world, but it is likely that formidable rivals soon will be fund in the United States, where hockey has become a popular sport at many of the prominent schools and colleges for girls.

MISSION VANS DO GREAT WORK

TOURS DESCRIBED.

The wonderful work being done by the caravan missionaries in the Western Provinces, in opening up Sunday schools in the remote sections of the country, where there are not enough people to support a clergyman or a student, and in listing the names of unbaptised children and communicants so that a clergyman can go in occasionally and administer the sacraments, was explained by Miss F. H. Hasell to a good audience in St. John's Sunday School hall last night.

Miss Hasell, an English lady, was one of the original workers who started in 1920 with one caravan in the diocese of Qu'Appelle. Now there are six of these vans, one in each of the dioceses of Qu'Appelle, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatchewan, Brandon and Cariboo. Sixteen ladies comprised the staff during the past year, and all of them served without salary, and some of them paid their own expenses. Miss Hasell is now on her way to England to try to raise money to put a seventh caravan in the field.

The method of working is to enter a school district, call at the school, secure permission to hold a short bible study session and get the names of the parents. The workers then call at all the houses in the district and make arrangements for a Sunday school on Sunday. If volunteers are not ready to carry on the school the pupils are put on the Sunday school by mail plan and receive their lessons every month and send in their answers to the diocesan headquarters. A list is made of all unbaptised children, and of the communicants in the section, and an endeavor is made to have a clergyman call around to administer the sacraments.

There are two reasons that make the work necessary, said Miss Hasell. The first is that the law of the Prairie Provinces says that a half hour of Bible study may be given every day if the trustees agree, but there are so many sects represented that they very seldom agree. The second is the great shortage of men and money, and even where there are clergy they usually have several churches to look after and are unable to give much time to Sunday school work.

Miss Hasell described first her tour through the Dauphin district of Brandon diocese during the recent summer. Due to the generosity of people who provided a shower of canned goods, and the kindliness of the settlers whom they visited, the cost for food during the period from June 13 to October 19 was $16, and the cost of gasoline and oil for the Ford truck was about $80, although a total of 2,300 miles was travelled.

Plenty of Mud.

A number of lantern slides, made from pictures taken on the tour, were shown. The principal difficulty all through the trip this year was mud. The road into Dauphin was a veritable quagmire, and several pictures were shown of the car up to the hubs in mud. Long stretches of the road were covered with water, as there had been heavy rains and the waters from the mountains to the west of Dauphin had caused the rivers to overflow all over the flat country. Many of the farmers visited had lost their crops, even the potatoes being flooded out.

The people visited were of many nationalities. There were Canadian and English settlers, Ruthenians, Doukhabors, Icelanders and Indians. Many of the young people had never attended a service of any kind and were entirely without moral or ethical standards. The standing of the people was illustrated by one Ruthenian whose wife had died. He said: "I miss my wife a great deal. I miss her as much as I would my best cow."

During the tour of the Dauphin district 1,070 members were secured for the Sunday school by mail, and a great many names of unbaptized children and of communicants were reported to the clergy.

The Cariboo Tour.

In the newly established Diocese of Cariboo, where Miss Hasell toured in 1924, the difficulty was very rarely mud. Most of the roads were very rough and rocky and a great many of them were to narrow for two cars to pass for stretches several miles long. The roads were very steep, and in places were like shelves between a rocky wall on one side and a drop of several hundred feet on the other side. Miss Hasell showed a picture of the van after it had slid over the edge of one of these narrow roads to light upside down on a level spot some 25 feet below. Miss Hasell had brought the car down a long steep hill, negotiating successfully three hairpin curves, and wa sgetting near the bottom when the accident occurred.

At one point in the Cariboo diocese Miss Hasell was told that years. The condition of the people was very much the same as in the Dauphin district. On her tour she obtained 316 scholars for the Sunday School by mail, and more were obtained during this year's trip by another party, bringing the total for the diocese up to about 620.

Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., conducted the opening exercises and introduced the speaker. Rev. J. L. Hughes of St. George's Church closed the meeting with the Benediction.

How I Earned My First Dollar

Mayor J. J. Turner

"Nothing appeals to a boy like something which will run, such as carts and bicycles," said Mayor Turner, "and to hang on behind a wagon or buggy in days gone past was the height of enjoyment.

Imagine the joy of a boy when he applied for and obtained a job driving a real horse attached to a two wheel dump cart used to unload coal from vessels arriving in port. Such was my joy, perched grandly on the front of the load, driving from the vessel up the incline roadway where the coal was dumped, and many were the trips that I made during the ten hours for which I was paid 50 cents a day. This was my first real job, he said, and my thoughts at the time were those of gratitude to my employer for allowing me to be part and parcel of the busy life which passed over the docks in the town of Port Hope. I still have distinct memories of the pleasure of drawing three dollars at the end of the week, walking home manfully and giving it to Mother—the first money I ever earned."

BOY INJURED

Jimmie Lustie Had Leg Broken While Playing With Friends.

As a result of play which took a rough trend, Jimmie Lustie, of 215½ Charlotte Street, is lying in St. Joseph's Hospital to-day, suffering from a fractured leg.

Yesterday afternoon at 4.30 a number of boys were playing on Aylmer Street, and their sport developed into a species of horse-play, which entailed considerable piling up and falling down. Jimmie had leaped upon the back of another boy, and as he fell his leg doubled up in such a manner that the bone snapped about two inches above the ankle. A report from the hospital indicates that the boy is resting much better to-day.

ROBERT BURNS CHAMPIONED BY LECTURER HERE

Dr. James Hughes Lectures on Poet in St. Andrew's Church.

DEFENDS MORALS.

Scottish Songs Sung By Miss Daisy Murray Well Received.

Robert Burns lived again and trod his loved Ayrshire heath in the minds of those who heard the inspired lecture presented by Dr. James Hughes, LL.D., in the assembly hall of St. Andrew's church last night under the auspices of the Springville and Fairmount church. Rev. A. H. McConnachie, pastor of that church, acted as chairman.

A pleasing feature of the entertainment was the singing of a number of Scottish songs, written by Burns, by Miss Daisy Murray. Her accompanist was Miss Alma Blanchard. Some of the songs were: "Flow Gently Sweet Afton," and "Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonnie Doone," with Robin Adair as an encore number. The lecture was one which merited a much larger attendance, while the lantern slides, which were screened afterward, should have been viewed by every true Scot in Peterborough. Dr. Hughes is an untiring and devoted champion of Burns, and it is his mission, he feels, to redeem the character which was so strongly misrepresented by contemporaries and others. The very genius of the man, the speaker declared, won him enemies, and the violence of his attacks against the sins in religion obtained for him the hatred of the narrow minded factions of the day.

Ever a warrior against creeds and false doctrines Burns was a fitting target for the venomous darts of jealousy and spite. Those who declared that the poet knew himself for a wicked man could be answered by the fact that, on his deathbed, he declared he had but one regret—he had not prepared his poems for publication. And it was this very lack of preparation, said Dr. Hughes, which turned many against the great interpreter of religion for many poems went to the press which if Burns had been alive would never have formed a part of printed works. Because of those few works the self righteous finger of condemnation is pointed at one of the greatest masters of all times. Even Carlisle who had no love for Burns was recorded as having said: "Robert Burns an immoral man—I have no conception of the man in that light; he is one of the best in ten thousand."

Some ignorant people, declared the speaker, said that Burns was disloyal but that was because he had thrown in his lot on the side of reform. He agreed with the great Pitt in morally supporting the cause of the Colonists at the time of the Revolutionary War in Canada. No man ever interpreted Christ's ideals as well as Burns who "hated the superstition of the fanatics but loved the religion of a man."

He attacked hypocrisy, but termed religion the "Maid Divine." One of the greatest proofs of his morality was that he could write The Cotter's Saturday Night. Dr. Hughes declared that if that poem were read twice each year for a lifetime a thoughtful person would find new material for wonderment on each occasion. Besides his ability as a poet Burns was the greatest Scottish prose writer and at the same time his ability as an orator stood out over any in all Scotland.

The pictures, which depicted scenes in the neighborhood which Burns made famous, were fitting companions of the descriptive words employed by Dr. Hughes. Poems of tone and harmony both will stand in the memories of all who saw and heard the tribute to one of Scotia's greatest. Many who saw the pictures have trod the paths which Burns made deathless and sat in the rooms or roamed through forests which still bear the imprint of his personality.

CHAPTER I.

By Carolyn Wells.

Connemara sat, absorbed in her own reflections. This statement is to be taken physically as well as mentally, for the reflections she saw were the subject of the reflections she thought.

She could easily see six or seven Connemaras, for her triplicate dressing-table mirror, aided and abetted by a hand glass, gave her various and sundry views of her hair. She studied it in deepest meditation, and critical at that, as who should say, a poor thing, but mine own.

Yet it was not a poor thing. Moderately long, moderately thick, moderately curly, its color was—well, Connemara had spent her childish days largely in stamping her foot and shouting back at teasing schoolmates, "It isn't red, it's orburn!"

Of course she had more of a proper name than that. She had been christened Constance Mary, but in her earliest attempts at conversation, lingual ineptitude had brought forth only Connemara, and the name had clung. Her other name was Moore.

For the rest, she was a slender little thing, light and graceful of movement, possessing more temper than temperament and more wit than wisdom.

These traits, in connection with the color of her hair in certain lights, had caused her to be dubbed Cayenne Fairy, and she lived up to the title.

Her boudoir, where she sat, was harmoniously colored in green and white. Even the books were all bound in green, with white leaves inside. From the window she could look out on the green tops of waving trees an on down to the lake, green with reflected foliage.

But Connemara wasn't looking out of the window. She was looking at her own hair, in the repeated reflections of the mirror panels.

"I don't know," she said, half aloud, "I don't know——"

"Don't know what, Connie?" And a figure appeared at her open door. A calm, placid figure, that might have been, nay, must have been the inspiration for the poem that begins, "Serene I fold my hands and wait."

"Whether to bob my hair or not," and Cayenne Fairy turned anxious, troubled eyes toward her Aunt Celimena.

This lady was perhaps half a century old, was as bony as a suspender button, and was, with fine, patient resignation, an old maid. With the idiosyncrasies that spinsters are capable of developing, she had made up her mind that, having herself proved the inconveniencs of single life, her niece should not experience them—she would forestall any such nonsense.

Now Miss Celimena Moore was a born forestaller, and when she set her mind to forestalling she did it efficiently and effectively.

Connemara was devoted to Moorelands, the big old country place in the pleasant hills of Connecticut, and Miss Moore merely decreed that if her niece was not married by her twenty-first birthday, the estate should pass into the hands of trustees to be used forever as a children's home. If, however, Connemara proved amenable to reason, and selected one from her shoals of suitors, and announced her engagement in June and was married in October, the place and fortune of her rich aunt would eventually become her own.

It sounds melodramatic, in the telling, but Miss Celimena was so deeply in earnest, and Miss Connemara so deeply attached to the place, that the matter was serious to the point of tragedy.

Moreover, it was the next to thec last day of June, and in another twenty-four hours the limit of the time appointed would be uncomfortably near.

Connemara was not entirely unprepared. She had narrowed her possibilities down to two, but between this precious pair she felt unable to make choice.

"Is everybody bobbing?" Aunt Celly asked, politely disinterested. She cared little for passing fashions.

"Of course. You'll come to it yourself soon. But with me it's more than a whim or a notion; it's the whole game."

"Is it? Well, never mind that now. Are you going to announce your engagement tomorrow night?"

"Oh, yes," Connemara sighed. "Of course I am. But I've no idea to whom."

"Nonsense! You must know which one you love."

"That's just it. I love them both—I adore them both. I can't live without both of them. You see, Aunt Celly, they're such perfect complements. It's like bread and butter or ham and eggs. Useless each without the other."

"Don't be silly!"

"I 'm not. I want to marry both of them—oh, not both at once: I couldn't of course. But say, first one and then the other. Only I don't know which to marry first."

"You talk like a fool, Constance Mary. I've no patience with you. But you'll have to make up your mind pretty soon, for I shall make no change in my will."

The two men were complementary, though exact opposites.

Bingham Carrington, a tall fair Viking of a man, was a Southerner, from Raleigh or Richmond or Roanoke or some such place, while Saltonstall Cabot Adams was a New Englander of purest ray serene.

Both men were desperately in love with the Cayenne Fairy, and while Adams was a rich man, Carrington had an unappeased desire for ducks and drakes, and yearned to make them out of Connemara's money.

Yet Bing was a bright, merry, sunshiny sort of person, while Saltonstall was so serious as to be almost heavy, so erudite as to be almost dull.

A side of Connemara's nature craved this cultural background, yearned for this companionship of wisdom and intellectuality, even while another side of her soul cried out for Bing's overflowing, all-embracing affection.

With an uncertain sigh, Connemara put up her unbobbed hair, and arrayed herself to greet a merry house party coming to spend the week-end.

They came: Poppy Glen, a red-cheeked, red-lipped brunette, sporting the very latest style of bob cut. Rose Wraye, Madonna type, endowed with endearing young charms, but scorning to let scissors touch her long, fair tresses. Beside the two men there were Richard Bird, naturally called Dicky, and Cecil Percy Knapp, the artist.

THE MARKETS

Sterling cables $4.83 5-8.
Sterling demand $4.84.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press).—The only change in the egg market is in fresh firsts which are much higher and a price is now being offered for pullet extras. Prices on all varieties of dressed poultry are steady but unfavorable weather conditions are tending to have an adverse effect on buyers purchasing large quantities.

Montreal—Very firm, storage extras 46, firsts 42, seconds 37.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press).—There was no further change in prices for Spring wheat grades of flour, nor was there any marked improvement in the volume of business.

There was no change in the condition of the market for baled hay, prices for all grades being maintained under a steady demand for supplies.

The undertone to the market for strictly fresh eggs continues very strong owing to the fact that the production at this season of the year throughout the provinces of Ontario and Quebec is exceedingly light and in order to meet the local requirements dealers in some cases have made purchases of this class of stock in British Columbia and it is reported that sales of specials in some instances were made as high as 85c per dozen, but this price is not general. The bulk of the business at present is in storage eggs and supplies of such are ample to meet all wants a fairly active trade was done with no change in prices to note.

The feature of the market of late has been the marked increase in the demand for No. 2 creamery owing to the fact that supplies of No. 1 creamery in first hands is reported to be almost nil and inconsequence higher prices were realized for the former grade. There continues to be a steady demand from all sources and the market is fairly active with a strong undertone, but prices apart from the above grade were unchanged.

The receipts of cheese were 3,935 boxes, as against 2,461 for the same day last week, and 2,669 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no important change in the condition of the market, prices on spot being fairly steady with a moderate amount of business passing over the cable.

PICTON CHEESE 19¼c

PICTON, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press).—At the meeting of the Board there were 563 boxes of colored cheese offered, of which 370 boxes were sold at 19 3-4c per lb., which price shows a decline of 9-16c per lb., as compared with a week ago.

THANK OFFERING OF ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S

Mrs. Waters, a Returned Missionary, Told of Work in India.

St. Andrews' W.M.S. held the annual Thankoffering meeting on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock. The meeting was very largely attended and Mrs. Waters, a returned missionary from India, gave a most interesting talk on her work and that of her husband, Dr. Waters, during twenty-two years spent in Central India.

Mrs. Walter Buyers rendered a beautiful solo and Mrs. A. H. Allen made the prayer of dedication.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the presentation of three life memberships, Mesdames John, Henry and McWilliams, becoming charter members of the W. M. S. of the United Church.

The collection was a generous one and Rev. J. W. Gordon closed the meeting with prayer.

FRENCH ATTACKED.

Ten Soldiers and Civilians Killed or Wounded By Druses.

BEIRUT, Syria, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Ten soldiers and civilians were killed or wounded when an auto bus proceeding from Beirut to Damascus was attacked a few miles northwest of the latter city. The attack occurred in a region where the Druse tribesmen are endeavoring to induce the inhabitants of the various villages to rise against the French.

$18,000 PAYROLL STOLEN IN DETROIT AND EXPRESS MESSENGER SLAIN BY BANDITS

Second Messenger Seriously Wounded in Street Gun Fight With Gang.

ROBBERS ESCAPED.

DETROIT, November 21. — Canadian Press. — A gang of five men last night obtained $18,000 at the Ainsworth Manufacturing Company offices after a fight with two express messengers, one of whom was killed, and the other injured. Ross Loney, 30, was killed, and Walter Radloff, 26, seriously injured, when they returned the fire of the robbers, who surprised them as they entered the office building with the pay roll.

A fusilade greeted the two messengers as they entered the door and one of them jerked the satchel from their hands and fled with two companions toward the street. Both Loney and Radloff fired several times without effect, and fell the next minute, the victims of the aim of another member of the gang who fired both barrels of a sawed-off shot gun. Loney was instantly killed. His right arm crippled and with another shot through his chest. Radloff continued firing at the fleeing man with the revolver held in his left hand. The robbers escaped.

INJUNCTION BY CANDY COMPANY

London, Ont. Firm Claims All Rights to "O-Pee-Chee" Name.

MONTREAL SUIT.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—A petition asking for an injunction to restrain Adolph M. Ernstein, doing business under the name of "Molasses Crispette Co., from making use of a trade mark on the name "Maple Crispette," and "Maple Crispette Co." was presented Friday to Mr. Justice Coderre, in the practice division of the Superior Court, on behalf of the O-Pee-Chee Co., Ltd.

The O-Pee-Chee Co., which has its head office in London, Ont., declared that it had acquired all rights to the trade marks in question, through having secured them from one N. Latton, who in turn had bought them from the liquidators of the Maple Crispette Co. It was alleged that Epstein, doing business as the Molasses Crispette Co., was making use of certain wrappers bearing the registered name of "Maple Crispette."

N. H. Laflamme, who represented the respondent, asked a delay of three days in which to answer the petition in writing. This request was granted by Mr. Jusitce Coderre.

FOWL SUPPER AT ST. LUKE'S

Women's Guild Held Well Attended Affair on Thursday.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

Anglican Church held a very well-

The Women's Guild of St. Luke's attended fowl supper in their Parish Hall Thursday evening. Arrangements were carried out in the most thorough manner by the bevy of energetic ladies in charge, and everyone present appeared to have a thoroughly enjoyable time. The tables were especially attractive, arranged in the varying color scheme, with 'mums used in profusion. Between three and four hundred people were in attendance.

Mrs. H. Butcher, President of the Guild, acted as general convenor. Miss Florrie Burnham had charge of the tables, assisted by Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mrs. G. L. Hay and members of the A.Y.P.A., who waited on table.

A sale of fancy and plain sewing was in charge of Mrs. J. Butcher and Mrs. Mackin, Mrs. John Scott had the fish pond and the Misses Audrey Heap and Bertha Curtis supervised the sale of home-made candy.

During the evening a pleasant musical programme, heartily encored in every instance, was rendered. Mrs. F. Whitehouse had charge of the entertainment, which included songs by Mrs. A. A. Perrin and Mr. Robert Hendry readings by Mr. Jack Primeau, and violin numbers by Miss K. Taylor, with accompaniment by Mrs. G. Evans.

PONTYPOOL BAZAAR WAS SUCCESSFUL

Weather Was Not Very Favorable—League Visited Bethany.

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 21.—The annual bazaar in connection with the Pontypool church was held on Saturday, Nov. 14, in the basement of the church. The weather was not very favorable, which accounts for the attendance being small. There were four quilts sold at a good figure and the fancy-work was a credit to the ladies of the vicinity. There were some things left which will be sold at a later date. The hot meat pies were very much appreciated. Among those present were: F. W. Bowen, M.P., and Mr. Davey of Orono. The proceeds were over $80.

The Pontypool Epworth League went to Bethany on Wednesday night to a social evening held there, Pontypool young people providing the entertainment. Mr. Lorne Wanaan gave a reading on citizenship, which was very interesting. Miss Maretta Marvin gave a reading also. Mrs. Geo. Wilder sang two solos, accompanied by Miss Ivy Shaw on the piano, and Mr. Jack Payne gave a recitation, entitled "Alaska." In conclusion Bethany League provided a bountiful and appetizing lunch, which was highly appreciated.

Tuning With a Straight Line Frequency Converter

Telling Radio Fans How to Separate the Crowded Stations—By Harry J. Marx.

The master word in radio has always been "Selectivity." Unfortunately, selectivity does not only depend on the quality of the apparatus in the receiving set. A bigger factor and one that is often forgotten is the fact that there is a crowding up of stations over the lower wave-length range and a corresponding scarcity in the upper wavelengths.

At the inception of radio in the early days, each station was identified with a wavelength in meters. It may be argued that this was wrong but everyone got used to it and it has become a habit now. Not so very long ago, it was decided to express everything in terms of frequency and to have the stations on a series of frequency bands that were just ten kilocycles apart. Little attention was paid to this because everyone just kept thinking in meters. But when these stations were tuned in on the receiving sets, it was found that the greater majority, came in on the lower end of the dial, while those on the upper end were few and far separated. This meant that fine verniers were required to separate the lower wavelength stations while it was entirely unnecessary to use them for the high wavelengths.

Straightline Capacity Wavelength and Frequency.

The principal tuning unit of the majority of sets has been the variable condenser. It is this unit that must be considered in tuning receiving sets and the separation of stations on the dial graduations.

After the first stage from the original chaos of radio, the straightline capacity condenser was developed. In this type of condenser, the broadcasting stations will be separated about as shown in figure 1. There will be found fifteen of the station bands on the lower half of the dial and only four on the upper half.

The next stage of the game, the frequency bands were not taken seriously as yet, was the development of the straightline wavelength condenser. In spite of fond expectations, this did not solve the problem at all, for in figure 2 it will be seen that there are still thirteen stations on the lower half, one exactly in the center, and five on the upper range of the dial. This led to a more serious consideration of the subject.

The latter part of last season there was started the first rumors of the manufacturing of straightline frequency condensers. Now there are plenty on the market and more are being announced daily. In figure 3, the dial logging for straightline frequency condensers is illustrated. It is apparent that the stations have been uniformly separated and for this reason tuning becomes simplified over the entire range of the dial.

Straightline Frequency Condensers.

With a given inductance value in microhenries and a variable capacity value in micromicrofarads a circuit can be brought to resonance over a given range of frequencies or wavelengths, the ratio of capacity change necessary to alter the resonance point from one frequency to the next frequency, different by ten kilocycles, is easily determined. It is not uniform but a geometrically increasing ratio as the change is made from higher to lower frequencies. In order to get this desired capacity ratio, the plates of the condenser are shaped to each progressive graduation. But mechanical difficulties enter the problem.

The ratio between the minimum and maximum is so great that to produce the proper capacity values the rotor plates must be made long and slim, thus increasing the size and bulk of the condenser and making it clumsy. Likewise the rotor unit is unbalanced, requiring heavy tension or counterbalance to hold it in position. A positive stop must be used, as the rotor can only turn through an arc of 180 degrees. With the long slim plates, it is difficult to maintain correct spacing without tying them together at the end. To enclose this type of condenser to make it dustproof would mean an alteration of values as well as increasing the bulk.

Although manufacturers have paid considerable attention to the designing problems in overcoming some of these difficulties, it has become advisable to investigate other methods of straightline frequency tuning.

There are too many sets in use, the owners of which are anxious to convert to this method of tuning. To tear them apart and replace the condensers with the new type would be too exepnsive and undoubtedly impractical. The inductance units in these sets would not match with the new condensers and therefore the results would not be as desired. In the same manner there are on the market now and also in the hands of many fans a number of the straightline capacity and wavelength condensers. To expect them to scrap all this investment is asking too much.

Straightline Frequency Converter.

Fortunately, it is possible to get a straightline frequency dial adjustment on the old style condensers and for such sets as are in use. The solution is in a straightline frequency converter, in which a variable ratio movement is produced between the dial and the condenser rotor shaft.

A micromicrofarad of capacity is the same in every case regardless of the shape of the condenser plates which produce it. Consequently, with these former type of condensers if a device can be produced that will give a correct ratio between the dial and the rotor movement then a straightline frequency characteristic will be obtained. This has been done in the Rathbun Straight Line Frequency Converter.

A lever arm is fastened to the rotor shaft. This arm is actuated by a cam that is attached to the dial. As the dial and cam are turned, the cam raises and lowers the lever arm, turning the rotor shaft at a relative ratio of movement determined by the shape of the cam. The cam is designed so that it makes one complete revolution while the rotor shaft turns through an arc of 180 degrees. In this way the full 360 degrees of dial movement is utilized, making possible just twice the dial separation. This is illustrated in the dial logging of figure 4.

As an illustration of what the ratio of movement is between the dial and rotor, for the first 40 degrees of dial movement, the rotor is actually moved through an arc of less than 4 degrees, while for the last 10 degrees of dial travel the rotor moves 15 degrees. Actually the device is a changing vernier attachment that can be logged, giving a high ratio at the lower capacity range where it is necessary and decreasing in vernier action as the wavelength grows higher where it is unnecessary.

The unit is made in the form of a dial, figure 5, that is attached to the shaft of the condenser. This is just a matter of a few minutes of time and labor, and can be done by anyone. The Rathbun Straight Line Frequency Converter has made it possible to convert all the former sets to straight line frequency tuning with a minimum of expense and trouble. Even the condensers on hand can be used for building sets without a sacrifice of this feature of selectivity in receiving sets.

Sence of Touch Serves Motorists

Doubtless it will be a surprise to the average motorist to be told that his car possesses many of the characteristics of a musical instrument. There are plenty of discordant notes of which he is aware, but perhaps he has not stopped to consider that other people get better performance because they put more "feeling" into the playing of their cars.

Standing on a street corner recently a motorist who was interested in this idea watched a high-priced car glide up to a halt at the white lines. "There," he thought, "is a car that any one can drive easily. Everything works like a clock. There would be no rasping of gears, no squeaks and groans, if all cars were like that." He was somewhat surprised to hear a loud click from one of the rear axle keys when the car started again.

The driver simply had struck a sour note, and the car, entirely at the driver's command, was powerless to respond with anything approximating harmony. The driver did not take his foot off the clutch pedal suddenly, but in the way he balanced the engine's power against the car's inertia a strain was produced occasioning the telltale click.

Apparently good driving is more than a matter of skill. Somewhere along the line the good driver adds the equivalent of "touch" in the playing of musical instruments. He does things not merely well but with a keen sense of values. He seems to be interested in the machinery of the car to a point where he can obtain something over and above the usual results.

The similarity between good playing of a musical instrument and good good "playing" of an automobile is striking. The musician with a "touch" seems to be the one who can tell beforehand how his playing is going to sound to those who listen. The driver with a "touch" seems to be able to tell in advance just how the performance of his car is going to impress those who ride with him or who observe him. The former obtains results by knowing just how much pressure to exert upon the piano keys, the violin strings, or whatever the instrument may be. The latter knows just how quickly to let in the clutch, when to move the gear shift lever and how far down to press the accelerator.

The car makers have made the process of driving so simple that if one follows a few definite directions the car will go on its way after a fashion, and it is not likely to fall apart sooner than the average. But only the driver who has developed the sense of "touch" in his manipulation of the controls obtains genuine results. He is the man you like to ride with. His car is the one you speak of as being an exceptionally good one.

Even the starting of the engine illustrates the value of "touch." Nine out of ten drivers think that operating the ignition switch is simply a matter of turning it on or off. They figure that it makes little difference how or when the ignition is turned on just so long as it is turned on while one is trying to crank. To them the switch is like a piano key which the small boy strikes with his finger. The switch turns on the ignition current; the key lets loose a sound. Neither realizes that many variations can be made.

You can set fire to the automobile with the ignition switch. For instance, if the switch is turned on directly after being turned off, and before the engine comes to a dead stop, a backfire is likely to occur.

Turning on the ignition switch too soon will usually retard the cranking process if the engine is cold. For a snappy start it is necessary to have good compression, assuming that everything else is in order. Some of the old cars started quicker than some of the new ones because with the hand crank the skilled driver could raise compression by a quick spin of the engine shaft. The more electric current you can send through the wire to the starter-motor the faster that unit will run and the faster it will turn over the engine. Therefore, when you switch on the ignition before stepping on the starter-motor you divert some of the current that should be going to give the engine shaft a quick spin.

The driver who puts some "feeling" into his handling of the engine and car gives the engine a few spins, builds up compression in the cylinders, loads up with gasoline spray and then switches on the ignition. Backfire is less likely with this method because the engine shaft is turning over rapidly in the direction it goes normally. Any misfiring that would tend to reverse the direction of travel would have to be of sufficient force to overcome the spinning of the flywheel, and early burning of the gasoline spray and vapor in a cold engine is of comparatively low intensity.

Use of Ignition Switch.

Consider the mere handling of the ignition switch when descending hills. The custom of switching off the ignition when going downhill is rapidly going out of style; first, because four-wheel brakes are rendering it unnecessary to use the engine so frequently for braking purposes; second, because the difference between the braking effort of an engine with the throttle closed and one with ignition off is so slight that many drivers have found it just as well to close the throttle and not bother with the ignition; and third, because of the danger of backfire when switching on the ignition again.

The ignition switch seems to be so simple that one is inclined to forget that it is capable of a wide variety of control. In descending a hill with the ignition off and throttle closed the car is pushing the engine to a point where the normal action of the engine is decidedly upset. Usually the engine has had to climb a hill in order to descend one, which means that it is probably overheated. Should an exhaust valve be stuck partly open when the ignition is suddenly switched on at the bottom of the hill a backfire through the exhaust is very apt to blow off the muffler. This is particularly true if the driver has been keeping the throttle open with the idea of making the engine a more effective braking force by increasing the compression.

A driver who knows what sort of results he can get out of each control on the car sees that the throttle is closed before switching on the ignition and even waits a few seconds to be sure that the cylinders have been cleared of the excess of gas. He may even slip out the clutch an instant so that the engine will not be turning over so fast when the ignition is switched on.

When you consider the variety of results that can be obtained with so simple a thing as an ignition switch it goes without saying that the clutch, the brakes, the ignition advance control, the throttle and the gears can be handled with an even wider variation in results. The trick, however, is to know how to get these results.

When the driver has discovered that the time element also figures in feeding gas he has begun to make progress in the skillful handling of the car. When he learns to step on the gas at the right time he is quick to note that when accelerating on level ground or hills it is important to give the engine time to respond to the increases in the quantity of gas admitted to the cylinders. He will sense the difference between crowding the engine with gas and starving it.

HIGH COST OF BOBBING

By JEANNETTE.

THERE was a man, some years ago, who wrote a song about the high cost of loving, and described the state to which his pocketbook had been reduced by the inroads of amorous adventures. Nowadays, any modern, up-to-date maiden in Peterborough could very sincerely compose a song about the high cost of bobbing, and make it a veritable record of the trials and troubles of Miss 1925 and her hair do.

Bobbed hair is expensive, there is no getting away from that fact, at least where the average girl is concerned. There is an out of the way, extraordinary creature whom one meets at odd intervals who shampoos her own pate and curls it and gives it the odd rub and even may go so far as to cut it, with the aid of a double mirror arrangement and a friendly pair of sharp shears. But for the great majority, bobbed hair means extra expense. Just why a young lady who went along for years with long hair that she shampooed and curled herself should, when bobbed, embark upon a career punctuated by frequent visits to the hairdresser's and barber's establishments, is one of those feminine mysteries that has its only definite answer, perhaps, in the favorite "because" vouchsafed by women when they can't give an explicit reason for their actions. The fact remains that many a girl who never entered a barber shop in her life has the habit now, strongly, and patronizes the knight of the shears regularly.

An average arrived at by a man who has had much experience with the ways of women's locks as to the expense involved in the upkeep of bobbed hair is in the neighborhood of fifty cents a week. Some spend more, some less. A young lady who drops in every three weeks for a course that includes a shampoo, a trim and a marcel wave, the whole putting her back just $3, spends a dollar a week on her head. How she manages to make the marcel last three weeks is not disclosed. Some of them have been known, by dint of very little brushing or combing, and by the use of a net at night, to retain their wave for ten days or so, but they seldom go beyond that. A record for a round curl achieved in our own experience was three weeks, but the head it adorned received very little attention during the interval. Pointing the brush at it in the mornings was about as far as it got to any real scalp work. For it is a melancholy fact that many girls refuse to brush or comb their short locks as they did their long ones, because to do so means to brush or comb out the wave or curl that one parted with good money to achieve.

The spell of the barber over mere man was often pondered on in the old days by women who mourned over their husband's extravagance with regard to tonsorial luxuries. But nowadays, the lady climbs into the chair, disposes her hands comfortably under the big white apron that the gentleman in waiting ties so firmly about her neck, and when he murmurs softly in her ear something about an oil shampoo or a quinine rub being good for the hair, she submits without a murmur. It may be the feeling of entanglment produced by the apron, or the soothing effect imparted by the brisk but gentle rubbing of manly fingers over the scalp, but, however the atmophere is engendered, one has no capacity to resist. One has an oil shampoo that makes the scalp relax pleasantly or a quinine rub that smells bautifully and freshens it up wonderfully, and then one breaks a one or two dollar bill before one departs.

Some of the gentlemen barbers used to cut one up unmercifully. The intending bobbee would get into the chair and point out just how her locks should be trimmed. She had a vision of herself arising from that chair with a look about the head similar to Corinne Griffith or Gloria Swanson or whoever her favorite screen heroine might be. Sometimes she was satisfied—sometimes, not always. The unholy fascination that lingers about a shears, the sort of feeling that possesses their temporary user to go on and use them and never mind what happens, must inevitably take possession of many a man working on a woman's head, otherwise, how explain the peculiar-looking victims that sometimes emerge from these establishments? "Half an inch, half an inch, half an inch shorter" might be the song ringing in the ear of some of these performers as they shear away the last bit of protecting foliage about those red ears, and expose to a gaping public the long-kept secret of many a fair damsel who is otherwise quite attractive, that her hearing apparatus is her very worst point. Many a woman who has cherished the reputation for having a kind heart has to confront a cold and unsympathetic world looking like a crafty female, because her ears are long and pointed, and the cruel scissors have revealed them to her family, herself and all her friends.

Well, anyway, a marcel wave costs seventy-five cents or a dollar, just according to the length and thickness of your locks. A bob curl puts you back four bits, a trim is forty cents, an ordinary shampoo half a dollar, an oil treatment seventy-five cents, and a quinine rub twenty-five cents. This is an ordinary scale. Some establishments charge more, some less. You may get a shampoo and a curl that costs you a dollar and a quarter and fades away, at least the curl does, under the next day's damp atmosphere, and again, you may get a fifty-cent curl that will last for a couple of weeks. It is all a matter of luck or of the firmness with which the operator attacks your locks and wields the hot iron.

And a neck clip costs a dime. Some women will not allow the clippers on their necks. They demand scissors to do the work. And others squirm fearfully when their necks are first introduced to the electric machine that trims off their "widow's lock." Electric devices also include all sorts of curling irons and hair dryers.

Let's Be Charitable.

TREATMENT to "tint" the hair, as it is charitably called, costs anywhere from three to ten dollars a throw and may last anywhere from a week to six months, depending on the way your hair grows out in the meantime. The hot irons that do the curling are supposed to hasten the greying process. And then there is the "permanent" wave that lasts from three to six months and is achieved at the cost of some discomfort and a good deal of time to the purchaser, but is a real treasure when one is travelling and is also guaranteed not to come out in the wash, for it stands wet weather and shampooing very beautifully. This costs you all the way from eighteen to twenty-five dollars and can be done, they say, ony about three times. After that, the hair refuses to stand up under the strain and prefers to make its way in the world on the straight, rather than the wavy, path.

Bobbing the hair darkens the locks, so we are told. Yellow hair that was really yellow when it was cut short takes on a much darker tone a few months later and refuses to blend at all with any of the light locks that might have been saved up for party curls or the like. Whether it is the action of the air which circulates more easily through short hair or because bobbed locks require more frequent shampooing, is not known.

The way of the barber is not always easy. Mrs. Jones comes in and wants an exact replica of Mrs. Smith's haircut, not realizing that her own neck is short and fat and won't show up half as well under a cold light and a high cut as Mrs. Jones' thinner profile. And if she gets what she wants and then doesn't like it, the barber hears about it. He was supposed to persuade her not to have it, in the first place, because surely he knew it wouldn't be suitable to her style of beauty—so there you are. And if she doesn't get it, and he argues her into having something else, possibly she isn't satisfied either.

But the refining influence of woman has already set its mark on the barber shop. It only remains for her to invade the pool-room to clean things up pretty effectually. Because it appears that the barber shop joke, the ancient traditional fun source of man, is tottering on its last legs. Since ladies have made their appearance in barber shops, this joke has retired into oblivion. It just isn't any more. The men who are waiting, instead of swopping stories with more or less of a saffron hue, take it out in scanning the funny section of the morning paper and in scowling around the corner to see if the dame in the chair is ever going to get through. Barbers have accepted the situation with urbanity and ease. They have adjusted themselves gracefully to the inevitable and are becoming very expert in the art of doing miladi's hair. Of course, not every woman patronizes the barber shop. Many of them fill the hairdressing establishments to overflowing, but that is not a new practice. The one of the barber shop is. It is here that woman has made one of her latest invasions on the stamping ground of the male sex, and here she is setting her mark.

The men who were lamenting a loss in their business of about thirty per cent. by reason of the growing use of the safety razor now are agile and quick in their turning out of the modern girl from the barber's chair. They say they can cut or trim two heads in the time it used to take to shave one face, and they like the hair work better, anyway.

An amusing incident in a local barber shop was the one where an elderly visiting lady dropped in to have her bob freshened up. While waiting, a male customer came in, and took his lighted pipe out of his mouth when he saw the lady in the chair. He was flabbergasted a few minutes later when the grey-haired occupant took out her own case and lighted up a cigarette. But that was an isolated case. The women who "roll their own" are not doing it in the barber shops as yet—at least, not in Peterborough.

It is not right to consider that a man has been made happy by fate, until his life is absolutely finished, and he has ended his existence.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

DOTTY DISCOVERS A QUEER SNOWBALL.

One day while Dotty was visiting her Aunt Nellie who lived in Australia she discovered something queer up in the very tip-top of one of the trees on her Aunt's place.

Aunt Nellie couldn't enlighten her so Dotty was waiting for her Uncle to come home, when a tiny hand touched her arm and looking around, Dotty saw two merry eyes peeking up at her from under a tall pointed hat.

"Oh, Squeedee!" she cried, gathering the wee little make-believe elfin in her arms and giving him a good hug, "where did you come from, and how did you know where to find me?"

"One question at a time, Honey," laughed Squeedee. "They last longer. Well, I've been here a long time, just wishing you would wish for me. You know Australia is just filled with wonderful things. I could hardly wait to hear you wonder about something. I just happened to hear you wonder about that white thing in the top of that tree, so here I am."

"Well, if it doesn't look like a snowball I'll eat it," laughed Dotty. "But what is it, Squeedee? Something some bird has left there in flying over? Or is it a fungus growth?"

"Missed it all around," laughed the wee little elfin. "But seeing is believing, so let's go up and see what it is." Before Dotty knew what had happened, she found herself sitting on the branch beside the snowball.

"Meet Mrs. Flower Eater."

It was made of the purest white fluffy, cottony substance, and when a wee little bird peeked out and chirped to Squeedee. Dotty knew then her snowball was a tiny home.

"Come out, Mrs. Flower-eater and meet little Dotty Bly from America," said Squeedee, tipping his tall cap to a tiny birdling. "She thought your nest was a snowball."

The proud owner of the snow-white nest hopped out on the branch and, bowing politely to Dotty, dusted off her scarlet breast.

"So many folks say the same thing about my nests," she chirped gaily. "I try to keep them as white as I can. I search everywhere to find just the proper kind of fluffy stuff from the flowers. Have you ever peeked into one of my nests?" she asked, and Dotty shook her head. "Then take a peek now. See my pretty eggs?"

"Oh my, but they are pretty! They look just like brother's agate marbles, don't they?"

"Guess they do if you say so," chirped Mrs. Australian Flower-eater. "I love their dull white speckled with brown. They look so pretty snuggled in the white down. Well, if you'll excuse me, folks, I'll get back on my eggs. It would be a pity to have them come to harm." Then bowing politley, Mrs. Australian Flower-eater went back to her pretty little nest, and Dotty and Squeedee went back to the garden just in time to hear Aunt Nellie calling for dinner.

Books That Have Interested Me

F. M. DelaFosse, Librarian of Peterborough Public Library, contributes the first of a series by Peterborough people.

I was asked a few days ago to write something about what I considered to be the best ten books in the world and somewhat thoughtlessly consented to do so. It would be easy enough to name ten or even a hundred but as there is almost as great a divergence of opinion on the question as there are readers I intend to avoid the issue and write about ten books which I feel have had the greatest interest for myself, and have done their share towards influencing and interesting the people at large.

In placing the Bible first I am on absolutely safe ground, because it is beyond the least doubt or cavil the Book of Books and the source from which we have all received our earliest principles of right living and thinking. At the present time men and women are awakening to a still better conception of its value and realizing that the finest poetry, the most majestic prose, the most profound philosophy and the soundest ethical doctrine are to be found in that wonderful compendium.

The Life of Johnson by Boswell possesses for me a two-fold interest. Apart from its value as the greatest biography ever written I treasure my own particular copy on account of its association with a portion of my early life in Canada. It was the sole intellectual sustenance of myself and an artist for the space of one winter in a remote section of the Dominion and the procuring of it entailed a sixty-mile drive, most of it in the teeth of a howling blizzard. Luckily it was in the backwoods and not on the prairie. It was a case of shovel and plunge almost the entire distance along a road at times swept bare, at others piled up to the tops of the fences. But the journey was well worth it as my chum and I often remarked when we sat down in the evening to devour the pages.

John Inglesant, by Shorthouse, is a famous historical romance, dealing with the time of Charles I. The scenes are laid in Italy and in England. The writer has been accused of having stolen very liberally from passages by various authors, but nobody can deny that even if such thieving was done it was done most artistically, for it abounds in beautiful imagery and contains the most complete portrait of a gentleman to be found in fiction.

Another book, in fact two, which contain portraits of gentlemen which are well worth reading as an incentive to manliness, are John Halifax, Gentleman, by Miss Mulock and The Happy Warrior by Hutchinson. Both of these are splendid tales, although Hutchinson's jerky and awkward style keeps the reader in a constant fidget.

The Cloister and the Hearth, by Charles Reade, is one of the great historical romances of the world. It deals with mediaeval life and is popularly supposed to delineate the lives of the parents of the great Erasmus. Reade was a very virile writer and the reader who wishes to become acquainted with the story will find a vast amount of information concerning mediaeval days told in a highly graphic and forcible manner.

Vanity Fair, by Thackeray, is one of the few really great novels of the world. It needs no introduction as the book has been a household word for sixty years. In Becky Sharp, Thackeray has presented us with a wonderful characterization of a clever and unprincipled adventuress. The whole work is written in a leisurely style and rambles on from chapter to chapter in a way which would not commend itself to the modern reader, but every page reflects the satirical genius of the writer and the story itself is a wonderfully interesting one.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress is in the same category as Vanity Fair in the sense that it needs no introduction. It is the world's finest allegory. In the words of Macaulay, "It is the only work of its kind which possesses real human interest—other allegories only amuse the fancy."

Smiles' Self-Help I read first as a boy at school and I think I am right in saying that whatever ambition I have evinced through life was brought to the surface by the reading of that book. I know of no work written along the same lines that at all approaches it in interest and in the power to arouse ambition and enthusiasm in a young man.

Disraeli's Curiosities of Literature completes my list. It is a marvel of research, but, like many another meritorious work, is left unheeded by the present generation. Many a striking piece of information is to be found within its covers and it is safe to say that the student armed with this and its companion volume, "The Calamities of Authers," will be enabled to acquire a fund of information concerning things literary which he would find it impossible to obtain from any other source.

All the books mentioned above are in the Peterborough Library. Every one of them is worth reading and there is not one amongst them but will add to the knowledge and strengthening of intellectual fibre of the reader. A whole article might have been written many of these books but it is to be hoped that enough has been written to awaken the interest of Examiner readers.

Seventy Per Cent Of People Steering Cars in Peterboro Don't Know Rules of Road

Startling Declaration of City's Official Examiner of Drivers— Drivers Ignorant of Car's Powers, He Says.

MHHAT seventy per cent. of the people MHdriving cars around Peterborough MHdon't know the rules of the road, and that an even greater percentage of the drivers don't know just what their cars will do under any circumstances that might arise, is the conclusion reached by Harold Dunsford, after two years as examiner for chauffeurs' licenses in Peterborough.

Mr. Dunsford bases his sweeping statements on his experiences with men who have sought to qualify as licensed chauffeurs. Most of these men have passed a driving test without any trouble, being able to drive, turn, and stop in a most satisfactory manner, but when questioned on matters of traffic laws, and about their actions in unusual circumstances, they fell down, and only the marks gained in the actual driving enabled a great many to compile the necessary 65 per cent.

The Highway act requires every person driving for pay, gain, or hire, and every person under the age of eighteen driving for any purpose, to have a license. Before such licenses are issued the applicants are required to appear before an examiner, and pass a test in driving on various roads, through traffic and on clear streets, and also to answer the examiner's questions on traffic laws and on handling the car at critical moments. The test is supposed to be conducted, if possible, in the car which the applicant expects to drive. The application has to be approved by the chief of police, and must also be accompanied by photographs of the applicant taken within thirty days.

Suicide Urge.

Some of the answers received by Mr. Dunsford in his oral examinations were recalled with laughter. He referred to certain men who wished to drive heavy trucks. Asked what action they would take if the brakes should give out on a hill while the truck was heavily loaded, several said that they would run into the ditch. Mr. Dunsford's reply to this statement, in Yankee fashion, took the form of another question: "But suppose you had a valuable load of furniture or other fragile goods, what would happen to it?"

Another man said that he would cross an intersection at a speed of four miles per hour. Mr. Dunsford was acquainted with the car which the man was driving, and knew that it wouldn't pull at all at such a low speed and told the applicant so.

A young lady, not an applicant asked Mr. Dunsford to drive with her to see why her car was not acting right. She had recently had chains put on as it was at a time of the year when the roads were very slippery, and the car didn't seem to be acting right. Leaving Mr. Dunsford's home on Brock Street, she swung around into George Street at a rather high rate of speed. "Watch out! You'll be up on the curb on the other side," said her companion. "Oh, no," was the reply. "I have chains on the back wheels." Mr. Dunsford pointed out to her that with a smaller surface on the road, and that surface made of metal, she was far more apt to skid with chains than without, and explained that the chains were for increased traction, and not to stop skidding.

Girls Are Better.

The lady drivers seeking permits, who are usually girls of from 16 to 18 years of age, are, according to the examiner, more apt to know the rules of the road than is the man who has been driving for years. He told of one business man who applied for a license. After he had answered to the best of his ability a number of questions on traffic rules, many of which were entirely beyond him, he asked, "Do you ask the young girls who apply the same questions?"

"Yes," was the answer.

"And do they answer them?"

"Yes, usually better than the men."

Some of the applicants have the opinion that the entire process of obtaining a license is to go to Mr. Dunsford, pass a test, and be presented with the license and button without any further formalities. One such applicant awakened the examiner early in the morning so that he could pass his test, get his license, and take a job he had a chance for, all in the one morning. When he heard that he would have to have photos taken and that the application was not passed bh by Mr. Dunsford but by officials of the highways department in Toronto nhe decided not to get a license as the job would be gone by that time.

Although some drivers, ordinarily cool and self-possessed, because nervous during the examination, Mr. Dunsford has had only one accident while out on a test drive, and that was not the fault of the applicant, a young lady. Two milk wagon drivers stopped at the corner of London and Stewart Streets for a chat, and blocked the road just as the applicatnt was backing the car down the hill. In endeavoring to avoid the wagons the girl lost control of the car and ran up on the sidewalk, backing along with two wheels on the walk and two in the ditch until she hit a spot. No damage was done.

Very rarely does Mr. Dunsford allow amination except himself and the driver. On one occasion he was examining a boy, and allowed the lad's father to sit in the back seat. He told the boy to do something, and the father, as soon as the boy obeyed, asked him what he was doing. He agreed, afterward, however, that the boy was right and that the point brought up was one to which he had never given any thought before.

The recent case in Fenelon Falls, where a driver was fined for reckless driving, was cited by Mr. Dunsford as an example of a man who didn't know exactly what his car would do. He ascribed the skidding of the car to the fact that the driver had probably thrown out his clutch and applied the brakes, instead of slowing down more evenly with the clutch engaged

HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY AND MONDAY
NOVEMBER 22-23.

Those whose birthday it is are urged to be particularly cautious in all their affairs. Losses are presaged through deception or carelessness in writings. The health may also give concern unless safeguarded. A child born on this day should be clever and accomplished, but may suffer through fraud or deception.

Monday's astrological forecast points to a day of activity but one beset with difficulties. Disputes should be shunned and those in employment should be careful.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an active year, but a troublesome one unless quarrels and bitterness be avoided. Those in employment should be careful. A child born on this day should be active and energetic.

About Yourself, Your Neighbour and Your City

Brownton Folks Are Up in Arms About Roosters, Dogs and Cars

Barn Yard Pets and Fireside Friends Annoy People in Pretty Peterborough Suburb — Promiscuous Parking.

By THE SLEUTH.

Things have reached such a pass in Brownton that the township council may have to take some action. The naughty chanticleer and the speeding automobilist are the cause of all the trouble—all that is, except a minor strain raised by the dogs. Some people think the dogs are the worst offenders, but that is a matter of opinion.

Do you know Bill Hickey? I don't either, but I'm going to let him speak for the folk of Brownton. He is a kind of composite of the rooster-haters, anti-autoists and down-with-the-dogs residents of Peterborough's most beautiful suburb. Bill talking: "These autymobile fellows come a-ranting through here at all hours of the night, blowing their horns like Satan was after them, without respect to nobody. It's gettin' to where this law-abiding community lies awake most of the time, between the blowing of their consarned horns and the popping of them cutouts. Why, they run through here with a racket like a cannon going full tilt. Sleep? Gosh, I ain't slept for weeks, between chasing them fellows by day and waiting for the next one to pass by night. Relief! Mister, I am the only relief on this force." (I forgot to mention that Bill is by way of being a community constable.)

Surely this was a hard fate that faced Mr. Hickey and the good folk of Brownton (which spreads out for half a mile south and west of Peterborough, one of the most progressive cities on the North American Continent, with the largest Lift Lock in the world and Hunter Street Bridge). If there is any quiet place in the world where tired man might expect to find the fullness of quiet, that place is Brownton. It dozes even by daylight. The little town that is springing up shows a pleasant mingling of new bungalows and old farmhouses. Some of the dwellings were built yesterday, and there is one old building that must have looked down upon the Indians as they fell back before Peter Robinson and his Irish immigrants. Brownton, seen in the light of a fall day, is a vale of peace and dreamy enchantment.

But, Mr. Hickey emphasized, it is not alone the autymobiles that drive sleep from Brownton. The motor menace, it seems, is aided and abetted by other destroyers of sleep.

More Than Enough Dogs.

"Seems like this community has more dogs than any other place I ever heard tell of," Hickey said, shifting his quid and casting a glance along the three feet of his stout stick. "Yes, sir, we have more dogs to the square yeard than any other place in Ontario. Muts? Of course they be muts, and the worst muts I ever had to deal with. Now, young fellow, you wouldn't expect to see them around in the day time, would you? Muts ain't built like that. Not by a hanged sight. They are all asleep now, up under the house where it's warm, or inside by the kitchen stove.

"But you just wait till dark comes. Then you can see muts aplenty. They will be out in force, barking and serenading one another. Oh, you won't be here? Too bad, I must say. If it's muts you are looking for, there are plenty of them in Brownton."

It was suggested to Mr. Hickey that Brownton might solve the difficulty by adopting license tags, muzzles and leashes, or even bark condensers. The glance of Mr. Hickey bore a hint of indignation.

"No, sir," he said, "these dogs that bark all night are just plain nuisances, and like nuisances they shall be treated. Anybody that owns a barking dog is going to get a warning from me; and if the mut barks any more at night it means a summons. Yes, sir, that's my ticket, and them that don't like it can get rid of their dogs. I've told the township council we can't have any peace in Brownton without law on our side. You can bet your last button I'm going to enforce it."

The three-foot stick made a parabola through the air and landed with a whack on the main street of Brownton.

Naughty Chanticleer.

"The dogs and autymobiles are bad enough," confided the guardian of the peace, "but the chickens do beat the band. A lot of our men work in Peterborough, you know, and they come home at night wanting to rest. Why, young fellow, I've seen this community grow from 25 to nigh on 500. Progress? You bet. We've got our own post office, now, too. But how can a man sleep after a hard day's work when his neighbor's rooster is crowing all night, just as if it was his job to check off the hours? There is one big rooster down by that white house with a crow worse than any dog's bark. Blest if he don't wake me up at night, and me asleep at the other end of the street—that is, when I ain't on duty.

"Now, I don't expect no man to entirely control a rooster, nor even one of them cackling hens, once she gets started. And we don't want to be too stern in making laws. But some of that barnyard noise has got to stop. If I had a hen that cut up the way some of these hens do, I'd have her on my table Sunday. And that's what any man who respects his neighbour will do. Why, one nervous little fellow moved away from Brownton because his neighbour's hens always seemed to do their laying about dawn, and nobody in the neighborhood could sleep. It would last for an hour. Then it was time to get up and go to work.

What is the use for a man to come away out here from Peterborough and then lay awake all night? How is a man going to make a living when he can't sleep? Goodness knows, it's hard enough when he's up to his best form. I tell you, the cackling of hens and the baying of dogs is sending more people out of Brownton than ever the tariff will. I just wish some of them politicians would come here and try to sleep for a night."

These questions admitted no dispute, dispute. Mr. Hickey said that it looked to him as if dogs barked louder and chickens cackled more brazenly than they used to do. He wondered if they had imbibed the spirit of a restless age, "just as I saw in a movie not long ago, all about restless people who got into trouble." It was, he felt, "terrible for a man to be restless like that, and worse for a woman. Wouldn't it be a lot more troublesome in the case of a dog or a dominecker?"

The Autymobile.

Asked about an earlier reference to the autymobile, Mr. Hickey gracefully acknowledged that he had wandered from the point. "The fellows that own them cars know it ain't no use to raise such a powerful tootin'. They just want to show off and let poor folks know they've got a big noisy car. I caught one young fellow a-blowing and a-snorting through the main street last week and gave him a good talking to. Yes, sir, he won't be so smart next time he comes to Brownton.

"You know," Bill said just before I left, "a powerful lot of the young fellows in the city have taken a shine to Brownton girls, and they come tootin' down here in their cars to visit. They're parked all over the community. Why, I've seen as many as five cars parked along the main street at eleven o'clock at night! Yes, sir, five. And then they warm up one by one, snort, puff, toot, and rush away off to the city. That's what we have to put up with."

(Next week I shall tell the other side of the story.)

DO IT EARLY.

"Spike, dear," cooed the burglar's wife, perching herself on the arm of his chair and affectionately tweaking his cauliflower ear, "I haven't a decent rag to wear to the Safe Blower's Ball."

"Dere's nothin' doin' now, babe," announced her fond husband. "Payin' me income tax left me cleaner 'n a dish-washer's mitts."

"Well," pointed his storm and strife, "then you'll just have to do your Christmas shoplifting early!"

The Society Editor Fills In a Vacancy On Financial Staff

A charming session took place yesterday morning and afternoon at the home of the Peterborough Stock Exchange, George Street, Peterborough, when a most entrancing "bull" market delighted the many members of the Exchange and their friends who were present.

Amalgamated Milling (the stock certificates of which are "papier Normandie," overlaid with gold and royal blue) and Consolidated Motors (whose certificates are antique bond with steel engraving and a deckle edge) cut melons while Vulcan Gas, Alameda Oil, Northwest Copper and several other younger companies passed the dividends. Vortex Silver made a very pleasing presentation to its shareholders consisting of bright green and gray stock bonuses, suitably engraved. At noon a delicate luncheon was served in the nearby Cafe des Enfants. Among those present at the Exchange were noticed B. C. Fish, C. P. Railway, Con. Smelters, [illegible] Milling, P. Players, Union Bank and many others.

City's Sweet Tooth Craves Sugary Bits

CANDY merchants are loud in their approval of Peterborough as a business centre and assert that the populace has an extremely sweet tooth. If the consumption of sugar and corresponding sweet meats is an indication of financial well-being there is then much proof of public purses well filled and equipped with loose strings. People of every walk in life pay homage to the power of candy. Tramp, laborer, clerk, pompous merchant of George Street, school children in the lowest grade, varsity graduate of high degree, male and female, youth and aged, all demand, pay for and consume thousands of pounds annually in a determined effort to satiate the sweet tooth.

Developing a Taste.

So great is the variety and so attractive the display that few indeed are armed to withstand the lure of the delectable morsels. This craving for sweets, while it has been present from the time the first Negro sucked a section of sugar cane and smacked his lips in a transport of glee after the first palate tickling experience. It is of late years, however, that the insatiable craving has grown to enormous proportions aided and abetted by industrialism which sees a demand and sets itself to satisfy, if not glut, the market. The ordinary one pound box of "assorted," which is such a common sight to-day, would have been purchased centuries ago by gold pieces and not the modest rate charged now. That is what competition on the candy market has done for Peterborough people. It has lowered the upkeep of the sweet tooth until there remain only the overhead expenses.

Pioneers Solve Problem.

In the good old days—a period so frequently and fondly invoked by immediate ancestors—the sweet tooth was forced to be content with a chance bulle's eye or saw log and pioneer folk found that the indulgence of that bicuspeds could not be carried on to extremes. Luckily—so tradition avers—some experimenting redman tossed a birch bark bucket of maple sap into a kettle. There was a fire under that kettle and in due course the sap began to boil. As is quite usual with a liquid in an ebullient state, steam passed off with a resultant loss to the content of sap. The Indian stuck his finger in the fluid and transferred the adhering sample to his tongue—Presto. Maple syrup and eventually sugar!

So pioneers had their own confectionery in the "back 30" and entered upon an orgy of sweet eating which has been fostered until to-day candy seems to form the main sustinence of Peterborough youth.

Chocolate Heavy Favorite.

One dealer has tried to satisfy much of the demand and he declares that it is a man's size job to stave off the appetites of Peterborough folk who refuse to be satisfied. Chocolate seems to constitute the popular demand of all ages, although should any crave the old-time humbug, horehound, bull's eye or saw log, they are stocked and available for consumption. Nothing, however, can withstand the flow of chocolate, either alone or in combination with fruits and nuts. Chocolate-covered creams give the dainty fingered misses a chance to display their delicacy of handling. It used to be a custom for the young lady to display her skill with the teapot, but alas—another lost art!

Containers Sell Goods.

Ornate boxes resplendent with colour and gelatine are remarkably efficient sales agents; the love afflicted swain cannot vision such a box and his sweetie in the same scene without buying the former to please or appease the latter. Many a love match has been lit by the scratching of a choice bit of chocolate on the ravenous sweet tooth. Five-pound boxes are usually the most expensive which are stocked and these may set the ardent one back as far as $7.00, but what does he care, he says, and charges the amount to profit and loss.

Holiday seasons create their peculiar demand for edible amusement and election, hockey or other wagers are usually paid off by a box of "assorted."

Chocolate in bar form is a universally popular form, liked particularly for those who like to eat on the wing. The value of advertising was never shown to better advantage than in the chocolate bar industry when a new variety widely posted on the boardings, will sweep the country and every person who steps up to a counter tries to look unconcerned as he demands that particular brand.

Good Medicine, Too.

People who are afflicted with some dread ailment and hate nasty medicine find a great degree of spiritual comfort by eating medicated candies such as eucalyptus, menthol horehound and that flat but sharp creation rejoicing under the bumptious name, linseed, licorice and chloridine.

While this may be a candy age in Peterborough and mothers gravely point out the dangers which might result in the form of decayed teeth and disordered stomachs, science has stepped in and provided the people with an array of dentifrices which would defy any evil-minded tid bit to lurk in any nook or crannie of the mouth; doctors are able to install new digestive organs at a moment's notice.

In any case there will always be plenty of candy and plenty of people to eat it.

It Would Cost $23,000,000 To Light City With Candles

But Peterborough Only Pays $133,000 For Superior Electricity — Romance of Light Like Fairy Tale.

Peterborough has witnessed some great changes in the hundred years since Peter Robinson first set foot on the banks of the Otonabee, but probably none exceeds in portent the transformation that lighting systems have undergone. From tapers to candles to oil lamps to gas to electricity briefly summarizes the growth, but bound up in the history of lighting are the stories of men and inventions by the hundred. It is worth noting that Peterborough has been known as "The Plate Glass City" and as "The Electric City," both appellations that pay tribute to the advancement of its citizens. Visitors of years ago said George street had more square feet of plate glass than could be found on any other business street in Ontario. And to-day Peterborough is "The Electric City"—the city where it is cheaper to burn the lights all day than to turn them off.

The candle, with its candlestick and smoke, is within the memory of everyone, and even to this day citizens have sometimes to resort to its use—when an electric storm comes to break the monotony of daily existence, and the power lines or parts. In the candle-light days—or nights—the reader or seamstress had to be close to the candle, and read in considerable discomfort because of the flickering and sputtering habits for which candles were noted. Even the present-day candle, manufactured under modern conditions with the aid of scientific machinery, is considered somewhat of a nuisance, and its aid is sought only when it is absolutely necessary.

Coal oil lamps, while somewhat of an improvement on the candle method of lighting, had their evils. With a coal oil lamp there is always the danger of explosion, and many farmers have lost their barns and all that belonged to them due to an accident while using a lamp on their nightly rounds. The lamps had to be kept filled, the wicks had to be trimmed, the globes had to be cleaned, and when they were first lighted care was needed to let the globe heat before turning up the wick, or a broken globe would have resulted. And even with the greater light, threading a needle was still a ticklish job for a man.

To-day's Lighting.

Electricity has completely revolutionized the whole system of living, giving many comforts that a few years ago would have seemed impossible. When the modern house, with its up-to-date method of lighting, is contrasted with the oil or candle lighted homes of the pioneers of Peterborough, one of the advantages that makes present-day progress possible is seen. The river that the pioneers used only to float their craft now turns the machinery that supplies the city with light for every home and power for every factory. The turning of a switch at the disposal of the citizen illumination that would have dazzled the first dwellers in Peterborough, and power that would have meant the difference between toil and ease.

The change has not been brought about without its tragedies and its humour. The story of the first electric light in Peterborough seems as amusing in retrospect to-day as the tales we write of new airships and radio developments will appear in a few years. Stories are still told of men accustomed to oil lamps endeavouring to light cigars and cigarettes at electric bulbs.

What It Would Cost.

Prompted by curiosity to ascertain what would have been the cost of lighting the homes of Peterborough to-day with candles and oil lamps giving the same light as the electric lights now in use, The Examiner investigated the question and found the result astounding. A man who knows the electrical business from A to Z checked it up, and admitted that candle lighting to give the same amount of light that is now given by electric lights would cost about $24,000,000 a year!

For the purpose of this comparison it is assumed that every domestic consumer uses 14-25 candle power lamps in his home, and that the average commercial consumer uses 30-60 candle power lamps for a period of four hours every day, or 1,440 hours a year. Street lights are not taken into account. The candle power consumed in Peterborough for house and business lighting amounts to 3,313,600 in a year. To light the homes of the city as they are lighted to-day, but using candles instead of electricity, and estimating the price of candles at $5 per thousand candle hours, the total cost for a year would be $23,885,792. The coal oil necessary to give the same light, figured at $2.40 per thousand candle hours would entail the expenditure of $11,451,801. But electricity, with all its cleanliness, convenience, and dependability costs only $138,907 in a year.

Men Lead Women In Emotional Stability

While intelligence tests have put to flight old-fashioned notions of male superiority, recent investigations at Colgate University reveal that men still have the edge in emotional stability. Donald A. Laird and Thomas McClumpha, in testing 600 men and about 400 women students, found that women have more artificial emotional outlets than men. Men live their emotions, while women think theirs.

Twenty per cent. more women pretend spurious mental fatigue than men; 10 per cent. more women are introvert; more women, too, are neurasthenic. But hysteria is as common with one sex as with the other.

WOMEN INDULGE LOVE OF CLOTHES

East Side Families Live From Hand to Mouth, But Jewels Are Common.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 20 (By Canadian Press).—Writing to the Edmonton Journal on Canadians in New York, Myrtle Patterson said: Women and girls of the East Side tenements in New York will, somehow, indulge their passion for clothes, according to Miss Kate Houston, Canadian, who is a medical social service worker for the New York Postgraduate Medical school and hospital, Twentieth street and Second avepue. Before leaving Canada five years ago, Miss Houston was a reporter in Winnipeg, working under Miss Cora Hind. Her work consists of conducting each week-day a clinic for crippled children and in visiting homes near the East River. No matter how the families live, there is always money for clothes and many times, for jewels, says Miss Houston.

An East Side girl, before she ever becomes engaged to-day very frequently accepts a dinner ring from her young man. The ring may cost hundreds of dollars. One young girl at the Postgraduate Medical school wears on her little finger a ring for which her taxi driver sweetheart paid $850. When they finally became engaged this Christmas, he will give her a solitaire. Another East Side girl accepted a fur coat and a smart dress from her "boy friend" last Christmas.

FUR-TRIMMED COATS.

The fur coat that has occupied the centre of the stage for so many years has to take second place this year to the cloth coat trimmed with fur. These coats lack something of the costly look of the fur coat, but they also have a good deal more lightness in appearance and a certain trig smartness that the most expensive fur fails to achieve.

They come in all the most popular shades, browns and rusts predominating, and with their "standoo collars, button trimmings and fur-edged skirt flares, are extremely becoming. Moreover, they impart an illusion of youthfulness to even the matronly wearer and women will do or wear almost anything that makes them appear young. Hence, possibly, the popularity of the fur-trimmed coat.

The burberry, the general utility coat so much prized by those who have a large amount of our-of-door time in their daily round, is not as much in den an1 this year as formerly. Coon collars on these burberry coats are the last word.

For wear with the winter coat is the trim little dress woven all in one piece, with stand-up collars and diagonal woven bands of bright-colored wools on the bodices. One little model of navy has these bands in red and yellow and green.

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C., Nov. 20 (By Canadian Press).—Mrs. A. Many of the animals tried to join company with her while others persisted in blocking her progress. Mrs. Ashby has had a lot of cycling experience in England and is open to consider any challenge which the ladies of the interior may send along.

BETTER DIGESTION STRONGER NERVES AND NEW ENREGY

COMES THROUGH RICH, RED BLOOD

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make New Red Blood and in This Way Restore Health to Weak Despondent Sufferers

Thre are thousands of people throughout Canada who are without the ambition or strength to do their day's work. The least exertion tires them; they have but little appetite and a poor digestion. They do not get a refreshing night's sleep and are subject to headaches, backaches and nervousness because their blood is impure. To men and women in this condition Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give quick relief, because of their direct action on the blood, which they build up to its normal strength. As the blood becomes rich and red it strengthens and tones up the nerves, makes the stomach capable of digesting food, and repairs the waste caused by work and worry. In a word the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills means restoration to good health.

Could Scarcely Walk.

Too many women endure suffering that cast a shadow over half her existence. An aching back, tired limbs, attacks of faintness, splitting headaches need not be a part of woman's life. Such trials indicate plainly that the blood is thin and watery, and that the sufferer needs the help of a real tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Suffering women who have used this medicine speak of it in the highest terms. Among those who have been thus helped is Mrs. Ada L. Harman, Virden, Man., who writes: "Following the birth of a still-born child a few years ago, I had a very serious time. I was so weak for months that I could not walk across the room without a feeling of faintness. I had scarcely strength enough to stand up, and when dressing would have to sit down two or three times. My face and lips were colorless, I had no appetite, and life did not seem worth living. A friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got six boxes. Before hey were all gone I felt improved. My appetite was returning, color was coming into my face, and I was visibly stronger. I continued taking the pills and fully regained my former good health. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a blessing to weak women, and hope my experience will induce some other sufferer to try them."

Weak and Disheartened.

General debility is a term used to describe a weak and run-down condition of the system. Debility may come from a number of causes. The after effects of acute illness, lack of nourishment due to poor digestion, overwork or worry, or anything that makes the blood thin, thereby preventing it from carrying nourishment and health to the tissues of the body. The symptoms of debility vary, but weakness is always present, often a tendency to be easily fatigued, spots passing before the eyes, weak back, dizziness, wakefulness caused by inability to stop thinking, and unrefreshing sleep.

Mr. Lorenza L. Gamache, Rockland, Ont., was a severe sufferer from this trouble and tells how he found release. He says:—"I was in that condition which medical men call general debility. I made periodical visits to Montreal for fourteen months to undergo electric treatment. At the end of this time I was feeling well and thought with proper care I would continue in good health. But in the course of a month or so the symptoms came back more acute than ever. I lost appetite and could hardly sleep during the night, and what sleep I had was disturbed with nightmares. I had headaches and the least effort was telling on my nerves. I always felt pains somewhere, and had to lose much time. After suffering for three months, trying various things without good results, I was terribly depressed and disheartened. One day I met a friend who noted how pale and thin I was and he so strongly recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, that I determined to give them a fair trial. I got six boxes and began the treatment at once. After I had taken four boxes I began to notice an improvement in my health. I could sleep better, and I scarcely had a headache. Since that time my health has been steadily improving and now I feel just as well as ever. I have gained twenty pounds since I began the treatment. Now I would not be without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the home, and strongly recommend them to all who suffer from a depressed system and the aches that follow."

Low Spirited and Depressed.

Nearly all women and many men suffer at times from fits of depression and low spirits. Everything seems a burden; then comes periods of nervous irritability, headaches and weariness. People who suffer this way lack vitality because their blood is poor and nerves are starved in consequence.

The only way the nerves can be reached is through the blood. By enriching the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the starved nerves are supplied with just the elements they need. This is proved by the experience of Mrs. J. E. Dadson, 12th Ave., east, Vancouver, B.C., who says: "About three years ago I became very weak and nervous. I had pains in my side and back, and also suffered from frequent pains in the back of my head and neck. I was hardly able to do anything about the house. I would wake with a start in the night and my heart would flutter so that it almost choked me. I tried much doctor's medicine but it did me no permanent good. One day I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to give them a trial. These pills produced such a beneficial change in a short time that I kept taking them until I had used a dozen boxes. By this time there was such an improvement in my condition that friends would ask me what I was taking, and of course I was only too pleased to tell them it was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I am now feeling like a new person and am doing my own housework. We would not now be without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house."

When the Stomach is Weak.

There cannot be good digestion without a sufficient supply of good red blood, and there is nothing better than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to renew and enrich the blood. That is why they have proved so successful in thousands of cases of indigestion. Mr. D. J. Shaw, Selkirk Road, P.E.I., has proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a severe case of indigestion and relates his experiences for the benefit of other sufferers. He says:—"I suffered from indigestion for a number of years. My case was so bad that words fail to describe it. My appetite was gone, constipation was present, and my nerves were all on edge. I could not sleep well at night, and the world was a dark spot to me. I tried a number of remedies, but without any benefit. Then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended, but without much faith, after so many failures, I decided to try them. After taking three boxes I noticed a change for the better. Then I got three boxes more, and found I had a genuine remedy. I continued the treatment, took moderate exercise, could take good plain food without suffering as formerly, and proved that these pills make good blood, and that this good blood will restore the stomach and nerves. Anyone suffering from stomach or nerve troubles will make no mistake in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

Relief for the Rheumatic.

Rheumatism attacks people when the blood is thin and watery, or charged with impurities, thus setting up inflammation of the muscles and joints. Cold, wet weather or sharp winds may start the pains, but the cause is rooted in the blood and to get relief it must be treated through the blood. As a blood builder and nerve tonic Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unsurpassed, and for that reason do not fail to give relief to rheumatic sufferers when given a fair trial. Among those who have proved the great value of this medicine is Mrs. Simeon J. Tatton, Indian Head, Sask., who says:—"For over two years I was an intense sufferer from rheumatism and until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills no treatment that I took helped me any. The trouble grew so bad that I could not move around the house without help, and finally I had to give up and go to bed. Words cannot tell how much I suffered, and I could not bear to have anyone come near me. Finally one of my neighbors strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to do so. In the course of a few weeks I could feel an improvement, and I was able to get up. I kept on taking the pills until all traces of the trouble were gone, and I could again do my housework, feeling like a new person. Three years have passed since that and there has never been the slightest return of the trouble, so that I feel safe in saying that the relief brought by this medicine is permanent."

ST. MICHAEL'S DEFEAT M'GILL SECOND TEAM 18-4 AT VARSITY

FIRST OF PAIR.

TORONTO, Nov. 21 — St. Michael's College defeated McGill's 2nd team 18-4 at University stadium yesterday in the first of home and home games for the intermediate championship of the Intercollegiate Union. The field was fast and both teams displayed some of the smartest football seen here this year.

St. Michael's scored a touchdown in the first minute of play. A muff by a McGill half gave the locals the ball 20 yards out. On a double pass McGrath went through the McGill right side and dodged over for a touchdown between the goalposts for a try which Lowry converted. St. Mike's 6, McGill 0.

A no-yards penalty followed by an offside by St. Mike's gave McGill possession 20 yards out. C. H. Taylor dropped a goal from the field. Score St. Mike's 6, McGill 3.

Lowry and Taylor exchanged kicks several times for gains for St. Mikes. A fumble in scrimmage 30 yards out and on a fake kick Lebel made a brilliant dodging run through McGill team for another touchdown, which Lowry converted.

Score: St. Mikes 12, McGill 3.

St. Mikes plunged through the McGill line for several good gains and Lowry's fine kicking drove the Red and White back on their own goal. Then McGill pulled a brilliant end run, Taylor skirting the end for a 40 yard gain and putting St. Mike's on the defensive. McGrath ran the ball out from behind his own goal line and a couple of penalties sent the play back to centre field again.

Quarter time score: St. Mikes 12, McGill 3.

Second Period

Lowry repeated the play a moment later following up his own kick and getting possession for St. Mikes.

St. Mikes were penalized 25 yards for failure to give yards on a kick, bringing the ball back to centre. Both teams have been trying end runs and there has been plenty of open field work with splendid passing by the backfield players. In this respect the game has excelled most of the season's games.

A muff by Lebel was recovered by McGrath for a loss of 10 yards. St. Mike's gained their yards on plunges and then lost possession at their own 35-yard line. McGill tried an end run across the field and were lucky to recover a loose ball on the last pass. Taylor then booted the ball to the dead line for another point for McGill. Score: St. Mike's 12, McGill 4.

A muff at centre by McGill gave St. Mike's the ball and Lowry's long punt changed the play to the other end. Taylor's kick was returned to the McGill 20-yard line.

Half-time score: St. Mike's 12, McGill 4.

Both teams gave a very snappy exhibition in the first half. St. Mike's showed a variety of plays on the attack and everything was smartly executed. McGill made their best gains with their extension runs which were daring and brilliant.

Third Period

McGill had the kick-off after half time and had St. Mike's in their own territory for a while until Lebel took a catch and ran the ball back to centre for a 40 yard gain. It was a brilliant run.

After an exchange of kicks between Lowry and Taylor, St. Mikes showed a variety of line plays to make their yards three times in succession and carrying the ball to McGill 15 yard line where they lost 10 yards on a penalty. Lowry tried an onside kick, but McGill saved on their five yard line and Taylor kicked out of danger. St. Mike's kept forcing the play, but McGill put up a strong defense.

Haffey went through for fifteen yards from centre for St. Mikes. An end run and a line plunge gave them ten more. Lowry then kicked over to Grassick who was forced to rouge Score: St. Mikes 13, McGill 4.

Three-quarter time score: St. Mike's 13, McGill 4.

Fourth Period

Arnold made a good catch of Lowry's punt and after gaining 15 yards on a line plunge lost 10 yards on a penalty. Taylor's attempted field goal was wide and Lebel and O'Brien ran the ball back brilliantly to St. Mikes 30 yard line. St. Mikes lost possession on a fumble. McGill tried an onside kick but O'Brien got the ball 20 yards out for St. Mikes.

Lebel and O'Brien combined for a brilliant 20-yard end run. Another four-man passing play enabled McGrath to carry the ball to the McGill 15-yard line.

St. Mikes then sprang a new play, a long pass to the outside. Lebel dodged through the McGill line and struck the goal post with his head as he tried for a touchdown. On the first down, but St. Mikes was not allowed a chance to convert as more than one player handled the ball.

Final score: St. Mikes, 18; McGill 4.

LAKEFIELD WON DOUBLE HEADER

Warsaw Girls and Boys Were Defeated at Softball.

TWO FAST G,MES.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 21. — A double-header game of softball was played in the Lakefield Rink on Thursday night, when Warsaw girls and boys teams played Lakefield for the first time this season.

It was the first game the Lakefield girls have played with a regular girls team, and they entered feeling that only on their own merits could they win, but in this, their first fair test, they measured up beyond the fondest hopes of their friends. Warsaw has a good team and they play good ball, but the local girls gained a slight advantage in the first innings, and with the final score of 17-9 the Lakefield rooters went fairly wild and the ball players were the heroines of the hour. The girls all put up a good game, and are each worthy of special mention. The outstanding player was Gladys Blewett, Lakefield catcher, who played brilliantly and was a feminine Babe Ruth at bat, scoring two home runs, the only ones in the game.

The second game between the Lakefield boys and Warsaw was decidedly Lakefield's game from the beginning, Frank Madill pitching a wonderful game, with nine strikeouts to his credit, Harold Darling having six. Currie, the nimble first baseman for Warsaw, scored their only run, although the team, who has had little practice, played a fair game. Gordon Porter scored a homer in the eighth for Lakefield.

On Tuesday evening Selwyn girls and the Lakefield girls meet and Selwyn men and a picked all-star men's team for Lakefield in a double-header. This should be a good game.

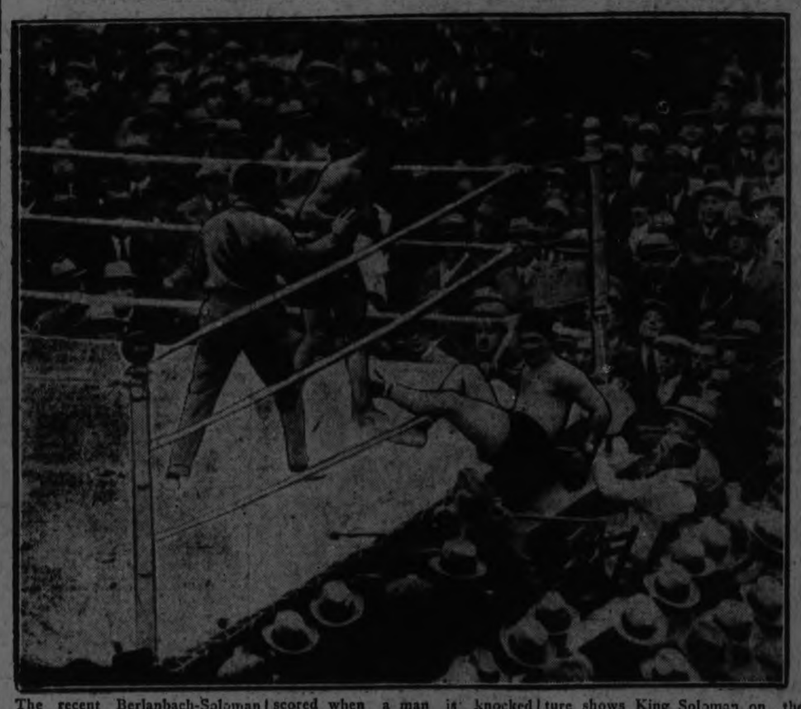
THROUGH THE ROPES—TECHNICAL KNOCK-OUT



The recent Berlanbach-Soloman fight illustrates the new ruling under which a technical knockout is scored when a man is knocked through the ropes and has to be helped back in the ring. The picture shows King Soloman on the ropes, with Berlanbach waiting for him to get up. Under this ruling Firpo would have beaten Dempsey.

Inside Sporting Dope

By A. Wese Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Their being not much excitement just now, except a side bet or two on how high the price of potatoes will climb, I have been thinking some of your readers would like some inside sporting dope.

For instans, I notice a piece in the Belleville paper where Mister Walter Gerow and Mister Verne Weir of the Belleville ball club has been paying a visit to Detroit. Something seems to tell me as how there will be some new ball faces as well as a new ball park in Belleville next summer, that is provided Mr. Gerow can pick out a ball player, which he ain't had much practice at, as Belleville only changed a lineup when somebody dropped dead. They should have took this second base bozo, Meagher, along with them, for he's lucky enough to bring back a one-legged guy with him and have him turn into a second Archdeacon.

Belleville will have a real honest-to-goodness park next summer with a grandstand and n'everything, but some of them ten-minute eggs which used to park around the Petes' bench will find their style cramped when they have to stay in a stand. Mister Shiner Johnston won't hardly know he's in Belleville with the hard-boils so far away from the diamond.

Mr. Duke Dainty has flitted to Kingston, which means that Joe Daley is going to try to southpaw the Central League to death, instead of trying to talk it to death, next summer. The Duke is going to run a bowling alleys, about running which he knows about as much as he does about running bases, but so long as his left arm don't fly off at the shoulder he shouldn't aught to have to worry about his pay envelope. The Kingston Ponies will likely be able to persuade this young Mister Bubs Britton of Toronto, who is taking a special course in scientific football at Queen's, that the summers in Kingston is very healthy, and he'll be one of Joe Daley's gang next summer, too. So far as is known Mr. Kelly won't be there.

THE HOCKEY OUTLOOK.

The hockey season is almost among us. Back in the old days when men was men and body checking wasn't no crime as long as the guy bodied it inside the fence, when Rolly Glover and Bill Crowley formed a Verdun -they-shall-not-pass defence for Peterboro, they used to let nature take its course and start the schedule when it was cold enough to make ice.

Nowadays they're starting hockey earlier every year, and if the o.B.A.A. delays its schedule any longer and the O.h.A. continues to begin sooner, the baseball championship and the S.P.a. serious will be settled about the same time.

Our Petes is getting ready to defend the s.P.a. Trophy. Some superstitious guys claim that the team that won the Sportsmen's Trophy ain't never won the O.h.A. championship, but there ain't nothing much to that. A lot of teams that never won the S.P.A. never won a championship either—that's that. The Petes is going to make them count them out in the Sportsmen's serious anyway, and with all last year's team and this here now Bogardis from Port Colborne and this young fellow Cox from Collingwood, neither of who is likely to act much like a brake, the blue and white talent shuld come close to copping the rehearsal serious again.

THE NEW RULES.

The eggs which like to stand on the sidelines and yell "Get 'im" maybe won't like this no-bumping-on-the-forward-line rule, but it should make the game more faster, except in Lindsay, where if you was to mark 40 foot off each end of the rink there wouldn't be no area left where body checking was not allowed. And as the Petes are off the tank circuit somebody else can do the worrying about Lindsay. The goal keeping rules will let Joe Dwyer do legally what he has been doing anyway, and so long as they don't bring in no regulation that the goalies mustn't talk Joe won't be badly handicapped no matter what the rules is.

All in all, this should ought to be a good hockey season for Peterboro, and Mister Gene Fraser and his big roar team had better get all their rabbit's foots and horse shoes ready early. They may need more luck than they had the last two years, and surely there ain't any more luck than that to be found even in Niagara Falls.

This will be all for now.

Next week, like the farmer, I may take another load away.

Sportfully yrs.,

A. WISE CRACKER.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE WINDS UP SEASON

Presentation To Secretary Who Was Recently Married.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 21. — A meeting of the executive of the Campbellford Softball League, was held in the Public Library Wednesday eveing. The activities of the past season were discussed and voted very satisfactory, over one hundred players taking part in the forty-nine scheduled league games and five games in the play-off series. There was a total of fifty-four league games, and as many more exhibition affairs.

Secretary - treasurer Daniels read his financial report, showing a balance of $7 and remarked that when the league was former not more than four or five men were interested and they had trouble getting the teams to enter, while towards the close of the season, they had trouble keeping the spectators from encroaching on the playing field, so great was the enthusiasm.

Plans were discussed for the formation of a town hockey league, providing the teams can play on the new open-air ring under discussion.

Gift to the Secretary.

President J. H. Bell, on behalf of the teams of the Softball League, presented Secretary-treasurer Daniels, who was recently married, with a gold-plated fountain pen and pencil, as a wedding gift and in appreciation of his untiring efforts on behalf of the league.

Mr. Bell said while the amount from each player was small, he hoped Mr. Daniels would receive it in the spirit it was given.

The address accompanying the gift was signed on behalf of the players of the Campbellford Softball League by the team managers, as follows: Clergs (champions, 1925), H. D. Aatkinson; Mill A, C. Montgomery; Mill B, W. Blakely; Hydro, H. Beatty; W. and L. Commission, R. Blakely; Oddfellows, C. Holmes; Outlaws, G. Anderson.

Mr. Daniels, though taken by surprise, made a very suitable reply. He thanked the boys for their thoughtfulness, and assured them it was a pleasure to be of assistance to them in any clean sport. Clean sport, played for the sport's sake, Mr. Daniels thought, was one of the best trainings any boy could follow.

He believes his work is not confined to the church alone, but that he can do good and noble work outside, and for that reason he likes to mix with the boys. After a few stories by Mr. Bell and Mr. Beatty the meeting dispersed.

By CHESTER HORTON

A good deal of the ordinary golfer's trouble with weight shifting begins at the start of the back swing. How to start from a standing start? seems to be the problem. One good way is to let the weight fall forward until it is about 80 per cent on the left leg. The right leg leans in, rather loosely, toward the ball. Then, as the club starts back, begin an immediate circling movement to the right starting slowly and gracefully. This circling will move all the weight to a point directly on top of the right leg—in fact, the right and left legs will trade places with each other at the start of the back swing. All you have to do then is simply hold that position, while the shoulders and upper body twist with the club. This puts the weight in the right place—poised on top of the right leg, while the left toe has a hold on the ground. At the moment of impact the left hip will kick into the swing from natural body motion—chances are if you try to throw it in you will overdo it and dip the right shoulder, which should never drop downward.

WESTERN FINALS.

CHICAGO, November 21.—The 1925 football season in the Western conference, a season which has resulted in a carnival of upsets more than any season since invasion of the forward pass in 1906, winds up today with one piece of unfinished business—determination of the championship.

The closing situation is three cornered, involving Minnesota, Michigan and Northwestern. The honors may be decided at Ann Arbor in the Michigan-Minnesota battle. If Minnesota triumps over the Wolverines they can claim the title without much argument. If the Wolverines crush the Gophers, Michigan and Northwestern have equal claim to the title, although Michigan has won the greater number of games.

To-day also will see the farewell appearance in Inter-collegiate football of Captain "Red" Grange of Illinois, regarded as the greatest running half back of all times. Grange will bid adieu to the inter-collegiate sport in the Ohio State-Illinois game at Columbus before a crowd of more than 70,000.

HOCKEY NOTES.

(From Toronto Telegram)

Peterboro seniors were out bright and early to-day. Goalie Joe Dwyer put his S.P.A. champions through a fast work-out.

Bailey, the smart Peterboro wing man, went real good. He has finally decided to stay in amateur company for the season.

Parker, the good Peterboro defence player, is in for a good season. His stick-handling today was of mid season form.

The Peterboro hockey team, which won the S.P.A. series at Toronto last season and which reached the senior O.H.A. finals, only to be defeated by Niagara Falls, will be seen in action here next Tuesday night, according to an announcement made this morning, says the Hamilton Spectator. The Petes are going to clash with the Grimsby Intermediates, the team which won the O. H. A. title last season and which gave Niagara Falls such a scare in the play-off games for the purpose of selecting the Ontario association's Allen cup representatives. Grimsby has lost a couple of its stars, but the gaps have been filled by good players, and the Peach Kings expect to put an even stronger team on the ice than they did a year ago. Harold Parker, a former Hamilton player, is one of the stars of the Peterboro team. The match will be played at the arena, and Grimsby fans will be out in full force to witness what should prove an attraction worth while.

Lou Marsh claims that "Happy" Day is the highest salaried layer in the National Hockey league. According to Lou, the former Tiger player gets $5,000 a year, which is less than the stories sent from New York would lead one to believe that other players are getting. But Day showed last season that he is worth every cent of it, and will no doubt do even better this winter.

Peterboro seniors are practising regularly at the Toronto arena, getting ready for the S.P.A. series. The critics in the Queen city rate them as the team to beat for the senior O.H.A. title this winter.

The Parkdale Canoe Club seniors have little to worry about concerning a strong team for the senior O.H.A. Players are continually adding to the present roster, and Harry Watson was out the other night. The latter will not play, however, unless he changes his decision and signs with St. Patricks.

St. Thomas has not yet decided upon hockey plans for this season, but will do so at a meeting called for Monday night. It is likely that another team will be entered in the intermediate O.H.A. series.

St. Mary's will enter a team in the intermediate O.H.A. series, and officials of the club claim they have rounded out a formidable aggregation. Both the junior and intermediate team officials are having a hard task trying to select their teams from the flock of candidates turning out every day.

Toronto Canoe Club seniors have a long list of smart candidates, and are looking forward to making things hum in the race this winter.

22 Teams in Rugby Finals

Four senior teams, six intermediates, seven juniors and six interscholastic teams, are left in the running for football titles, and next week will see eliminations frequently. The senior series will end on December 5, as will the junior, but the intermediates will not be ready before December 12.

The intermediate race will progress materially today, with Tigers II and Kitchener playing a sudden death game at Galt. The winners of this game will meet Sarnia the following week for the championship. The final series may be a home and home affair or a sudden death game in London. The play-offs for the intermediate C.R.U. title cannot start before December 5, and a winner will not be declared until December 12. The draw for the C.R.U. intermediate finals cannot be made until the three unions declare a winner. St. Mike's will play off with the O.R.F.U. champions, and Montreal C.N.R.'s will get the bye.

The Quebec and Ontario unions have two teams left in the hunt, and both seasons will end a week from today. Toronto Argonauts and Dundas play home-and-home games, the first in Dundas today and the return next aSturday, while Ottawa Rideaus play their first game against Montreal A.A.A. in the former city today, and the second will be in Montreal a week later. In the Intercollegiate, Queen's and Loyola have to play off their tied series, and the winner is then supposed to play Varsity juniors, but the latter are seriously considering a default owing to the length of time it will take to complete the play-offs. The Intercollegiate does not recognize the C.R.U. age limit in this series, so the O.R.F.U. and Quebec champions will be the only entrants in the Canadian championship series. As the Quebec winners played on Ontario grounds last year, the reverse will be the procedure this season.

While the C.R.U. recognizes the Interscholastic series the O.R.F.U. is the only union that is conducting a series for school teams this year, and there are six schools still in the running, but three of them will be out of the hunt by Monday night. In the section conducted by the O.R.F.U. there are four teams left. Oakwood and U.T.S., of Toronto, who meet in a sudden death game on Monday, and Hamilton Central and St. Catharines collegiates, who play a home and home series. The winners of these two semi-finals will meet next week. The senior champions of the W.O.S.S.A. qualify for the O.R.F.U. Interscholastic championship and Sarnia Collegiate takes a two point lead to the Royal City for the second game of the final home and home series. The schedules for the remainder of the season are:

OTTAWA HOCKEY TASTE WHETTED

Fans Tickled With Victory Over Victoria—Second Game To-night

OTTAWA, Ont., November 21. — Canadian Press. — Victoria Cougars and Ottawa Senators resume their hockey argument at the auditorium this evening, when they play the second of the two game exhibition series with a decisive victory in the opening contest the Senators are favored to make it two straight over Lester Patricks green and gold-clad crew.

Thursday night's game was creative of high favorable comment. The fact that Holmes played a remarkable game in goal for the losers did not detract any from the quality of the hockey served up.

The fans were naturally elated over the Senators' steady and brilliant shooting and now await the opening of the National Hockey League schedule.

Ottawas played the last period without Nighbor, who had been the most prominent player on the ice for the first two sessions.

He retired with a stitch in his side just before the second frame closed, and Kilrea played centre the last period. Ottawa's latest recruit went famously after he got his bearings, and should turn into a valuable hockey player.

Cougars made a great impression. Their machine like team play was a treat and individually they stood right up to the Senators.

Frederickson and Halderson came in for the most attention, but Hart and Fraser were as good as the next ones.

"SATURDAY NIGHT" PRAISES ARTISTS

Hector Charlesworth Refers To Programme By Peterborough Musicians.

Hector Charlesworth in Toronto Saturday night says of the recent recital given by local artists in Toronto:

On Nov. 11th an attractive program was given at Conservatory Music Hall by four young musicians, all hailing from Peterborough, Ont.: Dorothy Allan Park, soprano; Edwina Palmer, violinist; Agnes Logan, pianist, and Charles Peaker, Mus. Bac., organist. Miss Palmer is a violinist of marked ability. Her playing was characterized by sound musicianship, fine technique and complete grasp of the works she interpreted. Miss Logan displayed rare musical perception and her playing is the more attractive because of its entire freedom from affectation and mannerism. Her poetic interpretation of numbers by Debussy were especially memorable. Mrs. Park has naturally a voice of very fine quality, which she uses with unusual distinction of style. In Brahms, Tschaikosky, Grieg and modern English composers she impressed all hearers by her good enunciation, sincerity and musical intelligence. Mr. Peaker was an admirable accompanist at all times.

CLOSE FINISH IN ROAD RACE

1 1-2 SECONDS APART.

Two youthful Collegians, Raymond Frost and Eric Haley finished in a road race trial held yesterday with a scant gap of three feet separating them. The course followed was from the Collegiate Institute west and the north to Jackson's Park, thence back by the north end of the city, down George Street with McDonnel Street acting as the stretch.

Despite the grind there was stamina left for a sprint. Frost's time was 15.1, and Haley's 15 2-5.

PRESENTATION TO LADY LEAVING CITY

Mrs. Percy King is Remembered By Home and School Association.

Members of the King George Home and School Association enjoyed a very pleasant evening at the home of Mrs. V. Hamilton's, 40 Robinson street upon the occasion of a presentation being made to Mrs. Percy King, who for a long time has been a member, and treasurer of the Society, and who is leaving town.

The evening was spent in games, music and singing. The address was read by the president, Mrs. E. Scott, while Mrs. W. Ebbs made the presentation. Mrs. King was entirely taken by surprise but found voice to reply in a few appropriate words.

After refreshments had been served the party broke up by all joining hands and heartily singing "For She's a Joly Good Fellow."

The address was as follows:

Dear Mrs. King: We have gathered together to-night to tender you our good wishes for success and happiness for you and yours in your new home. We wish you to know, and to remember, what we hope you already know, that you have been a faithful and untiring worker in our association; that you have been a good citizen, and delightful neighbor; and that we are your friends for all time. Sometimes in life we do not make clear to others their value to us but we would wish you to know that we value you highly for what you are, and for what you have done. The King George Home and School Association has profited by your assistance and will feel the loss of your services. More it is not necessary to say. We value your friendship; we esteem you greatly; we bid you good-bye reluuctantly; we wish you "good luck" sincerely, and we ask you to accept this gift along with our good will. To you and yours, good-bye, good luck.

"Y" FLAG STUCK

Officials Were Unable To Indicate Mourning Until To-day.

That the Y.M.C.A. flag remained at full staff yesterday was not due to any laxity on the part of G. H. Roper or any other employed there. The ropes controlling the flag were stuck, and it was impossible until this morning to get them working fully on the block.

Theatre

AT THE GRAND

"Girls! Unless you've been laughed at a great deal at home, and in school, don't ever accept a comedy role on the stage. If the visitors to your home didn't laugh at your antics, when you were a little girl, strive for a prima donna part, or anything else, but comedy." Such is the advice of Miss Bessie Delmore, feature commedienne who shoulders all the comedy honors with the musical extravaganza, "My China Doll", due at the Grand Opera House tonight.

"A girl, however, who really feels the urge to go on the stage, should follow the impulse," said the dainty comedienne. "Be sure, though, the urge is not simply a desire for a change, or a passing fancy. Too many girls believe they can step on Broadway and make good. Some do, but the pitiful few that do, are so far between that it is better to be sure you want hard work, and are willing to undergo many hardships to win success, before you make the step. Once you determine what you want, go ahead—but remember this, if ever you are offered a comedy role:

"Every woman dislikes, more than anything else in the wide world, to be laughed at. An average woman, minus the comedy sense, refuses to clown. When I say you must have made the visitors laugh at you when you were a little girl, I am only saying that you must have in your being a sense of comedy. This comedy sense, like the urge in the artist, or poet, will be so great that nothing can stifle it. The more people laugh at your antics, the better you will feel. Making laughs grow will, in a sense, fill your life. If you possess this qualification and are not on the stage, by all means go, as the world and the theatre needs comediennes who can make people forget their cares."

In "My China Doll" Miss Delmore not only carries the comedy of the piece, but she also dances and sings. The two last achievements are Miss Delmore's own. She attained them by hard work. All through the two acts and eight scenes, this dainty little lady, of Broadway fame, will cavort, and endeavor to make good her promise to make two laughs grow, where only one grew before.

"MISS BOB WHITE" A REAL LAUGH GETTER

There are many things included in the structure of a really entertaining plot which go far to insure its patrons against loss of time.

In "Miss Bob White" are found all the good combinations possible amalgamated into what Director Perkins of the John B. Rogers Producing Co., who is staging the production for the Kiwanis Club, terms a sure fire hit. It begins as most shows do, in a very nice way, effectively introducing its well-cast characters, then gradually working up into a frenzied laugh at the antics of the two millionaires who are forced to become tramps through losing a freak election bet to an English Duke and his son, Lord Bashful.

How often have folk attended some screamingly funny musical comedy only to find that the comedy has been sadly overdone in the early part of the first act, allowing the plot to drag and become stale as it goes on. Willard Spencer, the writer of the piece, has done nobly in keeping enough for the last to make the laughs come as freely in the third act as in the first. Truly there is much in store for those who look forward to seeing the annual Kiwanis show.

The principals of the cast have already begun work and are well under way toward the finish of what promises to be the largest success yet. Everyone is looking forward to a bigger success than last year's show, which is well remembered by theatregoers as most pleasing to the eye and ear. "Miss Bob White", is the production chosen to even outdo last year's show, if possible, and the members of the cast so far are highly enthusiastic as to the outcome of their efforts at rehearsals.

NORMA SHEARER HAS PRAISE FOR CHANEY

Also Lauds Her Director, Seastrom, for His Latest "Tower of Lies."

Lon Chaney, Norma Shearer and Victor Seastrom.

A three-way combination, responsible for the success of "He Who Gets Slapped," had made another ten strike.

In his latest motion picture production, co-starring Chaney and Miss Shearer, Seastrom is said to have made an ever better film than "He Who Gets Slapped."

The story is a film adaptation of Selma Lagerlof's famous Swedish novel, "The Emperor of Portugallia," and was adapted by Agnes Christine Johnston.

In speaking of the success of "The Tower of Lies," Norma Shearer says: "I think the real secret of the success of this film was the confidence which the players had in Director Seastrom and the confidence which he also had in his cast. When I learned that I was to be affiliated with Lon Chaney and Director Seastrom in another picture, I immediately became confident that the finished product would be a great success. I do not think there is a better director for this type of picture, and I do not know of another actor who could do justice to such a role as that of 'Jan,' which was played by Mr. Chaney.

"Working with these two artists has always been a great pleasure to me and has given me enthusiasm and confidence in roles that are very exacting."

Chaney's belief in Miss Shearer and his director is as unlimited as their confidence in him.

GIBSON SCORES WITH THRONG AT THE ROYAL

"Spook Ranch" is Western Star's Biggest Hit.

The picturesque background of the Mojave desert, a supposedly deserted and haunted ranch house and a clever plot full of comedy and heart gripping drama, were merged together to give "Spook Ranch," the latest Hoot Gibson picture released by Universal, which is now playing at the Royal Theatre.

With a plot filled to the brim with rapid action and laughs, Hoot as Bill Bangs, a Texas cowboy, who owns the gold mining rights to the Mojave desert, in attempting to assert his rights is arrested and promised his freedom by the sherift on condition that he will solve the mystery of a ranch which has been deserted since the murder of a man three years before.

Not knowing what it is about Bill agrees and with his colored valet goes to investigate. Unexplained noises as well as threats of death come their way, much to the terror of the colored man and the astonishment of Bill, who has expected a tame time.

But before he leaves the spook preserve he experiences the wildst night in Hoot Gibson history.

The picture will be screened for the last time to-night.

COUNTRY STORE NITE MONDAY.

Monday night is Country Store Nite and extra quality prizes will be given. This is in addition to the special production, "Souls For Sables," with Claire Windsor.

A FORTUNE IN SABLES.

A fashion show in which more than a million dollars worth of sable furs were paraded before Claire Windsor, who plays one of the leading roles in the Tiffany Production, "Souls for Sables," suggested from "Garlan & Co.," by David Graham Phillips, is one of the big fetaures in this production, which will be seen for the first time in this city at the Royal Theatre, commencing Monday.

A dozen professional models were employed for this one scene, and practically every furrier in Los Angeles was called upon to contribute his sable furs for display. To insure the safety of this fortune in furs a dozen men from a private detective agency were stationed in and about the Tiffany studios, and no one was permitted on the set unless they were actually engaged in the scene or attached to the production department.

SYD CHAPLIN IN "MAN ON THE BOX"

Warner Star a Riot of Mirth in New Screen Comedy.

If you laughed with glee when you saw Syd Chaplin in "Charley's Aunt," you'll howl yourself into hysterics when you see him in "The Man on the Box," the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, which opens Monday at the Regent Theatre, with Syd scoring a tremendous hit in his first starring role for Warners.

Involved in a series of romantic adventures, and in political intrigue Syd is wildly amusing; but as the flirtatious ladies' maid, he is simply a riot. This is unquestionably the best of his excellent characterizations, and this picturization of Harold MacGrath's celebrated novel and play is ideally suited to the star's comedic talents.

The supporting cast includes David Butler, Alice and Kathleen Calhoun, Theodore Lorch, Helene Costello, E. J. Ratcliffe, Charles Gerrard and Henry Barrowes, all giving consistently entertaining performances. Charlie "Chuck" Reisner was the director and he made every gag good for a laugh.

Whether you like to laugh, or find it difficult to indulge in hearty guffaws, you'll find "The Man on the Box" will get you gurgling with glee. It gets everybody.

AT KNOX TO-MORROW.

Is victory always possible? May it be a glorious certainty for us, so that we may be "O'er a' the ills o' life victorious?" If we can be sure of triumph life becomes a song. There was once a man who met with exceedingly difficult circumstances. He laboured hard and honestly did his best, but everything seemed to be against him. His work seemed futile. Then something happened and he felt that he could never be defeated. How may we be assured of constant triumph? Have you ever had even a vague feeling that when Jesus prayed, "Save me from this hour," the Father should have saved His Son from the horrors of such agony and suffering? Perhaps you concede that Jesus could scarcely have saved Himself and have remained Himself, but could the Father not have saved His son? Was it becoming to the Father to allow His Son to suffer? The writer of Hebrews says it was quite becoming. These are our studies to-morrow.

WEDDING BELLS.

CURTIS—MILLER.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Miller, 35 Heath street east, before a huge bank of great palms, ferns, pink roses and marguerites, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 17, a very pretty wedding took place when their daughter, Marjorie Annabel, became the bride of Mr. Warren Harvey Curtis, also of Toronto, son of Mrs. A. V. Dallas and the late Stephen W. Curtis, of Peterborough. Rev. J. M. Macgilvray, of Chalmers church, conducted the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, was beautifully gowned in a white georgette and silver creation with collar of rose point lace and veil of tulle trimmed with seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a lovely shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley. Her sole attendant was little Miss Helen Ferguson of London, Ont., who looked very petite and charming in pale pink silk, with an old-fashioned nosegay of pink roses. The wedding march was played by Mrs. W. W. Taylor, and during the signing of the register Mr. John Phelps sang. The guests present included frineds and relatives from London and St. Thomas. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis will reside at 164 Northcliffe Boulevard. —Toronto Globe.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

RETRENCHMENT.

To the Editor, Examiner,
Peterborough—

Sir,—Your editorial under date of the 14th inst., wherein you say that the question of retrenchment in public expenditure was not a problem discussed, by either political leader or their following in the recent election contest and you express surprise which I am sure is felt by all who realize what our financial position demands. The Royal Bank of Canada in their letter of Nov. 1st, informs its readers that seven years after the war this country, with a population of about nine millions, has from 1920-1925 increased the national debt $180,000,000, while in the United States there has been a decrease in the same period of over two billion dollars in their annual expenditure, and of over three billion in the national debt. This was largely the result of a business organization of the government under a budget director, who made a thorough examination into all government departments, and without impairing their work, made a saving as above mentioned. This was also the plan adopted by Lloyd George in England Soon after the war he appointed Sir Eric Geddes to supervise all government expenditure and as a consequence we find England reducing her national debt and meeting her yearly expenditures notwithstanding her enormous outlay in caring for a very large unemployed population. As you point out in your interesting editorial, the tariff was about the only question talked out in the late election. Should not there be more consideration of some principal constructive economy in our public service, and in all national expenditures, as it is only in this way we can meet our obligations and reduce our taxes. If we hope for prosperous times, drastic reductions must be inaugurated and it should be the first duty of the next Dominion parliament to adopt some plan to this end, and it should be left, not altogether to the government officials, but to some business men of unquestioned integrity and ability who have the nerve to hew to the line, not caring on which side the chips may fall.

WILLIS GRANT LONEY.

ORILLIA, November 21. — Particularly sad were the circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. Willis Grant Loney, on Friday, Nov. 13th, after an illness of only two weeks, from pneumonia. Only two months ago he had married Miss May Dougherty, of Peterboro, and had barely settled down to housekeeping at 76 Penetang street, when his fatal illness overtook him.

Deceased, who was in his thirty-third year, was born in the Township of Tay, where his parents still reside, and had been a resident of Orillia for the past nine years, the latter six of which he had been in the employ of Quibell Bros., who feel his death very keenly, as they held him in the highest esteem.

Besides his young widow, to whom the heartfelt sympathy of many friends will go out in her bereavement, deceased is survived by his parents in Tay; three sisters, Mrs. Thos. Seymour, of Coldwater, and Misses Hazel and Edna Loney, and three brothers, Ernest, Harvey and James, all in Tay.

The officers and members of Geneva Lodge, Independent Order of Oddfellows, of which the deceased was a member, attended in a body the funeral, which took place on Monday afternoon, Rev. J. R. S. Boyd, conducting the obsequies. The pallbearers, all of whom were Oddfellows, were Messrs. R. A. Raaflaub, H. McArthur, R. K. Burnet, Thomas D. Brown, Claude Parker and Peter Stover. Beautiful floral wreaths from the Oddfellows, the Peterboro Rebekahs, Quibell Bros., Ford Garage and Palace Livery, as well as from many citizens in town and district, testified to the high esteem in which the late Grant Loney was held.

Thef ollowing out of town relatives and friends attended the funeral: Mrs. Wm. Clifford, Mrs. Wm. Long, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Udy, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goodfellow, Mrs. Stanley Scott, Miss Beatrice Gray, Mr. Claude Fleetwood, Mr. Dan Dougherty and daughters, Helen and Hattie, all from Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Harrie, and daughter Ethel, Mr. Norman Scott, Mrs. Col., Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cole, Miss Gladys Harris, Mr. John Dougherty, Mr. James Lewis, Victoria Harbor; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Loney, Mr. Leo Arthurs, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Seymour, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Loney, Mr. and Mrs James Loney, Mr. and Mrs. James Loney, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Loney, Miss Edna Loney, Barrie; and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Loney, Mrs. David Wagg, Mrs. Bess Loney, Mrs. Venerve Loney, Mrs. Milt Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Loney and Mr. W. STATION MASTER BROKE NEWS OF DEATH TO PRINCE OF WALES

PEACEFUL DEATH.

SANDRINGHAM, Eng., Nov. 21. (Canadian Press).—Britain's 'Fairy Queen' is dead. Stricken with heart disease almost on the eve of her eighty-first birthday, Queen Mother Alexandra passed away at 5.25 o'clock yesterday afternoon, with her son, King George V., Queen Mary and sorrowing members of the Royal Family at her bedside.

Thus died the radiantly beautiful Danish Princess, who captivated England 62 years ago, when she came to be the bride of the then Prince of Wales, and who held the Empire's love and reverence through three generations as the Princess of Wales, as Edward the Seventh's Queen and then as the Queen Mother.

There was a poignant note of tragedy in the final drama of Queen Alexandra's long life, for her favorite grand-child, the Prince of Wales, was not among those at her death bed. His special train feeling its way through the fog, which knows no respect either for Princes or paupers in England, arrived at Sandringham a few minutes after the end came. The heir to the throne never saw his grandmother alive after the visit he made to greet her just after his return from his South African and South American tour.

Prince Grief Stricken

The grief stricken Prince, accompanied by his brother, the Duke of York, went from the little station at Sandringham, where the stationmaster broke the news to him, to the Royal house of mourning, Sandringham House, which a heavy pall of fog had wrapped in a melancholy shroud.

Last night the villagers of Sandringham and its adjoining hamlets and the country folk of the Royal estates lamented the death of the womanly Queen who endeared herself to her subjects in her adopted country in a measure unprecedented in English history.

Once she was a poor little Princess, as Princesses go, but she loved the fairy stories of her native Denmark and her life was much like one of them. She grew to be a most beautiful young girl and was romantically wooed, and wed by a Prince from England. And in the fullness of time the "Sea King's daughter from over the sea," as Tennyson sang of her, sat on the throne beside her King.

She lived long and happily, and die bequeathing memories of a personality as fragrant with lovable qualities as that of any Queen in history.

Second Attack Fatal.

It was the second heart attack Friday morning that proved too much for Queen Alexandra's enfeebled constitution. She weakened gradually in spite of the administration of oxygen. At the end she died as peacefully as she had lived in recent years in her beloved Norfolk Country home, where, it is said her, she expressed the desire to be buried.

Sandringham was dark and desorted after sundown. The silent groups which stood about Thursday night and throughout the day until the news spread of Alexandra's passing, had all disappeared. The inhabitants refrained from manifesting their grief publicly but behind drawn blinds there were many sorrowful reminisence of the goodness of heart and nobility of character of the Dowager Queen, especially among aged folk who have grown old with Alexandra.

Wherever there was a wireless receiving set men stood bareheaded and women folded their hands when a prayer was broadcast and during a funeral march which followed it.

SUBLIME SIMPLICITY MARKED THE FUNERAL SERVICE ATTENDED BY ROYAL FAMILY AT SANDRINGHAM

Body of Queen Alexandra Wheeled to Village Church by Household Servants—Coffin Hewn by Royal Estate Carpenters From Oak Tree.

REMOVAL TO LONDON NEXT THURSDAY

Tenants, Pensioners and Household See Queen Mother For Last Time in Room Where She Died.

SANDRINGHAM, England, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—With ceremonies almost as simple as would have been accorded a humble villager, Queen Mother Alexandra's body in a coffin cut from oak on the Royal estate by the estate carpenters, was borne early Sunday morning on a wheeled bier by household servants to Sandringham Church. It was followed by Princess Victoria and Princess Marie of Greece, the tiny cortege moving along the private path so often used by Alexandra in walking to church.

Without ceremony the coffin was deposited in front of the altar and covered with the Queen Mother's own standard as a pall, with a few family wreaths disposed around, but no crepe hangings or candles.

Vigil by Servants.

Vigil will be kept by four estate servants until the body is taken to London. The funeral service held later was attended by King George and Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, other royalties and most of the regular congregation. The King himself walked to the church and carried their Majesties' joint wreath and cross composed of pink and white flowers and dark violets, blossoms much beloved by the Queen Mother.

The minister did not preach a sermon, but declared a tribute to Queen Alexandra. No further services will be held until the funeral, but the church will be open daily for visitors to file past.

The utmost simplicity marks the arrangements for the interment of the Queen Mother, who will be laid beside her husband, King Edward VII., under the Albert Memorial Chapel at the Medieval stronghold, Windsor Castle, where they were married in 1863.

Service Next Friday.

The first part of the service will be solemnized at Westminster Abbey Friday morning, but the interment will take place at 11.30 Saturday morning, November 28. Throughout the last rites for Alexandra the tributes will be like those of friends for a revered and beloved woman and will be conducted without much of the funeral pageantry customary to Royalty.

On Thursday next the King and Queen and other members of the Royal family, villagers and retainers will walk in solmn procession behind the casket from Sandringham Church to Wolverton Station, from whence it will be brought to London. The funeral ceremonies there will be similar to those of the simplest British subject.

Limited Ceremonial.

The coffin will be placed in the Chapel of St. James Palace Thursday night, and will be removed to Westminster Abbey early Friday, with troops attending and a limited ceremonial. The public will be admitted during the afternoon.

In the evening it will be taken to Windsor Castle, and throughout all the proceedings watchers will be detailed to keep vigil.

Only members of the Royal family and the late Queen's household will attend the commital service, after which the body will be placed temporarily in the Royal tomb house under the Chapel until the Sarcophagus now being erected in the Chapel for Edward VII. and Alexandra is completed.

King George has approved the arrangement whereby the court goes into mourning for three months, the first two months full mourning, and the remaining month, half mourning.

After family service in the death room on Saturday, there was an informal lying-in-state for the household, tenants, retainers and pensioners. The Queen Mother, calm and peaceful, reposed on the bed on which she died and over which a beautiful pale pink coverlet had been spread; there were a few flowers in the room.

Affects State Functions.

Although the Queen's death affects the social and business life of the whole country, certain events of importance cannot be delayed. The signing of the Locarno treaties at London will take place December 1, but the elaborate ceremonial in connection with this will be curtailed, perhaps entirely abandoned; the procedure being merely the formal affixing of signatures by the premiers. The State banquet at Buckingham Palace and the Lord Mayor's luncheon at Guilhall on that day and Premier Baldwin's luncheon December 2 will likely be cancelled.

The House of Commons will not adjourn, but on the day of the funeral will not be in session until after the services.

Messages of sympathy and condolence continue to flood Buckingham Palace and Marlborough House from all the corners of the earth.

Tube of Precious Metal Valued at $800,000 Found in Sewer.

SIX WEEKS' SEARCH.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press). — Six weeks' patient search with a mechanical bloodhound has resulted in the finding in a sewer pipe of a tiny tube containing $800,000 worth of radium which disappeared from the hospital here. Professor Henry A. Rickson, head of the physics department of the University of Minnesota, constructed ionization chamber detectors which were attached to electroscopes, and began to hunt along the sewers leading from the hospital.

To-day the detectors led him to a nine-inch pipe in a sewer tunnel. The radium tube was found within two inches of a mark he made on the pipe.

UNION CITY, N.J., Nov. 23.—(United Press).—Forcing his way into her home, an unidentified man man carved the initials "H. M." with a razor blade Saturday on the arm of Miss Florence Buchanan, 21, who was alone at the time.

Neighbors were aroused by Miss Buchanan's screams but the attacker made his escape. According to the police the man was armed with a pistol with which he intimidated the girl and went at his cruel work of disfiguring without speaking or giving any reason for his action. Several months ago Miss Buchanan was subjected to a similar attack by an unknown man who gashed her with a safety razor blade at her home.

FIRE DESTROYED VILLAGE GARAGE

Park Hill, Near London, Ont., Menaced By Blaze.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press).—The entire business section of the village of Park Hill was threatened early Sunday morning when fire completely destroyed the large garage owned by J. C. Knapton. Smoke was pouring from every crevice in the building when first discovered by C. W. Brown, a villager, at 5.40 a.m. The garage, an immense two-storey wooden structure, built in 1873, offered itself a ready victim to the huge flames which soon enveloped it.

Neighboring business houses and nearby homes were only saved by the meritorious work of the village fire brigade and the aid of volunteer citizens. A high wind was blowing at the time and great trouble was encountered in confining the blaze to the one building. As yet no cause for the fire has been determined although incendiarism is not expected. The loss, which amounts to over $10,000, is only partly covered by insurance.

PREMIER DENIES RUMORS ABOUT HIS RETIREMENT

Has Never Entertained Any Idea of the Kind, He Says.

MISREPRESENTATION.

Should Be Understood as Emanating From Tories, He Says.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press). — In answer to despatches published in some newspapers to the effect that he had decided to retire to private life, the Prime Minister issued a brief statement on Saturday evening.

"I have no intention of retiring from public life," says the Premier, "nor have I ever entertained any idea of the kind. No doubt the Tory party in Canada would welcome nothing more than my retirement. Any intimation of the kind should be understood by the public as emanating, like so much else appearing nowadays, solely from that source, and as being only part of the continuation of their campaign of misrepresentation and prevarication which became more general than ever in the recent election. Having failed in one direction, our political opponents, in seeking office at any price, are now driven to extremes in another. My advice to them and to all others who have any misgivings of this point would be to wait and see."

CARRIED DISEASE HOME IN STOMACH

Doctor Brought Parasites From China Home to Study Them.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 23. — (United Press)—The story of a physician who carried 32 parasites in his stomach from China to John Hopkins University here in order that he could find methods of combatting the disease which has taken enormous death toll in the Orient for years has been made public in a treatise published at the University.

The parasites or flukes, responsible for the disease, which are known to science as 'fasciolopsicis,' are repulsive flat looking creatures which are sometimes more than an inch long and of a bright red color.

As Dr. C. H. Barlow was leaving China, according to the article published in the American Journal of Hygiene, he desired to bring some of the parasites back to the United States to study them at John Hopkins.

He could have brought back a native suffering from the disease, but the, immigration laws which have prohibited the native from entering the United States, so Dr. Barlow selected 32 live flukes from the body of a patient, washed them in distilled water and drank them down.

General Turner stated that the decision from Saskatchewan greatly enhanced the possibilities of the National Conference, which is being held at Winnipeg, starting November 25, effecting an immediate union of existing veterans' organizations.

NEW METAL HAS GREAT STRENGTH

Mac-L-Ite Is Strong, Light and Cheap and Will oNt Rust.

RESISTS ACIDS.

LEXINGTON, K.Y., Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press)—A discovery that promises to bring fame to its inventor and may revolutionize the mechanical world, has been made by Harry McClane, aged 32, a chemist employed at the University of Kentucky as a plumber.

The formula, which is known only to McClane, is three times as strong as bronze, cast iron, brass and milled steel, and can be used at much saving in place of any of these metals.

Although it is one-third as heavy as bronze, brass or cast iron, and only two points heavier than aluminum, Mac-L-Ite is strong, requiring a pressure of more than 100,000 pounds to the square inch to crush it.

The metal closely resembles aluminum in appearance, and under a buffer wheel takes on the appearance of silver. It will not rust or corrode. Earth acids have no effect on it.

WORLD COURT'S DECISION FAVORS NEITHER NATION

Great Britain and Turkey May Be Asked By League To Negotiate.

DUTY OF LEAGUE.

World Court Say Council Must Determine Mosul Frontier.

GENEVA, Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press).—In League of Nations' circles it is believed that the League Council will make another attempt to have Great Britain and Turkey settle their controversy over Mosul by direct negotiations as a result of yesterday's decision by the Permanent Court of International Justice. The decision was a victory for neither Great Britain nor Turkey.

The British contention was that the action which the Treaty of Lausanne delegated to the Council was arbitration in which a majority vote would be sufficient for a decision. Turkey argued that the Council was empowered merely to find a solution which would be agreeable to both parties. The World Court, however, ruled that it is neither a case of arbitration nor mediation and that the Council must definitely determine the Mosul frontier between Turkey and Irak by a unanimous vote, not including the votes of Great Britain and Turkey.

IRISH FREE STATE MEMBER QUITS BOUNDARY ENQUIRY IN PROTEST

Dr. MacNeill Alleges Terms of Treaty With Britain Not Properly Interpreted.

POLITICAL ASPECT

EMYVALE, Ireland, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Speaking at this border village Sunday, President Cosgrave, head of the Free State ministry, said he had come uninvited to announce the resignation of Dr. Eoin MacNeill, as member of the Irish Boundary Commission, and its causes.

Mr. Cosgrave explained that Dr. MacNeill had informed the executive council that during the last meetings of the boundary commission he had been completely satisfied there was no likelihood that the work of the commission would produce a report based on the terms of reference provided for it by the solemn international engagement by which the commission had been created. He contended that, if the terms of reference in the treaty had been properly interpreted and effect given to the inhabitants' wishes no boundary could possibly be drawn in consonance with those terms, which would infringe the Saorstat's territory, even if in the abstract such power existed.

He charged that British parliamentarians were lending their influence to persistent and unscrupulous use of threats and political pressure from Ulster to prejudice the commission, and declared that the British government could not escape moral responsibility for the injustice inflicted through the agency of its nominees.

In conclusion Mr. Cosgrave urged the exercise of restraint and dignity by the Irish people, because heated words would only make the government's task difficult.

FREE STATE AROUSED.

DUBLIN, Nov. 23 (United Press) —Renewal of civil war, thus breaking Ireland's short reign of peace, appeared today as the possible outcome of the Ulster-Free State Boundary Commission's findings, which are reported to alter somewhat the Free State boundary.

President Cosgrave of the Free State told the United Press today that his government maintains that Free State territory is inviolable and cannot be touched. Retirement of Prof. John McNeil from the Boundary Commission brought the situation to a head, for it was in reality in protest against that body's findings which the Free State holds are a violation of the Irish Treaty.

The Free State is quite aroused at the situation which many government supporters view as grave and alarming. It is held that more negotiations between the Free State and England will be necessary since there seems little prospect that the reported findings can be enforced as far as the Free State is concerned.

CASE SETTLED.

Motor Driver Paid Medical Expenses of Boy He Ran Down.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 23—On Hallowe'en night, George West of Oshawa, formerly of Campbellford, ran down with his auto and seriously injured Fred, the 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Sargeant. The young fellow with a number of other boys, dressed in masquerade costume, were celebrating the anniversary and Fred was on the street when the accident occurred.

This case has been settled, Police Chief Brown having secured from Mr. West the sum of $15 which the parents asked to settle the medical expenses.

CHERNEY TELLS COURT HE ISN'T LIQUOR DEALER

Witness Says He Purchased Wet Goods—Accused Says "Oilcloth."

GOES UP IN SMOKE.

Judgment was reserved to-day in the case of Newhall versus Cherney, which came before Magistrate O. A. Langley, Abraham Cherney is charged with keeping liquor for sale. Jos. Wearing appeared for the prosecution and J. A. O'Brien for the defence.

Edwin Harron was the first witness called and testified as to the condition in which he was found on Wednesday of last week. He said he got drunk on Tuesday night, and was fined on Wednesday morning. He didn't exactly know what it was that made him drunk and would not swear if there was any left in the bottle after he had stopped drinking. There must have been a lot of alcohol in it, he asserted, because real whiskey would not have made him as sick as the stuff in the bottle did. "It was pretty good poison anyway," he declared.

Mrs. Lina Harron was the next witness; she was a sister-in-law of the former witness, and declared that the bottle shown her was one similar to that which Mr. Harron had dropped on the floor on Tuesday. She identified the bottle by a peculiar indentation which was in the cork, evidently caused by the insertion of a corkscrew. She brought the bottle directly to the police station and gave it to a constable. Sergt. Deanard identified the bottle as the same one brought in and given him by Mrs. Harron. To make assurance doubly sure he sniffed the contents At the time that Mrs. Harron brought the bottle to him, the Sergeant poured some of the fluid on the table. "I lit a match to it, and it went up "Whosh!' in flame. I did

System Of Colored Lights Warns French Deputies And Prevents Snap Vote Turning Government Out

PARIS, Nov. 23.—Members of the French Chamber of Deputies, when they reassembled after the vacation, found installed a very useful innovation. Twenty-two tape-machines (or "tactacs," as the French call them) are placed in different parts of the building, each equipped with red, blue, green and yellow lights for conveying messages to Deputies and journalists. Thus it will be possible for all to know what is taking place at any time.

The British Houses of Parliament have "division bells" that are rung whenever a vote is being taken. The clamor of these strident little bells—more persistent than the telephone—is also taken up by special police, who go about shouting "Divishun!" Thus a "surprise vote" is practically impossible.

In the French Chamber, on the other hand, no means has hitherto been provided whereby a Deputy or even a Minister might know, without going to see, what was transpiring in the tribune. No matter how important the task on which he happened to be engaged, a member of the Government was obliged to interrupt it if he desired to ascertain what was taking place in the Chamber. Consequent upon such lack of ready information, "surprise votes" often have been tallied.

Minorities, taking advantage of this lack, have sometimes been able to muster beforehand and carry the day. Many queer situations have developed. On one historic occasion a vote of confidence in the Government, posed by an unwary Minister who had failed to note the absence of most of his supporters, resulted in a vote of no confidence. Poincare, then Premier, though in the building at the time, did not know that a vote of confidence was being taken until he learned that his Government had been defeated.

This sort of thing cannot occur under the new arrangement. A red light will indicate a vote, so that Deputies may hurry back to their places. Other lights will announce which party holds the floor, a change of speakers, even—when the topic is of sufficient moment—who is speaking, if he be a Minister.

Sidelights on People

Picturesque characters are rare enough to be noteworthy, but the more northerly parts of the dominion have been particularly rich in unusual people.

Until recently North Bay boasted one of the best, known locally merely as Old Rip. He lived the life of a hermit in a mountain-side shack, his past veiled in obscurity. The general impression was that the old man was slightly demented. He lived on the proceeds of odd jobs and the generosity of the townfolk in general.

How he came by the name of Old Rip I do not know. He did explain that his real name was Charlie Ford and he was said to be a relative of Bob Ford of the famous Jesse James' gang, the man who shot his leader and himself died with his boots on.

A few years ago North Bay's Old Rip disappeared from his usual haunts, and after several days had passed word came to Main street that the old hermit was lying dead in his shack. A neighbor had peeked through the window and seen the silent figure of the old man on the pallet of pine boughs he called a bed.

The citizens decided that the town character deserved a fitting burial, and arrangements were made to that end. An undertaker was despatched with a coffin to bring back the remains. A short time later the undertaker came back with his horses at the gallop.

To the astonishment of the populace, Old Rip was seated on the coffin, waving his hat and cheering. He explained that he had not been dead—merely hibernating, and he objected strenuously to an attempt which would result in confining his future activities to the narrow walls of a casket, be it ever so ornate.

That was some time ago. Old Rip has now died for the second time. This time it is definite and irrevocable. Old Rip is gone—R.I.P.

Some people are born heroes, if the movies are to be believed, and others have heroism thrust violently upon them.

Listed in the latter class is William Murphy of Alameda, now modestly accepting the laurels which are being showered upon him.

Mr. Murphy came face to face with a hold-up man, an encounter which frightened him thoroughly. When commanded to stick up his hands, he obeyed with alacrity and without question. In his eagerness to obey, he shot his hands skyward with energetic haste.

Murphy stopped running when he reached home.

This completes Mr. Murphy's claim to unavoidable heroism. The possibility that Mr. Murphy may have other traits of bravery lies in the act that he told the entire truth about the affair without any quibbling.

Modern surgery, says Dr. Hubert A. Royster in the Medical Journal and Record, has had much to do with extending the average life of man from forty-three to fifty-three years. Surgeons to-day are losing but a small fraction of their early operative cases.

"Analysis of reports seems to show," he comments, "an increased saving in those under five years of age and an addition of eight years, which has occurred in the last twelve, among those who have had periodic health examinations."

This lengthening process is continuing, according to the best information available, and will continue to continue. Dr. Royster's statistics should not be allowed to lie idle. Is it not possible to perseveringly broadcast this statement until life insurance companies are ultimately convinced that man is now born to live longer and consequently life insurance premiums should be lower.

Much space has been used in the highbrow art and art journals in paying tribute to a certain Miss Valerie Walter, sculptor, on the grounds that she committed a notable feat in lasting through an eighteen-day session with a gorilla as a model. Brave and noble gorilla, to spend two weeks and four days making a monkey out of clay!

These tributes are hardly fair. They are too one-sided. What about the poor gorilla? Why not hand some credit to the poor, overgrown chimpanzee? Think of the taunting remarks of the next-door gorillas on his return. He will be in as bad a fix as if he had won a beauty contest.

Pennsylvania's oldest licensed hunter this season was William Moyer, of Bectelsville, who is in his 85th year.

The biggest score ever run up by a University of Iowa football team was 95-0 victory over Iowa Normal School in 1914.

CITY MANAGER PLAN GROWING

Report to Convention Shows 358 Cities Have System.

ONLY 33 IN 1914

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 23—Every city manager should be authorized to employ a director of personnel whose duty it would be to procure competent and trained employes and test them under accepted civil service standards, Harry W. Marsh, secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League of New York City, said in an address before the International Association of City Managers in session here.

"There are two chief reasons why every city manager needs a director of personnel," Mr. Marsh declared. "First, he must have protection against the spoils system. Second, he must have some means of procuring competent and expert help expeditiously and be relieved of the hard work of adjusting personnel problems as they arise in various departments concerning transfer, promotion and removal."

"In 1914 a total of 33 cities had the commission form of Government," declared C. Wellington Koiner, of Pasadena, Calif., president of the organization. "Now 358 cities have this form. The gain during the last year was 21. During that period 95 per cent. of all changes in city government have been in the direction of the new form. Only three cities which had adopted the new form have gone back to the old. The success of the plan has been so marked that the larger cities have been attached to it. I would cite you to the new charter for Rochester, N.Y., which has been pronounced the best city charter drawn up to the present time. The public is willing to pay for good municipal service if waste and extravagance are eliminated."

John G. Stutz, manager of Lawrence, Kan., executive-secretary of the association, aroused enthusiasm with his annual report of the association's activities. He recommended, among other things, that the association sponsor an apprentice system whereby trained men can obtain practical experience in city administration under the guidance of experienced city managers. He asked that a committee be appointed to consider such a plan.

FAMOUS LIBRARY GIVEN TO NATION

PRICE DONATED.

EDINBURGH, Eng., Nov. 23—(Canadian Press Despatch).—The formal transfer to the nation of the famous library of the Faculty of Advocates, Edinburgh, took place at the first meeting of the board of trustees of the National Library of Scotland over which Sir Herbert Maxwell presided and voiced the profound sense of the faithful service rendered to the nation by the Faculty of Advocates, who founded the library in 1682 and maintained it entirely at their own charge for over 240 years. He believed that not less than $250,000 had been spent upon the collection.

After alluding to the munificence of Sir Alexander Grant, whose gift of $100,000 made it possible for the Government to take over the library as a State institution, Sir Herbert Maxwell said the library would be conducted, as heretofore as nearly as possible on the lines of the British Museum Library and the Bodleian.

PAINLEVE MINISTRY WRECKED BY PUBLIC FEAR OF MORE INFLATION; BRIAND MAY SUCCEED AS PREMIER

Only Month Since Last Change in French Cabinet —Defeated Sunday.

DRAMATIC SCENE

Chamber Rejected Plan to Consolidate or Default Short-Term Bonds.

PARIS, Nov 23 (Canadian Press) —Growing discontent with Premier Painleve's financial proposals, even among the government's supporters, finally brought about his fall yesterday, less than a month after her had reconstituted his ministry to meet the wishes of the Radical groups in the Chamber.

The defeat of the ministry came when the chamber refused by three votes to accept Article 5 of the proposas, providing for enforced consoidation of the short term debt, although a previous motion for the elimination of the article had been defeated.

The vote on the main question was 278 to 275, and on the earlier vote, to reject Article 5, M Painleve had only a majority of 28 with 26 Communists abstaining. When the article came up for final acceptance the Communists voted against the government and the switching of other votes completed the defeat.

There was a dramatic scene in the Chamber. M. Painleve, after the announcement, walked from the room, followed by his ministers. Amid much excitement, M. Herriot, leader of the Radical Socialists moved adjournment, which was taken until Tuesday next.

A Socialist Setback.

After the final vote, the Ministry met hastily and placed their letter of resignation to M. Doumergue, who immediately began conversations looking to the formation of a new ministry. The ministry considered most likely in political circles would be a concentration government designed to command the support of the Centre and Moderate Left, and not relying for its existence in a crisis, as did that of M. Painleve, upon the vote of the extreme Left.

While numerous names are mentioned as possible premiers, including those of M. Briand and Raould Peret, former president of the Chamber of Deputies, political experts would venture no prediction, and President Doumergue himself, after consulting with M. Painleve, M. De Selves and M. Herriot, withheld action until today.

Feared a Panic.

The actual rock on which the ministry was wrecked was fear of what was regarded as inevitable heavy inflation and a deep-rooted dislike for a "default" as the Opposition characterized forced consolidation. Such consolidation said its opponents would create a panic among the holders of national defence bonds, who would see a similar fate for their securities and rush to exchange them for cash at a time when the treasury was depleted and unable to meet its obligations except through a new issue of notes.

Painleve proposed to defer meeting 3,000,000,000 francs of obligations falling due on December 8.

Saturday night when Leon Blum, the leader of the Socialists, insisted that the Government pledge itself not to go beyond the 1,500,000,000 francs inflation mentioned in the Government's new tax bill, he knew he was hitting the nail on the head, and that was proven when Premier Painleve said he could not make that promise.

The truth of the matter is that if the Government accepted the principle of not meeting the Dec. 8 maturity it would open the way for not meeting other maturities, and that naturally caused nervousness among all holders of French Government securities.

Some authorities say that since France got away rather well with increasing her paper money circulation from 41,000,000,000 to 51,000,000,000 she could raise the circulation to 60,000,000,000. Others, however, predict that if the circulation goes to 60,000,000,000 it will go higher. What is evident is that no one knows exactly what is going to happen. And in those circumstances it is worth bearing in mind that there are some French leaders not now in the majority who think that in the debacle of the franc lies the solution of French domestic financial problems. They recell that is how Germany wiped out her interior war debt

Painleve Appeals to Patriotism.

At the close of Saturday's discussion of the financial bill, during which the first two articles were passed, Premier Painleve made a moving appeal to members to rush the measure through if grave consequences to France were to be forestalled.

"I address to you at this hour a supreme appeal to your patriotism to bring to a close with all speed the debate on this bill," said the Premier. "If this appeal is not answered, it will soon be impossible for the present Government to continue much longer in power."

Following this appeal, which visibly impressed the Deputies, a special session was agreed upon for Sunday morning.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(United Press).—If Mrs. Gladys M. Vogt, formerly Juanita Clark of the Follies had waited until January 1st before obtaining her divorce from John M. CALLS ON LEAGUE.

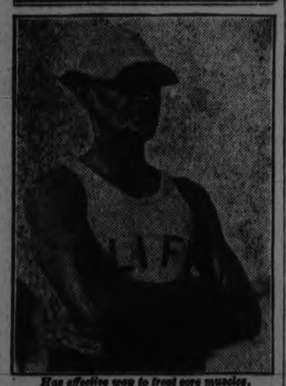
Sir Horace Rumbold, British ambassador to Madrid, who will head the commission of the League of Nations, which will enquire into the reasons for the fighting between the Bulgars and the Greeks recently.

PITY THE CHILDREN FED ON GHOST CEREALS.

Feed your children upon ghost cereals—if you will, but a farmer would laugh at you if you told him to feed them to his live stock, for he would know that live stock will soon die if fed upon them exclusively. Yet your children have not half the resistance of horses and cows. Then why feed them foods that will kill horses and cows?

Ghost cereals is the name science applies to certain unsubstantial cereal foods whose chief claim for your attention is flavor and ease of serving. Now would you not rather buy real foods, especially for your children, than to buy these fancy packages which, without milk, are hardly foods at all? Certainly you would.

Well, Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal is precisely such a real food. Science proves that it is the darker, rougher parts of the grains that nourish and build sound and vital health. Roman Meal has the dark parts of three whole grains with bran, used in proportions to make a balanced human food. Beef contains 592 food units to the pound: Roman Meal contains over 1,600 food units to the pound. Prevents indigestion, positively relieves constipation. A truly wonderful food. You ought to try Roman Meal. At grocers.



Has effective way to treat sore muscles.

HOW TO GET RID OF MUSCLE-LAMENESS

Beach Patrolman Advises this Treatment

After exposure to dampness and cold, and after hard exercise, muscles will stiffen up and get lame.

A beach patrolman at Atlantic City writes that he has found this treatment the quickest and most effective way to take out the stiffness and pain:

Sloan's gets results because it doesn't just deaden pain, it gets at the cause. Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing stream of fresh, new blood. Quickly and surely it carries off the "fatigue-poisons," takes out stiffness and drives away the aches and pains.

MANY ATTENDED W.M.S. MEETING

About 75 Ladies Were at Annual Thank Offering Meeting.

A.Y.P.A. MET MONDAY.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 23.—About seventy-five ladies were present at the annual thankoffering meeting of the W.M.S. of the United (Presbyterian) church, representing missionary societies of the United (Presbyterian) church, Regent street church, Baptist and Anglican churches. Mrs. P. L. Jull occupied the chair and took charge of the usual opening exercises. Prayers were given by Mrs. W. H. Howard, Mrs. S. A. Kemp and Mrs. Jas. Mahood. Mrs. W. J. Charlton sang a solo, "The Way of the Cross Leads Home" which was very appropriate to the occasion. After the offertory Miss Nelson sang an attractive setting of 'Rock of Ages,' Mrs. G. W. Payne acting as her accompanist. The special speaker was Mrs. Mackinnon of Peterboro who, in expressing her pleasure at being present stated that it was her first visit to Lakefield and she was amazed at its size as she had imagined it would consist of a store, blacksmith shop and a very few dwellings. In her address she dealt with work of Rev. Hugh Mackay at Round Lake, Sask., where for many years he labored among the Indians.

Miss MacGregor has written a biography which is just being published. The speaker heard Mr. Mackay for the first time at the Synod of Saskatoon a good many years ago and later at the Provincial W.M.S. meeting at Regina, where he was introduced by the speaker as one of the three famous Mackays of Zorra, the other two being Dr. Mackay of Formosa and Dr. Mackay of the Home Mission Board. A saying at the time of the Fenian Raid was "They may take Canada but they canna tak Zorra."

Mr. Mackay's first charge was at Manitoulin Island where he remained about seven years, leaving to take up work among the Indians at Round Lake where he labored till recently. The Indians, who were at one time very well off, are now in poor circumstances in many cases and welcome the bales of clothing and quilts sent for friends in the East including the W.M.S. Skeptics wonder if these offerings are really appreciated by the Indians but Mr. Mackay assured his hearers that they were illustrating by personal anecdotes.

The region round Regina was known as "Wascana" meaning pile of bones, so called from the fantastic heaps of buffalo bones which used to be found there in the days when hoardes of buffalo roamed the planes.

Mr. Mackay told of encounters with medicine men and their ignorant superstitions and while there were many discouragements he never failed as he felt with the poet Longfellow that in every human heart there is the yearning for good. Some say that when the Indian boys and girls leave the Christian schools and go back to their heathen parents that they revert to heathenism.

In some cases this is perhaps true but not in all or in fact in many cases, and is it not found that sometimes white girls and boys brought up in good Christian homes fall back into sinful ways. Mr. Mackay told of a boy named Ben, whose mother brought him to the school about the age of 7, much against his will. Ben had a very violent temper which was apparently uncontrollable but Mr. Mackay's kindness won his heart and he learned to control his unruly temper and later he went to High school and Normal school in Regina and became a teacher in Northern Saskatchewan and went overseas as did many of the young Indians.

Mr. Mackay told also several anecdotes illustrating the simple faith of those Indians when won to Christ and when attacked by their deadly enemy tuberculosis they met death bravely with a sublime faith in God and a realization of the life to come.

"We can thank God," concluded Mrs. McKinnon, "for what has been done but there is a great work still before us before His Kingdom will stretch from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth."

A Presentation.

Mrs. Jull spoke of the approaching departure of Mrs. Chant, who had been a faithful member of the auxiliary for so many years and who had served so efficiently. Being in closer touch with the work outside the village than most of the members, Mrs. Chant brought tidings of work in Toronto and at the Provincial meetings.

Mrs. J. A. Porter read the following address after which Mrs. James Walton presented Mrs. Chant with a life membership certificate.

Dear Mrs. Chant:

"It is with feelings of mingled sadness and regret, we learnt that you and Mr. Chant are going to leave our village.

"You have ever stood for good citizenship and have always been ready with heart and hand to assist any cause promoting the welfare of the community.

"We shall indeed miss your liberality and your help in our church life.

"We recall with appreciation a number of times, when the situation was not very promising for our Women's Missionary Society that you, Mrs. Chant, stepped into the breach and, as president of the Auxiliary and supervision of the Mission Band, tided us over to more favorable conditions.

"As a slight token of our esteem, we ask you to accept this Life Membership certificate from our Auxiliary.

"As we are bound together by a chain of prayer, we shall still consider you one of our number and hope that a long and happy life of service may be granted you.

"Signed on behalf of the Society."

M. JULL, Preisdent.
A. TANNER, Secretary.

Mrs. Chant, though taken completely by surprise, replied gracefully, assuring the ladies of the pleasure she had ever taken in the work of the W.M.S. and the regret she felt in leaving the village, where she had lived longer than in any other place in her life. Mrs. Chant's interest in the W.M.S. will continue in spite of the fact that she will no longer be within reach of the meetings.

Mrs. Jull, in closing, made special mention of the large delegation from other auxiliaries whom she welcomed very heartily. After the meeting the ladies of the society served afternoon tea to the visitors and a social half hour was spent.

A.Y.P.A. Meeting.

Monday evening was Literary Night at the A.Y.P.A. and owing to various counter attractions, some of those who were expected to provide numbers on the programme were unable to be present. However, an interesting programme was given. Rev. W. Cox gave a very interesting paper on Canadian poets quoting several, including selections from Bliss Carmen, Archdeacon Scott, Charles G. O. Roberts, Wilfrid Campbell, Pauline Johnson, Archibald Lampman and others. Special mention was made of Isabella Valancy Crawford and her works. Miss Crawford has a peculiar interest for Lakefield people as for several years she resided in the village and the house in which she lived is standing and in occupation on Queen street. She received the Holy Rite of Confirmation in Christ Church as the old Church was then known and was a faithful attendant at morning and evening prayer.

Miss Crawford's life in Lakefield was especially sad as in spite of her youth she was already struggling with the grinding poverty which clouded her life and shortened it. Mr. Cox closed with Pauline Johnson's poem, "The Riders of the Plains."

Miss Grahame read a short story of Nellie McClung's untitled "The Elusive Vote" especially apropos near the time of a general election.

A contest followed in which prizes were won by Miss Grace Watson and Mr. Charlie Woodhouse.

FEW MEMBERS AT INSTITUTE MEETINGS

Sale of Baking Was Discussed By Millbrook Ladies Recently.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 2 . — The Women's Institute held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. W. G. Rowland, with the president, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, in the chair.

The Institute has sixty paid members so far this year, and yet the attendance at the regular meetings is discouragingly small. Some effort will be made in the immediate future to increase interest and induce more of the members to be present when the time of meeting comes round.

The matter of holding a sale of homemade baking, with a hot meal served at the regular tea hour, came up for discussion, the second week in December being the time mentioned. Definite action will be taken, and members notified, as soon as possible.

That the Institute should take an active interest in the school here, and do something definite in the way of offering a prize for map-drawing, essay-writing, or in some other way, with the beautifying of the school grounds by flowers another season, were suggestions that called forth a lively discussion, the general feeling favouring projects of this nature.

No delegate from the Millbrook Branch was sent to the convention of Federated Institute now in session in Toronto. At the annual district meeting last July it was decided to ask each branch to send one or more delegates, rather than follow the plan of previous years and send one delegate from the entire district. It was felt that each branch would gain more information, and a widened interest and knowlege of the work in this way, than by depending on a single representative who would report to the individual societies upon her return.

The boys of the Tuxis Square and the Senior Trail Rangers held a business meeting on Tuesday evening, and then motored to Cavanville to hear R. L. Sainsbury, of Port Hope, who is one of the candidates running to represent East Durham at the Fourth Older Boys' Parliament which meets at Queen's Park during Christmas week.

The opposing candidates, Willard J. Meldrum and R. L. Sainsbury, have presented their respective platforms to the boy electors, the former having six planks in his appeal, and the latter nine. They will be heard locally at the social evening, under C.G.I.T. auspices, in the United Church on Wednesday, November 25. Meldrum, who is a son of Rev. T. E. Meldrum, pastor of the Baptist church, Port Hope, has the following as his platform:

1. That I will do everything in my power to advance the World Peace and Brotherhood Movement in Durham, and if elected, will support it in Parliament.

2. That a boy Mayor, and boys' Council, under the direction of the Boys' Work Board, be elected in the town of Port Hope.

3. That a County Council be elected by the boys of East Durham.

4. That Port Hope be a constituency by itself in the next Redistribution Bill.

5. That a county camp be held in this district next summer.

5. That inter-group sports be encouraged.

Sainsbury's platform has some planks similar to his opponent's and contains the following items:

1. To form a County Council for the constituency of East Durham.

2. To establish athletic meets that competition may be encouraged between Port Hope and outlying districts.

3. To do everything possible, when the Redistribution Bill comes before the House, in an endeavor to divide East Durham into two separate constituencies, Port Hope to be one in itself, and the remaining part of East Durham to form the other.

4. To arrange for Father and Son banquets, by which fathers may become more interested in boys' work and in the welfare of their sons.

5. To perfect the Four-Fold Programme of the Tuxis boys in Port Hope, and establish Tuxis Squares in the neighboring towns and villages of this constituency.

6. To stimulate more interest in Badge Work.

7. To carry out inter-group games in Port Hope so that more interest in the C.S.E.T. programme may be maintained.

8. To see that our share of the finance in the Bond-Selling campaign for 1926 is realized.

9. To establish athletic meets in order to create friendly competition, and a closer Tuxis relationship between the boys of Port Hope and those of the outlying districts.

The Brotherhood Association of the United Church will meet on Friday evening, at 8 o'clock, for organization purposes. Last year was the time of initial organization, and the meetings proved instructive and interesting, but were discontinued in the late spring. It is hoped to have a large membership and enthusiastic weekly meetings, during the winter months. All the men of the church are invited to join, and any others in the community who desire to belong to the Brotherhood will be made welcome.

Kilted Regiments Lose Familiar White Spats

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Spats have been banished from the British Army. The War Office has announced that as a measure of economy the white spats which have formed part of the regular uniform of the Kilted Scottish regiments for more than 100 years will no longer be issued.

Advertising Rates on application.

MONDAY, NOV. 23, 1925.

LOWER RAILWAY FARES.

The opinion of the Canadian Association of Exhibitions that special railway rates would not only bring about a larger attendance at fall fairs, but would mean increased revenue for the railways, will find approval in many quarters.

The heads of the railways undoubtedly know their business, but nevertheless the man on the street cannot get the idea out of his head that a return to the old system of cheap fares for exhibitions and other special occasions when excursion rates used to prevail would greatly increase the volume of traffic on the railways and the earnings as well.

As it is the railways seem to be playing into the hands of motor bus companies by refusing to make any concessions for special occasions, and people who might be induced to travel on the railways are staying at home—or travelling by motor.

ADVERTISING THE WATERWAY.

The decision of the Trent Waterway Development Association to send an exhibit to the New York Motor Boat Show calls renewed attention to the success that has followed the association's efforts to attract motor boat tourists to the Trent Waterway.

The New York exhibit, in which the Dominion Government co-operated, has undoubtedly been the source of much valuable publicity for the waterway among a class that it is most desired to reach, and many of the trim cruisers that have passed through Peterboro in the last two years were here as the result of the advertising done by the association's exhibit.

These tourists have gone away delighted with the wonderful scenery of the Trent Waterway, and as a result this district has gained additional publicity both by word of mouth and in newspaper and magazine articles that will bring many more motor boat owners here.

The association has done much for this section of the Province, and its efforts deserve the support of every community along the waterway, each one of which shares in the benefits that come from the money that is put into circulation as a result of so many visitors.

CONGRATULATIONS.

In extending congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Young of Young's Point, who are today celebrating not only their golden wedding but the one hundredth anniversary of the arrival of Mr. Young's grandparents in the village, the Examiner is merely voicing the good wishes of hundreds of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Young and their family.

One hundred years ago the first Youngs reached the pretty spot between Clear Lake and Lake Katchewanooka that for the past century has borne the name of Young. Peterboro consisted of but a few log buildings at that time, and the first settlers were carving a home out of the wilderness in the townships that now contain so many prosperous farms.

Ever since 1825 there have been Youngs at Young's Point, and their name has always been synomous with honesty and fair play and geniality and staunchness of character.

Mr. and Mrs. Young, whose fiftieth wedding anniversary is being observed today by their children, are widely known, not only in this district but, it might truly be said, in many parts of the continent because they have come into contact with thousands of tourists, and they will undoubtedly be the recipients of warm congratulations upon the most unusual double event which today's celebration commemorates.

THE MANOEUVRING STARTS.

The resolution that Hon. H. H. Stevens, acting leader of the Conservative Party in the absence of Right Hon. Mr. Meighen, has placed on the order paper of the House of Commons indicates that the manoeuvring for supremacy in the House is under way.

Mr. Stevens' resolution includes the following paragraph:

"Therefore, this Parliament declares that the delay in providing a measure of relief for a justifiable grievance has been unwarranted and grossly unfair to the agricultural industry."

The resolution, which refers to rural credit, is obviously designed to embarrass the Government and Progressives, who have to make it awkward for the been fighting for rural credits since they first entered Parliament.

To vote against this resolution would be to vote against a measure of assistance to agriculture; to vote for it would mean the defeat of the Government.

That is the position in which the Stevens' move apparently leaves the Progressives, and its introduction is but the first step in a series of manoeuvres from both sides that promise to make the coming session of Parliament a memorable one.

THE BECK ENDOWMENT FUND.

It has been decided to postpone Peterboro's campaign on behalf of the Beck Memorial Endowment Fund until February, and as a result the local drive will lose some of the stimulus and impetus that might be expected from the Province-wide campaign that is now under way.

However, it is possible that what is lost in this respect will be made up for in other respectse.

The Examiner, however, was rather surprised to find that one of the reasons given for the postponement was that Peterboro people were not in sympathy with the project.

Surely local citizens are not different from the rest of the Province, and the enthusiasm shown in other centres over the campaign seems to indicate that there is no lack of sympathy elsewhere for a memorial that will help to keep green the memory of Sir Adam Beck and at the same time open the door of health to poor victims of tuberculous who are unable to pay for sanitorium treatment.

Either one of these objects should commend itself to the people of Peterboro; when the two are combined in one appeal there should be no fear of the result.

The campaign is going ahead in other Provincial cities, and it is to be hoped that Peterboro's share in the common task is merely postponed—and not definitely abandoned.

BY AUTO-SLEDGES TO THE POLE.

There is a touch of elan in the story of French designs on the North Pole in the dispatch from Paris describing the plans of greatly daring adventurers, says the New York Times. The story will interest Captain Amundsen, who expects to arrive at King's Bay, Spitzbergen, next spring to sail in an Italian dirigible with Lincoln Ellsworth into the Arctic unknown. He laid his plans some time ago and funds for his expedition are assured. A fellow-countryman, Captain Otto Sverdrup, will, it is said, take part in the rival undertaking. He is 70 years of age and was supposed to have retired from Arctic exploration. The French quest is to be led by Lieutenant Sales of the navy. It is to be made under the auspices of the Ministries of Marine and Education. In the background are "many scientific societies," and the implication is that they have raised 3,000,000 francs to pay expenses. The route will be to Spitzbergen, thence to the Pole, to Point Barrow (Alaska), down the Mackenzie River to Winnipeg, to Chicago and New York—an amazing schedule.

Amphibious sledges, invented by Captain Sverdrup, are to carry the explorers over the ice and through leads or open water to the Pole. There the search for unmapped lands between it and Point Barrow will begin in earnest. Two seaplanes carried on the sledges will be a part of the equipment. The expedition will push on to Point Barrow, and thence the flight by planes will be made south. The sledges are automotive, warranted to travel over the ice pack or on open water at a much higher rate of speed than dog teams. We are told that "the secret of their construction is being closely guarded."

Trials will take place in the frozen Gulf of Finland in the presence of representatives of the French and Norwegian Governments. Can it be that Norway meditates disloyalty to its favorite son and hero? "Careful preparatory work," it is reported, "has already been done, and if Sverdrup's 'mystery sledges' come up to expectations the expedition seems likely to be the most important of all those being prepared for next year." This Franco-Norwegian venture seems too aistonishingly easy in the prospectus. Majors Arnold and Hensley of the United States Army Air Service, who are mentioned in the dispatch as allies and associates, disclaim any knowledge of the principals—in fact, "have never heard of the project." Perhaps Captain Otto Sverdrup does not know that he is down on the program for a long trek in the Arctic as commander of his auto-sledges. In a rather dull season for news this notice of a rival show to Captain Amundsen's will have a thrill if it is officially confirmed by the French Government.

"GARNET WHEAT."

"Give us this day our daily bread."

Marquis wheat was a mighty answer to that daily prayer. Millions of acres in Western Canada were brought within the wheat belt. Time between sowing and reaping shrank by ten full days, shortening greatly the chance of the harvest being killed by frost. The Prairie Provinces, whose productivity was previously always uncertain, were turned to a world granary.

Now comes Garnet wheat as a still mightier answer to that supplication of millions. Garnet wheat, we are told, will revolutionize wheat production in the West. It will advance reaping time by 10 more days. It will minimize danger from rust and frost. It will help reduce blockade possibilities in shipment to the seaboard. It will bring hundreds of thousands of more acres within the area of wheat.

Garnet wheat is not an experiment, something hoped for, untried. It is a demonstrated, scientific achievement, standing every test.

Garnet wheat has been perfected at the Ottawa Experimental Farm, birthplace of the famous Marquis wheat. The story of its inception is thus told by the Ottawa correspondent of the Manitoba Free Press, in a despatch to his paper:

"For some years now the experiments with Garnet wheat have been assuming an ever increasing importance in the eyes of Mr. Newman, Dominion cerealist. For several seasons he brought on this new variety in the little experimental soil patches at the Ottawa farm. Then as he noticed its rapid ripening qualities, he decided to push it faster. Seeds were sent out to the various experimental farms and subjected to different climatic conditions. Garnet wheat stood up under all these tests. In 1925 Garnet wheat was grown on about 100 selected farms in Western Canada, and its record is one that augurs well for the future of the Prairies."

1. In Southern Alberta thdis year Garnet wheat ripened and was threshed long before the snow and rain storms came. Marquis and other wheat, grown in the same field, were still unthreshed.

2. At Morden, Manitoba, Garnet wheat was grown alongside Marquis wheat. When Garnet wheat was ready for the binder Marquis had still ten days to go, and bore considerable rust which might do it great injury.

3. In the Dauphin district Garnet wheat ripened, was cut and threshed before the fall rains came. Not so Marquis wheat.

4. In 1924 there were innumerable instances of Garnet wheat escaping frost, where Marquis wheat was nipped.

Other considerations stamp Garnet wheat as a great discovery. Exhaustive tests place it among high-class milling and baking wheats. It will ripen earlier than wild oats or sow thistle, thus permitting its being harvested before such weeds have gone to seed. A ten-day earlier harvest will enormously benefit the movement of grain. The Great Lakes will be available for that longer period—a tremendous advantage.

Canadians sometimes grow discouraged about the future of their country. Discoveries like Garnet wheat instil new hope, heighten confidence and faith. The imagination is quickened, new possibilities are opened up, a new vista of conquest appears. With a land richly endowed, with the vast great West our own, with a blessed Providence and a beneficent science uniting in our aid, who will set a boundary to the march of our future prosperity?—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The health officers have been keeping Peterboro on the map, but the hockey players will soon proceed to take over the task.

OPPOSE EVOLUTION.

Rev. Dr. J. Frank Norris, of Fort Worth, who addressed the Baptist Bible Union of North America at Hamilton, said that the present was an age in which Christianity was being assailed upon all sides. He especially urged his audience, and all other Christians, to oppose the teaching of evolution in the schools or universities.

A THOUGHT.

THE ANATOMY OF FAILURE.

No man has failed until he has succeeded.

I am not merely juggling with words here. This apparent contradiction is true for the simple reason that, taken by and large, there is some place in the work of the world into which every normal man can fit with some satisfying measure of success.

No man has failed until he has failed in the kind of work for which his temperament and training most logically fit him.

Save in the rarest exceptions, there is no such thing as a general ability that can succeed in any and every undertaking, under any and every condition.

Different tasks call for different temperaments.

Salesmanship requires a confident spirit.

Finance calls for a canny spirit.

The man of confident spirit may fail as a financier, but succeed as a salesman.

The man of canny spirit may fail as a salesman, but succeed as a salesman.

Neither can be said to have failed until he has tried the task for which his temperament fits him.

Failure is more often due to lack of adjustment than to lack of ability.

Most careers are the result of drift rather than design.

We should be surprised, I am sure, if we knew the small number of men and women who deliberately choose their careers in the light of their actual aptitudes.

It requires time and the opportunity for experimentation for us to discover the career for which nature and nurture have best fitted us. But youth is cursed with impatience. And so most of us drift or allow ourselves to be shoved into the first profession that plucks at our sleeve. It may be of all the jobs the one job for which we are least fitted. But we are usually slow to discover that we are the victims of a faulty adjustment. And by the time we discover the error we have usually become so entangled in routine and so accustomed to the small safeties of a regular job that we lack the daring to change our careers in midstream. And so, it may be, with capacities that would lead us to high achievement in the right job, we sink into a sullen mediocrity in the wrong job.

For the normal run of mankind, two things constitute the anatomy of failure; first, the selection of the wrong career in the beginning; second, staying in the wrong career after the mistake has been found out.

Two things likewise underlie success; first, caution in the choice of a career in the beginning; second, courage to change from the wrong job to the right job.—Glenn Frank.

Investment in Canadian mining enterprises now totals more than $600,000,000. In point of capital employed, mining is now the third largest industry in the Dominion, agriculture and railway operations ranking first and second respectively.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Quebec, November 23. Canadian Press. — There was a good demand for Canadian wheat on the Montreal market on Saturday in nearby positions and as cables were stronger at a further advance of 6¼ per quarter some business was worked and sales of several loads of oats were made. The demand from exporters for wheat on spot was steady and furthe, sales of No. 1 Northern were made at 14½c per bushel over the Winnipeg November option, and No. 2 Northern at 11¾c per bushel over c.i.f. Montreal and odd round lots of oats also changed hands at c.i.f. prices.

A feature of the local market for coarse grains was the demand from American corn and a fairly good business was done including sales of kiln-dried No. 3 yellow in car lots at $1.03 per bushel on spot at $1 per bushel for prompt shipment from Chicago, and at 97c for November shipment. In oats the feeling was very firm, under a moderate demand, and sales of car lots of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white oats sold at 53c, No. 3 white at 51½c and No. 4 white at 49 1-2c per bushel ex-track.

Flour Prices Advance.

Owing to the continued strength that has characterized the Canadian cash wheat situation of late a stronger feeling developed in the local flour market for spring wheat grades and millers generally marked up another 10c per barrel at the close of the session.

In sympathy with the above, the continued light offerings of winter wheat flour from Ontario millers and the somewhat limited supplies available on spot, the tone of the market for these grades of flour was also much stronger and dealers generally advanced prices 25c per barrel

There was no change in prices for white corn flour announced, but the tone of the market was firm with sales of small lots at $6.80 to $7 per barrel in jute bags, delivered to the trade.

The feature of the millfeed trade was the stronger feeling that prevailed in the market and prices by most millers were advanced $1 per ton, which was attributed to the continued good demand from the United States and Canadian buyers for supplies and the somewhat limited offering. There were no new developments in the market for standard grades of rolled oats, but the undertone was strong and higher prices are expected in the near future owing to the small supplies available, for which there is a good demand.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand, $4.82¼.
Sterling cables, $4.83 7-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 21. Canadian Press. — In a big broad market wheat prices made sharp new upturns to-day, with July delivery breaking the season top record. Unfavorable weather conditions for the Argentina harvest were a stimulating factor and so too were reduced estimates of the exportable surplus looked for in Argentina. Despite heavy selling to realize profits wheat closed firm at 1 to 3 3-8c net advance, new style, December 160½ to 160 7-8 and May 158 to 158¾. Corn finished 5-8c to ⅝c off, oats 1-8c to ¾c down, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 10c.

Unexpected strength in Liverpool quotations were associated here with lowering of the estimates on the Argentine wheat yield, and with reports indicating even more widespread crop damage in Argentina than has heretofore been noted. After a maximum advance of nearly 4c a bushel here, the market met such an amount of selling that prices receded in some cases to well below yesterday's finish, but the set-back broughta bout a new increase of buying and a consequent fresh upturn in values.

To-day's advices from Argentina indicated a probable surplus there of $136,000,000 bushels to 147,000,000 bushels,as against government figures of 160,000,000 bushels a week ago. Meanwhile, the price of the February delivery closed in Buenos Aires to-day about 17c a bushel higher than the market there touched last Monday. Virtually no attention today was given to any developments except those relating to the Argentine outlook. Mention was made how ever of beneficial rains in Australia.

EGG MARKET STRONG

The recipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 1180 cases as against 960 cases for the same day last week, and 695 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending November 21, 1925, were 12,826 cases, as compared with 7573 cases for the previous week, and 11,868 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May 1 to date were337,670 cases, as against 378,482 cases for the same period of 1924. The receipts last week showed an increase of 5253 cases, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 958 cases with the same week last year, but the total for the season to-date have been 40,812 cases smaller than a year ago.

Fresh eggs have been so scarce there has been no difficulty in moving prices up in all parts of the country with the exception of British Columbia where production is steadily increasing, and the tone of the market easier. Owing to the above the condition of the market here has been very strong throughout the week and prices closed with a net rise of 5c per dozen, and the indications are that they will go still higher in the near future as the demand at this period of the year is in excess of the offerings.

The trading in storage eggs has been fairly active, there being a good consumptive demand for supplies,and this coupled with the steady movement for export account and the upward tendency of prices in the United States markets a stronger feeling has prevailed here with the result that prices closed 1c per dozen higher than a week ago, and the prospects are encouraging for the future.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending Nov. 21, 1925, were 2004 packages which show a decrease of 2363 packages as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 1303 packages with the same week last year, while the total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 442,912 packages smaller than the same period for 1924.

Dairy Products Firm.

Owing to the fact that the stocks of creamery butter in the whole of Canada are more than 50 per cent. below a year ago at this period, and supplies on spot depleted the condition of the situation is strong, as there is far from being sufficient butter here at present to meet the requirements during the coming winter months, and in consequence of which it will not be any surprise to the trade to see prices advance in the near future. The market closed strong with a net gain for the week of ½c to 1c per lb. The demand was steady for supplies from local and outside buyers, and a more active business was done.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending Nov. 21, 1925, were 23,916 boxes which show a decrease of 8,000 boxes as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 3242 boxes with the same week last year, but the total receipts for the season to date have been 88,138 boxes in excess of a year ago.

The feature of the trade for the week was the improved demand from foreign buyers for supplies and a moderate amount of business was done but the market was by no means active although the movement for export account was considerably larger. In the country purchases of current make were made on Friday and Saturday at 19c, 19¼c, 19¼c, 19 9-16c, and 19 3-4c per lb F.O.B.

BULGARS NEED FOREIGN LOAN

MANY DESTITUTE.

SOFIA, Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press.)— The League of Nations inquiry commission headed by Sir Horace Rumbold, which has been investigating the causes of the recent Greco-Bulgar conflict on the Macedonian border, arrived at Sofia Saturday and was accorded an official reception yesterday.

The commission was informed by M. Kalfoff, Bulgarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, that a foreign loan, secured with the aid of the League of Nations, was an absolute necessity if Bulgaria was to care for the thousands of Greeks and Macedonian refugees who had suffered during the late border events. Bulgarian resources were strained even at normal times to furnish the refugees with the necessaries they required, and now, since they had been driven from their homes and left destitute, the government even with the aid of Foreign charity was unable to re-establish them.

The commission yesterday received various notables, and will meet Premier Tzankoff to-day.

WAGE SCALE TO SOFT COAL MEN NOT MAINTAINED

Workers Appeal to President Coolidge to Intervene in Threatened Breach.

TROUBLE LOOMING

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press).—President Coolidge has been asked by the United Mine Workers whether the government desires to intervene to maintain the integrity of the Jacksonville soft coal wage agreement and, if not, whether the Union men would be justified in taking their own measure to enforce it.

The inquiry was made in a letter from John L. Lewis, head of the miner's organization, date Nov. 21. Mr. Lewis stated that the three-year agreement, expiring March 31, 1927, was reached with the co-operation of the Departments of Justice, Commerce and Labor, and added that the annual report of the Secretary of Commerce referred to the compact as insuring industrial peace in the industry, and that no better example of co-operation to secure the elimination of national waste could be presented.

Violated Pledges.

Mr. Lewis asserted that "substantial coal producing interests, signatories to the arrangement have violated and repudiated their written word of honor and in so doing have impaired the integrity of the wage structure throughout the entire bituminous industry."

Naming the Pittsburgh coal company, Consolidation Coal Co., the Bethlehem Mines Corporation and the coal interests of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railroad, as among those he alleges have dishonored their wage agreements, Mr. Lewis asserted that their 'savage and dishonest" acts have "added to the burden of those honest coal operators who desire in every particular to operate in accordance with their wage agreements."

WASHINGTON OPINION.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Threat of labor disturbances in bitimunous coal fields, seen in the appeal to President Coolidge yesterday by leaders of the miners' union with respect to enforcement of the Jacksonville wage scale, has been given official consideration but comment has been withheld. This is the second reference to the Federal government of the soft coal wage scale trouble, but in the former case, Secretary Davis of the Labor Department and Secretary Hoover of the Commerce Department were named and no action resulted.

At that time, cabinet members said that it was not the duty of the executive to enforce any civil contract, though naturally the administration stood for the keeping of wage agreements by all concerned. John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union, in public addresses declared that large corporations were breaking the scale and that serious trouble would ensue if matters were not corrected.

Production Increased.

Nevertheless reports have indicated an increase in the coal mined in former union fields by companies which are no longer operating under the wage contract. Production of bituminous coal generailly has been on the increase during recent months and geological survey reports indicate that it is running above 12,000,000 tons a week.

WESTERN WHEAT POOLS TO FIGHT GRAIN GROWERS

Bitter Fight Predicted Over Growers' Company Refusing to Sell to Elevators.

MET ON SATURDAY.

Saskatchewan Pools Plan to Build Their Own Elevator System.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press.) — The United Grain Growers Limited will not sell the elevator facilities of the company to the pools as a result of the decision of the annual meeting of the company here Saturday. The proposal to sell the elevator facilities was defeated by an overwhelming vote. At the same time, the shareholders of the company went on record as favoring the co-ordination of the marketing facilities of the three prairie wheat pools, the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company and the United Grain Growers Limited.

As had been predicted, the question of the elevator policy of the company, proved the main business before the sessions, which lasted three days. Representatives of the 35,000 shareholders of the company from the 375 locals attended.

Owned By Farmers.

The delegates by an approximate vote of nine to one endorsed a resolution passed previously by the Board of Directors of the Company declaring that the interests of the shareholders of the farmer-owned elevators must be safeguarded, favoring the co-ordination of the facilities of these companies and declaring it inadvisable that "any arrangement or consolidation of facilities be made, upon a basis that would deny to any shareholder or patron, the advantages of these country elevators."

Previous to the passage of this resolution the meeting had endorsed, after two days' debate, a resolution favoring the sale of the elevators, but after legal opinion had been obtained ruling this resolution out of order, and further extended debate, the final decision of the meeting was made.

See Bitter Fight.

As a result of the decision, it is predicted that a bitter fight between the elevator companies and the pools is in prospect. The Saskatchewan pool elevator policy has been announced as one that would duplicate the elevator facilities of the elevator companies at all points where pool grain is handled and aims at an ultimate organization which would handle all the pool grain from grower to the buyer.

WATERWAY SCHEME DOUBTED BY BEATTY

President of C.P.R. Believes Advantages Are Outweighed.

TORONTO, Nov. 23. (Canadian Press).—"I have never been convinced that the advantages of a deep waterway from Montreal to the lakes would outweigh the disadvantages of demurrage," said E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway (in an interview with the Toronto Star). "I am not satisfied that ocean-going boats could afford to make their terminus at the head of the lakes instead of at a Canadian seaport owing to the delays involved in long trips through the canals. The arguments for and against the scheme were very fully discussed by Brigadier - General Mitchell at the Winnipeg Conference."

Mr. Beatty admitted that the deep waterway project would mean a saving in the shipment of grain from the head of the lakes to Montreal. "But I believe it will be transhipped there to ocean-going steamers," he said. "In the meantime the cost of the scheme would be tremendous."

TOLEDO MANIAC ATTACKS WOMEN

Mysterious Man Has Clubbed Ten in Ten Days—Two Dying.

SEARCHING CITY.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 23.—This city began a determined search Saturday for a crazed man who has struck down ten women in the last ten days, two of whom died from fractured skulls. Police, firemen, citizens and special officers have failed to find a single clue that would lead to find a single clue that would lead to the identification of the terrorist. He appears in widely separated parts of the city, carrying a huge club with which he crushes the heads of his victims.

Saturday 1,000 members of the American Legion are helping police comb the city for "a beastlike man, more than six feet tall, of dark hue, with long woolly hair, protruding front teeth, fiery eyes and almost superhuman strength." This identification was given the police by several of his victims who obtained glimpses of his face as he fled after making attacks.

While the city was engaged in the man hunt Saturday night, two more women were attacked. Miss Lorine Braun, 18, was hit over the head in the front yard of her home. She was unconscious when found and was rushed the hospital in a serious condition.

Soon afterward the maniac clubbed another woman, who has not been identified. She also is in a serious condition.

The two victims Saturday night brought the maniac's list to ten.

Officials are endeavoring to suppress the reports of the fiend's activities to quiet the alarm that has spread through the city. Chief of police Harry Jennings on Saturday afternoon denied that two women had been attacked Friday night. They declared that one of the women had been a victim of a delusion while the other had since denied that she had been attacked. But two dead and six seriously injured women provide plenty of proof that a murderous maniac is at large.

NEW CRISIS IN TACNA-ARICA

Chilean Boundary Dispute Involves Demand for Election Law.

SCOPE OF AWARD.

ARICA, Chile, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press.)— Another crisis has been reached in the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary situation. The Chileans assert that it is impossible for them to proceed in the work of the commission until an election law is approved, and emphatically declare their intention to abstain until their demand is met.

Augustin Edwards, head of the Chilean delegation, on instructions from his government withdrew Saturday, from participation in the commission's work. He presented a note to General Pershing, head of the commission, phrased in vigorous terms, declaring that the government had instructed the delegates to abstain "from all proceedings of the commission or subsidiary bodies, unless the proceedings related strictly and directly to regulations and registration and voting which constitutes a fundamental precept of the award and the first duty of the commission itself."

In addition to their demand for an election law the Chileans contend that measures which the commission is approving are contrary not only to the Chilean interpretation of President Coolidge's award, but contrary to the Chilean constitution.

MANY STATEMENTS ABOUT RAILWAY PAY

Companies and Employees Differ About Amount Needed.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press). — Many interesting statements have been made during the sitting last week of the National Court of Enquiry in connection with the wages of railwaymen which railway workers regard as inadequate, while at the same time the railway companies are pressing for a reduction thereof.

On behalf of the railway companies it has been asserted that the wages have risen 153 per cent. since 1913, and that the receipts this year are anticipated at 4,000,000 pounds less than the receipts of last year.

It has been admitted by the companies that the wage bill dropped 55,000,000 pounds between 1921 and 1923, mainly through a sliding scale, according to the cost of living, but the companies have refused to accept the contention of J. H. Thomas, M.P., former Colonial Secretary, political secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, that the companies' proposed reduction of wages by four shillings a week would constitute a hardship to the worker earning only 48 shillings a week.

Harold (Red) Grange, the famous University of Illinois gridiron star, was born in a little village near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in 1903.

FOG FOR WEEK OVER BRITAIN

Days Dark as Night in Glasgow—Ships Held in Mersey.

TRAINS DELAYED.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—One of the worst fogs in recent years for six days has blanketed Southern Scotland and a large part of Central England. Glasgow might as well be in the Arctic circle, since for a week the sun has not shone there, and each day has been to all intents and purposes as dark as night.

The fog in Liverpool is the worst in thirty years, and has brought about a shipping hold-up unique in the history of the port. Over one hundred seagoing ships are imprisoned at the entrance to the Mersey. Every tide since the fog thickened on Wednesday has brought up scores of vessels, and no one knows just what vast amount of tonnage is now anchored inside the Mersey bar.

Excursionists and passengers for the Isle of Man, the Welsh coast and other places have been forced to spend nights on the sea which they had not planned to do. One boat, with 100 passengers, was out forty hours, but the passengers, who were able to reassure their friends in different parts of Great Britain by the ship's wireless, took the situation philosophically, although they suffered much discomfort.

Trains are delayed all over England, and in many cities affected by the fog the street car service has been practically suspended.

London has been expecting the fog every day for a week, its advent having been plentifully predicted by the meteorologists. Nervous people have been putting off journeys into the country in the expectation that they might have to spend a week there rather than the week-end.

At the time of writing, however, the sky is still clear, and some of those Londoners who were bewailing the coming of the great fog when they thought it inevitable, now feel slightly aggrieved that London is not holding up its reputation for the most fearsome brand of fog that the smoke of the city and nature have ever achieved.

UNKNOWN MOTORIST KILLED PEDESTRIAN

Police Suspect Auto Was Stolen—Failed to Get Number.

TORONTO, Nov. 23. (Canadian Press).—George Chapman, aged 55, was instantly killed shortly before midnight on Saturday when, in crossing a street, he was struck down by an unidentified motorist.

The touring car, said to have been travelling at a high speed, knocked him down and dragged him for a considerable distance along the pavement. Without diminishing speed it turned a corner and disappeared.

The number of the car was not obtained, but the police suspect it may have been a stolen auto, as there were several cars of that description reported missing.

Chapman, who was a married man, was born in England.

GRANDSON OF GREAT AUTHOR SUICIDES

PARIS, Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press).—A special delivery love letter in which his sweetheart promised reconciliation travelled more slowly than ordinary mail, and the delay in its delivery was responsible for the suicide of Richard Bret Harte, a grandson of the famous author, Bret Harte, his friends said after they had discovered his body in his gas-filled Montparnasse apartment.

Last Tuesday Harte quarrelled with a young English woman with whom he was in love, and she left him saying she would either send a special delivery letter within three hours or would never communicate with him again. The letter failed to arrive until noon the next day, and Harte's friends found it, unopened, pushed under his door when they entered the apartment Saturday.

Harte's body was found on a bed. All the jets of a gas stove were turned on. A letter was found, scrawled over many pages, the writing beginning firmly but becoming progressively illegible.

"To you, my love, this is my last letter, and am writing it as I die," the letter began. Finally it ended is a blot.

Harte was known to have been greatly depressed by his failure to emulate his grandfather's achievements. He was born in Philadelphia in 1889.

WHEN the late Sir Adam Beck founded Queen Alexandra Sanatorium he dedicated it to the relief and treatment of tuberculosis victims from all parts of the province.

To-day, Queen Alexandra Sanatorium is, as Sir Adam intended, a provincial institution. It ministers to white plague sufferers from every county and city in Ontario.

Sir Adam's last wish was that this splendid 314-bed hospital, with its magnificent record, should continue to care for tuberculosis victims after his death—should continue to send forth men and women radiant with new found health and happiness.

Now that Sir Adam is gone it rests with the good people of Ontario to help shoulder the burden he so cheerfully carried.

BORDEN DENIES DECEPTION IN ADOPTING CONSCRIPTION LAW

QUOTES SPEECHES.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 23 (Canadian Press)—Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister of Canada from 1911 to 1920, has replied to a letter from Sir Edward Kemp, former Minister of Militia, in which Sir Edward drew attention to the statement of Premier Taschereau, of Quebec province, that the people of that province were received in regard to conscription during the war. Premier Taschereau's statement was in reply to the speech of Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative opposition, made at Hamilton last Monday.

Sir Robert Borden's letter is as follows:

"My dear Sir Edward,—Your letter of the 19th instant is before me.

"It was suggested that I should make some answer to Mr. Taschereau's able statement ,but I have thought it best to refrain from newspaper controversy as I am not in active public life.

"On examining my speech at the short session of 1914 I do not find any statement or promise that there would be no conscription. At page 17 I said that our men were going as free men, by voluntary enlistment. This, however, was subsequent to Sir Wilfred Laurier's speech at the same session in which he declared that it would be the duty of Canada to assist the mother land to the utmost of Canada's ability (page 9). The same view was expressed throughout his speech.

"In replying to Sir Wilfred Laurier on the 17th January, 1916, I said (page 26) that 'I made it clear to the people of Canada that we did not proopse any conscription. I repeat that announcement today with emphasis.' That statement was made in view of two considerations, ((1) the condition of recruiting at that time was so excellent that there seemed no reason to expect the necessity of conscription, and (2) particularly for the reason that there was great fear of a wholesale exodus of American settlers from the western provinces under the apprehension of compulsory military service. War conditions at that time seemed to justify the statement; we believed that compulsory military service would not become necessary; and we had then no intention of invoking the principle of conscription which had been authorized by law for many years.

Conditions Changed

"However, by the end of 1916 conditions had so greatly altered that when the Trades and Labor Congress demanded an assurance that there would be no conscription I declined both orally and in writing. A copy of my letter is enclosed.

"We used every endeavour to prevent the necessity of compulsory military service. As you may remember the campaign in aid of national service which Mr. Bennett and I carried on during December, 1916, was undertaken for that purpose but failed to produce satisfactory results. The same was true of the proposals which you attempted to carry out in the winter of 1917. Thus, in the spring of that year, upon my return from Great Britain, I was faced with the alternative of compulsory military service or the practical abandonment of the Canadian Army Corps. Such an abandonment would have been a disgrace not only to us but to our country.

"As I have already said, conscription was authorized by law many years before 1914. I allude to a measure introduced and passed by the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1898, and which is now embodied in the Militia Act, chapter 41, revised statutes of Canada. This statute declared that all the male inhabitants of Canada between the ages of eighteen and sixty, not exempt or disqualified by law, should be liable to service in the militia; and that the Governor in Council might place the militia on active service anywhere in Canada and also beyond Canada for the defence thereof.

"I understand that in 1904 the Department of Justice advised that under this legislation the government, without further enactment, had power to send troops out of Canada in time of war.

Military Service Act

"The military Service Act of 1917 was less onerous than the law previously in force, as it extended exemptions, reduced the age limit from sixty to forty-five and introduced the principle of selection. Tribunals were established that could deal with each particular case upon principles of justice and convenience rather than upon strict legal liability. Thus the act of 1917 did not create conscription, but rather created exemptions and introduced a new principle under which they should be determined.

"If the support of conscription was a crime many criminals have been promoted and appointed to high offices by the present government during the past four years. Perhaps Mr. Taschereau has not carefully examined the record, otherwise we should have heard his denunciation.

"Faithfully yours,

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore is in a quandary. She doesn't know whether to bob or not to bob. The question is momentous, for the state of her hair when she appears at Aunt Celimena's that night is to be a sign whether she shall marry Bingham Carrington or Saltonstall Cabot Adams. She must announce her engagement before midnight on the last day of June or sacrifice her aunt's estate, to which otherwise she will fall heir. The time is growing uncomfortably short.

The fun began at once. They were a noisy young lot, there was racing and chasing o'er Canobie Lee, there was guying and flirting and petting, and all the modern substitutes for Shakespeare and the musical glasses.

Late that evening she had two sessions, one with each of her chosen knights.

Bing was first. They walked down the paths to the rambler arbor and sat there, while he pleaded his cause with real eloquence. He was a perfect courtier, and his manners were more than perfect. He could rise at the appearance of a lady, without looking as if he had just heard the first notes of "The Star Spangled Banner." He could hold her cape for her without the effect of hanging out the Monday wash. He was intensely modern, up to date, and a little beyond.

"Of course, you'll marry me, my Cayenne Fairy Queen," he exulted. "We are each other's own, twin halves of a perfect soul made one, and all that. You never could stand that hatchet-faced, beetle-browed, lantern-jawed, gimlet-eyed old Pil—grim Puritan of a Salt Adams. You know you couldn't. And I want you to have your hair bobbed tomorrow, and tomorrow night at the dance we'll tell all and sundry our precious secret. How about it, my honey-blossom off of a peach tree?"

"I'll see, Bing. I don't know—really I don't yet. But I'll decide tomorrow, of course, and I'll—I'll let you know."

"Good! If you decide against me, don't bother to forward the information. But you won't—you can't. Oh, my little Connemara, nobody could love you as I will—as I do. Star of my soul——"

"I know, Bing—I know. But run now, Saltonstall is coming here. If I decide on you, I'll have my hair bobbed tomorrow, and if I take him, I won't. So you'll know."

Carrington went reluctantly, and Adams came to the arbor, where Connemara had promised him an interview.

It was a stormy one. Salt had a temper equal to Connemara's own, and the two struck sparks.

"I shan't make love to you," he declared, "until you say you will marry me. Why should I waste kisses on a girl who may be another's wife? But Connemara, don't, I beg of you, don't make the mistake of accepting Bing Carrington. He's a fortune hunter, a wastrel, a spendthrift. He cares only for the silly, bobbed-haired flapper sort. He'd make you one of that ilk, and it is not your metier! Come to me, Fairy darling, we will have pleasures of the intellect, of the mind, of the soul, such as that village cut up can't even understand! I will love you with a devotion, an idolatry, all the deeper and finer and sweeter because of our mental development, our psychic——"

"Cut it out, Connemara!" called Poppy Glenn's shrill voice as she and Dicky Bird intruded themselves upon the scene.

Others followed, and before them all Cayenne Fairy gave her ultimatum.

"I'll decide this matter myself," she said, as they all flung advice at her at once. "Tomorrow, I'll run down to New York, and back, in time for dinner. If I get my hair bobbed while I'm there, it's 'cause I mean to marry Bing. If I come back with my hair as is, it's a sure sign Salt is the man."

Cheers greeted this speech, and there was a sound of revelry by night that dismissed for the time being the subject under discussion.

The next afternoon Connemara went to New York. The whole crowd went along, but she went alone into the hairdresser's parlors.

Her going did not necessarily mean a bob: she was as undecided as ever when she advanced to the desk to keep her appointment.

She had arranged by telephone that she was to have the time, and if she concluded at the last minute not to have her hair bobbed, she would pay for the time and keep her locks intact.

The lady at the desk smiled and waved her to an appointed cubicle, where pretty bobbed-haired girls let down her auburn mass and brushed it out.

Then the man with the shears came in. Connemara had a vivid remembrance of the picture in "Struwelpeter" where the great shears open to cut off Conrad's thumbs.

"Wait a minute," she said convulsively, almost hysterically, as he drew the white apron closer about her neck.

As in a dream the visions whirred across her mind. Life with Bing, happy, debonair, good-natured: life with Salt, clever, deep thinker, distinguished.

Bing, aflame with Southern ardor of devotion. Salt, quivering with passionate idolatry. Bing, triumph of muscular perfection, victor of all outdoor sports; Salt, mentally great, full of imagination and creative genius. Oh, which should it be?

The shears hovered. In the mirror she saw the puzzled face of the barber as he wondered at her indecision.

She held her future poised on the clip of those shining blades. A word from her and the first clip would proclaim her irrevocably pledged to Bing Carrington. Or a mere protest would close those steel arbiters of Fate, and she would be the bride of the worthy scion of the Adams family.

Suddenly, like a flash, illumination came. Her inner soul spoke, the truth appeared to her—she knew!

When Connemara rejoined the crowd who waited for her, they stared at her radiant face. Eagerly they looked at her hair, but her small tight-fitting cloche of a hat was drawn down closely over her whole head, and no hint could be gained as to the state of Cayenne Fairy's hair.

Religious services were conducted in the Baptist Church, of which the deceased had all her years been an active and devoted member. The services were conducted by Rev. Edmund Forde, assisted by Rev. Hugh Shaw, a former pastor. The pall-bearers were: R. C. Weston, Garnet Lloyd, Edward, George and Frank Anderson, the latter three relatives of the deceased and George Mason.

ADDRESS TELLS ROME'S GLORIES

BY DEAN DE WITT.

MARMORA, Nov. 23—The fourth lecture of the University Extension Course at the Town Hall on Friday evening proved as attractive as the title suggested. Patrons of the lecture felt they were indeed favored in having Dean DeWitt's impressions of "The Seven Hills of Rome," and though his talk ended all too soon.

Chairman's duties were this time allotted to Rev. F. J. Howard and discharged most efficiently. After being introduced to the audience, Dean DeWitt gave an illustration to show how sixteen people could carry down by tradition to the present day, events of the time of Christ. Having dealt with the founding of the Roman Empire, the lecturer observed that the Romans were in touch with the knowledge of Solomon. They knew about the seven planets which included five stars with the sun and moon and these they took as symbols of eternity. Rome was not literally the City of Seven Hills. It was the Eternal City because of its veneration for the seven planets. The number seven always denotes something sacred. Thus are the seven angels and seven churches mentioned by number to denote sacredness. There are the seven mouths of the Nile and of the Ganges which do not constitute the full number in each case. Dean DeWitt took occasion to indulge in various pleasantries throughout the lecture. After mentioning that the people in Greece were too polite to tell the truth sometimes, he went on to remark, "The farther you get away from America, the harder it is to get the truth from people and the harder it is to get a bath."

"A camera cannot lie. Sometimes it is too truthful." He would correct certain wrong ideas about the Romans; one was that they were dishonest. One dishonest man is more talked about than a thousand honest people. "The Romans were the honest people of antiquity," he said, "or they could not have founded an Empire to last 800 years.

Roman bridges were built by honest contractors and so they have lasted the centuries." Having shown richly colored views of the city and its renowned structures (many reproduced from engravings), Dean DeWitt mentioned that whilst Rome was an old city, it was growing as rapidly as Toronto, and has a large number of modern residences. The Romans built of sun-dried brick before the Caesars came. The latter found Rome brick and left it marble. The tomb of the first Roman Emperor is now converted into a moving picture show after lasting 2,000 years. The pictures displayed here and elsewhere in Italy are not what we would consider as being of the best type. The Italians do not like the American shows with the long kiss and the living happy ever afterwards.

They prefer the tragic with plenty of shooting and exhibitions of jealousy. The lecturer instanced a show he had witnessed, wherein all the characters were disposed of, except the countess over whom the rest were jealous, and the movie picture operator. A thoroughly enjoyable lecture ended with references to the poet Byron, who a century ago devoted so much time in bringing out the fame of Italy. Mr. F. S. Pearce proposed and Mr. J. Collins seconded a vote of thanks to Dean DeWitt. The attendance at this lecture proved to be the best so far this season. Miss Marion Shannon again most kindly played pianoforte selections. The next lecture is to be given on December 4 by Miss Savid of Toronto. Her subject which will be illustrated will be "A Trip to the West Indies."

Old Mr. Carter Helped By Simple Mixture

"After taking Adlerika I feel better than for years. At my age (60) it is ideal—so different from other medicines." (signed). W. W. Carter. Adlerika is a simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., which removes GAS in ten minutes and often brings surprising relief to the stomach. Stops that full, bloated feeling. Brings out old waste matter you never thought was in your system. Excellent for chronic constipation.

MOTOR ACCIDENT ON BEWDLEY ROAD

Motorist, Blinded By Headlights, Struck Woman on Road.

Three autos figured in a peculiar accident last night in which Mrs. T. C. Elliott sustained a broken leg. Chief Newhall, who chanced to be on the highway at the same time, brought her in his car to the city where immediate attention was given the injury. Bert McCarrol, Park Street, was proceeding towards the city yesterday about 5.30 p.m. and when at a point nead Bewdley he noticed that another car was halted at the roadside. A third car faced him with headlights turned on and because of the glare he failed to see Mrs. Elliott standing in the road between the two cars. As a result, his car ran into her and knocked her down. The police did not know this morning the owner of the car with the glaring headlights.

CAMPBELLFORD CHURCHES

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 23.—In the Baptist Church Sunday evening, Rev. Edmund D. Forde spoke on another theme, "If Christ Came to Campbellford," what would He do and what would you do?" suggested by a resident of the town.

First of all, Mr. Forde said, Christ would condemn hypocrisy just as He did when, by a word of reproof, he dispersed the mob that had gathered to stone to death the woman taken in sin. Of all that crowd not one remained to cast a stone because they, themselves, were not guiltless.

Christ, if He came to Campbellford, would be absolutely truthful just as He was when on earth before. He condemned at that time hypocrisy in the religious leaders of the times in scathing terms that no human minister would dare to use, denouncing them as a nest of snakes. He would use plain Anglo-Saxon language, and, if the necessity arose, would not call a man a prevaricator but a liar.

Christ would enter into the joys and sorrows of the people if He came to Campbellford. When He was here in the flesh children loved Him. It is on record that He wept, but a religious writer has called attention to the fact that nowhere is it told that He ever laughed. If He came to Campbellford He would comfort the sorrowing, speak peace to the discouraged and would trustthose who trust Him.

What Would You Do?

Dealing with the other question contained in his subject, Mr. Forde said that if Christ appeared here He would be received by the people just as He was 2,000 years ago. Some loved Him, while others hated and finally put Him to death. Some would declare that they were ready to die for Him, while their lives show that they are not living for Him. Every sincere Christian would be glad to see Him and would show gratitude for His salvation. The blasphemer and the man living a life of dishonesty would do as such men and when the Saviour was in the flesh before. If people do not serve Christ now they have no proof that they would do so if He came again.

Is Here Now.

But Christ is in Campbellford to-night in the spirit, just as He is everywhere. And He is coming back, but not as He did before, taking on our nature. Like a flash of lightning that traverses the sky from east to west, He will come. Why ask ourselves what we would do if He appeared in the flesh when in the spirit He is with us always?

At St. Andrew's.

The morning service at St. Andrew's was in the nature of a memorial for the Queen Mother. Rev. James Grier, the pastor, preaching a special sermon on immortality. The Royal Family, so recently bereaved, were not left comfortless. They were sustained by the hope of a world beyond this, that the life to come is an expansion of the present existence, and that work begun here will be completed there.

A funeral hymn, "Jerusalem the Golden," was sung, and just before the conclusion of the service the congregation and choir joined in singing the National Anthem, then remained standing while the organist, William Pearson, played The Dead March in Saul."

At St. John's.

At St. John's United Church, Rev. Wesley Elliott offered special prayer for the Royal mourners, and morning and evening Chopin's Funeral March was played by Organist R. T. Cowell.

HOME MADE RADIO HAS SENDING RECORD

British Columbia Amateur Communicated With Australia in Daytime.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—Clair Foster, operating a small home-made radio transmitting station at Port Alberni, British Columbia, established a new world's record, according to information received here today, when he communicated across the Pacific and over 1,000 miles of Australia, while more than a quarter of the distance was in daylight.

It is well known in radio circles that daylight transmission is very much more difficult than night and that sending over the sunset or sunrise line offers still greater obstacles to the travel of radio waves.

The most remarkable feature of Mr. Foster's record, however, is the extremely small power used by his transmitter. Instead of a transmitting vacuum tube, he used an ordinary receiving tube, power with heavy duty "B" batteries intended for reception purposes. The total power required by the Foster transmitter in establishing this trans-Pacific record was only 13 watts, a fraction of the power used by the ordinary electric light bulb. Electric flatirons, for instance, usually use about 250 watts.

Radio experts, in discussing this record, ascribe the efficiency of Foster's transmitter to the steady unwavering signals which it emits. The usual amateur transmitter draws its power from alternating current mains causing a hum which detracts from the steadiness of signals. By using batteries, Foster has eliminated this difficulty.

In olden times the seventh day and the seventh year were regarded as being the most fortunate and perfect days and years.

MISSIONARY NIGHT OF MARMORA Y.P.L.

"Heathen Religions" Was Topic Taken by Speaker—Confirmation Service.

MARMORA, Nov. 23. — The Young People's League was again well attended on Wednesday evening. It being Missionary night, Mr. G. B. Airhart took for the topic "Heathen Religions." Mrs. M. Loveless gave a reading on the life of Dr. Menzies, who was a missionary in Honan, China, for many years. The meeting closed with a very interesting coptest.

Successful Dance.

The young men of St. Paul's put on a very successful dance at the Town Hall on Wednesday evening. There was both kinds of dancing, with Mr. Charles Jones as floor manager.

Four Confirmed.

In the presence of a small congregation at St. Paul's Church on Tuesday evening, Nov. 17, four adults received the Apostolic rite of Confirmation at the hands of the Right Rev. E. J. Bidwell, D.D., Lord Bishop of Ontario. The Bishop was attended by the Rev. G. O. Davies, BA, of Rawdon, as chaplain.

Ascending the pulpit, the Bishop gave a very simple and affecting address from 2 Tim. 1-6. First, the Bishop stressed the value of a Christian home. He then went on to show how Paul attached the gift of God to his action. Timothy had twice received the laying on of hands by Paul. The gift in confirmation was not repeated in ordination. It was of the same kind but differing in degree. "How is it," the Bishop asked, "that the gift of God is allowed to come from the outward act of men? It is because we are so constituted that we can better understand what we can see than what is called abstract cases. Our Lord was never afraid of external ceremony."

Bishop Bidwell further remarked how that after baptism in the Early Church, there was always the laying on of hands. He also urged all to keep Christ's Spirit alive in their hearts. "St. Paul bade us not to quench that Spirit," he continued. He concluded his address by mentioning prayer, Bible reading, and Holy Communion as the three ways in which the gift within the confirmed person might be stirred up.

The offertory was devoted to the missionary apportionment for the parish.

About one-quarter of the total membership of German trades unions are women, and in several trades their number is very considerable, the largest percentage of women being found among the textile workers.

This new way works wonders on cloudy teeth

Modern science, by perfecting a new way of combating the stubborn film that covers teeth and imperils healthy gums, now opens the road to whiter teeth, safely.

THAT cloudy teeth, yellowish, discolored teeth can be made whiter and toneless gums firmed is now an accepted fact. Foremost dentists of the world are widely urging this new method. You can have clean, pretty teeth and firm gums if you will start today.

This is accomplished by combating a viscous film that covers teeth. A stubborn, hard to remove film that old type dentifrices do not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel this film. Under it are the clear, attractive teeth you envy in others. Combat it, and your teeth become many shades whiter—more glistening. This offers you a 10-day test free. Mail the coupon.

The enemy of teeth and gums

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums; a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth and gum troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the common cause of pyorrhea. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

Ask your druggist or mail the coupon for Pepsodent. Don't expect the same results from old-time dentifrices. Begin beautifying your teeth today.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

PEGGY SEES A NEW KIND OF DOLLY IN SWEDEN.

"Oh, dear," Peggy sighed as she looked at her old dolly, in its torn, shabby clothes. "I wish I had a new dolly."

"Pshaw!" laughed a merry voice and a wee little elfin head popped up beside her.

"Well, of all things, Gocomeback!" cried Peggy. "Where in the world are you going anyway?"

"Hardly know, Honey," laughed Gocomeback. "Just heard you complaining and stopped to see what was the trouble."

"I was just wishing I had a new dolly," replied Peggy. "I get so tired of this old doll."

"Why don't you change her some?" asked the elfin. "Like—but come along and see for yourself. I was just thinking about calling on a little friend of mine in Sweden. Come along." And before Peggy knew it she and her dolly were whisked through the air.

They sailed over mountains and seas until they came to a strange land.

"Here we are, in Sweden," said Gocomeback and he rapped at a pretty little happy faced girl came dancing out and bowed very politely to Peggy and Gocomeback.

"Oh, what a pretty dolly," she cried, taking Peggy's old dolly in her arms. "Your dollies are not like mine. Come in and I'll show you my dolly," and she led Peggy and Gocomeback into the house.

She ran for her dolly and gave it to Peggy.

At first Peggy could hardly say whether she liked it or not, it was dressed in such a queer fashion.

Its straggly yellow hair peeked out from under a bright red satin cap, with yellow and blue flowers embroidered on it. She had on a full white waist, a vest of scarlet, buttoned together in front with gold buttons, made of red and black striped silk. Over this was a bluish-green cloth jacket all embroidered in gay colors.

Its skirt was quite full, made of black cloth with a scarlet hem. Over this was a dark blue apron with red strings. These strings ran around in front and on the apron was a little white pocket. It had on black shoes and white stockings.

"I like your dolly better than mine," laughed the little Swedish girl. "You can dress her so prettily. All dolls of Sweden are dressed like mine. But I should love one like yours."

"I like your dolly, too," said Peggy handing back the strange dolly and hugging her own dolly to her breast. "But I like my dolly best. Maybe some day I'll send you an American dolly," and bidding the little Swedish girl goodby, she and Gocomeback hurried back to America.

That was the last time Peggy ever complained about her dolly.

"Alla bird, shesa gonna south, eh? No lika da winter." This from Tony, the shoe shine boss, as he leaned against the cabinet full of shoe laces and directed hat cleaning and shoe shining operations in the narrow strip of Italy known as Tony's Place.

It is hard to find a more happy smile, or a prettier one, than the smile of a son of Italy. They say Tony can frown blacker than the King of Spades, but I should worry, I never saw him do it.

"Plenty shoe shine, no mucha bird. I no see now. Shesa go maka gooda pie in Italia."

"Well, Tony," said I, "I'll be a sport; I'll show you some birds today, or you shine my shoes free for a week."

Tony couldn't get his things on fast enough. We went away out into the country, and on the way, I told Tony that I do not think much of the Italians who come over here and try to continue killing birds for pie. I cannot risk making comedy out of Tony's explanation, by quoting him word for word. You would laugh. So I will just say that Tony explained that in Sunny Italy, most of the singing is done by the human folks and the men particularly outshine the birds in singing and, therefore, do not appreciate their feathered rivals; whereas, in America, if we did not have birds to sing to us, we would not hear much song. I certainly believe this same Tony should be in the diplomatic service.

Well, we saw no birds for so long that Tony thought he had me beaten, but soon we drove into a field and left the auto.

We had not gone far in the wood, when we came upon a stream and, though it was gently snowing, it was mild and the stream was open. Tony had no rubbers, and just as he was complaining that I would have to shine his shoes, out wheeled a kingfisher from almost where we stood, out above the stream and following its course.

The ridicule implied in the coarse laugh of the bird, as it flew away, made Tony grin like a basket of chips. The kingfisher only leaves when the waters freeze and he no longer can fish.

"I lose!" said Tony, "I shine my shoes and yours, too."

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A few days ago I read about a man in Switzerland, given up in his youth to die with tuberculosis, who lived to celebrate his 100th birthday. By a special diet and mode of living he continued at work and outlived all his immediate relatives.

I am not surprised at this. Hardly one of us escapes more or less serious infection with the germs of tuberculosis. I have told you before about an Italian anatomist who examined 700 bodies and found evidence of active or healed tuberculosis in 697 of them. All but three had the disease at time of death or had had it at some time during their lives.

The germs of tuberculosis are everywhere. We cannot escape contact with them. We always have had such contact, and so have our fathers and mothers and our grandparents. Our children and our children's children will have the same experience.

If we come in contact with the germs of the dread disease, why do we not contract it?

Because we possess something which for want of a better name we call our 'power of resistance.' There is some agent or force in the body which renders the germs of tuberculosis harmless. So long as that power continues to operate we cannot be hurt by tuberculosis, or any other of the so-called "catching diseases" the contagious or infectious diseases.

The scientific name for this power of the body is "immunity."

There is a natural immunity; there is an acquired immunity. That is, some of us have always been immune, perhaps because our parents transmitted to us their resistance to disease. This is natural immunity.

Or we may acquire immunity by having the disease in such mild form as to be unrecognizable. We may be vaccinated or inoculated and thus be given an artificial immunity.

There is a familiar procedure, called the "Schick test," which determines whether or not you can have diphtheria. It is interesting to observe that only a limited number of persons comparatively can take that terrible disease. That is because most persons have an immunity to it.

It is the same with reference to tuberculosis. Few adults are liable to contract it because most everybody has a natural or acquired immunity to tuberculosis.

By right living and right eating you may build up your vital forces so that disease will pass you by. If you will study your symptoms and your real ailments, you will find that almost without exception you can trace your trouble to something you did or left undone. In short, it is your own fault that you got sick.

When everybody fully realizes that illness is due to a fault, then we will be ashamed of our ailments. We won't brag about them one bit—we will hide them from public knowledge.

I'm glad our friend in Switzerland had the will power to govern his life correctly. Not only did he defeat tuberculosis, but he did it so well he defied all other ailments. Let us do likewise.

TWO YOUTHS LOOT ST. LOUIS OFFICES

Overpower Watchman and Blow Four Safes, Securing About $150,000.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—The authorities are searching for two youths, who early yesterday robbed four offices in the Victoria Building here and escaped with loot valued by the police at $150,000. Both men were unmasked and heavily armed.

Entering the building shortly before daybreak, the yeggs overpowered the night watchman, blew open a safe in each of the four offices and made off with gems, Liberty bonds, and all available cash. No traces of them have been found.

Stainless steel is the invention of a Sheffield worker, who got on the track of it while studying the effect of explosions on gun barrels.

Indigestion

In most cases, indigestion results from torpid liver and sluggish bowel action. Tablets for the stomach and aids to digestion fail in this chronic form of indigestion. You must get the filtering and excretory organs right before you can expect permanent relief and this is best accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Chronic indigestion is a very common condition. On this account many suffer for years not realizing that relief is at hand in the form of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Headaches, biliousness, spells of constipation and diarrhoea are among the accompanying ailments.

What a relief it would be to be free of this condition which makes one feel so miserable and it is so easy by using this well-known regulator of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24.

According to this day's lunar and mutual figures the business affairs may be prosperous and attain to steady growth, on the removal of a long-thwarting obstacle, provided that the disposition to make an abrupt and radical change be postponed. Change, travel and removal are beset with difficulties and might be productive of but little benefit. In those matters pertaining to domestic happiness and social pleasures, the forecast is excellent. But it might be well to be discreet in writing letters.

Those whose birthday it is have the presage of a good year in business, with substantial growth and advancement, provided they do not attempt radical change. Personal affairs should be prosperous and happy. A child born on this day should be clever and industrious but may be fond of change. It should succeed if it decides to concentrate its forces on a settled business or employment.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

"The Inheritance of our Fathers," (1st Kings 21:3), and "Scarlet Sins Forgiven," (Isaiah 1:18), were the morning and evening subjects respectively, yesterday, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, with Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, the preacher of the day.

In the morning Mr. Thomson dealt in his sermon with Ahab's covetousness for Naboth's vineyard, pointing out the similarity of spirit in those days with that of the present time, both in public and church life. The vineyard of Naboth was his inheritance, handed down through the generations, and no amount of money or persuasion could make him part with it. The threat of death could not deprive him of his birthright.

When land by Jewish law was purchased, after 50 years it reverted to the original owner, showing the sacred idea of ownership.

Let us not forget our birthright and inheritance—the Sabbath day and our Church; and let us hand that inheritance to those who follow us. And let us hold to our religious principles and convictions, whatever others may think. It is not sentiment. We wish other churches God-speed, not to ridicule their ideas and principles. God gave His Son, a priceless inheritance—let us follow and take Him as Ours. Let us be Naboths for our Lord and His church, not willing to give them up.

At what cost did we receive this inheritance of our Church to-day? Let us think back to the 28th Feb., 1638, when in Greyfriars' churchyard, Edinburgh, those staunch Christians, after prayer by Alexander Henderson, and led by Earl of Sutherland, signed the Covenant on the tombstones, with their own blood,—ordinary ink was barred, due to the sacred nature of the documents. And for 60 years Scotland fought valiantly to hold their religious freedom, which we now enjoy to-day, and for which we have given our voice so recently.

Great is this inheritance—let us hold fast to our principles in God and His righteousness.'

The evening sermon by Mr. Thomson was interesting and inspiring, picturing the backsliding children of Israel. The text words are as a star of hope to all to come on the invitation of our Lord, and do so at once, ere we put off too long giving ourselves to Him. Thus can we feel the blessedness of sins forgiven, no matter how crimson-dyed they may be. He can cleanse(no matter how sinful we are, concluded Mr. Thomson.

After morning and evening services M. B. Chenhall, the organist, played the Dead March from "Saul," the large congregation upstanding, out of respect to the late beloved Dowager-Queen Alexandra. The music of the day was also appropriate.

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

Owing to the illness of the pastor, Rev. N. R. McLeod, the service at Park Street Baptist Church last night was taken by Messrs. W. W. Richman and A. S. Zavitz, of Murray Street Baptist Church, Mr. Zavitz taking the sermon.

"But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord," being the eighteenth verse of the third chapter of the second epistle to the Corinthians, was the text chosen by Mr. Zavitz. He said that Paul had been speaking of the Jews, who were not ready to believe the fact that Jesus was the Christ, and were as if they had veils over their faces, instead of being with open faces as were the Christian Corinthians, and he was contrasting the conditions of the two.

The speaker explained the change to the same image by quoting from Proverbs, chapter 23, verse 7: "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he." He said that people grew to be in character like their thoughts and their companions. He said that the Spirit was always trying to pull people up into greater glory, but some people pulled the other way while some gave Him a helping hand by trying to raise themselves.

GEORGE STREET UNITED CHURCH.

Rev. J. E. Todd took as his morning subject "The Challenge To Our Church," and said that there were some things we could not do as Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists but now that we are an United Church anything is possible to us—the challenge is with us. By virtue of the union that has been consummated we find ourselves in a new position and it is absolutely unparalleled in the history of the Church. As a United Church, he said, we should adopt the words of Paul as our slogan: "This one thing I do." The United Church of Canada is asking for $1,000,000 for their budget to be expended as follows: Home and Foreign Missions and Social Service $2,799,111, Education and Colleges $274,720, Young People's Work $75,600, Point Aux Trembles School $25,000, Benevolent Funds $325,983, Union Conference and Assembly Funds $160,694, Emergency and Church Union Expense Funds $326,692. He stated that the old way was to have different committees call on the people on behalf of the different organizations but the new way is to have one budget covering them all in one canvass. He stated that the amount allotted to George Street Church was $6,000. It had been estimated on their previous givings and was not in excess of what had been donated under the old system. Wherever you have human interest there the power of God has a right to have a hold and if we allow God to have his way with us, all these other things will attend to themselves. As a tribute to the late Queen Mother Alexandra the congregation remained standing while the organist rendered the "Dead March."

GEORGE STREET.

Reverend J. E. Todd preached to a large congregation at George Street Sunday evening on the subject, "The Worst Sin." The reading lesson was from St. John's Gospel, 16 chapter, and the speaker took his text from the same chapter, 8 and 9th verse—"And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness and of judgment. Of sin, because they believe not in me."

The speaker said that people tell him the preachers of the present day do not speak as much about sin as in days gone by. As a lad his preacher, he remembered, would thunder forth in great denunciation on the dire punishments to follow sin. But today the preachers do not speak so often upon this subject and the speaker said that many people give as the reason, "that the ministers are afraid. Mr. Todd here promised his congregation that they would find out during the course of years if he were a coward and afraid to speak upon this subject of sin.

The speaker said it was true the question of sin seems taboo on the lips of men today. "Is sin as great a fact in the world today? Are there as many sinners? Are men as great sinners?"

Mr. Todd said that from an evolutionary stand-point there was a time when man did know enough to sin. "The tiger feels no pang of sin after devouring his defenceless pig." The speaker continued by saying that our forefathers didn't have as great a sense of sin as we. "In the slave trade, good religious slave-owners praised God on the beach for the safe arrival of another cargo of slaves. At the country 'bees' there was always the barrel and each felt the 'bee' was a failure if he didn't go home hilariously drunk, but on the very next Sunday, the same man would take his place in the church as one of its staunchest pillars. In the economic view, too, man used to grind down another without one twinge of sin.

"To-day there is more light. Where there was no light there were no shadows; all was darkness. But in light the shadows are formed sharp and distinct. In the same way the thought of sin is striking as in a far stronger way than our father's.

"Our conception of sin bears mightily upon our conception of God," said the speaker. "The one bears definite relationship to the other."

The preacher answered his own question of "Why don't we hear more about sin?" by explaining that if a man wants to forget something that disturbs him the mere task of trying to forget it will make it be continually in his mind. "If you want to forget some base, unworthy thing, fill your mind with some high, moral, worthy thing." The speaker pointed out the Master's life as the standard. "The only class He utterly denunciated was that class which pretend they are something they are not. To the person down in the gutter and he knew it. He extended nothing by the kindest and tenderest hope."

An illustration given by the speaker was that of a man living in polar regions who fed eagerly on dried fruit because that was all he had. But when someone should offer him fresh luscious fruit, he would throw down with disdain his dried fruit. So when the Master came, these men throw off the old shackles of old life and reached eagerly for the freedom of the new.

The speaker said that Robert Louis Stevenson wrote words to this effect—"The older I grow, the more I feel the great outstanding sin of humanity is the sin of omission." Mr. Todd explained that any man who had read Stevenson knew he had a great sense of spiritual values.

"We have omitted to fill our mind with a program of high endeavour hence sin." The parable of the man who cleared his house of seven devils, and went away rejoicing, but because he had left it empty on his return he found it filled with seven worse devils, said the speaker, explains this point dramatically. "Not to do a thing because it is wrong is a negative way of living. You don't do it because you have something bigger, something loftier, to do in life than a zero mark of dissipation."

Sin enters when a man has failed to fill his life with a high attitude and purpose said the speaker. Sometimes we find a man who has failed to measure up to an opportunity and this is pointed out in the parable of the talents, and the rich, young ruler, he continued. "Judgment because 'as ye have not done it unto the least of these ye have not done it unto me'."

Coming close home the speaker said that to those respectable citizens of Peterborough, who to whom life was not spelling its all, yet who were not living an ungodly life, he could speak with conviction, because of his own experience. "You have not filled your life with a high purpose, a high resolve."

Before launching out into a course of action, said the speaker, "Ask if it is worth while." The challenge to us is to leave the world a little better at the close of each day than it was at the beginning.

The music at the service was its usual high order. Miss Murray sang in her strong natural voice two solos: "Behold the Master Passes By," by Hammond, and a Gospel Hymn, "Trusting, Waiting, Watching," by Tourner. The choir anthem was "I Love Thy Night's, Lord," by Fletcher. Mr. Renwick played as an interlude, "Berceuse" from "Joceyln" by Godard.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

A most impressive service was held at St. Andrew's Church on Sunday morning, when five elders were installed. The new elders, J. Wells Fraser, Bert Lockington, James McDonald, Dr. Moir and T. D. Young. The pastor, Rev. J. N. Gordon was in charge, and the sermon was mainly directed to impressing on the congregation and elders alike the sacredness of the office—its honorable and ancient history and the high duties pertaining to it.

The ritual of installation was an ancient Scottish form, in which session, congregation and minister participates, according to the custom of the Presbyterian church for centuries. A very large congregation was present. The choir sang unaccompanied in a very beautiful inspiring and worshipful spirit: "God is a Spirit," by Sterndale Bennett.

St. Andrew's men meet tonight at 8 o'clock to organize for their every member canvas a full and emphatic announcement regarding the campaign was made by the minister at the Sunday morning service.

ALL SAINTS' ANGLICAN.

Yesterday was the Sunday before Advent, and the text was taken from the epistle for the day. It was found in verses seven and eight of chapter 23 of the book of Jeremiah: The days shall come, saith the Lord, that they shall no more say, 'The Lord liveth, which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt'; but 'The Lord liveth which brought up, and which led, the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and from all countries whither I had driven them, and they shall dwell in their own land.'

The last Sunday in the Church's year is appointed for a day of retrospect, said the Rector, Rev. J. Douglas Paterson. He told of the conditions which existed in Israel when Jeremiah made this prophecy. The nation was on the decline. Time after time the kings of surrounding countries had led armies into the land and had plundered the temple. In a few years the King of Assyria was to come and carry away all except the very old people. The people looked back on their days of greatness and said: "We had a God who led us out of Egypt." They did not think of Him as a God of the present. Jeremiah told them that he was always looking after them and that he should lead them back into their own land again.

It is the same to-day, said the preacher. People live in the past and think of the great things which God did many years ago, instead of thinking of the blessings he has given them in the past few months. Many people give testimonies of God's goodness to them, but it is always the same thing. They do not when they testify again tell of the things done for them within the past few days, but of one thing He had done for them at some remote date.

After the sermon Mr. Paterson made reference to the death of Queen Alexandra, and spoke of the great influence she had had in the life of the nation and of the love with which she was regarded. The hymn, "Hush! blessed are the dead," was sung.

ST. JOHN'S ANGLICAN.

The morning service at St. John's was of a special character, as a memorial to the Queen Mother Alexandra, whose death occurred on Friday. Representatives of the Sons of England were in attendance and the musical arrangement under the direction of Frederick J. Mann, organist and choir leader, was particularly adapted for the occasion. The Rev. R. C. Blagrave, vicar took as the subject of his discourse the humanity and democracy of the rulers of the British Empire as exemplified by the life and fine qualities of the late dowager queen.

Following the singing of the Queen Mother's favorite hymn, "Nearer My God To Thee," Dr. Blagrave presented his tribute to her memory.

"It was with a distinct sense of shock," he said, "that the news telling of the death of the beloved Queen Mother was received in all parts of the British Empire and indeed by many other people who do not belong to the empire. There followed a feeling of loss, of some indefinable part removed from the scheme of things. It is consoling to remember, however, that her passing was an easy one and that the period of suffering was brief. Those who, when they come to her time of life should wish for nothing better in the manner of departing out of the midst of this world's cares. Thus, while we appreciate a sense of loss, we are yet thankful for the manner in which it came about."

The Church of England, he said, has always had a particular interest in the welfare of the Royal Family and during the years of Alexandra's queenship there was incorporated in the Prayer Book an intercession in her behalf. Because of the surpassing beauty of that excerpt it will be with a feeling of regret that her death will necessitate its omission.

Dr. Blagrave, in a few words, recalled the high lights in the life of the royal dowager. Born in the family of a king, Christian IX. of Denmark, Alexandra came to England in 1813 as the wife of Edward—then Prince of Wales. She came to England as a queen of beauty, grace and charm and in a very short time won the confidence of her people. On December 1 she would have attained her 81st year. Everyone who came in contact with her admired her for the intensive spirit of humanity which seemed to characterize her being. At the time when her first born, Albert Victor, died, the sympathy of the nation was hers. The dowager queen, said the speaker, had ever exercised a beneficent influence and the grief occasioned by her death was because she was above all, a good woman, a devoted wife and a loving mother. No one will ever know nor will history ever record the modifying influence which she held over the virile Edward, known as the Peacemaker. Too, there was the influence over the children, caring for them and preparing them for careers of influence. She was ever devoted to public welfare and was interested in helping the poor, stricken and sorrowful, exercising her truly splendid gifts in the untiring service of humanity. Her memory, declared Dr. Blagrave, will be especially preserved in the schools and hospitals which constituted her particular sphere of devotion. God has preserved this royal family for some great purpose. While other kingdoms crumbled to the dust, and dynasties of the ages were discarded, yet the people of the British Empire have preserved their great devotion to the royal house. The farthest holdings of Britain are linked inseparably with the British crown in bonds of love and members of the Royal family are one of the greatest potential influences of the day. Kindness, humanity and sympathy are common characteristics of British royalty which have linked the people closely. There has ever been that dignity of humility since the time of Queen Victoria and previous to that time.

There has always been moderation in social life, a temperance in the usage of customs and dress which has tended to preserve a mean between the antiquated and the spirit of ultra-modernism. British royalty has always been noted for its wide democracy as the rulers have never lost touch with the people and their needs. They have become as democratic as the people to such an extent that they can also move about in safety and with assurance. All members of the family have been encouraged to work hard. They have been brought up to study and to realize that there is no royal road to accomplishment. Added to that and predominent in the lives of all members of the royal family is the spirit of devotion to religion and it is recognized as an essential factor in daily life. In all of these qualities the late Queen surpassed.

"To-day," concluded Dr. Blagrave, "we join with the empire in paying tribute to the memory of the Queen Mother and extend a large sympathy to the bereaved family. We also give thanks to God for her beauty, charm and excellence, thankfulness for the long service she has rendered. That in Paradise she might find a place for the further exercise of those qualities which set her apart during her mortal sojourn, May she rest in Peace."

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Special ceremonies took place yesterday at St. Peter's Cathedral, in connection with the second anniversary of the re-dedication of the church. At half past ten o'clock, a Solemn Pontifical Mass was offered by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, who spoke briefly at the conclusion of the service, reiterating his happiness at once more being with his people and speaking of the gratitude which should be returned to Almighty God for the graces and blessings received during the past year.

"It does not matter what we are doing in this world," said the Bishop, "as long as we are trying, in our own particular sphere and calling in life, to sanctify ourselves, to avoid sin and to try and do what is God's will for us here on earth. No matter what our worries and trials may be, if we are striving to do God's holy will and to please Him, then we are living the life of perfection, we will come to our end valiantly, and there will be no question of our eternal salvation."

Last evening, the special speaker for the anniversary was Rev. E. J. McCorkell, president of St. Michael's College, Toronto, who spoke from the text, "I will enter into the tabernacle. I will adore the place where His footsteps stood."

Father McCorkell spoke of Old Testament days, when the passing of God for a moment stamped the place as holy and sacred forever. The ark of the covenant was also a symbol of His more abiding presence. This ark reposed in a tent during the journeyings of the Children of Israel, but when Solomon built his magnificent temple, it became the centre of the Holy of Holies, into which only the great High priest was allowed to enter.

"But the temple of Solomon is gone forever. It was the glory of a dispensation that has passed away. On the day of the crucifixion, the veil of the Temple was rent from top to bottom as a sign that its dominion was at an end."

Father McCorkell went on to speak of the greater glory of the present dispensation, when the centre and heart of the church is the Blessed Sacrament. From the day when the first Mass is said in a church, God comes to dwell upon its altar and establishes His perfect claim to the devotion and love and reverence of His people who worship therein.

"No building has the same sacred significance to the Catholic as his church. Here he is baptized and confirmed, here he comes to receive the grace of absolution and to be married, and it is here that Mass is chanted over him before his burial. No other place is of the same importance, and when your last moments come, you will be glad of the visits you have made here, of the communions you have received at this altar, and of the sacrifices you have made to give God a welcome in your midst."

Spin Of Coin Gives Deer To Disappointed Hunters

The result of the spin of a coin was the determining factor in the question whether Lew Fowler and J. Millage, both of Smith Township, were to return from their hunting expedition in the northern areas of the county with trophies of the chase or with merely a series of hard luck stories.

Last Thursday, after numerous disappointments, they seriously debated with each other on the advisability of returning home empty handed. Like all good hunters, they were loath to admit defeat, and finally they "tossed for it." The result decided them on trying again. They dispensed with the services of their Indian guide and went out on their own. On the next day they were rewarded by a deer weighing 190 lbs., which fell to their guns, and on Saturday another deer was added to their bag.

LIGHTER P. C. I. TEAM OUTPLAYS COBOURG BOYS

Superior Knowledge of Game Won For Local Second Team.

BETTER IN LINE.

Cobourg Linemen Rarely Held Enough to Let Play Get Away.

The P.C.I. second team defeated Cobourg C. I. squad 9 to 6 at the Jas. Stevenson Park on Saturday afternoon. The P.C.I. youngsters were outweighed man-to-man by easily 25 pounds, but superior knowledge of the game made up for their size.

Cobourg made yards repeatedly on heavy smashing buck throughout the first half, but in the latter half P.C.I. were stopping the play before it got going. Cobourg relied principally on plays throughout the line, while P. C. I. played the more open and speedy game of extends and end runs. Cobourg with a little practice and coaching would have a team that would make many of the teams in the Interscholastic series step.

Westbrook made some long gallops for P.C.I. and when he once got away proved a hard man to overtake. Morrison gained repeatedly and was a strong man defensively. Grimmel, the diminutive quarter, handled his team well and was everywhere when when needed. Hope kicked well for P.C.I. and his tackling was also good.

Cobourgs pair of middles were the most consistent line gainers. Sleeman on the half line was a shifty footed runner, and made some nice openfield runs.

Line-ups:

Cobourg C. I.

Flying wing: Cool.
Halves: Butler, Sleeman and Blezard.
Quarter: Conlin.
Snap: Chilton.
Insides: Andrews and Lalonde.
Middle: Fries and Bendell.
Outsides: Laver and Murray.

Peterboro C. I.

Flying wings: Morrison and Hewitt.
Halves: Westbrook and Braund.
Quarter: Grimmel.
Snap: Mackey.
Insides: Thompson and Cowan.
Middles: Welborne and Tedford.
Outsides: Hope and Allin.
Subs.: Doughty, Robertson and Fowler.

COGNAWAGA CLUB REPEATED SUCCESS

Another Crowded House For St. James' Production.

The Caugnawaga Athletic Club of St. James' Church repeated on Friday night their amateur theatrical success, the three-act comedy, "The Tiger Earl or the Treasure Hunters." Another crowded hall enjoyed the clever and entertaining work of the club and their assistants. The character roles were again presented in a smooth, convincing manner by the following: Gordon Richardson as the Earl, and Arthur Vanest, Eva Spurway, Wm. Prest, Arthur Halliday, Jean Hamilton and Elmer McLaren. The specialties between acts were exceptionally good, including violin solos by Clifford Rusaw, cornet solos by Cecil Gallagher and seleetions by the Harmony Quartette composed of Messrs. H. Turner, J. Baldry, J. Worrall and Albert Lee. The Sunday School orchestra of eight pieces under the leadership of Clifford Rusaw contributed several selections and not the least comedy feature was the jazz band of some twenty "instruments." Well deserved compliments were paid to the "Cogs" in their footlight success, to their director, Mr. Wm. McLaren and to Mr. Ken Shadgett who designed and painted the scenery.

HARTE'S WIDOW CLAIMS REMAINS

Cables Friends To Have Body of Suicide Buried Beside Grandfather.

MARRIED SIX YEARS.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 23. (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Lillian Harte, who says she was married to Richard Bret Harte in New York six years ago, and was to have rejoined him in Paris next April, announced to-day that she had cabled relatives abroad to have her husband buried beside his grandfather, the author, Bret Harte, in Surrey, England, or if that was impossible to have his body cremated and the ashes sent to California for burial.

Richard Bret Harte committed suicide in Paris several days ago after a quarrel with a woman.

CHERNEY TELLS

Counsel for defence: "That bottle bears an inland revenue stamp does it not?"

Witness, after due examination—"Yes."

Found Liquor.

Detective Meagher was the next witness for the prosecution, and he testified to the finding of 6 bottles and a one gallon can of alcohol in Cherney's home. It was concealed behind the sink and consisted of 4 unsealed bottles of wine, a bottle of whiskey with the seal left intact, and one with the seal broken. Detective Carey and Constable Wheeler were with him at the time. Mr. O'Brien called the attention of the court to the fact that the bottles produced by Detective Meagher were labelled Gooderham and Worts, while that produced before bore the name of Hiram Walker.

Detective Carey gave evidence which supported that of the former witness adding that the liquor in the bottles was "bootleg."

W. H. Buller, Inland Revenue officer, presented an analysis which he had made and declared that the liquor in the bottle he tested was 21.3 u.p.; that in the can was alcohol, and 65.4 o.p.

Denies Charge.

Abraham Cherney was then called and after locating his hat, was sworn, the Bible being open at a certain place in the Old Testament.

It was not true that Harron had bought the liquor from him. The man Harron had never been in the store, he declared. There had been customers that night, and his time had been all taken up with them. He had sold a piece of oilcloth to a man, Wrightmeyer—he was in the court—and he had taken that man home afterward. Before that a man named Phelan came in the store to look at some stoves, and after a while he had bought a "stove-board," but left before Wrightmeyer did. Questioned as to the time when Wrightmeyer came in the store, he said it was 7.30. When counsel for the prosecution asked how he remembered the time, he answered: "I could see the town clock from my store: I look at the town clock all the time."

Mrs. Cherney bore out the statement of her husband regarding the customers, and declared that Harron had never been in the store at the time he said he was there. After her husband had arrived home he did not go out again that evening. Clinton Wrightmeyer and William Phelan said that they had been in the store of Mr. Cherney from 7.30, and they had not seen Harron in the store nor anywhere else that evening.

In his summary Mr. O'Brien, counsel for the defence, submitted that the sole evidence for the prosecution was that Harron had purchased a bottle of liqor from the accused, and as Harron was still under sentence and serving time for being drunk it was certainly to his advantage to implicate someone else in order to save himself further inconvenience. The bottle purported to have been found on the person of Harron did not resemble in any particular those taken from the home of the defendant. Harron's unsupported evidence says that he was in the store, while the evidence of four others for the defence made that a physical impossibility.

Mr. Wearing said that the evidence presented by Harron was direct and specific and that his story bore all the earmarks of truth. Cherney, he declared, offered nothing in denial of the sale or gave no explanation of the present of the liquor which had been seized in his home.

Magistrate Langley said that he would reserve judgment for one week.

MUSSOLINI STILL IN THE SADDLE

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD.
(Recently American Ambassador to Italy.)

To one who is familiar with present day Italy and has just seen the successful debt negotiations between our two nations, a good deal of the news from Italy appears to have found its source in personal irritation of certain correspondents rather than in truth. Every indication is given by some of them of a disrupted country, but the wise observers who return from the Mediterranean, recognizing that plots against the Premier have been afoot, know that Italy is more united to-day than at any previous moment in her history. That unity is not only one of awakened national spirit but of co-operation in economic rehabilitation. That the old politicians should be discontent is not astonishing; that Mussolini should make trouble-breeders walk the plank is not unnatural in days when discord is valueless and discipline is necessary. We have been fed in the United States with stories of Mussolini's attack on Masonry and Catholicism. The fact is that the Masonic order described has no connection with the non-political Free Masonry of the countries we know best, and that the "Catholic" groups mentioned are the remains of the Partito Populare, an opposition political party which h[illegible] no sanction to represent either t[illegible] Vatican or Roman Catholics.

It would be absurd to expect [illegible] country with the wide diversity [illegible] Italy geographically, and even r[illegible] cially, to support to the last man eve[illegible] the new and efficient government [illegible] Mussolini. It is even more absurd [illegible] overlook the undoubted fact of Italy [illegible] reconstruction spiritually and economic[illegible] ally under his administrative skill, h[illegible] demand for loyalty and service, and h[illegible] discipline, firm enough to make som[illegible] real mistakes and also invite fals[illegible] accusations of charges wholly fictitious.

Though coming out of an extended period of illness which would have made a heart less brave find excuse for cessation of patriotic service, Mussolini is still Mussolini. Were he to be assassinated to-morrow, under no circumstances could his country become more feeble and disorganized than when its destiny was put into his hands. The plotters may wipe him out, but they can not wipe out his effect of uniting and stimulating the whole economic and social fabric of his country, nor diminish the lasting results of the most conspicuous single-handed administrative undertaking of modern times by calling it such names as may be borrowed from the text-book sociologists.

INLAND STATES WILL NOT SUBMIT LONGER TO ECONOMIC ISOLATION

Governor of Minnesota Says They Must Be Linked With Coast.

BY WATERWAY.

Favors Great Lakes-St. Lawrence System To Open Up Territory.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—The millions of people in the inland states, who raise 75 per cent of the nation's wheat and 65 per cent. of its corn, will not much longer submit to the handicap of being economically isolated, Governor Theodore Christianson, of Minnesota, told the seventh annual convention of the Mississippi Valley Association here today. Although not favoring any particular waterway, course, the Governor said the inland states, to grow industrially must be linked with the seaports of the eastern coast. He cited the proposed Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Channel as a means of opening up the inland territory for waterways. "The completion of inland waterways would justify itself in two ways—first, by eliminating the loss resulting from present railroad congestion, and second by providing a means of transportation which is always cheaper than transportation by railroads."

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie,

I have been going with a boy who seemed to think a lot of me, but he would go out with other girls in between times.

Could you give me some advice what to do? Should I not pay attention to him, or how can I get him to pay more attention to me?

Thanking you for your advice.

WAITING.

WAITING. — Well, you can do either of two things. You can give him a taste of his own medicine and go out with any other boy who comes handy, or if they don't come handy, go gunning for one. And in this way, let your friend know that he can't make you miserable. Or else you should concentrate on him altogether, make yourself so attractive that he can't possibly resist you, that is, in the way of dress and manners and attention to 'is wants. There are few men who can resist the subtle form of flattery conveyed by the impression that a girl is setting her cap for them. It is a matter of choice and should be decided by yourself and your own depth of feeling. There is always a middle course, too. You can live your own life in your own way, absolutely free of him or of anyone else, if you wish to. This is the hardest way, but probably the most satisfactory, and really means that you decide to let yourself be influenced by nothing he does or says. Indifference can be made into a wonderful armor.

WEDDING BELLS.

EDGAR—PROPHET.

The marriage was solemnized in Winnipeg on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 18th, of Mabel Louise, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Prophet, of Peterborough, and John T. Edgar, of Avonlea.

PEELE—MORPHET

The wedding took place at one o'clock today in St. John's Church, of Helen, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Morphet, 458 Hunter Street West, and John Percy Frederick Peele, only son of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Peele, of New Westminster, B.C. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D. The church was prettily decorated with a profusion of flowers and ferns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the church to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mr. F. G. Mann. She wore a charming gown of sea-foam blue georgette, trimmed with silver, with silver shoes and stockings and hat of silver lace. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses.

The bride's sister, Miss Mildred Morphet, was her only attendant, wearing pink georgette, trimmed with gold, gold shoes and stockings and gold lace hat and carrying a bouquet of Columbia roses.

Mr. Kenneth MacDuffee acted as best man. Ushers were Arthur Sowden and Lawrence Killaly.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, attended by about fifty guests. The table was prettily arranged with the bride's cake surrounded by pink tulle, pink candles in silver holders and pink roses in silver vases. Mr. and Mrs. Morphet assisted the bride and bridegroom in receiving, Mrs. Morphet wearing grey brocade crepe, with hat of black and silver.

Mr. and Mrs. Peele left on the afternoon train for Toronto, en route for New Westminister, B.C., where they will reside. The bride travelled in a frock of black and silver satin, with coat of pencil blue trimmed with opossum fur and small hat trimmed with silver.

JACQUETTE COAT

Peterborough Fancies.

(By Jeannette.)

CUT VELVET AND GEORGETTE.

Georgette is very good for party gowns this season. The new georgettes with their trimmings of cut velvet are lovely. They come in soft hues like browns and greys and blues, with front panels and sleeve ornaments done in little strips of cut velvet in varying shades.

Panels worked in chenille are also very pretty. A rosecolored evening frock of crepe romaine, its hem edged with two-inch wide soft white fur, has a panel of chenille worked in blue and

Another dress of red in a deep pomegranate shade has a flaring skirt whose godets are centred with panne velvet rosettes.

Soft panne velvet is coming into its own again for use for evening wear. A black model has an inset panel, extending from neck to hem, of pencil blue crepe. And vella vella, a material resembling a light brocade fabric, is another new style note.

There is a hint of smocking as trimming on a shell-pink georgette evening gown and there is a sense of deep contrast between the delicate fragility of this dress and the one in another store, heavy with beads, its entire skirt portion made up of glistening metallic beads, done in a wonderful floral design.

W.M.S. "AT HOME"

Springville Auxiliary Gave Good Programme at Social Event.

The Springville Auxiliary of the W.M.S. held an "At Home" on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. David Wood. During the evening a good programme was given. Rev. Mr. McConnachie occupied the chair and told some humorous Scotch stories. Miss Daisy Murray and Miss Southam favored us with solos in their usual pleasing style. Mr. Albert Hunter gave a reading and Messrs. F. Wilson and C. Wood also gave good readings. Mr. W. Whitefield sang some old favourite songs.

After the programme the ladies served refreshments, and after singing "Auld Lang Syne," the crowd dispersed, everyone expressing their gratitude for a very pleasant time. The offering for the work of Missions was quite a generous one.

Messrs. S. Staples and H. Cathcart held a very successful stock sale on Friday.

Mr. Walter Brown was a visitor at the Toronto Winter Fair.

FADS AND FANCIES

SOME NOVEL ACCESSORIES FOR THE WELL-DRESSED WOMAN.

One marvels at the constantly renewed beauty of the small accessories. All these things one must have to add interest to new costumes, and the gratifying part is that one can get them in such ever-varying design.

Take the question of pocketbooks and bags. We have seen such very lovely ones for several seasons past that one would think surely the source of inspiration would cease to be so varied, but this is not the case. Still they come, as shown in the accompanying drawing.

The flat envelope bag at the upper left is of clear red leather, ornamented with bronze. A mere mention of the materials and colors assures one of its effectiveness as a high spot of color for a dark costume. The other bag has a loop at the top, and is done in heavy tapestry, showing a modern design in shades of tan.

At the lower right is sketched the end of an umbrella stick. The bell-shaped handle is ebony, with a flower design in silver flat against the back. The cord and tassel are blue silk, to match the umbrella. A number of smart umbrellas, by the way, have gay borders of color. Green is good with blue, or navy and white checks with navy.

To progress to the necklaces, we have a string of synthetic pearls, which are held in place by the bigger pearls at the ends. This is effective when its tied by a single crossing at the front of the throat.

The pearl bracelet down at the left is a three-strand affair, with colored stones at the ends. These may be bought with stones of varied color according to the costume with which they are to be worn.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

The woman who keeps her health and beauty up to par is the woman who never flags in her efforts in this direction.

Most of us know of at least one woman who is of the sensationalist type. She reads of a new way to beauty and creates a great stir among her friends by her strong sponsoring of it, and her emphatically-voiced determination to follow it up.

The first thing we know, she has ceased to mention it altogether. We are reminded of this, because in a short time she comes forth again with her endorsement of a new diet, or some other way to beauty.

This woman never gets anywhere. She may even injure the looks she possesses by being too ready to take up each new way to beauty that is suggested to her.

But there are certain things we must all observe with unflagging zeal if we are to win our way to beauty. I hate to call these "rules," because the word itself gives us an impression of irksome duty. Let us think of them, rather, as observances which are easy to follow because they are the most natural ones and which will repay us well in health and happiness. Here they are:

Eat your food by thoroughly masticating it. Don't float it down with water. You will find it better to drink water between meal times.

Drink at least six glasses of water daily. Start with two on rising.

Eat at your three regular meal times only.

Avoid stimulants of all kinds.

You may drink tea and coffee if you are in good health, but do not drink them to excess.

Do try to spend at least an hour a day in the sunshine and fresh air.

Make a point of forgetting your day's problems when you go to bed. Don't let yourself think of them there, for it brings on insomnia.

Observe your daily personal hygiene without flagging. This includes bathing, brushing your teeth, brushing your hair, taking care of your nose and throat, and evacuating with regularity.

At least once each week make your body perspire freely, thereby aiding your eliminating organs and keeping yourself in the best receptive condition for health and beauty.

A Charming Flesh Color Combination With Fitted Bodice.

The tailored clothes of the modern girl demand underthings which are entirely without superfluous fulness.

As a result of this demand, we have most effective combinations which have bodies tailored to a snugness that is most effective beneath trimly fitted frocks.

OMEMEE YOUNG PEOPLE'S MEETINGS

A.Y.P.A. and Y.P.L. Both Met Last Monday Evening.

OMEMEE, Nov. 23.—The meeting of the A.Y.P.A. was well attended on Monday evening, Nov. 16. The attraction of the evening was a debate and there was undoubtedly considerable interest aroused by the unusual topic, "Resolved, that a Business Girl makes a Better Wife than a Domestic Girl." The affirmative was excellently set forth by Miss Marion Dickson and Mr. Gordon Hayes, while the negative side was developed by Miss Carrie McQuade and Mr. Horace Hill. An element of humor ran throughout the discussion, and the young men present were enlightened considerably as to the domestic qualifications and possibilities of either type of girl. Miss E. Robinson, Mrs. E. Jamieson and Miss Tuck were the appointed judges for the occasion, and after due deliberation they returned with a report that gave the honors of the evening to the negative side.

Miss Marion Dickson gave an interesting report on the Brantford conference which she attended with Mrs. V. Jones.

Next week, Rev. Mr. Weir will give an address on "Why I Believe on Jesus Christ."

Y. P. L. Meeting.

The Young People of the United Church held their weekly meeting in the Sunday school room on Monday night, Nov. 16, when Mr. Vernon Lang, the president of the citizenship department, was in charge.

The meeting opened with singing, after which the 23rd Psalm was repeated in concert, followed by the Lord's Prayer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Edna Morcombe. Mr. Gordon Bradley read the Scripture lesson, which was followed by a vocal duet, entitled "Alone," by the Misses Evelyn Bland and Gladys Lowes. An excellent report of the first Young People's Rally of the United Church, which was held in Port Hope recently, was given in two parts by the delegates, the first part being taken by Miss Katy Weir, the second part by Miss Marion Rea. The report was given in such a way as to bring the message of the convention home to the hearers, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the young ladies for their message. A piano duet by the Misses Eva and Lillian Race was contributed in their usual brilliant style, and added to the pleasure of the evening.

A short clipping, entitled "Missionaries of the Air," was read by the president, telling of the capture and tagging of 150 wild geese by Jack Miner, the Canadian naturalist, within the past week, each bird being tagged with an aluminum tag on which was a verse of Scripture and Jack Miner's name and address. The birds were then liberated, thus bearing their message to far-off southern climes. This excellent meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

When Bakeday Comes Depend on Carnation

Uncertainties ruin many a milk dish through absolutely no fault of your own.

You want whole milk—you have only the skimmed milk left after you took the cream from the top; you should have two cups—you just have a cup and a half. Milk you thought fresh is just on the turn.

Queen's Eliminate Senior O.R.F.U. Winners--Red Grange Turns "Pro"

BALMY BEACH BEATEN BY QUEEN'S BUT CROSSED COLLEGE GOAL LINE

Batstone and Leadley Once More Stand Out as Great Backfield Pair—O.R.F.U. Champions Not Disgraced.

CROWD OF 12,000 AT VARSITY STADIUM.

TORONTO, Nov. 23 — Queen's University football team started on their way to their fourth consecutive Canadian championship when they defeated Balmy Beach, O.R.F.U. senior champions, here Saturday by 21 to 9 in the semi-final sudden-game. Queen's always held the upper hand and gave a very fine exhibition of open football, with something always in reserve.

Balmy Beach put up a surprisingly good argument and the 12,000 spectators enjoyed the game immensely

There was plenty of action at the time and the game never lagged for a moment.

Balmy Beach had the distinction of crossing Queen's goal line for a touchdown, something that no other team had accomplished this year. It happened on a loose ball in the last period, when Batstone dropped the oval after being tackled. Earl Smith had the honor of getting the major score for the losers.

How Queen's Scored

Queens scored two touchdowns, one from a fumble and the other on an intercepted pass when "Scotty" Cawkell tossed the ball to "Bud" Thomas instead of to one of his own men in the shadow of his own goal posts. It was a tough luck play as Cawkell had put up a splendid game and was a tower of strength to his team.

"Pep" Leadley did most of the kicking for Queens and scored two field goals with his educated toe. Harry Batstone also played his usual heady game and Voss was good when he was in the last quarter.

The tackling of both teams was good. Robertson kicked well for Beaches but did a lot of muffing at critical times. The Beaches' line compared favorably with Queens.

Queens will now play the big four champions at Ottawa next Saturday.

First Quarter

Though Balmy Beach had the kick-off it availed them little. On the first down Beaches tried a line plunge and lost the ball. Leadley quickly punted over the Beach line and Robertson was forced to rouge. It was a quick score for the Tricolor. Queen's 1, Beach 0.

A kick by Robertson was blocked by a Queen's wing and caromed into touch 15 yards out. Thomas took a dive at the ball as it was crossing the touch line and the official ruling was that it Queen's ball. This gave the champions their chance, and Leadley dropped a pretty goal from the field. Queen's 4, Beaches 0.

A mammoth return punt by Leadley was caught by Robertson close to his own goal line. Robertson's punt was returned by Batstone to the same played who was thrown into touch in goal for another point. Queen's 5, Beach 0.

Second Quarter

Queen's then pulled a fake kick play which netted them a fifty yard gain. They lined up behind their own goal line in kick formation. Leadley got the ball, dodged through the opening and was away on a long run edging towards the grandstand. When tackled Leadley passed to Thomas who made another ten years and then tried another pass to Leadley. The ball was loose but Leadley recovered it in the mix-up.

The crowd howled with delight when the Beaches' wings bottled Batstone up and threw him for a loss.

The joy was short lived, however, as on the first down Leadley kicked to Robertson, who muffed at his own goal line and Britton fell on the ball for an unearned touchdown. Batstone failed to convert the goal. Queen's 10, Beach 0.

Robertson kicked from the centre eighty yards, bound and all, to the ... ball line for the first point for Balmy Beach. Batstone never made an effort to catch the ball because of the breeze wind.

Queen's 10, Beach 2.

Morrie made a bad pass to Leadley and Cawkell got possession for Beaches at Queen's twenty-five yard line. A dribble might have given Beaches a touchdown as the loose ball was on the open side but Cawkell elected to fall on the ball.

Queen's 10, Beach 2.

Third Quarter

Robertson punted to Leadley at Beaches forty-five yard line. Leadley kicked over the Beaches goal line to Cawkell who made a perfect running catch, but Thomas' great diving tackle threw him into touch in goal.

Queen's 12, Beach 2.

Leadley dodged around the end for five yards. Then he tried a fake kick and a pass to Baldwin, but Beaches squelched the play. Leadley punted to Cawkell who made a fine catch, but was downed ten yards out.

Beaches then pulled the prize "boner" when Cawkell, on an extension run, passed the ball to Thomas, who was going the other way and kept on for a gift of a touchdown under the goal posts. Batstone failed to convert an easy one. Queen's 17, Beach 2.

Queens 17, Beach 3.

Fourth Quarter

Robertson was forced to kick and Batstone made a perfect catch. The Queen's captain tried to run with the bmall and lost possession when tackled. There was a scramble and Earl Smith picked up the ball and ran forty yards for a touchdown while the crowd bowled with delight. It as the first touch down scored against Queen's this season. Batstone chased Smith to the goal line but had no chance to catch him. Metcalfe converted the goal. Queen's 17, Beach 9.

Robertson's return of the kick off went into touch at centre. Queen's then started to batter their way through the Beaches line. When 20 yards out, Batstone sent up a high punt to Robertson who fumbled, but Cawkell made a lucky recovery and only a rouge resulted. Queen's 18; Beach 9.

Leadley punted to Robertson, who muffed ten yards out and Lewis got the ball for Queen's. Robertson retired and Leadley dropped his second goal from the field. Queen's 21, Beach 9.

Leadley ran the kick-off back 20 yards and then passed to Voss who went for five more to Queen's 45-yard line. Leadley was hurt in the tackle but continued after a delay.

Leadley punted to Hevenor, who replaced Robertson.

Hevenor booted to Leadley who returned to Hevenor at Beaches ten yard line when time was called.

Final score— Queen's 21; Balmy Beach 9.

INDIVIDUAL TEAMS ARE NOT ACCEPTED

Ladies' Softball Association Will Accept Only Leagues or Associations.

The Ladies' Ontario Baseball Association having now been formally launched on its career, the next step is to have the foundation truly and firmly laid. The plan of organization approved is to follow the same lines as the Ontario Baseball Association, that is, the membership of the Association is to be made up of Associations in large centres and Leagues in the smaller sections. Individual teams will not be accepted into membership but must affiliate themselves with a league or association in their own district. Where no such organization exists, it will be the duty of such a club to get busy at once on the organization of such a league.

A number of outside towns, who during the past year were affiliated with the Toronto and District Ladies Amateur Softball Association, will from now on be connected with a league in their own district and affiliate direct with the Ontario organization. The Toronto organization will handle only teams in the City of Toronto.

As soon as the new leagues and district associations are established a long step in the work of the organization will have been accomplished.

A draft constitution and by-laws have been completed and after further minor changes, will be submitted to all the officers of the association for suggestions and made ready for submission to a general meeting to be held early in the new year.

The playing rules will also receive attention and a small committee elected to draft same and submit to the committee elected at the organization meeting last Friday night for consideration. All enquiries for information as to the organization should be made to Miss Mabel May, 16 Orchard Park Boulevard, Toronto.

OTTAWA AGAIN BEAT VICTORIA

Won Both Exhibition Games Played With Champions in Three Days.

SCORE WAS 2-0.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 23 (By Canadian Press)—For the second time in three days, Ottawa Senators sent the Victoria Cougars tumbling down to defeat when they emerged victorious over the world's champions at the Auditorium Saturday night by a score of 2 to 0. This match marked the conclusion of the two-game exhibition series which the teams played here in aid of the Humane Society and the Cougars departed for Toronto immediately after the match. For excitement and good play, as compared with the usual run of exhibition games, last night's affair was a repetition of Thursday evening's tussle, when Ottawa won by 6 to 2. Nearly seven thousand people turned out and were rewarded with a brand of hockey that left no cause for complaint.

The Senators won because they seemed able to stand the pace better than the visitors. Their reserve strength surpassed all expectations and Coach Currie always had a line-up on the ice that could cope with the speedy attack that was the feature of the Victoria game. The Westerners cut out a pace that was a killer, especially at the commencement of each period, but they slowed as the game progressed and in the closing stages were plainly tired. While the Ottawa margin was not so decisive as on Thursday evening, there was enough decision about their victory to make it impressive. Again they outshot the Cougars, Holmes making a total of 43 stops during the game as compared to Connell's 17. The game was played under Western rules, but even at that the persistent backchecking of the locals offset the advantage the visitors enjoyed in their knowledge of how to use the forward pass.

A penalty shot, was awarded to the Ottawasc in the first period when Fraser violated the code inside the blue line. Denneny took the penalty and laced a screaming shot dead on the corner, but Holmes got in front of it.

Recruit Makes Good

The game introduced a new star to Ottawa hockey fans, in the person of Hector Kilrea, youngest and newest Senator recruit. The kid, subbing at left wing, right wing and center, filled all three positions in sterling fashion and was the all-round star of the game. His goal was a neat bit of head and stick-work, while his backchecking and stickhandling was a feature. Hooley Smith turned in another smashing game, while Nighbor again stood out as the master of them all. Denneny was as brilliant as ever, while Connell started his shut out games for the year.

HARVARD-YALE SCORELESS GAME

"Moral Victory" For Harvard In Staving Off Great Yale Team.

BACKS TO WALL.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—Harvard fought Yale to a scoreless tie Saturday with as courageous and sensational a defensive battle as has ever been witnessed in the half century of gridiron competition between these two universities.

Spurred on by their indomitable captain, Dolph Cheek, husky Californian, the rejuvenated Crimson forces put their backs to the wall and player their rivals to a standstill.

Yale entering the game a 3 to 1 favorite, out-rushed Harvard more than two to one with an attack that overshadowed that of the Crimson, but the Elis, contributing to their own failure with erratic generalship and loose handling of the ball, lacked the punch to penetrate the stonewall defence put up by the Cambridge eleven.

A crowd of 53,000 spectators saw the Elis come within striking distance of the Crimson goal line six times, only to yield the ball on downs or toss away opportunities because of errors.

Twice while the Blue stands echoed their yells for a touchdown, Yale advanced as far as Harvard's two-yard line in threats which furnished both the opening and closing thrills of the battle.

Prevented Touch.

There was less than two minutes to play as Yale, fighting desperately, planted the ball on Harvard's five-yard line when Bradley, substitute end, grabbed a spectacular forward ppass which Quarterback Bunnell thrown from mid-ield. Only a desperate tackle from behind by Captain Cheek prevented Bradley from going over then and there for a touchdown.

But Harvard had the defensive stuff left for one more stand. Thrice the burly figure of Caldwell, a third string back, hurled itself at the Crimson jerseys, but it yielded only three yards altogether. Then just as Yale huddled together for one more lunge the shrill sound of the whistle broke through the din of cheers to mark the end of the game.

Captain Cheek was the driving force in the Crimson's astounding defence, in which E. Bradford, Coady and Kilgour, linemen, also figured prominently.

Allen and Fishwick were the driving forces in Yale's backfield but the brilliance of their efforts frequently was offset by mis-plays and faulty generalship. Twice, in the final quarter, bad passes from centre by Burt upset Yale marches, while except for the one long pass completed just before the close of the game, thme Eli aerial attack was wild and poorly screened.

M.A.A.A. JUNIORS WON.

Heavy Line Too Much For Ottawa Rideaus.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—Displaying strength on the line that was far too much for the local team to cope with, M.A.A.A. Juniors marched to victory over the Rideaus at Lansdown Park Saturday by a score of 15 to 1. This was the first of the home-and-home series in the Dominion Junior Ruby semi-finals, and gives the Winged Wheelers a 14 point lead for the return game in Montreal next Saturday.

The visitors were too heavy for the Purple and White, and although they were held to a one-point lead at half time, their great offensive carried them through to victory in the last half. Sustained line plunging of a smashing type spelled defeat for the Paddlers.

GRANGE SIGNS CONTRACT WITH CHICAGO RUGBY PROFESSIONALS

Plays First Game on Thursday With the Chicago Bears.

ENGAGES MANAGER.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—Harold "Red" Grange yesterday plunged into the business of capitalizing his gridiron fame by signing to play professional football against the wishes of his father as well as George Huff, director of athletics of the University of Illinois, Coach Robert Zuppke and others who had hoped he would accept other offers held out to him.

The famous her-head contracted with the Chicago Bears to play his first game with them in the Chicago National League Park, Thanksgiving Day, against the Chicago Cardinals. Grange also signed Charles C. Pyle, a Champaign, Ills., theatrical man, as his manager.

Grange said that Pyle had merely acted as his good friend and adviser for the last few weeks and had spent his own funds investigating the countless offers made the football player. Pyle's contract with Grange is for two years. While neither would discuss the terms, it was throught that Pyle would receive 25 per cent. of Grange's earnings on the professional gridiron, in motion pictures and other ventures.

To Repay Father.

The 22-year-old star said he had decided to play professional football, instead of accepting other alluring offers because he had not training or experience that would have enabled him to accept the others. He said the public would be better satisfied if he turned his efforts to the field in which he had been most useful, so he lould earn money to repay his father for his sacrifices and also take up the burden of his 20-year-old brother's education.

Grange, in deciding to play professional football, is in a position to earn a fortune within the next few weeks on the chalk lines and another fortune awaits him in other fields. Although the terms under which Grange will play professional football were not made public, it was reported that Grange's share of his Thanksgiving Day game alone will amount to about $30,500.

The contract, it was said, provides that Grange shall receive ten per cent of the first $5,000 that comes into the gate, 20 per cent. of the second $5,000, and 40 per cent of all over this amount.

DARTMOUTH THE DOMINANT TEAM

New Hampshire College Neither Beaten Nor Tied This Season.

ALONE IN EAST.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—Perhaps the outstanding results of Saturday's eastern play, the features of which were Harvard's scoreless battle against Yale, and Georgetown's upset of Fordham, was to emphasize the dominant position of Dartmouth.

The big Green eleven which closed its season a week ago by trouncing Chicago and establishing a strong claim to national honors, now stands in the East as the only aggregation neither beaten nor tied. Fordham and New Hampshire shared this distainction with Dartmouth until Saturday but the former's downfall was accomplished by Georgetown in the outstanding form reversal of the day, while New Hampshire fell before the driving power of Brown's attack.

Harvard's "moral victory" over a Yale eleven which went into this annual classic a heavy favorite, restored Crimson hopes of a football renaissance even if the final statistics rank the Cambridge eleven far down the list.

There was no question of Harvard's gameness under heavy odds, Yale twice being checked on the two-yard line, but the Crimson's greatest need is an attack to profit by its fighting defence. Saturday's tie was the sixth deadlock in the fifty years of Yale-Harvard football history, the first since 1911. All of them have been scoreless.

Yale thus failed in her two main objectives of 1925, where a few weeks ago the Blue was a top heavy favorite to take the "Big Three" crown for the third straight year. The uncertain and faulty performance of the Elis Saturday convinced observers that they had not rallied from the effects of the stunning setback handed them by Princeton, the new ruling force of the "Big Three."

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

There is only one satisfactory way to get from where you are to where you wish to be in a round of golf, and that one way is always the easiest way. The golfer should make it a fixed rule never to try a difficult way of making a shot if an easier way is available. This department of the game—and it is a highly important department—is the player's ability to appraise the course ahead of him, shot by shot. Some players become skilled in this appraisement, while others have never heard of it. The reason an expert golfer appears to take particular pains with his shot is partly because he knows the value of taking reasonable pains with each shot, and mostly because he is taking time to appraise the ground ahead. He picks a particular spot where he wants the ball to fall and he plays to that definite objective. Try that a while and the chances are it will become a permanent and lasting part of your game.

ANOTHER QUEEN'S WIN.

Third Team Beat Loyola, of Montreal.

KINGSTON, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press). — The deadlock between Queen's III. and Loyola in the Junior Intercollegiate rugby series was decisively broken at the Richardson Stadium here on Saturday, when in the play-off game necessitated by the tie on the round, Queen's were victorious by 22 to 2. If the tri-color had played in their former home game up to the calibre they showed in Saturday's feature, there would not have been any play-off required. There was a wide margin between the two teams in this game, with the advantage all on Queen's side. Whereas in the previous game here they lost right on their home field.

G. T. R. FINANCES ARE REVIEWED BY GOVERNMENT

Deputy-Minister of Railways and Canals Presents Statement of Costs.

BRITISH CRITICISM.

Reference to Controversy With Overseas Bondholders of G.T.R.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press).—Comment on the controversy between the Canadian Government and certain of the Grand Trunk shareholders is contained in the annual report of the Department of Railways and Canals which is just issued. In this report the Deputy Minister, Major G. A. Bell, reviews the history of the five years since the G.T.R. was taken over by the Government, and states that during that period $213,756,781 had to be provided for investment account of the whole Canadian National system, including new construction, betterments, property acquirements and new equipment and that in all $572,825,423 was added to the debt of the roads comprising the Canadian National Railways.

"In view of the remarkable attitude of a section of the British Press," continues the Deputy Minister, "it is worthy of note that during that period the Grand Trunk has required loans and advances from the Government amounting to $103,-879,182, as well as $15,000,000 on Grand Trunk Pacific account. And in addition to the guarantee in perpetuity of the interest on certain debenture stocks as set out in the acquisition agreement—stocks a par value of $216,207,141 with interest requirements totalling $8,988,633 annually—the Government has also guaranteed on Grand Trunk account since acquisition two bond issues of twenty-five million dollars each and floated an equipment note issue of $12,000,000.

Unfair Attitude.

The report goes on to point out that since the reorganization out of bond issues floated by the Canadian National Railways, no less than $24,-899,157 was advanced to the Grand Trunk in addition to the aid referred to in the preceding paragraph. "All of which is of interest," again declares the Deputy Minister, "in view of the unfair attitude of a section of the British press with respect to the taking over of the Grand Trunk in regard to which transaction Canada and Canadian credit have been subjected abroad to much misrepresentation."

The report further states that "a great deal of the increase in debt of the Canadian National lines in recent years has been due to the unsound financial position of the Trunk Pacific." The Deputy Minister puts the advances made by the Government to the Grand Trunk Pacific at $20,539,357 before the G. T. Pacific." The Deputy Minister puts the advances made by the Government to the Grand Trunk Pacific at $20,539,357 before the G. T. Pacific lines, and $49,077,682 since that time, the latter amount not including interest, and a further $19,-543,640 to pay interest guaranteed by the Dominion Government and by the Provincial Governments on the Grand Trunk Pacific. In regard to the Canadian Northern, Major Bell states that the Government has advanced $124,724,288 as well as guaranteeing $57,000,000 in bond issues; but the opinion is expressed that this is "not out of proportion in view of the fact that the Canadian Northern steam and electric railways cover 9,995 or almost one-half of the Canadian National system."

The department report also contains the first complete statement of the purposes for which were expended the proceeds of the $96,000,-000 bonds issued by the Canadian National last year. After allowing for discounts, the amount realized by these issues, including bank interest, was $93,746,999. Of this amount $15,727,419 was spent in paying fixed charged on Canadian National securities held by the public; $21,-658,582 was used for refunding and retiring outstanding issues, and $56,360 995 was laid out in capital investments.

Martin 'Farmer' Burns, one of the greatest wrestlers of his day, is living in quiet enjoyment of a competency laid by during his long career as a professional mat artist. Burns is now 62 years old. In the course of his long career as a grappler he engaged in more than 6,000 matches. In 1895 he won the heavyweight championship by defeating "Strangler" Lewis in Chicago. He held the title until 1897, when he was defeated by Dan McLeod. It was Burns who discovered Frank Gotch and developed the Iowa farm boy into a champion.

STARS OUTDO PAST WORK IN NEW FILM

Chaney and Shearer Share New Honors.

History failed to repeat this time!

As a usual thing a featured player wins the laurels of stardom through a series of screen successes and then appears in an initial starring vehicle which makes the picture-goers wonder why she is a star.

For the last couple of years Norma Shearer has consistently appeared in good pictlres, or, at least, has interpreted her roles so well that the faults of the pictures have been dwindled in comparison with her beauty, ability and personality.

Yielding to popular demand, Louis B. Mayer, head of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, recently announced that Miss Shearer would be starred and she more than justified the promotion. She is now co-starred with Lon Chaney in "The Tower of Lies," the Victort Seastrom-directed picture now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

Instead of following in the footsteps of other stars, who have helped contribute to the delinquency of their subsequent starring vehicles, Miss Shearer has outdone herself in "The Tower of Lies" and gives the best piece of acting thus far in her career.

What has been said of Miss Shearer, applies equally as well to Lon Chaney, who is co-starred in this production. Chaney, also, has long been regarded as a star by picture-goers, but this is his first vehicle where he has been officially pronounced a star by the producers. Of the many great roles Chaney has so successfully portrayed, it must be admitted, that more has been as human and appealing as the mad "Jan" in "The Tower of Lies."

The great success of this picture is contributed to by most everybody who has had any connection with it. To be fair to everybody concerned, we should mention that Selma Lagerlof's novel, "The Emperor of Portulgallia," of which "The Tower of Lies" is a screen adaptation by Agnes Christine Johnston, made a remarkable vehicle.

Then there is Director Victor Seastrom, who was directiorially responsible for "He Who Gets Slapped," a sensationally successful film in which Chaney and Miss Shearer were featured. Seastrom knew his players and the stars and supporting cast knew Seastrom, and had confidence in him. The net result has been a remarkable picture and "The Tower of Lies" will probably be remembered by public and critics for many years to come.

AT THE ROYAL.

BETTY BALFOUR IS COMING BACK.

Betty Balfour, England's Queen of Happiness, who is better known locally as "Squibs," is coming to the Royal soon in Reville, the picture that the Prince of Wales liked so much.

ROMANTIC SEARCHING MAKES SCREEN PLAY.

Romance comes in strange guise and has tragic results in "The Price of Pleasure," Universal-Jewel, co-starring Virginia Valli and Norman Kerry which will be the attraction in the Royal Theatre, commencing Thursday.

The picture is said to be a masterpiece of realism, portraying two widely divergent walks of life. It was written specially for the screen by Elizabeth Holding and Marion Orth, two of the best known writers in the screen story profession.

The contrasts drawn are between the environment and luxuries of the very rich and the tawdry poverty of the shop girl who makes a meagre living in a great city, where she is without the benefits of family life and must content herself, or try to with the cold comforts of a tenement boarding house.

Evidence that the picture has a strong comedy element is found in the announcement that two of the principal supporting roles are in the capable hands of Louise Fazenda and T. Roy Barnes. Both of these olayers have established reputations for comedy work. Others in the cast, which Edward Sloman directed, are Kate Lester, George Fawcett, James O. Barrows and Marie Astaire.

COUNTRY STORE NITE TO-NIGHT AT ROYAL.

To-night's Country Store will be worked a little different from former ones. Owing to the length of the big production, "Souls for Sables," four prizes will be given, but each of these prizes will be worth real money. Lucky tickets will be given to adults only to-night.

"SOULS FOR SABLES" IS A LAVISH AND DRAMATIC PICTURE.

"Souls for Sables," a Tiffany production, suggested from "Garlan & Co.," by David Graham Phillips, is the feature picture at the Royal Theatre to-day, with the beautiful Claire Windsor in the leading feminine role and Eugene O'Brien filling the principal male role. The production is a lavish screen presentation with a dazzling array of feminine finery that fairly staggers the eye.

In brief, the plot of the story tells of how a young and beautiful girl, used to the luxuries of life, loves and marries a poor but ambitious young business man. While building up his business, he neglects his wife, who turns to others for her entertainment.

Clothes are her obsession until she covets a sable coat. The husband is unable to supply his pretty wife with sables. She wins a tidy sum at cards, which is invested in the stock market by an admirer. The stocks rise and enough money is made to buy the coat. The husband, unaware of how his wife came into possession of the sables, believes the worst, and the couple part. The events leading up to the final reconciliation are dramatically portrayed.

SYD CHAPLIN AT HIS BEST IN "THE MAN ON THE BOX"

New Warner Bros. Picture Ought To Pull Every Laugh You've Got Out of Your System.

"The Man on the Box," based on the Harold MacGrath novel and play, produced by Warner Bros., and starring Syd Chaplin, opened to-day at the Regent Theatre, and proved to be one of the most hilariously amusing pictures ever screened.

Syd Chaplin is even funnier than he was in "Charley's Aunt"; first as a debonair young millionaire, then a typical cab driver, a groom, a butler, and finally as a ladies' maid involved in a frantic tussle for a set of plans for an aeroplane invention.

In addition to directing the production, Charles "Chuck" Reisner plays the heavy, a Russian spy, Alice Calhoun is the pretty heroine, Kathleen Calhoun an inventor's wife and Helene Costello the hero's sister. The rest of a brilliant cast includes David Butler, Theodore Lorch, E. J. Ratcliffe, Charles Gerrard and Henry Barrowes.

The adaptation by Charles A. Logue and the scenario by Julien Josephson have not lost a single chuckle or laugh of the original story, and they have added a great lot of gags that get every laugh you've got. Without doubt "The Man on the Box" is one of the funniest comedies you'll ever see. You should not miss it.

AT THE GRAND

From now on it seems to be clear sailing until the curtain rises on the intiial performance of "Miss Bob White" at the Grand Opera House next Friday and Saturday nights at which time the annual Kiwanis show will make its first appearance. The cast is now completed in every department and detail and promises to be one of the best local talent productions ever presented in Peterboro.

It was at first thought that eighty would be all that were to be required, later, after checking things over it was found that already one hundred and twelve were listed in the cast. Now it seems that all records are to be broken as there are just one hundred and sixty-two on the list.

True the time is shorter this year than last and no doubt there may be comment as to how it is all coming out. Those in charge of this year's production as well as the director are quick to assure the tregoers of Peterboro that, because of the limited time in which to put the show over, everyone is working harder than ever to see it done right. From the way in which rehearsals are being snapped through there can be little doubt left as to the possibility of success.

In this year's presentation there are many attractive choruses among which we find the "Loving the Girls Chorus" led by Hugh Niven. Those in the chorus are: Effie Dick, Melba Doughty, Adelle Robinson, Gertrude Gimblett, Irene Buchanan, Mable Hughes, Olive Bacon, Maida Connor, Lillian Green, Camille Fitzpatrick, Katherine Whitehouse, Violet McKeown, Daisy Davidson, Eleanor Akey.

MY CHINA DOLL

Peterboro playgoers have had to thank Messrs. Lecomte and Flesher for some very enjoyable evenings but it is doubtful if the producers have given us anything brighter or more colourful than the musical extravaganza "My China Doll" seen at the Grand on Saturday. An original story, giving an opportunity for the introduction of unusual character types and of a series of entrancing stage pictures, a musical score of merit, a company of clever principals and well drilled chorus and effective use of lights and stage settings made "My China Doll" a musical production of novel charm and appeal. Some of the effects notable in the story book and "land up music scenes," and the beautiful "Flowerland" number in which the costumes of the chorus formed a gorgeous display of colours will long be remembered by Saturday's audience.

The company, some of the principals of which have been seen before was uniformly good. Bessie Delmore the comedienne carried off most of the fun-making honours and she was irresistible in her laugh producing efforts as Melinda Botkins, in search of a man and a thrill. William P. Murphe assisted effectively in the comedy features. Most of the song number fell to the lot of Ames Harper who sang delightfully and contributed some clever acting as well. Cecil Manners in the title role was a charming Peach Blossom who sang, danced and acted with equal charm. Tom Cromley's black face contribution helped to add to the laughter and George Wakefield was called on to do some fine character acting in a number of parts.

Among the song numbers that greatly pleased were "My China Doll," "How I Love the Flowers," "The Tale of the Blue Bells," "I Want a Man" and "My China Maid."

GERMANY GAINS; FRANCE LOSES IN LOCARNO PACT

Germany Returns To Her Former Status in Europe.

FRANCE HELD BACK.

Wanted Right To Invade Germany to Defend Eastern Allies.

By J. W. T. MASON.
(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (United Press).—Pre-war diplomacy has returned to guide the councils of Europe, and is responsible for the Locarno peace agreement. The statesmen of Great Britain and the continent have decided no longer to attempt to bring about an ideal condition preventing all future war but to consider belligerent problems as they arise one at a time. By adopting this method, Germany emerges from Locarno the gainer and France the loser.

The most significant fact of the Locarno entente is the return of Germany to somewhat like her former status in the give and take of European diplomacy. Locarno in reality, was dominated by the Germans; and Europe has now accepted the disquieting fact that the Germans are in the world to stay and to grow in strength and power. Germany has won at Locarno her first victory in the series which will lead to her regeneration for strategically, France has lost the right to use German territory as she pleases in the interests of her allies bordering Germany on the east and south.

The French foreign office, since the ending of the war has sought to unite the allies in support of its demand that while any invasion of French territory by the Germans should be considered an act of war against the other powers, France, for her part should be entitled to invade Germany in defense of Poland or Czecho-Slovakia. The Germans have combatted this one-sided policy, showing that it meant an effort by France to hold the Germans in permanent subjection. The German viewpoint has now prevailed and the French claim has been repudiated.

By the spirit of the Locarno agreement, the frontier between France and Germany is to be considerd inviolate. If, without adequate cause, Germany invades France or France invades Germany, across the neutral boundary zone, the other signatories to the Locarno pact bind themselves to support the affronted power. Germany thus has found at Locarno an international defense of her Rhine frontier, holding France back, if any time in the future, Germany becomes engaged in a war with Poland which she can demonstrate is a war of defense.

The Germans cannot hope to regain a permanent first rank position in Europe until they have won back their mining areas in Silesia which were taken from Germany after the world war and given to Poland. The Poles were thus made keepers of the German treasure, as an assurance that Germany could not make successful war against France. In return for this precarious honor given to Poland, France became the ally of the Poles and saved Poland from the consequences of her disastrous imperialistic venture into Russia after the treaty of Versailles had given the Poles their freedom.

This is the reason why France has so insistently maintained her right to invade Germany in the event of a Polish-German war, while trying to serve advance notice on Germany that any future German invasion of France would be considered the act of an outlaw threatening civilization. At Locarno, however, the powers found that it was necessary for France to give way in this matter. No effort to maintain peace in Europe can succeed without Germany's future co-operation; and the Germans refused to pledge their co-operation unless there was equality of treatment in assigning responsibility among all war makers.

It is now open to Germany to feel some security in her negotiations with Poland. If the German openly and with the insolence of their pre-war militarism were to attempt to crush Poland and forcibly take back the Silesian mines, France could probably rally sufficient European support to compel Germany to disgorge. But, no such crude methods are likely to prevail in Berlin in the future. The diplomatic skill which the German statesmen have shown since the ending of the war has been of too high an order to permit this conclusion. On the contrary, it will now be for German statecraft to devise ways of putting Poland in the wrong and goading the Poles into making hostilities inevitable. Or, Germany may secretly guide Russian diplomacy in such ways as to bring about a Polish-Russian conflict in the future. France, by the Locarno agreement could not use Germany as a pathway to Poland. German troops, however, might aid the Poles against Russia, and in exchange Germany might receive back the Silesian mines. There are other possibilities in the situation, all leading to the regaining of Silesia. Locarno, in fact, has isolated France from Poland; and the Poles will have to make enemies or friends of the Germans with Silesia as the eventual parment.

Y.W.C.A. WEEK'S ACTIVITIES.

This year during the first week of December the Y.W.C.A. will conduct a Christmas Gift Exchange. Hand-painted cards, pictures tatted, embroidery, crochet and knitted gifts, aprons, handkerchiefs and novelties of all kinds have already been promised and the girls are very enthusiastic about the plan.
Special attention is called to the English Literature and Bible study classes on Tuesday evening. These classes are under the leadership of Miss Margaret Hamilton, B.A., and Miss Elizabeth Thomlinson respectively and are very interesting and instructive classes.
Those who have not brought their contribution for the World's Gift are reminded to do so this week if possible.
Returns from the Financial Campaign are still coming in. The full objective has not been reached yet, but the collectors still have several calls to make and are confident of a generous response to the Y.W.C.A.'s appeal.

WINE PERMITS TO BE REVOKED

Are Suspected By U. S. Prohibition Agents as Source of Supply.

THOUSANDS OUT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (Canadian Press).—Another relic of prohibition days has been marked for a swift end by the prohibition officials. Several hundred thousand of wine-making permits, which have enjoyed a quiet and untrammeled perpetuation of life since the year before the Volstead Act, have come under the searchlight of the new prohibition regime and will be revoked under the regulation to be promulgated probably within the next day or two.
The permits, as issued, allow a maximum annual production by the holder, tax free, of two hundred gallons. They are held largely in the foreign quarters of the larger cities and are suspected of contributing heavily to the illicit supply.

Profit Taking Pulls Down Wheat After Early Advance

CHICAGO, Nov. 23. (Canadian Press).—Active profit-taking pulled down the wheat market to-day after an early advance, in which July delivery reached a new high price record for the season. Initial gains were ascribed to unexpected strength displayed by quotations at Liverpool and to advices confirming crop damage in Northern Argentina. Besides, the amount of wheat on ocean passage showed a falling off compared to a week ago, with the total decidedly less than half of the aggregate at the corresponding time last year. Chicago opening prices unchanged to 1½ higher, new style, December 160 3-4 to 161, and May 137¼ to 157½, were followed by declines to 158¼ for December and 156¼ for May. Corn and oats eased down a little, sympathising with wheat. After opening unchanged to ¼c off, December 73 1-8 to 73¼, corn underwent slight losses all around. Oats started at 1-8c lower to ¼c up, December 30¼. Later small set-backs became the rule. Provisions were responsive to a decline in value of hogs.

Trading Continues Light On Toronto Stock Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press) — Continued light trading marked the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Unlisteds received as much attention as the general list. The trend was indefinite, and changes were all negligible, the largest being the declines among mines, Dome dropping 35 at 17.50 and McIntyre 15 at 21.75. Smelters, one of the leaders, eased a quarter, and Canners preferred was a half lower as was City Dairy. British Columbia Fishing strengthened a half point, and Atlantic Sugar and Brazilian were fractionally higher.

Big Turnover In Preston Brought Mine Trading Up

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press)—A turnover of more than two hundred thousand shares of Preston, with heavy dealings in Consolidated West Dome Lake and Capitol resulted in transactions on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning totalling 427,730 shares. While silvers were firm, golds had an easier tendency. Preston sold down two at eight, and Teck Hughes four at 220 while West Dome was marked down one and three quarters at 16. Capitol droped a point. Lorrain, McKinley Darragh and Mining Corporation were slightly firmer.

ROTARY SCORES WITH 100 PER CENT. MEETING

Perfect Attendance Record at To-day's Club Luncheon.

INSPIRING ADDRESS.

Rev. W. Harold Young Eloquent on Subject of Rotary Ideals.

Provided that two members who were out of the city today, secure their attendance by visiting some outside club this week, the Peterboro Rotary Club has scored the notable feat of having a 100 per cent attendance, for every other member of the club was present at the weekly luncheon today.
The feature of today's meeting was a most eloquent address by Rev. W. Harold Young of Toronto, former member of the Peterboro club, who was given a warm welcome when called upon to speak, the Rotarians rising to their feet and greeting Rev. Mr. Young with enthusiastic cheers.
Rev. Mr. Young's topic was "What has Rotary for us?" and his exposition was a memorable presentation of the meaning and ideals of Rotary. To the speaker, Rotary meant the teaching of its members to open their ears to the voices that were to be heard by those who had been trained to listen. In the first place, Rotary should teach them to hear the voice of friendship, to give them the capacity of making friends and of being more worthy of friendship. Secondly Rotary should teach them to visualize the better men they should be, to give them a fresh vision of what they should be. At the same time it should enable them to open their ears to the voice of humanity to the calls from all around them for help and assistance. And lastly it should teach Rotarians to thin kof tomorrow as well as of today, to be ready to take their part in the dawn of a better day for this world.
Rev. Mr. Young's eloquence and sincerity in developing this point, which he illustrated with gripping anecdotes and effective quotations made his address one full of inspiration and encouragement, and no more effective message could have been chosen for a 100 per cent. attendance rally.
A quartette composed of Rotarians John Crane, Douglas Carlisle, R. A. Bro n, and Mr. H. Park was heard to great advantage in two numbers that were greatly appreciated, as was the burlesque squabble with which the musicians were introduced.
President J. H. Seels again called attention to the Kiwanis musical comedy on Friday and Saturday. The Rotarians are attending Friday night's performance in a body

BRIAND LIKELY TO BE PREMIER

Accepts President's Order Provisionally—Will Decide Finally To-night.

EIGHTH TIME.

PARIS, Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press).—Foreign Minister Briand this afternoon provisionally accepted President Doumergue's order to form a new Cabinet. M. Briand announced that he would give a definite reply to the President in the course of the evening.
The Foreign Minister, who has held the Premiership seven times in his lengthy political career, returned to Paris this morning and had two long telephone conversations with M. Doumergue.
Some of the Foreign Minister's friends fear he will not accept under the present conditions. The only alternative to a Briand Ministry, they say, is one headed by former Premier Herriot, with a solid Left behind it, including Socialist participation.

IN MEMORIAM

CAMPBELL.— In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, who departed this life, November 23, 1921.

GERMANY ENTERING THE LEAGUE FOR BUSINESS ADVANTAGES AND TO ASSIST IN RESTORING PEACE

Chancellor Luther Defends Government's Acceptance of the Locarno Treaties.

WILL BE RATIFIED

Political Leaders Expect Big Majority in Reichstag for Ratification.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Chancellor Luther defended the government's acceptance of the Locarno Treaties in an impressive speech in the Reichstag Monday, and requested ratifaction of the treaties on the ground that the restoration and conservation of genuine peace in Europe would re-bound to the political and economic advantage of Germany.

His speech dealt in detail with the significance of the security pact and arbitration treaties initialled at Locarno, which he stated represented in the last analysis an amplification of the convenant of the League of Nations.

The chancellor was given a respectful hearing by all parties, and the parliamentary decorum which prevailed was in strange contrast to the acriminous partisan controversy which have been waged over the Locarno treaties since the German delegates returned from Switzerland.

Predicts Majority Vote.

The adoption of the treaties next Friday by an overwhelming majority appears definitely assured, political leaders predicting that the vote will be in the proportion of three to on in favor of the government.

Chancellor Luther informed the Reichstag that the present cabinet would resign after the treaties have been signed at London, making way for an enlarged coalition government which he said would be pledged automatically to pursue the policies inaugurated with the adoption of the Locarno treaties.

"Germany's inherent potentialities can only be developed along peaceful lines," the Chancellor said. "And her presence in the League of Nations will afford her added opportunities for furthering the interests of her people within and without her borders."

The Chancellor denied that Germany's entry into the League signified a weakening of her political prestige and expressed the conviction that the reasons for joining the League had become more urgent during the last year.

The conclusion of the security pact the Chancellor considered of paramount importance to the political future of Europe. "France, Belgium, Italy and Great Britain formerly proposed a united front opposed to Germany," he said. "Now all five nations constitute a common equality. Thus a security pact aimed against Germany, which was under serious consideration by these other four powers last year, definitely has been disposed of."

Chancellor Luther declared the adoption of compulsory arbitration represented a long step in preserving world peace and conserving amicable relations among nations because it disposes of a policy of dictation and ultimatums.

Infant Mortality Rate In Mexico City Highest

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press).—A statement published by the Mexican biological department says Mexico City has the highest infant mortality rate in the world because so many mothers drink pulque, an intoxicant made from the juice of the maguey plant, which is the alcoholic beverage of the Mexican masses.

Forty per cent. of the deaths in the city are of children under 10 years old. This contrasts with a rate of 6 per cent. in Norway, 10 per cent. in Switzerland, 12 per cent. in England and 14 per cent. in France, according to the department's statement. It declares that pulque drinking by women before bearing children and during the nursing period gives infants such a poor start in life that many of them die young.

Chicago Hold-up Men Shot Officer, Took $50,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—Five or six robbers held up a bank messenger and his guards, shot a policeman, perhaps fatally, in a pistol fight and escaped with approximately $50,000 being transported from one bank to another.

RAISE IN PARCEL POST RATES JUST BEFORE CHRISTMAS HAS AFFECTED COST OF PRESENTS

Small Packages Are Particularly Affected—Big Ones Cheaper.

LIMIT RAISED.

Packages Will Now Be Taken Up to Fifteen Pounds.

The holiday season, with people beginning to send out parcels for Christmas delivery, is bringing into prominence the question of the increase in postal rates recently inaugurated by the Post Office Department. This is especially noticeable where small parcels destined for Great Britain are concerned. Several people who have made up small presents for relatives in the Old Country have discovered that the cost of posting them involves an equal, or greater, expenditure than that involved in their purchase. For articles posted to great Britain, the rate for the first pound is now 24 cents and for any pound thereafter up to the limit of eleven pounds, 18 cents is charged. Formerly, the rate was 20 cents for the first pound, with 15 cents for further weight.

Women who purchase small articles for decoration or goods for making up into fancy articles find the new rates excessive. The new charges, it is claimed, will prevent people from making up these small things and will have its effect also on buying goods from the stores, as many individuals will send money rather than goods to get around the difficulty of the excessive rates. Different charges are in effect with regard to postage to the Continent. An article sent to France by the

"New Authority Of Conscience and Convention," Says College Head, Meaning Girls May Smoke

BRYN MAWR, Pa., Nov. 24 (United Press).—Time in its passing establishes a "new authority of conscience and convention," President Marion Edwards said in effect upon issuing an order which modified the rule at Bryn Mawr College against smoking by the girl students.

The self-government association of Bryn Mawr reported to President Park that it had become increasingly impossible to enfore the rule.

Thus one smoking room has been set aside in each hall of residence and on the lower. athletic field when games are not in progress.

Rules against women smoking "no longer rest solidly on intelligent public opinion," President Park said.

ARMED BANDITS HELD UP TOWN FOR THREE HOURS THIS MORNING

Cassopolis Was Terrorized By Men Who Tried to Rob Bank.

CITIZENS FIRED AT.

Communication Wires Cut and Watchman Bound, But Attempt Was Futile.

CASSOPOLIS, Mich., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Armed bandits terrorized Cassopolis for nearly three hours early to-day, firing at every resident who dared to appear on the street, and finally roared out of town to the staccato accompaniment of their own revolvers, after failing to rob the First National Bank. Their number was variously estimated by excited Cassopolis residents at from five to ten. The bandits entered Cassopolis shortly after 2 a.m. to-day. They bound the night watchman and three other men who were in two all-night restaurants, cut the telephone and telegraph wires leading out of the city and for two and one half hours owned the town.

During the time they held undisputed possession of this Cass county seat town, the bandits fired between 100 and 150 shots (accounts are at variance), and only one shot was fired in return.

Fear of Spud Shortage Is Sending Prices Up

BOSTON, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—Over demand stimulated by the fear of a possible shortage rather than an acutal shortage in this market is apparently the reason for the rapid rise of potato prices, Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the special State Commission on the necessaries of life, reported today. Mr. Hultman said that receipts from Canadian sources this November had been twenty times as great as in the same period last year.

RESIGNATION OF IRISH DELEGATE WAS A SURPRISE

Dr. MacNeill Had Expressed Intention of Signing Boundary Award.

STATEMENT ISSUED

Two Other Commissioners Say Agreement Reached Month Ago.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Up to last Friday, when he resigned from the Irish Boundary Commission, Dr. Eoin MacNeill, the Free State delegate, had been prepared to sign the commission's findings, which had already been recorded in general, it was asserted Monday in a statement issued by the other members, Justice Richard Feetham, the chairman and Joseph Fisher, the Ulster delegate.

The two remaining members declare they had been working in "closest mutual confidence" with Dr. MacNeill, and that his resignation came as a complete surprise. The general features of the boundary line were approved and recorded on the commission's minutes as long ago as October 17, the statement says and Dr. MacNeill made perfectly clear his intention of joining them in signing.

"It was contemplated," the declaration adds, "that a statement should be issued at the same time as the award, indicating that the members of the commission had agreed to sink individual differences of opinion for the purpose of arriving at a unanimous award but not specifying any point upon which such differences had arisen."

DR. M'NEIL HAS RESIGNED POST IN IRISH CABINET

Is Placed in Peculiar Position By Statements of Boundary Commissioners.

WAS READY TO SIGN.

Solving of Crisis Is Topic of Interest in Political Circles.

LONDON, November 24. — Canadian Press. — How the new Irish boundary crisis can be solved, is the topic of general interest in political circles here. Dr. Eoin (John) MacNeil, Free State member, on the boundary commission, who resigned his post, is regarded as being placed in a peculiar position by the statement of his colleagues on the commission.

Dr. Eoin MacNeill, Minister of Education, and former member of the Irish biundary commission, to-day resigned from the Irish Free State Cabinet.

The statement of other members of the boundary commission was to the effect that Dr. MacNeil had been ready to sign the findings of the commission up to the timt that he tendered his resignation.

Other rumours are to the effect that the entire Free State cabinet will resig , but these command less credence than the report that Dr. MacNeil is likely to quit office.

SEARCHING LAKE FOR HUNTER IN ONE OARED BOAT

Charles G. Young Paddled Out to Get Duck and Wind Shifted.

NEAR PORT HURON.

Airplanes and Boats Are Looking For Some Trace of Him.

PORT HURON, Mich., Nov. 24 (Canadian Press). — Nine pursuit planes from Selfridge Field, a motor launch manned by members of the United States Coastguard, and a tug yesterday were searching Lake Huron for traces of Charles G. Young, 25 years old, Port Huron, optician, who is either adrift on the lake in a sail boat with a single oar or has been drowned.

Young and other men were on a hunting trip. About noon Sunday, Young shot a duck, but it fell into the water some distance from shore. Young found a small boat with one oar and started after the duck. Soon the wind veered and blew off shore.

Young, with his single oar, was unable to make progress toward shore as the wind increased in velocity and despite his frantic efforts, he was borne steadily out into the lake.

SENATOR PAUL DOUMER ACCEPTS IN PRINCIPLE PRESIDENT'S OFFER

Will Make Definite Reply To Request Within Twenty-four Hours.

VETERAN MEMBER.

Was Minister of Finance in 1895 and Refused to Form Cabinet in 1905.

PARIS, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press) —Senator Paul Doumer today accepted "in principle" President Doumergue's request that he form a Cabinet saying he would reply definitely within 24 hours.

Senator Paul Doumer, who sits for Corsica in the upper chamber of Parliament, has been a prominent figure in French politics for more than 30 years. It was in 1895 that he was called to his first Cabinet post, that of Minister of Finance.

Ten years later, he became President of the Chamber of Deputies and at that time was considered of Premiership calibre, for President Loubet called him in January, 1905, to form a new ministry, but he did not accept.

He is 68 years old.

Lions Frighten School Children In Transvaal

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press).—Lions, having become numerous in Northern Transvaal, are causing much trouble for the farmers. Children going to school have been frightened by the beasts, and special protective measures have been taken. Forty lions have been killed within the last three months in one district, where they had raided cattle herds and damaged crops.

OPIUM FOUND IN LINING OF SHIP'S REFRIGERATORS

Bootleg Value of Drug Was Over Quarter Million Dollars.

FIND 443 CANS.

Ship's Crew Denies Having Any Knowledge of Drugs on Ship.

NEW YORK, November 24. United Press. — Opium valued at almost a quarter of a million of dollars, if sold surreptitiously, was seized by the customs agents when the steamer Eastern Prince arrived here from the Orient yesterday.

This was the largest opium haul made by Federal agents in the port of New York in some time and customs agents estimated that the over-the-counter value of the seizure was $88,000.

The customs officials had made the usual inspection of the ship without finding anything suspicious until they searched the ice boxes, where they found that the cork linings of the refrigerators had been removed and thatthat 443 cans if first grade smoking opium had taken its place.

The personnel of the ship denied all knowledge of the presence of the drugs on the vessel.

MURDER TRIAL WAS BRIEFEST

Death Penalty Pronounced Three Hours After Jury Empanelled.

MONTREAL RECORD

MONTREAL, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—The shortest murder trial in the annals of the Court of King's Bench in the district of Montreal was completed here Monday, when Joseph Mauro, of Montreal, was sentenced to be hanged on February 19, 1926, for the killing of Donald Carragher, who was fatally shot when Mauro, with a companion, held up the Dreamland Club, in the east end of the city, on July 22 last. Mauro's trial, from the empanelling of the jury until the pronouncement of the death sentence, occupied but three hours.

The hold-up of the Dreamland Club and the murder took place in the early hours of the morning of July 22, when Mauro and a companion entered the establishment and ordered those present to put their hands up. During the hold-up a man threw a chair at the highwaymen, and in the fight which followed Carragher and another man, Charles Duffy, of Malone, N.Y., were shot. Carragher died a few days later, but Duffy recovered. Following an investigation, Detective Armand Brodeur arrested Mauro in Vancouver.

TWO MILLION DOLLAR CEMENT INDUSTRY, BRIGHTON'S DREAM

Rich Deposits of Requisite Rock and Clay Are Available.

ROCK TESTS HIGH

(By a Staff Reporter.)

BRIGHTON, Nov. 24.—A two-million dollar cement plant is Brighton's latest industrial prospect, rich and abundant deposits of the raw material having been located on the farm of Carman Baker, which is within the village limits. Mr. Baker is Reeve of Brighton and his fame is known all over the country as the home of one of the finest herds of pure bred Holsteins in Ontario. About two years ago, this farm became the central point of a sensation when workmen, digging a grave on a sand knoll in which to bury one of the pure bred cows, unearthed a human skeleton, which it was finally decided was the remains of an Indian warrior, who had been laid at rest at least a century ago.

Drilling is Completed.

The company which is interested in the cement deposits have sunk a core drill in various places to a depth of 40 feet and the material brought to the surface has been submitted to an expert for testing. The assayer reports that the rock is 95 per cent pure, one of the highest assays ever yet secured in Canada. The clay which is required to mix with the rock in order to secure a high grade of cement is found in abundance in the immediate vicinity. The drilling has been stopped as the test was satisfactory and the next step in the enterprise is the erection of a plant. If present plans are carried out, Brighton will enjoy one of the greatest industrial booms in its history.

For some years it has been regarded as a certainty that there were rich deposits of this rock on Mr. Baker's farm, but owing to the commercial depression nothing was done. The new plant will be located close to the lake, about a mile and a half from the centre of the village.

Candy Eating To Excess May Cause Motor Accidents

LONDON, Nov. 24. United Press. — Candy eating can lead to motor accidents.

At least, Clement Jeffrey, eye expert, declared in a lecture here that this was true. He added: "Over-eating, and particularly the over-eating of candy, clogs the mechanism of the eye and makes for inaccuracy of vision in driving."

The International Typographical Union was the pioneer among labor organizations in insisting on good sanitary conditions in workrooms. Shorts

A Kiss Is Worth Only $25 When It Hits Lady's Ear

CHICAGO, Nov. 24. (United Press).—William Perske, 81, admitted kissing his 28-year-old landlady, Mrs. Bespina Lolakos, when the latter's $10,000 damage suit came to trial yesterday, but the sprightly octogenarian thought $10,000 was too much "for a little thing like that."

The jury agreed that this price was high, especially since the kiss skidded to her ear when the landlady turned her head.

The jury awarded Mrs. Lolakos $25.

PEARLS AMONG DEAD LETTERS

Necklace Worth $75,000 Left in London Post Office.

ALMOST FORGOTTEN.

LONDON, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—A lost pearl necklace, valued at £15,000 (about $75,000), for the recovery of which there has been offered a reward of £1,000, has been lying in the London dead letter office for three months, while the Canadian police and Scotland Yard agents scoured the two continents for it, it was revealed yesterday.

The loss was reported by the Hon. Mrs. E. J. Blyth upon her arrival in England last August from a tour of Canada. For several weeks the search was conducted in the region of Lake Louise, Alberta, where Mrs. Blyth had visited and where the police found a woman wearing a necklace similar to the one which was lost. Experts decided, however, that this woman's necklace was an imitation.

Early in September an anonymous letter addressed to Ian Blyth, Mrs. Blyth's son, said that a surprise package awaited him at the Post Office. Another letter followed shortly, but the young man, engrossed in his studies at Cambridge University, forgot the letters until last week. Then he sent them to Scotland Yard, which found the necklace intact and restored it to its owner.

DRUSES DRIVEN OUT OF VILLAGE

French Repeated Marne Tactics, Using Taxicabs For Transports.

BEIRUT, Syria, November 24. — Canadian Press. — Druse Tribesmen have aagin been repulsed in a violent attack upon Rasheiya, west of Damascus, semi-official advices say. A widespread action is though to be iminent.

The French took a lesson from the battle of the Marne in going to the aid of the besieged villagers, rushing reinforcements from this city in 100 taxi cabs. Airplanes bombed the rebels from one end of the town where they had gained a temporary foothold.

Ladies' Auxiliary Appeals To People

Through the courtesy of The Examiner, may I again appeal to the public for their generous patronage of our Annual Bazaar, held in the G.W.V.A. Hall next Thursday and Friday, Nov. 26-27, with special opening on Thursday at 2.30 p.m., by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.

The work of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A. is to relieve cases of necessity among women and children of returned men, and this Bazaar is our main source of revenue.

A few devoted women have knit and sewn for this event. They ask the ladies of this city to come on one of the days, and help them in their special work, which should have the very first call on the generosity of all.—Sarah E. Desey, President.

FIRE THREATENS ALASKAN CENTRE

Damage Amounted to $100,000— Twenty-one People Rendered Homeless

WEATHER HAMPERED.

NOME, Alaska, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press). — Damage resulting from the fire which started here late Saturday night, and which threatened for a time to wipe out the city, was fixed yesterday at approximately $100,000. Twenty-one persons were rendered homeless.

The blaze started in a building over the Board of Trade saloon, one of Nome's oldest landmarks, and spread rapidly to a grocery store and rooming house. Firemen and volunteer citizens strove to prevent the spread of the flames, but were hampered by zero weather, which froze the water. Four men were slightly burned.

LEAD CANCER METHOD IS TOLD BY ITS BRITISH DISCOVERER IN CURRENT LANCET JOURNAL

Dr. Blair Bell Has Spent Seventeen Years in Experimental Work—Believes His Injections Hold Out Hope For Victims of Great Scourge.

SOLUTION WITHIN GRASP.

Fifty Out of 200 Hopeless Cases Believed Cured, But the Treatment is Only in Experimental Stage—Hundreds Beseech Help For Affliction.

By Ethel M. Halsey.

"On the medical calenda, there appears, every decade or so, some great new discovery, definitely marking another advance in the battle against disease. The European discoveries of diphtheria and tetanus antitoxins occurred in the '90s; the Rockefeller institute's discovery of the cerebro-spinal meningitis antitoxin was announced in the early years of the twentieth century; recently, Banting's discovery of insulin with its reprieve for diabetes sufferers, and the Dicks' discoveries of scarlet fever cause and prevention have been given to the world. Is the half-decade that has marked these last two important gains to register another victory—the overcoming of the cancer menace? Cancer stands today as the greatest single cause of death to those past middle life. The appalling death rate is apparently on the increase in all civilized countries. With the announcement, before the Toronto Academy of Medicine on Nov. 10, of the findings of Professor Blair Bell's seventeen-year cancer investigation, there appears the possibility that the work of the eminent English surgeon and of his great research staff at the University of Liverpool has, as he phrases his concluding hope, "placed the solution of the cancer problem within grasp, if indeed it has not already been accomplished."

Laboratory Evidence.

In his address, published in a current issue of the authoritative British medical journal, The Lancet, Professor Bell cites extensive laboratory evidence in support of his conception of cancer as "a specific growth process," and a striking clinical proof of the value of a treatment with intravenous injections of a colloidal preparation of metallic lead.

His conception of cancer denies the possibility that its specific cause can be found. The disease has, he believes, "an encyclopedia of causes, which may be found to be associated with one common factor." But the important thing is that cancer is itself "a specific growth process."

This process, his work has shown, is a "biological atavism," a cell "throwback" to earliest type. When, because of any one of hundreds of inciting factors, cells have their normal vitality impaired and lose their power to obtain food, life for them becomes a struggle for existence. Cells may be thought of as retaining "memories" of their earliest life, when this struggle for existence had just started and was at its keenest.

In the fertilized ovum, as it begins to develop in the mother's body, the embryonic, or trophoblastic cells must "eat into" the maternal tissues and draw out sufficient food for themselves and for the other cells of the new life. Their rapid multiplication and absorption of food represent a struggle for existence that is in reality a "normal malignant process," that is normally checked by a natural restraining influence—probably a harmone, or minute chemical messenger, sent from the satisfied cells).

His Hypothesis.

When this normal check fails, the most rapid and malignant known form of cancer supervenes, killing the mother in six weeks. It was this form of cancer "which precluded" his "viewing with favor the parasitic theory of the origin of cancer," said Professor Bell in an earlier publication. And it was this form that gave him his hypothesis sixteen years ago.

If in the mature life of a group of cells there comes again a time when they are involved in a struggle for existence, they revert to this early "remembered" form, the form most readily obtaining food, and surviving under difficulties. Without the normal restraining influence, these perverted cells multiply and "eat into" the surrounding tissues, running the unrestrained, malignant course known as cancer.

This was his conception of cancer. Professor Bell's earliest attempts to find a check were concerned with the attempts to isolate from the body the normal restraining factor. When these failed, lead was substituted, because of its effect on growing tissues and on cells of the trophoblastic type.

In proof of this explanation of cancer, the work done by Professor W. C. McC. Lewis, head of the chemistry department of the Liverpool Cancer Research Committee, of which Professor Bell has been for three years the honorary director, has shown that "the chemical substances concerned in normal and in malignant growth processes are correlated in regard to the permeability of the cell (its ability to absorb) and the rapidity and malignancy of growth." The more permeable the cell, the more rapid and malignant the growth, as a table rising in scale from normal cells, through innocent tumors, to malignant growths of the finer tissues, shows. That is to say, those cells that grow more rapidly, and are accordingly absorbeing food more rapidly and in greater quantities, have a chemical composition that makes them "thinner-skinned," more easily able to absorb this food.

An increased water content, and phosphatides present in greater proportion to other substances, were found to account for the increased permeability.

Degree of Malignancy.

"It has, then, become possible to distinguish chemically a malignant growth from the corresponding normal tissue, and to define its degree of malignancy," Professor Bell explains. "When it was shown that the early trophoblastic elements of the developing ovum are super-malignant, the early hypothesis was chemically confirmed."

As to the treatment with lead: Copper, thalium and thorium were also extensively tried out in the laboratory, but lead alone had the desired properties. In the wide range of experiments conducted it was found that not only does lead check the normal development of ova-growing embryos and seeds and plants, but also that it has a specific lethal action on the trophoblastic cells and on those of cancer.

For five years lead has been given a clinical trial. It is used in a colloidal form (that is, the metal itself is suspended in fine particles in the liquid used as a carrier) and is injected into the blood of the patient in doses whose size and frequency have been determined by the most prolonged and careful study. The lead is attracted by their peculiar chemical content to the cells of the cancerous tissue, on which it exerts a destructive action.

The poisonous properties of lead, which make it of value in checking the growth of cancer cells, make it also, of course, a dangerous remedy. Yet, given as an injection into the blood, the treatment possesses the great advantage over such local treatments as radium and X-ray of penetrating to all parts of the body and acting as a check on the development of metastatic growths away from the main cancerous growth.

Fifty Cases Called Successful.

"Many hopeless cases of cancer have been treated," said Professor Bell, "and while, as is only to be expected in the experimental stage, many have been cured, many have not." Only two cases, both believed to have gone from a "hopeless" state to one of "cure," are cited in the present report. But "out of about 200 hopeless cases treated, fifty are believed to be cured," he stated.

This, then, is the substance, as the non-medical mind can grasp it, of the report of his research. The impression it created when presented to the Toronto Academy of Medicine was profound. "A work of devastating logic," Professor Klotz, well-known Toronto pathologist, characterized the research.

"It was a conservative report of seventeen years of carefully planned experimentation, in which he is now assisted by a group of eminent associates," was the comment of Dr. F. G. Banting, discoverer of insulin. "The method of approach was logical and along the line of fundamental principles of cell growth. The results so far obtained are remarkable, especially since they covered a period of five years, and include both types of malignancy. In this, as in all new scientific developments, further work and time are required in order to prove the definite applications."

This, then, is the cancer "picture" as Professor Bell's seventeen years of research show it. It is notable (because it probably accounts to a great extent for his success) that he started out with the picture practically complete in his mind. He says in his address:

"We have long been in possession of a sufficient number of facts from which to elucidate the final solution—if only they had been properly sorted and placed in their true perspective. That is, if we had only known how they should look when placed."

Mortality Among Women.

A memorandum, quoted in his address, dates the resolve "to investigate the cancer problem by attacking it from the following standpoint"—Nov. 14, 1909. The standpoint was the phenomenon, cited in the explanation above, of the growth process of the trophoblastic cells of the ovum, which he believed to be similar to the growth process of cancer cells. It will be seen that he attacked the problem from the angle of his specialty, gynecology and obstetrics. The mortality among women suffering from cancer of the breast and uterus was a source of great concern to him. "Think of it! We are losing nearly 10,000 of our women of England and Wales yearly from cancer of the organs connected with child-bearing," he said in an address before the North of England Public Health Association.

The early experiments, conducted alone or with only one or two co-workers in his laboratories at the University of Liverpool, attempted to isolate from the body the substance he believed to be the natural check on the growth of the trophoblastic cells. They failed. "But I had a second line of defense," he smiled, referring to the early disappointments.

Professor Bell's Qualifications.

A word at this point as to the character of the scientist himself. "Three qualities are needed by the investigator," he said—speaking not of himself, but of the men working with him on the staff of the Cancer Research Committee. "They are honesty, vision and a gayety of spirit."

Professor Bell is a man in whom it is easy to find all three qualities. He was born in Wallasey, England, fifty-four years ago, and was distinguished, as inevitably as had been four generations before him, to become a surgeon. In his younger hospital days at King's College, London, he listened to the lectures of David Ferrion and watched the great Lister operate. As time went on, his array of honors multiplied. Today he is M.D., B.S., member of the Royal College of Surgeons, Fellow of the Royal College of Medicine, Professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics at the university, surgeon of the Royal Infirmary and Honorary Director of the Cancer Research Committee, Liverpool.

Honesty shines in all that he wants and says; in the eager desire not to overestimate anything he has done; in the meticulous care not to overstate opinions or results of which he is reasonably sure; in his hatred of words that are inexact or of achievements that are incomplete. Vision has outlined the course of his life. It is vision that burns in the deeply sunk keen, blue eyes. And it is gayety of spirit that balances the restless energy written in his thin, sharp features, in his quick motions. Gayety of spirit prints youth in his look and manner, in his smile and laugh.

Professor Bell was able to turn from the defeat of the first experiments to work on the slightly altered plan involved in substituting lead for the substance he could not succeed in obtaining from the body. "With more modern methods and greater technical skill than I have been able to bring to the task, attempts to isolate this substance may yet succeed," he reports, in effect.

The Crowded Years.

With the substitution of lead began the most painstaking experiments to prove the properties of lead, as cited in the explanation above. His activities at this stage covered so wide a field that it is remarkable he was able—usually alone, or with only one or two colleagues—to do the amount of research he did. And this while Professor Bell was operating daily in Liverpool hospitals, lecturing at the university, and finding time for other studies, resulting in the publication of his notable work on "The Pituitary Body," and later "The Sex Complex." War effected an interruption. A slight wound during an operation had its disastrous result in an infection that lost him a finger and kept him in bad health for three years.

Eleven years elapsed after the first memorandum before the work had reached the point of its first clinical trial, on Nov. 9, 1920. A woman was admitted to his maternity ward in the Royal Infirmary for her confinement, which took place a few days later. "She had an extensive ulcerated carcinoma of the left breast," says Professor Bell. "An operation had been considered useless six months previously by two surgeons. I was looking for just such a hopeless case. A section was prepared from a piece of tissue adjacent to the ulcerated area, and intravenous injections of lead were given * * * The patient is well today."

A year after this first injection, the seventeenth "hopeless case" (also said to be well today) received her last injection. Two years after, on Nov. 11, 1922, The Lancet contained the investigator's dispassionate report of the work at that time, based on the failures and successes in fifty cases treated. H. F. Woolfenden, J. Patterson, R. A. Hendry and Dr. J. Bamforth were named as co-workers.

Pleas From Sufferers.

Interesting consequences followed on this publication. An inevitable and pathetic one was the following communicated by Professor Bell:

"We began to receive pleas from cancer sufferers everywhere to be permitted to come and take the treatment. Of course we had to refuse them all. While our work is still in its experimental stage, we have all the hopeless cases we can treat, right in the slums of Liverpool."

Further interest was aroused in the question as to whether lead workers, subject to lead poisoning, are immune to cancer. "During fifty years' experience I have learned * * * that chemical plumbers, constantly * * * using the oxy-hydrogen blowpipe * * * and inhaling lead fumes, are subject to lead poisoning but never to cancer," states a letter received by Professor Bell from Thomas Stuart, General Technical Manager of the United Alkali Company. "Testimony from a district secretary of the United Operative Plumbers' Association confirmed this. "In forty years' experience, during which time a huge number of chemical plumbers have been know to me personally, and twenty-five years as an officer, with all medical certificates passing through my hands—in the whole of my experience I have never known a single case of cancer."

Further statistics tended to show that among lead workers, as among all types of workers, when, due to greater precautionary measures, the death rate from lead poisoning declined, the death rate from cancer rose.

Endowment Fund.

A most important thing for the future of the work was the formation of the Liverpool Cancer Research Fund. This was organized by a group of business men and prominent surgeons and constituted an endowment permitting experiments to continue for a number of years, with a staff of thirty experts, all University of Liverpool men, headed by distinguished scientists in different departments and all under the honorary directorship of Professor Bell.

"They have been 'our aggregate mind'," said the director of this great research unit, "studying the ramifications of a problem the solution of which was impossible to one man's mind. It has been said that so many men could not work together, but we have had the most perfect harmony, and a remarkable keenness has prevailed. The physiochemical work of Professor Lewis and his co-workers has given results of the greatest importance not only to the work in hand but to other involved problems."

The most important work remaining to be done is the stabilization of the lead preparation, so that it can be administered more than three days after it is made—something at present impossible.

The Liverpool Cancer Research Committee is organized for another year at least.

GERMANY WANTS COLONIES BACK

Return is Now Live Issue in International Politics.

WILL JOIN LEAGUE

(By Frederick Kuh.)
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN, November 24. — Germany's demand for the return of some of her ex-colonies is now a live issue in international politics.

Before and during the conference at Locarno Germany told the Allies that she expects her entry into the League of Nations to be rewarded with a mandate for Togo and Cameroon.

Once in the League the Berlin government means to press this demand vigorously. It is too early to prophecy the fate of this campaign but official circles here are optimistic and believe that Britain will facilitate the delivery of the coveted mandates to Germany.

Inside of Germany, however, there is a difference of opinion as to the desirability of regaining lost colonies. To many it will come as a surprise that liberal groups within Germany are by no means overjoyed at the thought of this country's reemergence as a colonial power.

The former owners of plantations in Cameroon, who lost their possessions after the war, have been repurchasing them privately and quietly and to-day the German planters are again masters of the Cameron plantations. By granting Germany a mandate over Cameroon the League would simply be putting its rubber stamp on an accomplished fact.

More radical circles in Germany insist that the return of the ex-colonies to Germany is a trap, calculated to embroil Germany in impending colonial wars. Germany, says these critics, will foot the bill, economically and militarily, for such adventures.

It must be emphasized that these protests emanate from a minority and that the chances decidedly favor the success of the ruling German parties, who demand a return to colonial expansion. But the anti-colonial groups in Germany will still be heard from. Time alone can prove whether they are right in their assertion that German colonial revival will conjure up new war perils.

LEAGUE ATTACKS CHINESE SLAVERY

Domestic Slave Girls Are Expected Soon to be Things of Past.

MANY ABUSES.

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

GENEVA, Nov. 24 (United Press)—The English Government has notified the League of Nations that as a result of steps taken by the British administration at Hong-Kong it is hoped that within a few years the "Mui Tsai" or little domestic slave girls of China will be a thing of the past as far as the Hong-Kong colony is concerned.

The communication has just been turned over by the League to its commission for the abolition of slavery.

According to the communication of the English Government, which was submitted, as a result of the initiative of Foreign Secretary Chamberlain, the "Mui Tsai" system which prevails throughout China, had its origin in a system of charitable adoption of young girls to be employed in domestic service.

However, abuses grew up under the system; parents were paid a sum for the little Mui Tsai girls and these became in many cases the virtual property or domestic slaves of the person adopting them. Other abuses of perhaps an even more serious character also crept in in many cases.

Under the British administration at Hong-Kong it has been established that the payment of money to the parents of little girls on adoption confers no rights. It is also required that all Mui Tsai girls be registered and that none of these can be under ten years of age.

The Mui Tsai girls have also been given the right to claim return to their parents if they wish while the parents on their side can also claim their return without compensation.

It has also been provided that over ten years of age the previous Mui Tsai girl becomes a domestic servant and free agent who must be paid for her work. As a result of these regulations the number of Mui Tsai girls has decreased immensely at Hong-Kong and it is hoped in a few years that the custom will be entirely wiped out.

About half of all agricultural labor in Germany is done by women.

DUNLOP ADMITS HE OWES MONEY

He Refunded Only $11,000 Because He Didn't Know How Much He Owed.

CALLED IT LOAN.

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—That he was still debtor to the Government to the extent of about $10,000, aside from $11,000 already refunded, was the admission made by W. W. Dunlop, former inspector of prisons and public charities, when in the witness box in his own defence yesterday afternoon, before Judge Denton, facing charges involving the theft of $40,000 from the province. The reason he gave for having refunded but $11,000 was that at the time he did so he had been informed by Miss Edna Haskayne, his former acting secretary, that that was all he owed. He had later sought an opportunity of checking over the accounts of the department in order to ascertain the exact sum due and had been unable to do so, but even now would welcome an order from the court permitting the chance.

He asserted he had never at any time looked upon the money as other than a loan to be paid back at any time.

GOOD LAW PERHAPS—BUT.

The decision in the North Huron recount doubtless was good law, but regardless of their political beliefs, there are many people who cannot see why the votes of some 340 electors should be thrown out because an election official made a mistake.

Three deputy returning officers failed to remove the counterfoils from the ballots, as required by the Election Act, and all the votes thus affected were declared to be void.

It is recognized that the secrecy of the ballot ust be kept inviolate, but at the same time there should be some more equitable way of dealing with a mistake of this kind than through the disenfranchisement of 340 voters through no fault of their own.

The instructions to election officials are clear enough, but apparently the deputy returning officers in North Huron failed to read them.

They suffer no penalty for their neglect, but the punishment falls upon one of the candidates and upon those who voted for him.

COWARDLY MOTORISTS.

In two cases reported in Monday's papers, one of them taking place in Toronto, a pedestrian was run down and killed by a motor car, the driver of which sped on his way without any effort to assist his victim.

There should be a penalty of such callousness sufficiently severe to put an end to this cowardly practice which seems to be on the increase.

For the motorist, who perhaps through no fault of his own, is unfortunate enough to be involved in a traffic accident the public will have more or less sympathy, but for drivers who run away from the scene of an accident, leaving a fellow-being prone and bleeding on the road there can be nothing but contempt and scorn.

If the punishment for such an offence were made heavy enough to render it too great a risk for drivers not to return to the scene after an accident, the amendment would be accepted by all decent motorists as absolutely necessary.

Certainly the driver who kills a pedestrian and speeds heartlessly on his way is not fit to sit at the wheel of a car, or to be at large for that matter.

CANVASSING VOTERS.

"Perhaps the time will come when it will be regarded as an impertinence, or at least a violation of good taste, to ask a neighbor how he or she intends to vote. The time may come when it will be assumed that it is a person's own business how he intends to vote."—Kingston Whig.

With the above opinion there are undoubtedly many Peterboro electors in accord.

The system of house-to-house canvassing introduced into election campaigns in recent years is resented by many voters, who take the position that it is their own business how they propose to vote and they object to canvassers who try to drag out information along that line.

A canvass of this nature is of very doubtful value under any conditions, inasmuch as it is usually done by workers with more enthusiasm than tact and with more loyalty to their own cause than actual knowledge of the issues of the day.

The impression made upon the electors usually causes a reaction unfavourable to the candidate on whose behalf they are working, and at best the information they bring back is unreliable.

The average man feels that with every opportunity given to political parties to put their policies before the public through the medium of the newspapers and the speaking platform that the personal canvas might well be abandoned.

THE EXAMINER'S VIEW.

The health controversy having come within the jurisdiction of the courts, the Examiner is constrained from further discussion of the matters in dispute for the present.

The letter in another column today from Lieut.-Col. A. P. Miller, however, calls for a word of explanation, inasmuch as the point of what this paper has previously said editorially on this question seems to have been missed.

The Examiner's view was that when it is admitted that Peterboro is entitled to a score of 50 points on its combined health activities it was a pity that the impression should have been created outside of Peterboro that this city's health efforts only accounted for a total of 12 7-10 points out of a possible 100.

We did not say that 37 3-10 points should be credited to local volunteer agencies, because such a statement would be untrue.

Some of these points would be earned by the Board of Education, which carries on a medical and dental inspection in connection with the Public Schools, some by the Utilities Commission for its protection of the water supply of the city, and some by the City Clerk for his compilation of vital statistics.

In these three departments it would be untrue to say that the work is being done by "volunteer laymen."

The Examiner re-iterates the opinion that when many of the services for the neglect of which the Health Department is being censured are being performed, and apparently performed efficiently, by other agencies this city has suffered through the impression created elsewhere that such services have been neglected here.

PARLIAMENT AND CONFERENCES.

After passing fifteen resolutions and talking for three days, the Dominion-wide Economic Conference which has been meeting at Winnipeg, has adjourned. Speaking of its deliberations and probable consequences, Mr. A. M. Belding, a St. John, N. B., newspaper man, said:

"You are truly the second Fathers of Confederation. A Confederation of future understanding and good will. I trust we have builded better than we knew."

A lot of other people would like to be equally trusting, but are frankly skeptical, says the Ottawa Journal. The trouble with these conferences is that they don't face realities. One of the things they excel in is the casting of slurs upon politics and politicians, thus weakening the sole and only instrument by which, under the constitution and system of government which obtains in this country, national problems can be solved. Hardly a speech in Winnipeg but which bristled with reflections upon politicians.

The problems of this country can only be settled by the elected representatives of the people in Parliament. The clear duty therefore of those who wish to help this country is to help educate public opinion so that public opinion will place the right people in Parliament. Conferences and speeches which make belittling and thoughtless references to politicians, and which do not seem to evince knowledge that there is such a thing as Parliament, can do no good. On the contrary, they do infinite harm. They are almost the foundation of the unthinking sneers one sees at all public life, of the weakening of parliamentary authority, of the disposition among many to run the country as though an electorate had no existence.

Canada should be weary of conferences. We have had them about every conceivable subject under the sun—almost as often as commissions—and what good have they done? Who reads, or acts upon, or is influenced by, the platitudes of their resolutions? A few less conferences, a lessening of pious resolutions, and a little more active interest in the practical politics of the country in spheres where policies can be translated into realities, is what is needed at the present time.

COMMUNITY AND COMMUNISM.

In the mind of the peace-loving, industrious citizen intent on providing for his family and loyal in the observance of his duties to society the question must often arise, How and when is all this Bolshevist danger now threatening our social fabric to end? He must be assailed by fears for his own security when he reads day after day in press despatches of Communist conspiracies aimed at the overthrow of Governments and the extinction of all law and order. He finds the disciples of this doctrine of anarchy everywhere feverishly busy spreading their baleful gospel, creating unrest, hatching plots, and inciting to revolution. There is no country that has not been invaded by them, and wherever they are, there peril exists. They mould ignorance to their will, and find ready allies among the impoverished, the dissatisfied and the criminal elements of communities. They worm their way into Labor organizations and strive to unsettle the judgment of the worker; they seek to undermine the allegiance of those disciplined forces on which peoples rely for their national defense, and they strike at the loyalty of all engaged in the service of the State. They go farther even than that: they inaugurate elaborate campaigns to disseminate their tenets among the youth of the nations. They establish schools to which they lure immaturity, and in which they teach principles destructive of all social rules, all moral doctrine, and all religious faith.

Under the influence of this malign movement, armies are now marshalled against the peace of China, rebellion to overthrow British rule is being fomented in India, dissatisfaction has been created among the once contented populace of Japan, race hatred of the whites grows apace in every country of Asia and among the tribes of Africa, economic disturbances agitate Germany and France, and alarm at the invasion of subtle and deadly enemies of her industrial progress has compelled Great Britain, once the asylum of political refugees, to close her doors to the missioners of a novel econmic faith. The United States has found it necessary to exclude and to deport the advocates of theories inimical to the rule of law and authority, and Canada is beginning to realize that even within her peaceful boundaries these foes of mankind are carrying on their activities.

The Manitoba Free Press the other day contained an article declaring that a publication of rabid Communist leanings is being distributed among pupils attending Winnipeg public schools. The paper, known as Our Dawn, and printed by the "Winnipeg Young Pioneers," a branch of the Canadian Communist party, is addressed to children of from 10 to 13 years of age. It is avowedly anti-religious, and its battlecry is: "Every School Our Fortress—Let Us Each Be a Bolshevik in Deed as Well as in Word."

Nor is Winnipeg the only centre in Canada of this teaching. In this city there exist what are termed Soviet Sunday schools, where it would be difficult to find a Bible or a pupil with any knowledge of a Christian creed. A week ago Saturday, at a luncheon given in honor of Lady Cowan, President of the British Women's Patriotic League, the statement was made by a responsible citizen that eight of these schools existed in Toronto. This is bringing the Bolshevist peril close to our own doors, and while it is true enough that, so far, it is largely confined to the foreign quarters of our cities, it is not unreasonable to expect that, with their attention drawn to the existence of the evil, our authorities will take some steps to deal with it.

Can it be wondered at that in Europe and countries of the older world, where the danger has attained proportions unknown on this continent, and where every family's security is imperilled, public-spirited people have banded themselves together to combat it? Governments are proverbially slow to move, Governments in Anglo-Saxon countries especially so, and the existence of anti-communistic organizations in Britain may be regarded as a commentary on the apathy of the Administration.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

This is Canadian Book Week. It should suggest the desirability of a good book by a Canadian author as a Christmas gift.

No mayoralty candidates in the field yet. Evidently possible aspirants are adopting an attitude of watchful waiting.

The Painleve Government has resigned and another political crisis threatens. One good thing about it is that the French are used to such a situation.

If Right Hon. Mr. Meighen enters the by-election fight in Bagot, as is now stated, the contest should be a memorable one.

If seventy per cent. of the car drivers in Peterboro do not know the rules of the road, as an official states, it is more than ever up to pedestrians to stop, look and listen.

The London Advertiser is waiting for some cynic to remark that the Canadian Parliament will be marked by the "speech from the thrown."

A THOUGHT.

WHEN THE RIGHT BREEZES COME ALONG.

Energy and enthusiasm do not always burn out; they just smolder. They need only to be touched by a little breeze to burst into flame. The old draughts may not affect them in the least, but let a new breeze from a new angle get under the smoldering old lump and the spark is still there to act.

You will always find that old spark of nthusiasm right there on the job when the right breeze comes along.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

THE HEALTH QUESTION.

Dear Sir,—

With reference to your editorial in The Examiner of Saturday last, your suggested report, which contains figures admitted by the D.M.O.H., would give the Health Department of this city credit for 12 7/10 points and the local volunteer agencies credit for the balance i.e. 37 3/10 points. In other words, the volunteer agencies are doing three times as much work as the said Health Department of this city. That so great a proportion of this medical work should have to be done by volunteer laymen is deplorable.

Recognizing that it is too late to shout for help when a drowning man has gone down for the third time, the D.M.O.H., with the best interests of this city at heart, shouted his warning just in time to save us from being engulfed by the ravages of communicable diseases.

Every individual is vitally interested in the Health conditions of this city. They have a right to the maximum protection that can be given them. The various volunteer organizations have been conducting their campaigns for some years. They have been winning an increasing support of the public who will demand that the health conditions in this city stand second to none in the Province of Ontario and therefore in the Dominion of Canada.

The Examiner can do much towards bringing this about. Let it support a demand for a thorough investigation, at once, into the health conditions in this city with a view to determining which of the two medical reports are correct.

If this investigation shows the conditions are not as bad as they have been pictured, it will be time enough then to deplore the publicity given. If, on the contrary, the investigation shows that the conditions are as bad or worse than they have been pictured then it will be in order to demand an immediate re-organization of the Health Department of this city.

Thanking you for giving this space in your valuable paper, I am,

Yours truly,
A. P. MILLER.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—General selling largely of a profit-taking character led to sharp set-backs today in the price of wheat. Much of the selling appeared to result from talk which was current that advances of late had been too rapid, and that a reaction was to be expected. Wheat closed nervous, 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 net lower; new style, December 1.58 3-4 to 1.59 and May 1.55 3-4 to 1.55 7-8, with corn 1-4 to 3-4 down; oats 3-8 to 5-8 off, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 35c decline.

Weakening of wheat values here was preceded by an early advance in wheat, the July delivery established a new high price record for the season. This advance was due more or less to unlooked-for strength in quotations at Liverpool and to Argentine crop estimates indicating 70,000,000 bushels less as compared with the outlook ten days ago. Announcement of a falling off in the amount of wheat on ocean passage was likewise a temporary stimulating factor, and so was word that in the last 48 hours 2,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been bought for shipment to Europe.

STERLING RATES

Sterling demand $4.83.
Sterling cables $4.83 1-2.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—The general condition of the egg market remains firm. A higher tendency to the market is reported from Charlottetown due to lower receipts. A carload of Japanese eggs rolling from Vancouver to Montreal has been diverted to Toronto.

Toronto — Unchanged. Country shippers paying extras 52, firsts 46, making sales, extras 40, firsts 52, f.o.b. A car of British Columbia fresh is due here today.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—There was a steady demand from local buyers for Manitoba spring wheat on spot here and sales of No. 1 Northern were made at 7 3-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg November option, and No. 2 Northern at four cents per bushel over, c.i.f. Bay ports, and No. 2 feed oats changed hands at three cents per bushel over the May option, c.i.f. The tone of the market for oats was firm under a good demand for supplies. Car lots of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white were quoted at 53, No. 3 white at 51 1-2, and No. 4 white at 49 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track, with Ontario malting barley selling at 85 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track.

There were no further developments in the local egg situation, but the undertone to the market for all grades was very firm and prices showed no change. The consumptive demand continues good and a fairly active business was done. The receipts were 1,338 cases, as compared with 1,010 for the same day last week, and 1,633 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Heavy Shipment of Eggs.

The exports of eggs from the Port of Montreal last week were the largest of any previous week this season there being 14,524 cases shipped which showed an increase of 4,334 cases, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 2,454 cases with the same week last year, while the total shipments for the season to date have been 2,240 cases in excess of the same period of 1924.

The exports of butter from the Port of Montreal last week were only 100 packages which showed a decrease of 804 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 1,239 packages with the same week last year, while the total shipments for the season to date have been 65,948 packages larger than the same period of 1924.

The receipts of butter in Montreal today were 427 packages, as compared with 94 for the same day last week, and 350 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no important change in the condition of the market, prices for all grades being firmly maintained owing to the somewhat limited supplies available, but the market was rather quiet.

Cheese Exports Higher.

The exports of cheese from the Port of Montreal last week were 75,756 boxes, which show an increase of 31,202 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 46,028 boxes with the same week last year, and the total shipments from May 1 to date have been 159,195 boxes in excess of a year ago.

The receipts of cheese today were 3,731 boxes, as against 5,424 for the same day last week, and 3,346 for the corresponding day a year ago. The export trade was very quiet and as this is the last week of ocean navigation from this port, the number of vessels sailing suitable for carrying this class of goods is small the indications are that there will not be much activity. The tone of the market was about steady with early makes on spot quoted at 23 3-4 cents to 23 cents per lb, and current receipts at 21 1-4 to 21 1-2 cents per lb.

Beans were steady at $2.40 per bushel.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—There was nothing the matter with the demand for export cattle in today's market. The trouble is the scarcity of choice fat cattle suitable for export purposes. As a result this week's shipments will be limited to the capacity of one boat instead of two. Trade for exporters opened good and active, prices averaging slightly higher than last week. Export bulls were especially firm at $4.75 to $5.50. Choice fat steers firm at $7.50 to $8.30, with one bunch of extra choice steers, 1,135 lbs., bought for export at $9.

Butcher cattle trade active for anything choice, but supplies of the right sort scarce. Common to medium stuff moving, but trade slow. Choice butcher steers firm at $7 to $7.50, and a few extras higher.

Calves steady, $11 to $12.

Lambs steady, $13.50.

FINAL BUTTER AUCTION.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press).—At the Quebec Feedrated Co-Operative Society auction sale of butter held here today there were 400 packages of No. 1 pasteurized creamery offered for which 42 1-3c per lb. was bid and refused with 43c per lb. asked. This was the last auction sale of the season 1925.

It is not generally known that Ohio produces nearly one-fifth of the total volume of paint products in the United States, its output reaching 22,000,000 gallons a year, which exceeds by 2,000,000 gallons the total of her nearest competitor, New York State.

LONDON RUBBER MARKET SOARED

Wild Session on Stock Exchange to Fill Accumulated Orders.

PRICE UNCHANGED

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Although spot rubber remained unchanged at 4s, 6d, (about $1.08) per pound, there was wild excitement on the stock exchange yesterday with dealings in rubber shares recalling the boom conditions of years ago.

Dealers found greatest difficulty in executing the orders which accumulated over the week end, as well as in keeping track of the prices, which soared all day long throughout the list, though developing some irregularity toward the close.

Spot crude rubber has more than doubled in price since last April, when it sold at 44 cents a pound. From that point the price rose gradually until on July 22 it touched $1.20. Later there was a reaction to 70 cents in August. The price in the last ten days has gone from that point to above the dollar mark, reaching as high as $1.12.

CLERGY ATTEND DEAN'S FUNERAL

All Kingston Churches Represented at Dean Starr's Service.

SOLDIERS PRESENT

KINGSTON, November 24.—Canadian Press. — The funeral service of the late Dean Starr was conducted in the Cathedral Monday morning commencing at 11.30. The Cathedral was crowded to the doors with a most reverent congregation.

The first portion of the service which was fully choral, the male choir being out in full strength, was recited by Rev. W. E. Kidd, the acting Rector, while Canon Woodcock of Brockville, read the lesson. The second portion of the service was recited by the Bishop of the diocese who also gave the blessing.

Representatives were present at the service from all the city churches. Rev. Father Hyland was present as representing the congregation of St. Mary's, while Rev. Father Lacey represented Rev. Archbishop Spratt, and Rev. Dr. Kingsley, the congregation of the Good Thief, Portsmouh.

Represening the Kingston Ministerial Association, Rev. G. A. Brown, of Chalmer's Church, Rev. (Colonel) A. M. Gordon, and Rev. Dr. MacGillivray, minister emeritus of Chalmers Church, were also present, while many other ministers of different denominations occupied seats in the Cathedral.

The permanent force garrison attended the service in full strength, the R.C.H.A. brigade, together with detachments from all the departmental units in the garrison parading to the Cathedral.

Following the service in the Cathedral the remains were taken to Brockville on the C.N.R. train, leaving the outer station shortly after one o'clock. The remains were accompanied by Rt. Rev. Bishop Bidwell, who conducted the service at the grave.

STRIKE OF SOFT COAL MEN NEXT

May Be Called Out in Effort To Aid Anthracite Miners.

WOULD BE TIE-UP.

WASHINGTON, November 24, — Canadian Press. — Serious fears are entertained here that the strike of anthracite coal miners is to be strengthened by a walk-out of their brethren workers, the bituminous miners.

The charges levelled by President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, in a letter to President Coolidge, that certain of the large soft coal operators are breaking their wage agreements, are interpreted in government circles as meaning that in a last effort to win the anthracite strike, Mr. Lewis will attempt to call out the unionized soft coal workers.

Non-union operators in bituminous field insist they are capable of filling the country's fuel demands should there be a strike in the union mines, but the opinion is expressed by those in close contact with the situation that in the event of a soft-coal tie-up the public would be burdened with still higher prices for Strenghten up for Winter!

A RUN DOWN body is an easy prey to colds, influenza, pneumonia and other winter ills. If you let yourself get run down, you will find that the slightest exposure to a draught or dampness will often bring on a severe cold or even dreaded pneumonia.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients, and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness, and the general debility that accompanies a run down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

CONSERVATIVES ENTER FAUTEUX AS CANDIDATE IN BY-ELECTION

Hon. Arthur Meighen to Assist Former Minister in Bagot Fight.

BALLOTING DEC. 7

MONTREAL, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—Hon. Andre Fauteux, former Minister in the Meighen Cabinet, was chosen as Conservative candidate to contest the constituency of Bagot, in the Federal by-election, to be held on December 7, at a convention held at St. Liboire Monday.

The by-election was necessitated by the death of J. E. Marcille, the Liberal member-elect, who died shortly after the recent general elections.

Following his selection, Mr. Fauteux told his hearers that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Federal Opposition, would be in the county during the campaign.

The speaker paid tribute to the late J. E. Marcille, who for 27 years had represented the county; but he was convinced the Conservatives would seize the opportunity to elect a Conservative to show the country that the French-Canadians of Quebec did not believe in a solid bloc against the other provinces.

"The County of Bagot is called on by force of circumstances to make a fight, not only for itself, but the whole country," said Hon. Mr. Fauteux.

FOG HAMPERING BY-ELECTION IN ENGLISH RIDING

Vacancy in Bury St., Edmunds Division of West Suffolk.

RURAL INTEREST

National Farmers' Union Submit Questions to Both Candidates.

LONDON, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—The by-election campaign in the Bury St. Edmunds division of West Suffolk is being carried on amidst a deep fog—atmospherical, rather than political—and the candidates have almost to grope their way to their meetings nightly owing to the unpleasant weather. The by-election has been necessitated by the promotion of the Conservative M.P., Rt. Hon. Walter Edward Guinness, former Financial Secretary to the Treasury, to the Cabinet position of Minister of Agriculture, which has been vacated by Rt. Hon E. F. L. Wood, recently appointed to succeed the Earl of Reading, Viceroy and Governor-General of India, who is retiring. Mr. Guinness has represented Bury St. Edmunds in the House of Commons since 1907.

A Dickens Scene.

This ancient town of Bury St. Edmunds shares with Ipswith the somewhat unenviable suspicion of having served as the original for "Eatonswill," where the famous election recorded by Charles Dickens in "Pickwick Papers" is supposed to have occurred. The present political contest, however, is gentlemanly enough, although the farmers of the country are hot on the track of the new Minister of Agriculture, seeking assistance for agriculture.

Mr. Guinness is being opposed by George Nicholls, Liberal. Both of the candidates are paying a good deal of attention to the small scattered hamlets in the riding, and their meetings are well attended, notwithstanding the unpleasantness of the weather.

A question that is being persistently asked of the new Minister is as to what the Government's much-heralded agricultural policy is. Mr. Guinness replies to these questions by pleading for time to familiarize himself with the various important matters connected with his department, as he has just assumed the office of Minister of Agriculture. However, he says he is quite ready to declare that Lloyd George's "back to the land" agricultural programme is unworkable.

Farmers Active.

The chief officials of the National Farmers' Union have descended en masse into the Bury St. Edmunds electoral division and have tackled both candidates with a sheaf of questions. The answers given to the questions will decide the union as to which side it will give its influence.

In the last general election Mr. Guinness was opposed by a Liberal candidate in Bury St. Edmunds, J. A. Day, whom he defeated by a majority of 6,881.

ROME, Nov. 24.—An indication that Premier Mussolini is far from considering new parliamentary elections at an early date is given by the Giornale D'Italia, which reports a conversation between the Premier and an unnnamed Fascist Deputy.

When the latter made some reference to elections, Mussolini is reported to have remarked smilingly: "We can speak of elections only after 1987, when Italy will have finished paying the last installment of the debt to the United States."

BAILIEBORO CHURCH TAKES ALLOTMENT

Share of Fund for United Church Will Be Raised There.

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 23—Owing to the fact that a new campaign, in connection with the United Church of Canada, is under way, special meetings were arranged to be held at the three appointments of the Fraserville circuit, in order to explain clearly the nature and aim of the campaign along with the part to be played therein by each church.

On Tuesday evening this meeting was held at Bailieboro, in connection with the weekly League meeting. Special invitations were extended to the older members of the congregation to be present in order that the new issue might be openly discussed.

After the devotional exercises a pleasant half hour was spent in viewing lantern slides of the Missionary work in Japan. The pastor clearly explained the new issue and an open discussion followed. Mr. Edmund Dawson, who was the circuit delegate to the meeting of the Presbytery, held in Cobourg, further explained why such an amount of money should be levied on the churches. The people present were asked to take a vote, as to whether or not the Bailieboro Church would adopt the share assigned to them. The vote was unanimously accepted by the congregation.

After the business part was completed the ladies served lunch and a social hour was spent by all present.

A Presentation

The members of the Bailieboro United Church and Sunday School gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dawson in honour of their recent marriage, and also to remember the former's mother, Mrs. C. Dawson, whose departure from this comunity takes place shortly.

Mr. John Porter acted as chairman, owing to the fact that some pastoral duties of Mr. Folley prevented him from being present. Mr. Porter related in a few words the place both Mrs. Dawson and her son had filled in the church and that the object of the gathering was to show, in part, the esteem in which the people held them.

Miss May Earl read the following address and Mr. Harry Dawson, superintendent of the Sunday School presented Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dawson with a Coleman lamp:

Bailieboro, Nov. 18th

Mr. Frank Dawson,

Dear Frank,—I am sure you will be surprised to have so many uninvited guests invade your home tonight; but we, the members of the Bailieboro United Sunday School feel that we cannot allow this happy time to pass without showing you in some way our high regard for you and expressing our best wishes for your future happiness and welfare.

You have grown up among us and you have ever merited the high esteem of all who have been associated with you whether in Sunday School work or your daily life. We are especially pleased that you will still be among us, and, I am sure, ready and willing to help in the Master's work.

We now ask you to accept this small gift as a slight token of our esteem for you and we earnestly hope that

Your joys may be deep as the ocean, and
Your sorrows as light as its foam.

Signed on behalf of the Sunday School—May Earl, Harry Dawson, superintendent.

Mr. Dawson briefly expressed his thanks on behalf of his wife and himself and extended a hearty invitation to everyone to come and visit them again.

Mrs. Fred C. Jewison read the following address and Mrs. Harry Barnard presented Mrs. C. Dawson with a black leather club bag fitted with ivory.

Bailieboro, Nov. 18th.

Dear Mrs. Dawson,—As the time has come when the pelasant relationship among us as friend and neighbour must cease, we feel we cannot sever those ties of fellowship without expressing in some slight way our great appreciation of your work among us.

We feel that we are losing a friend and neighbour of whom we are justly proud, and whom we are going to miss exceedingly. In our church and Sunday School you have always been a faithful and willing helper.

In wishing you good-bye, we could not let you leave us with only the memory of our pleasant associations together, so we join in asking you to accept this small gift, as a token of our love and appreciation of you. As your circle of friends continues to widen, may you not forget your friends at Bailieboro.

There's something in the parting hour,
Will chill the warmest heart,
But this I've seen and many a pang,
Has pressed it on my heart;
The one, who goes, is happier
Than those she leaves behind.

Our best wishes go with you into your new home. We trust that you may be spared many years of health and happiness.

Signed on behalf of your neighbors and friends of Bailieboro United Church.—Mrs. Harry Barnard, Mrs. Fred C. Jewison.

Mrs. Dawson expressed her heartfelt thanks to the people for their kindness and asked that all might come to see her in her new home in Toronto.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and music. After lunch was served the gathering dispersed.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

SANITARY DISPOSAL OF SEWAGE NOT YET WIDESPREAD ON FARMS

Majority of Farmers Retain Methods of Early Pioneers.

AN ESSENTIAL STEP

If Many of Diseases Now Prevalent Are To Be Stamped Out.

By W. E.

Modern sanitation has become recognized as a necessity and is insisted upon by law in the cities, towns and villages of the Dominion, besides being rapidly accepted as a necessary convenience in up-to-date rural communities. The agricultural areas of Peterborough County have not yet reached the high standard in sewage disposal which has been attained by other rural districts in the Province, especially in Western Ontario. A few of the more up-to-date farms in Smith have modern sanitary installations, but the majority of farmers have retained the sewage disposal methods of the earliest settlers.

The sanitary disposal of household sewage is a first and essential step towards the elimination, not only of typhoid fever, but also dysentry, hookworm, tapeworm, and round worm diseases, much of the diarrhoea of infant and adult life, and no small proportion of, the tuberculosis.

Dangers of Neglect.

If human filth is not properly disposed of, it may be carried by washing rains, or surface draining into water supplies, or it may be shifted by flies, the nastiest of all insects, to human foodstuffs, indeed busy fingers may be slightly, but not noticeably soiled, during work in the neighbourhood of carelessly disposed of sewage, and thus become a medium for the carrying of disease germs to food or drink destined for human mouths.

Sewage is unsightly, and contains a large amount of highly putrescible matter, which, when exposed to the air, rapidly decomposes, and adds numerous foul odours to its many other objectionable qualities. In addition, sewage contains bacteria, microscopical plant growths, which are in many cases injurious to health.

Systems of Disposal.

For some of the farmers near Bridgenorth, the problem of waste disposal is simplified by the proximity of the great swamp and sewage lines which are led into this convenient receptacle. But where nature has not provided such a suitable disposal ground, scientific methods must be adopted.

When a community attempts to keep abreast of the times in this way, it is well to realize that the work of installation calls for experience and the fee of an expert consulting engineer is a wise expenditure. Where the soil is suitable, sub-surface disposal methods are applicable to populations up to 200 people. Where the population is too widely scattered to permit of community effort, there are comparatively cheap installations available for the individual household. These may be grouped under two heads—the dry method and the wet method.

The Dry Method.

A simple type of chemical closet, consisting of a sheet-metal water-tight receptacle containing disintegrating chemical disinfectants has met with considerable favor in farmhouses and rural dwellings. These closets, with vent pipe and appurtenances can be had at prices ranging from $20 upwards. For small hamlets and rural institutions, larger tanks are installed of 150 gallons capacity and upward.

The chemical deodorizes and disinfects the sewage, the chemical action being accelerated by the aid of a macerator which is operated by the alternate raising and lowering of a rod affixed to the back of the closet seat, a few strokes being sufficient to make the tank boil from end to end. The tank, placed under the floor, is emptied by a force lift pump and the contents are buried in trenches, a plough or spade deep.

In the Western Provinces, where these closets are installed in schools, a bonus is given by the Department of Education to the schools. This helps to defray the cost of instalation.

The Wet Method.

The most satisfactory method yet devised of sewage treatment calls for a supply of water and the flushing away of all waste through a water-tight sewer to a place of final disposal.

Septic tank treatment should be used without exception in places where a municipal sewage system is not available. Rural conditions generally necessitate subsurface disposal. This method requires: (1) a porous, well-drained soil; (2) a fall of at least 12 inches per 100 feet from the dwelling to the tank and, (3), a location of disposal plot below wells and water supplies.

No part of the installation, not even the pipe lines, should be less than 40 feet from any well, and the location should invariably be on the downhill side of the well.

A septic tank installation comprises: (1), a house sewer; (2), the tank; (3), a siphon chamber; (4), a disposal bed with an arrangement of channels from which the sewage may seep into the soil.

Advantages of the Siphon.

The purpose of the siphon chamber is twofold. The first is to secure an intermittent discharge, thus allowing a period of time for one dose to work off in the soil, and for air to enter the soil spaces before another flush is received. The other object is to assure even distribution over a large area. By using a siphon, the whole day's flow of sewage is discharged into the disposal plot. In this way the sewage is applied to the whole bed at once, giving the ground a chance to "air out" before another day's flow is received.

For a family of 5 persons, complete sewage arrangements can be made under the septic tank system at a cost of approximately $175. With ordinary everyday precautions, such a system is workable for many years, without any expense beyond that of periodically relaying the tiles.

Because of the way they are built, insects are particularly fitted for a strenuous life, and a tired insect is

CROPS STILL OUT.

TREATMENT FOR BROKEN HORNS

Bleeding Should be Stopped as Soon as Possible.

AVOID GIVING PAIN

With cattle it is not uncommon for a horn to be knocked off in fighting, or by accident sustained in the shipping crate or railway car and immediate treatment is necessary. Bleeding often is profuse. That may be stopped by bathing with very cold or very hot water and keeping the animal's head high. If it can be obtained at the time, powdered alum frely dissolved in the bathing water will more quickly stop the flow of blood. The solution may also be used to saturate a mass of cotton or oakum to be bound upon the horn stump as soon as the bleeding abates. The veterinarians use certain styptics, or blood-stopping drugs, internally and externally. Ergot is the one most given internally and Monsel's powder and Monsel's solution of iron are used externally. They quickly coagulate blood and form a strong crust upon the horn. This is somewhat of an objection in that pus tends to form under the clot and may give trouble. It is best, therefore, to control bleeding without using the strong stypties, if that can be managed.

If the animal is purebred and valuable and the horn has merely been knocked to one side and the bleeding core or matrix exposed, it is possible in many cases to save the horn by putting it back in position, if necessary also bending the core into its place and then holding it there by the means of a splint after the parts have been cleaned and disinfected. The splint, fastened on by means of wire, may have to be kept in place for six weeks or more, until healing is complete.

When the horn has been knocked off and the bleeding core is exposed, treatment consists chiefly in perfectly cleansing the part, stopping the blood at the same time, applying a three per cent solution of coal tar disinfectant to prevent infection, and then applying a permanent dressing of pine tar, oakum, and a bandage. It is well to mix some of the disinfectant with the pine tar. Doing so adds to the disinfecting power of the tar and also helps to keep flies away. The dressing may be removed when it loosens or if pus or other fluid starts oozing. A new one has then to be applied.

In some cases the horn is knocked off and the core so smashed and bent out of place that simple treatment will not be likely to avail. It is then best to cleanse and disinfect the parts and amputate the horn core with clean, sharp dehorning shears, if available, or with a clean, sharp bone or meat saw. Use of the saw adds pain, however, and that should be made as slight as possible. Administration of an ounce or two of chloral hydrate in water is resorted to by the veterinarian and soon gives the cow relief. It is humane to administer such a calming drug in all cases where suffering is actue or will be so during an operation. It is to be hoped that the barbarous days of brutality to animals are past and that every owner and veterinarian will do his utmost to lessen the suffering of the beasts for which he has to care. Recovery also proceeds more satisfactorily when pain is assuaged or prevented.

When a horn has been lost and the core is protected, the part will in time become covered with horn growth, but not with a perfect normally shaped horn. Dehorning is usually the best policy.

BOOSTS MARQUIS

Crop Reports

The harvesting of root crops has progressed very slowly and considerable quantities of mangels, turnips, sugar beets and potatoes have not been lifted. The work has been disagreeable and earth has adhered to roots, which created unfavourable storage conditions. Because of frost injuries, some mangels have been ploughed down in Peel County and reports from several sections indicate that roots are not keeping well.

R. Atkin, Representative in Hastings County, reports that some buckwheat and seed crops are still in the fields in his district. A Durham County farmer last week hauled in clover which had been cut for two months. During the fine days of the past week, excellent progress was made in plowing where the soil was not too wet. This work is fairly well advanced in Central and Western Ontario, excepting sections where large areas of roots are grown, the harvesting of which employed all available help. In the Eastern Counties, wet weather appears to have interfered more with plowing and the Representatives in some Counties report that only about half of the usual area has been turned over.

A. W. Sirett, Kingston, Frontenac County: Cheese factories are still running and are turning out a good supply of cheese for the season. The price is around 23½c per lb. for colored. Since the cool weather, there is more farm dairy butter being put on the market. No doubt the advance in price during the last month or so has induced this.

R. E. White, Chatham, Kent County: The majority of farmers have their feeding steers. The price paid this year runs from 5½c to 6½c per lb. A couple of cars of good export steers were sold from Chatham at 8c. Hogs advanced $1.50 this week. Prices to the farmer have been around 12c. There is a good demand for all live stock. The harvesting of beets has been very slow this week. With the continued wet weather it is impossible to get beets out of the fields. Many of the fields are covered by by water. The wet weather has not resulted in any serious effect on the fall wheat. General condition is healthy. Very little fall plowing has been done, largely on account of the exceptionally wet condition of the land.

W. S. Van Every, St. Catharines, Lincoln County: Fresh milk cows are being readily picked up both at auction and private sales. Prices for these range from $50.00 to $125. The milk and cream supply is somewhat smaller than ordinary. Butter on the local markets is selling quite readily at 50c per lb. Apples are beginning to command a little more respect. Prices remaining about the same but the amount of turnover seems to be increasing. Potatoes range in price from $1.85 to $2.25 per bus., depending upon color and quality. Cabbages are rather light in supply and are selling in a wholesale way at from $4.00 to $6.00 per hundred heads.

R. A. Finn, London, Middlesex County: Live stock at auction sales have been bringing very satisfactory prices and quite a few carloads of feeder cattle are being brought in, ranging in price from 5¾c to 6½c per pound. The London District Milk Producers are forming a marketing organization whereby all milk supplied to the city will be sold through one organization. The weather has been very unsatisfactory for farm operations during the last month but particularly so during the last week. Sugar beets are being pulled and thrown in small piles and will be left there until the ground freezes. Turnips that are being brought in have much earth adhering to them. Digging potatoes has been a slow, wet and dirty job.

APPLE SHORTAGE SEEN IN SPRING

Many Were Caught on Trees by First Heavy Frosts.

NOW WORTHLESS

COBOURG, Nov. 24. — Notwithstanding the immense crop of apples this season, there are those who predict that apples will be scarce before the winter is over. A farmer, who resides only a little way out of town, has two thousand barrels, many of them Spies, unpicked at the present time, it is estimated. His crop was sold subject to the buyer being able to secure barrels for the fruit. These were not forthcoming until after the first heavy frost and, as a result, the crop is almost a total loss. The same condition prevails on many farms. Orchardists state the frost struck the apples before the winter varieties gained maturity. The result is that the amount of fruit gathered before the frost came, is not large. Apple buyers, working in the Niagara district, claim they are not getting as many apples as they require. In most cases there the crop on many a fine orchard is stated to be a complete loss, and the same conditions prevail elsewhere.

It has been advocated by some orchardists that frozen apples if put in a pit would come out in good shape next spring. H. D. Wilson of Bowmanville, in commenting on this, says such fruit would be worthless when the pits were opened, that apples for pitting should be in first class condition.

Farm Notes

AT EAST EMILY.

EAST EMILY, Nov. 24.—A good many of the farmers in this district have their roots out yet, and even some have potatoes out, the weather not being suitable during the past for work of this kind. Some of the men are still trying to get some ploughing done.

PLOUGHING BACKWARD.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 24.—Ploughing is very backward in this vicinity owing to the constant rains. Many oldtimers remark that this is the wettest fall in their recollection. There are still a few turnips in the field and acres of buckwheat and corn are still out. Regardless of this, the farmers have no reason to complain as many claim they had the largest yield of grain this year that they have ever had while farming the land on which they now live.

APPLES LEFT OUT.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 24.—This week, if the weather is at all fit, there will be quite a headway made in the ploughing. Low-lying land is too wet now. There is some threshing to be done yet. Apple picking is over as any apples which have not been picked but were left on the trees during the recent frost are useless now. There has been so much rain and snow that the roads are bad in most places.

TERRILL FARM, NEAR WOOLER, PRIZE WINNER IN EVERY WAY

FANCY WORK, TOO.

Prize Won For Fine Land and Buildings—Babies. Win Prizes, Too.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WOOLER, Nov. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill spent the week at the Winter Fair in Toronto, a holiday in every sense of the term for them as they have nothing on exhibition and attended only to see what other leading farmers in Ontario are producing. Mr. and Mrs. Terrill were familiar exhibitors at the fall fairs in Central Ontario this year and none was more successful as prize winners. They showed samples of nearly everything in the shape of grains, vegetables and seeds that can be raised on the land and the number of tickets which they secured is almost beyond computation. From no other farm in Ontario has such a variety of exhibits figured at the fairs and it is certain that none attained a higher standard. They won prizes for wheat, barley, oats, rye, buckwheat, peas, red clover seed, alsike and timothy seeds, a collection of garden seeds, roots and vegetables of all kinds, and the championship with two cabbages, one of which weighed 18 and the other 16 pounds. Mrs. Terrill was equally successful as an exhibitor of fancy work.

A Prize Farm.

It was a prize-winning farm that produced so many premium-winning products, a farm that has taken part in provincial competitions, soil and appointments to count, and which has won more than one silver cup and other trophies. The farm is one of the most favorably situated, one in which everything that experience and intelligence can do to enhance its natural advantages has been done, that can be found anywhere. It has been in the Terrill family for four generations, the original owner getting a deed from the Crown. To Esli Terrill, father of S. L., and who still lives on the farm with his son, belongs the credit for bringing the property up to its present high standard.

A U. E. Loyalist.

The ancestor of the Terrill family was a United Empire Loyalist who, when he left the United States on the breaking out of the American Revolution, came to what is now Brighton Township and was given a Crown deed for 400 acres of land about a mile from where the village of Wooler is now located. In 1827 he deeded 130 acres of this land to his son, and this was the starting point of the farm that has since won silver trophies in competition with others in the Province. The son, it seems, was noted for energy from the beginning of his career. He loaded lumber on a sleigh and moved it to the hill which he had selected as the location for his home. The house was completed in one day and on the following day the young man was busy clearing the land.

Years of Progress.

Developing such a farm as the Terrill homestead was a slow, laborious and costly process. Eli Terrill, who succeeded his father as owner and who still lives on the farm, during the years of his active life kept on making improvement after improvement. In 1906 he erected what has been pronounced by experts to be one of the finest and best planned farm buildings in Ontario, a structure 40 by 112 feet with an "L" 30 by 40 feet, erected on a cement foundation. Over a ton of nails and 65,000 feet of lumber were used in the construction of this building. All the imber was cut on the farm, hauled in he rough to the site for the barn and a portable mill was secured to reduce it to the required dimensions. Mr. Terrill was his own architect and the building was put up from his plans as originally prepared without a change. The cattle stables, well ventilated and supplied with running water, are in the main building, and the horses are housed in the "L," with the name of each animal painted on his particular stall. All arrangements are so convenient that no unnecessary steps are required in taking care of the large stock.

Pure Bred Holsteins.

Up to an early period in the present century Mr. Terrill kept grade Durham and Ayrshire cattle, but he began the raising of pure bred Holsteins about that time and the big barn was built for their accommodation. He now owns a large pedigree herd and his dairy arrangements are up-to-date in every sense. A cement tank, 12 feet deep, has been sunk in a hill near the house and in this, in the hottest weather, cream can be kept sweet for days at a time. When the thermometer has shown 120 degrees in the sun, the temperature in this tank has stood at 54 degrees. Milk and cream are lowered into and raised from the tank with an engine.

Model Farm Home.

The two-room house, the one that was built in a day, stood for years as a landmark but no vestige of it remains. The foundation, on which the present home stands, was built nearly 100 years ago. The original building, erected on this site and remodeled a few years ago, is a handsome white frame structure, conveniently arranged. The floors and all the interior woodwork are of oak that was raised on the farm. The home contains a modern bathroom, is supplied with running hot and cold water and heated with a pipeless furnace.

Mr. Terrill now leaves the active management of the farm to his only son, S. L., and with his wife is spending his declining years in well-earned ease and comfort. His brother, the late Joseph John Terrill, was for years teacher in the institute for the deaf and dumb when it was located in Brantford and the former's widow taught in that institution when it was transferred to Belleville.

Prize-winning babies, as well as grains and live stock are being raised on this farm. Percy Gooding, who has been employed on the Terrill place for the past 14 years, was married about two years ago and with his wife occupies a comfortable residence. Nancy Elizabeth, their first child, took second in the special prize offered by The Peterborough Examiner for the best baby under 12 months at the Campbellford Fair and also was a winner at Roseneath, Warkworth and Norwood. Nancy Elizabeth would have been given a 100 per cent. mark by any of the expert medical judges but for the fact that she was half a pound over the standard weight for infants of her age.

JUDGING EXPERT

With Chester Brown, Archie Won Ontario Hog Judging Championship.

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—Ontario certainly produced the champion boy as one of the stellar exhibits at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair. His name is Archie Campbell and his home is at Ilderton with his chum, Chester Brown, from the same community. Archie is here to try his mettle as a judge of bacon hogs against representatives of seven other provinces, but whether he and his companion win or lose, Archie will have established fame for himself. The boy is 16 years of age, weighs 225 pounds and towers above his companions and is certainly the most prominent figure in any group he joins.

The two boys from Ilderton form part of a group of sixteen boys and girls representing Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Having won competitions in each province as the best pair of the numerous "boys and girls" swine clubs in judging select bacon hogs. Following this success the provincial representatives became the guests of the Canadian National Railways and were brought to Toronto. While here they are competing for the challenge cup offered by W. D. Robb, vice-President, and the winning team will thus become champions of the Dominion.

These boys and girls are given the opportunity of visiting the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair as an educational feature and while here have been busy at every section of the show, under the direction of representatives of the Department of Colonization, Agriculture and Natural Resources, Canadian National Railways, and various officials of Federal and Provincial departments.

There has been a marked growth in the formation of boys' and girls' swine clubs throughout Canada, and the result has been a great improvement in the development of a good type of bacon hogs to suit the demands of the domestic and export trade. It has been clearly demonstrated that hog production is a profitable one for the farmers, but there has been a considerable change in the grade required. Formerly the fat hog was in demand, but is no longer in fashion.

A striking feature of the competition this season has been an increase in the number of girls competing in the provincial events with the result that in Manitoba, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, teams of girls won the right to come to Toronto. These girls are keen and alert and the ten boys will have a busy time to get to the head of the list ahead of them.

PREPARING SOIL FOR THE HOTBED

Should be Piled With Manure for a Time Before Using.

BETTER RESULTS

Soil for hotbed work requires proper preparation to give best results. Too little attention is paid to its preparation by the majority of growers, and this may be attributed much of the difficulty encountered in the production of healthy plants. It costs very little more to prepare the soil properly, than to follow the questionable method of using the same soil over again or obtaining soil without regard to its condition.

A clean piece of sod should be selected, preferably on sandy loam soil. Cut and pile the sods carefully with alternate layers of manure. The cutting and piling should be done either in the autumn or during the month of June, at any rate the pile should be left standing over the summer, when the whole pile, or the part required may be cut down and piled in a convenient place for the hotbed work the following spring. This method of preparation will provide a soil with ample fibre, which is very essential, and which contains sufficient plant food for ordinary work. If the soil is not considered rich enough for special work, more manure may be added or commercial fertilizer used to supplement the manure already present in the soil.

While the foregoing method is the most satisfactory, if this procedure has not been followed, it is often possible to obtain sandy loam soil from the surface of a field that has just produced a hoe crop in a three or four-year rotation. This soil should be obtained in the fall, and piled in a convenient place, and if not rich enough in plant food, commercial fertilizer may be added to suit the special requirements. As a rule, however, this is not necessary, because in a well-planned rotation, manure is used quite liberally, which should render the soil in fairly good condition for the purpose.

When it is not convenient to obtain a sandy loam soil, and heavier soil has to be used, clean sand may be added until the proper consistency of soil has been obtained. Under normal conditions it is always possible to water, but attention must be given to drainage or it will be difficult to keep conditions right for plant growth. Those who have not been preparing their hotbed soil in advance, should make a start now, as it is a step towards greater future profits.—T. F. Ritchie, Asst. in Vegetable Gardening.

Market Easier In Toronto Although Volume Greater

TORONTO, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—Despite a considerable increase in the volume of trading, the market was distinctly easier on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Consolidated Smelters, the centre of attention, sold down to 144 3-4 during the session, recovering, however, to 146 at the close, a net loss of a point and a half from yesterday. Brazilian, also active, sold down a point at 74¼. International Utilities, Canada Bread Common and B Preferred, Canadian Canners Preferred, Brompton and British Columbia Fishing were all fractionally lower. Twin City, in fairly active dealings, sold up a half point at 71½. Dome Mines was marked down 50 at 17.00.

Sudden Rise At New York Followed By Sharp Drop

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—A further downward readjustment of prices took place in today's stock market. Supporting orders were freely supplied at the opening, with the result that a number of issues were elevated 1 to 5 points, but the higher prices invited a renewal of bear pressure which wiped out the earlier gains and carried a number of popular issues 1 to 5 points below last night's final quotations. There was nothing in the day's news to account for the decline, but the uncertainty regarding the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate and the absence of organized support for recent leaders led to rather extensive liquidation of long accounts. Chrysler opened five points higher at 180 and then slipped back to 170 before it met effective buying support. General Motors dropped from 111 1-4 to 106 1-2 and Coca Cola, Midland Steel Products preferred, Westinghouse Air Brake, and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe slumped 4 3-4 to 6 points below last night's closing quotations.

Wheat Takes Big Jump Goes Up 5 Cents To-day

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—With big trade in progress and influenced by an unexpected steep advance in quotations at Liverpool as well as by reports of increased crop damage in Argentina, the wheat market here made a nearly vertical rise of five cents a bushel today. The bulge in values brought out heavy selling to realize profits, but persistent fresh buying readily absorbed the offerings. The upward swing of the market both here and at Liverpool was based altogether on Argentine shipments and particularly on advices that black rust was attacking the wheat crop in the central zone of Argentina in addition to ravaging the northern part of the country.

Chicago opening prices 3 1-8 to 5 cents higher, new style, December 163 to 163 3-4, and May 159 to 160 1-4, were followed by wide fluctuations in which at times the initial gain were surpassed, May touching as high as 161, an overnight jump of 5 1-4.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength. After opening 1-8 to 3-4 cents higher, December 73 7-8 to 74 1-4, corn scored a moderate further advance.

Oats started 1-8 to 3-8c up; December 38 7-8 and later hardened a little more.

Provisions were responsive to the upward trend of grain and also of the hog market.

Decrease In Trading On Standard Mine Market

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.)— The market was weaker on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning and trading decreased in volume. Capitol and Columbus Kirkland were most heavily dealt in, and Capitol eased a point while Columbus Kirkland was sold up seven-eights at 3 1-2. Goldale sold down a point and a half at 3 and Beaver was a point lower, while there were numerous fractional declines. Keora and Kirkland Lake were fractionally stronger and Argonaut in active dealings gained three-quarters at 15.

RAISE IN PARCEL POST RATES JUST

direct route, which is a slow service of about once in a fortnight, costs 22 cents for the first pound, while the same article sent by way of the English delivery, with daily routing, costs 48 cents for the first pound.

Domestic Rates Also.

The difference between the old and new rates of postage of articles within the boundaries of the Dominion are also raising objections from the public. The old rate to any post office with 20 miles radius of the sending point was 5 cents for the first pound, with increases of one and two cents per pound thereafter until the eleven pound limit was reached at a cost of 22 cents. The new rate increases the limit to fifteen pounds, charges 10 cents for the first three pounds, with five cent increases on the next three pounds until the limit of 30 cents is reached. To any post office within the province beyond twenty miles the old rate scaled from 10 to 60 cents; while the new reaches from 15 to 55 cents. To Quebec or Manitoba, the old rate was 10 to 80 cents, with 20 to 75 on the new card; in Saskatchewan or the Maritime Provinces from 12 cents to $1.02 has been increased from 20 cents to $1.25. Alberta rates formerly were 12 cents to $1.24 with 12 cents to $1.32 charged to any post office in British Columbia or the Yukon. The new rates are 25 cents to $1.50 for the Alberta offices, and 25 cents to $1.75 for the latter places. Of course, it must be remembered that with these rates, the old charges had to do with a limit of only eleven pounds, while the new rates allow a weight limit of fifteen pounds.

To Newfoundland and Labrador, the rate is 12 cents a pound.

The Post Office authorities point out that the United States has recently increased its postal rates from 12 to 14 cents a pound.

Among the countries lately added to the list of those to whom insured mail can be forwarded are China, Germany and Holland. The list includes Great Britain (including Northern Ireland), Grenada, the Irish Free State, New Zealand, St. Vincent and the United States.

The Post Office heads are encouraging early mailing of Christmas letters and parcels and are equally strong in trying to discourage the sending of small postcards and envelopes at the holiday season, as these are particularly awkward in the handling.

FARMERS UNION IN BY-ELECTION

Opposes New Minister of Agriculture as Protest Against Policy.

WANT PROTECTION.

LONDON, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—An interesting phase of the by-election in the Bury St. Edmund's division of West Suffolk, where Rt. Hon. Walter E. Guinness, former Financial Secretary to the Treasury, is offering himself for re-election because of his appointment as Minister of Agriculture, is the opposition of the Farmers' Union to his return to Parliament. Ninety-five per cent. of the members of the Farmers' Union are Conservatives normally, but they are dissatisfied with the Government's agricultural policy.

The Union to-day resolved to oppose the Government candidate and throw the weight of its influence on the side of the Liberal candidate, George Nicholls. The farmers allege that the Baldwin Government has neglected the agricultural interests and they find fault with the Government's refusal to tax imported malting barley.

BOYS' PARLIAMENT MEETS NEXT MONTH

Two Local Boys Are Contesting Seat—Election on Saturday.

The Boys' Parliament, which consists of representatives of the various electoral districts of Ontario, and has for its purpise the carrying on and improving the C.S.E.T. programme for Tuxis and Trail Ranger groups, meets this year again in the Parliament buildings in Toronto, on December 28, 29, 30 and 31, 1925.

Last year the Parliament voted a large sum of money for promoting the work in the province, and through their bond selling campaign raised a great deal more than their objective. Through the success of this effort the Provincial Board has been able to give greater service to the boys of the province.

Badge work, which is an important feature of the programme, has been greatly benefited by the meeting of the parliament as a number if new badges have been added to the list and conditions under which the old ones can be won have been improved.

The candidates for Peterborough in the coming election are Ted Outram and Adam Sands. These boys have had a wide experience in boys' work, and are well qualified for the position for which they are running.

Who Can Vote.

Any boy who has passed his 12th but not his 21st birthday on Nov. 28th, 1925, who is a member of an organized S. S. Class or C.S.E.T. group that is duly registered with the Ontario Boys' Work Board, and has had the names of its members placed on the returning officers' list by Tuesday, November 17th, 1925.

Where to Vote.

In the Y.M.C.A., George street; in Park street Baptist Church, Park street.

When to Vote.

Between the hours of 4 p.m., and 8.00 p.m., on Saturday, November 28th, 1925.

The returnin officer for the city is Mr. Tom Dutton, 239 Stewart street, Phone No. 684. All leaders of organized classes should see that all names are on the voters' lists now.

Lists have been sent out to the various Sunday schools for these names and it is imperative that they should be in the hands of the Returning Officer as soon as possible.

There will be an advance poll open in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday evening 7 to 8 for boys going out of the city or who know they will not be able to vote Saturday.

Don't Squeeze Black-Heads—Dissolve Them

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads makes the pores large and causes irritation. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin, and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of peroxine powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off, and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition.

VINDICATION SEEN IN HOCKEY AWARD

Frank Ahern Says Rumors Will Be Ended By Damages Obtained From "Citizen."

OOTAWA, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—The $100 damages awarded the Ottawa Hockey Association, Limited, by Mr. Justice Rose in its $45,000 suit against The Ottawa Citizen, is regarded by Frank Ahern, president of the Ottawa Hockey Association as a "vindication of hockey." He said it would put an end to the rumors that "one hears on the street that hockey games are not honestly played."

The Citizen, in an editorial this morning, accepts the decision "cheerfully," and expresses its sincere regret that the wording of the editorial conveyed the impression which Mr. Justice Rose found in it. "The Citizen did not mean to say that games were corruptly arranged, and it did not intend to suggest or imply that they were."

"Here y're, Kip's love letters, absolutely unexpurgated," was the cry of the bootleggers.

NO STATEMENT FROM CABINET

Ontario Government Had Long Session To-day, But Made No Announcement.

SESSION NEXT YEAR.

TORONTO, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—For well over three hours the Ontario Cabinet wrestled with affairs of State to-day, finally adjourning early this afternoon, and while, if signs are read aright, the session was of utmost importance, none of the Ministers, from Premier Ferguson down, would make any comment on the proceedings at the adjournment.

The Premier stated that the Legislature programme had been given consideration by the Cabinet, but would not admit that an early session was imminent.

From other sources it is learned, however, that the session will open early in the year.

TORONTO CHURCHES ARE SUCCESSFUL

Several Have Already Raised Most of Share in United Church Budget.

TORONTO, Nov. 24. —Though yesterday was the first real day for the start of the canvass on behalf of the $4,000,000 fund for the United Church of Canada, it was reported at headquarters of the Toronto Conference last night that already $200,000 out of the $750,000 objective set for this city and district had been subscribed by city churches alone. The work had also begun in points outside of Toronto.

Among those reporting for the day were Westmoreland Church, which had reached the $5,200 mark out of an objective of $5,500. The workers are still busy. LAY OUT ROUTES FOR BUS SERVICE

James L. Clifford States Nothting Definitely Decided —Confer With Council.

SIGNS NOW UP.

Regarding the proposed extension of the Hydro Radial Service in Peterboro, James L. Clifford stated to-day that nothing definite had been decided and that there had been, as yet, no conference with the City Council. Believing that the service is for the greatest interest of the city, he had gone forward with the work of laying out routes, and placing signs at places where buses might stop advantageously. The routes are defined as marked on a map and it is displayed in the window of the Railway Office on George street.

There will be at least four buses of the street car type placed in operation along a well defined route covering Ashburnham and Jackson's Park, while provisions have been made for another auxiliary service to be placed later if conditions warrant. Each bus will accommodate 25 persons comfortably.

Mayor Turner, when questioned, said that while as yet the matter had not been placed before the council he was confident that the change was in the interests of public convenience. He did not attempt to state the attitude which the council might take regarding the matter.

Welsh Tongue Was Spoken When People Didn't Wash

LONDON, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—"The Welsh language belongs to the days when people wore armour and didn't wash themselves; it is of little use in this work-a-day world." So said Chairman Davies of the Montgomeryshire (Wales) County Council, in defending the appointment of a chief constable, whose ignorance of the Welsh language has led to protests against the appointment.

Chairman Davies himself is a 100 per cent. Welshman.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germs.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Cremulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BURIAL GROUND AT WARKWORTH MUCH ENLARGED

Two and One-Half Acres Added on East Side of Cemetery.

PRIVATELY OWNED

Lots Will be Sold by Wm. E. Hermiston—Site Beautiful.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, Nov. 24.—Some time ago C. J. Boyce, H. L. Walker and C. H. Curtis were appointed a committee to secure additional grounds for a cemetery and they have accomplished the work that they were called upon to perform. Two and a half acres on the east side of the old cemetery have been set aside for the burial of the dead, and the ground has been surveyed by an expert. The location, on the summit of a hill is ideal, and the arrangements are perfect. The new cemetery is under private ownership, the proprietor being William E. Herminston from whom the ground was secured, and who will sell lots to those who desire to purchase them. Mr. Herminston will be responsible for the upkeep of the grounds and the place will be known as the Her iston Hillcrest Cemetery. Lots are now for sale.

Fred W. Wilkins of Norwood, the surveyor who laid out the lots and the avenues, says that no better site for a cemetery could be chosen and that it can easily be made one of the beauty spots in Central Ontario. The old cemetery, which was always well kept, is filled with graves and the securing of additional land was a necessity. A vault was recently erected through the exertions of the members of the Women's Institute, so that the Warkworth Cemetery is modern in every respect.

SPECIAL PREACHER AT CAVAN CHURCH

Rev. F. H. Howard Spoke About Missionary Allotment.

CAVAN, Nov. 24 — On Sunday evening the Rev. F. H. Howard preached in Cavan United Church.

The congregation of the United Church, Millbrook, had withdrawn their regular Sunday evening service on account of the anniversary services in the continuing Presbyterian church there. This left Mr. Howard free to accept the invitation of the Rev. J O. Totten to preach a missionary sermon in his church at Cavan. Mr. Totten was also present and conducted the service.

Mr. Howard explained the "Budget" of the United Church to the congregation, showing just why it is necessary for the Presbytery to ask for a large sum of money to sustain and carry on the various activities of the church. The sum will be larger this year, he said, than for continuing years, as the change has incurred greater expense. The sum allotted to Cavan Circuit is twelve hundred dollars.

This week an effort will be made in all churches to have the sum allotted to them subscribed. The stewards of the different churches will make a canvass of the congregations.

In Otonabee, the death occurred on Saturday, November 21st, of Mary Elizabeth, the two-month-old infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Shaughnessy.

MRS. JOHN VANCE.

Mrs. Vance was stricken suddenly and unexpectedly with pneumonia on Tuesday morning and all that doctor, nurse and loving care could do was done, but without avail. Mrs. Vance was a good neighbor and loving mother and leaves to mourn her loss three sons and two daughters, Robert of Cutknife, Sask., Herbert of Peterborough, Richard at home, Mrs. Bert Foster (Polly), of Midland, and Mrs. Jack Kerr (Lila) of the 8th Line, Manvers. Mr. Vance predeceased her about twenty years ago. The funeral service on Wednesday at 2 o'clock will be in charge of her pastor, Rev. REVISION COURT HELD MEETING

Dr. Hay Complained That His Assessment Was Too High.

REDUCTION GIVEN.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 24. — When the Court of Revision met to consider appeals against the assessment for 1925, only one was received, that of Dr. G. A. Hay, who complained that the assessor's valuation of his property on Front Street was $100 higher than what the doctor paid for it 10 years ago. The doctor also asserted that he was assessed higher than his neighbors on either side of him and added that he did not ask for favors but for simple justice.

Land in that part of the town is assessed at $30 foot front and this brought the doctor's assessment on his lot up to $900. The building was valued at $300 and the business assessment was placed at $400, a total of $1,600. While the doctor did not object to the assessor's valuation of the land, he held that the valuation placed on the building was high and hence the business assessment was excessive.

After considering the matter from all angles and listening to Barrister G. A. Payne, who appeared for Dr. Hay, the court decided to let the land assessment stand and to reduce that on the building to $250. This automatically brought the business assessment down to $325 and the doctor expressed himself as satisfied with this finding.

Mayor Meyers presided, and the other members of the court present were Councillors Cole, Kingston and Wiggins. Deputy-Reeve Palliser, the fifth member was absent.

An Assessor's Record.

Matt Mulhearn has acted as assessor in Campbellford for the past five years. In that time not more than half a dozen appeals against his work have been received, and the case heard last night was the second to be sustained. The other successful appeal heard one year ago, involved technical question with regard to the business assessment of the Hydro.

Burnbrae W.M.S. Meetings.

Unionist and Presbyterian Societies Both Held Meetings.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 24. — The Burnbrae Unionist W.M.S. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rannie on Thursday evening. A number from the Hoard's congregation were present, the total attendance being about 100. Mrs. Malcolm Totton, vice president of the Society presided. The devotional exercises were taken by Rev. C. Daniel of Seymour circuit and Mr. Williams of Hoards. Vocal selections were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Donald and Miss Marjory Rannie. Mrs. Ashton of Campbellford gave a splendid address on organization and work of the W.M.S. of the United Church. Mr. Daniel also gave a short talk. At the close of the programme lunch was served by the hostess.

The donations for the thankoffering handed in at the meeting amounted to $148.00 while the evening's offering was $8.30.

A considerable number from this locality attended the fowl supper at St. John's United Church, Campbellford, last Tuesday evening. The bountiful supper was much enjoyed, as well as the excellent program of music and addresses, especially that of Rev. Mr. Kenney of Belleville who has always been a favorite with Burnbrae people.

St. Andrew's W.M.S.

The St. Andrew's W.M.S. held an open meeting in the church on Friday evening with an attendance of over one hundred including a few from Rylstone. Mrs. W. H. Little read the Scripture lesson from Romans 14. Interesting readings were given by Miss McKenzie and Mrs. Craighead. A vocal duet was rendered by Mrs. Craighead and Miss Helen Oddie, a vocal solo by Mrs. Wm. Matthews and soprano solo, Miss Jean Craighead. Rev. Mr. McKenzie also gave an address. At the close of the program lunch was served and a social hour spent together. The amount of the annual thank-offering, handed in at this meeting, will be reported later.

FOX FARM MOVED TO N. MONAGHAN

George Hendren's Success at Lakefield Encouraged Him To Broaden Out.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 24. — Mr. George G. Hendren, who has purchased property in North Monaghan, has removed his fox farm to this new location. Mr. Hendren went into this interesting business a year ago, and has met with great success, which meant the securing of larger premises. Mr. and Mrs. Hendren and their family will be a decided loss to the village they leave with the best wishes of hosts of friends for their continued success.

Buried on Saturday.

The funeral of the late Frederick Waldon was held on Saturday afternoon from the family residence, Queen Street, and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives, who paid their last token of respect to one, who for many years had resided in and about the village and was known to everyone, his genial nature winning him many friends. Rev. Walter Cox conducted the funeral service giving a message of comfort to the family and friends of the deceased, picturing the place prepared for by the loving hand of God Himself, the city of many mansions, and entered by many gates, the last gate being death, which leads to life everlasting.

Mr. Waldon was a member of many years' standing of the Canadian Order of Foresters and was borne to his last resting place by six fellow members of the Order, Messrs John E. Richardson, W. N. Dorin, James Campbell, W. H. Casement, Chas. Thomson and David Darling. Interment was made in the Lakefield Cemetery.

Hunters Home.

The return of the hunters and the consequent settling down to village life for the winter will doubtless mean a meeting of the Lakefield Curling Club at an early date to lay plans for the season's games. Last season in spite of the drawback of mild weather in February and March, was in many ways an extremely successful season. With an open bonspiel in January and a local bonspiel in February and last of all a competition for valuable prizes given by two prominent members which provided a bon mot to finish the season in approved fashion. Difficulties which arise during the year were discussed at the closing banquet and measures taken to prevent a recurrence. The officers and executive are planning a record year at this popular game.

Softball Lingers.

The softball season dies hard it seems as most of us felt that when the silver cup was presented by Mr. Bailey, president of the Rink Co. to the winning team of Selwyn that the season closed there and then. But no, the girls were just getting warmed up and have played three games since that, putting up a brilliant game against Warsaw. Tuesday evening will see the best double header of the season, when the Selwyn girls and Lakefield girls meet, and the Selwyn team play an All-Star Lakefield team. Selwyn are always supported by a good crowd of fans and if Lakefield supports their aggregation as well there should be a good crowd as well as on Wednesday evening. Selwyn plays Jopling A. A. team also in the Lakefield Rink.

Golden Wedding.

Mass will be said in St. Paul's Church at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 24, marking the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. D. Garvey of Smith.

Fire Brigade Meeting.

An important meeting of the Volunteer Fire Brigade is being held in the Memorial Hall on Tuesday evening of this week.

Clementi Lodge, A.F. & A.M. will parade to the Regent Street Church on Sunday evening next, when Rev. S. A. Kemp will give a special sermon appropriate to the occasion.

Special mention was made of the death of Queen Alexandra in St. John's Church and a memorial service will be held at a date which will be announced later, probably at the time of the funeral service in London.

BLOODLESS REVOLUTION GIVES EGYPT SECOND GOVERNMENT

Nationalists, With Independents' Support, Set Up Zagloul Pasha as Premier.

REGIME WEAK.

CAIRO, Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—The government has not yet reached a decision, notwithstanding long cabinet meetings, as to how to meet the awkward situation which has arisen through the success of Zagloul Pasha's revolutionary action— his election at a private meeting of Senators and Deputies to the position of president of the chamber—carried out calmly in defiance of threats that military steps would be taken to prevent such a coup.

The Egyptian parliament was dissolved last March, but, contending that dissolution was illegal, Zagloul secured the adherence of the Liberals and the Independent party, and this united opposition has constituted itself into a parliament, with Zagloul as its head.

Zagloul Pasha thus is again in a strong position, and the governments proportionate weakness and loss of prestige are shown by the fact that it has not dared to lift its hand against those who have defied its authority.

The general belief is that the government, of which Ziwar Pasha is prime minister will decide to promulgate a new electoral law and hold elections, hoping thus to induce the moderates under Abdel Khalek Sarwat Pasha, former foreign minister, and Sidky Pasha, who joined the Zagloul banner to return to the ministerial ranks.

WARKWORTH HYDRO BOARD HAS SAME PROBLEM ALL OVER AGAIN

Rates Were Cut, But New Customers Came in and Surplus Grew.

PRICE TOO HIGH.

Rates Fixed By H. E. P. C. Enable Baord to Pile Up Large Surplus.

(By a Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, Nov. 23—Since the rates for commercial and domestic lighting have been reduced the number of consumers has increased by over one third and the local commissioners find themselves in the same old quandary—the price per kilowatt is still too high and the surplus continues to pile up. Part of this surplus has been loaned to the Percy Township council—or will be if the necessity arises—at five per cent, a lower rate of interest than that at which money can be secured from any other source. All ratepayers profit by this transaction but it is felt that the benefits should go to the people who have created the surplus and the only way to accomplish this end is to make the rates for electric lighting still lower.

The local commissioners for over a year have been agitating for a reduction but until recently have been unable to get any action from the Hydro people. Then the former seized the dilemma by both horns and brought in a new schedule of their own. The old minimum charge for electric light in Warkworth regardless of the installation was $3.15. This the local commission cut to $1.80. The domestic rate was reduced to eight cents for the first 40 kilowatt hours, and three cents for the remainder and the commercial rate to six and two cents. The bills last month were made out on this basis. The new consumer started to come in quicker than their houses could be wired and the surplus continued to grow.

Hydro Commission

In the meantime the Hydro Commission took action and has submitted a new schedule of prices in which the minimum rate is set at $1.50, 30 cents lower than the local commission's charge, and the commercial price is fixed at 16 and 8 cents and that for house lighting at eight and two cents. Which of these schedules will prevail permanently is a matter which remains to be settled in the future.

Details of Consumption

In the meantime, in order to show how the system has been conducted since its inception two years ago the local commission submit to the public the following detailed statement of the amount used and paid for by each consumer up to September 30 last.

C. S. Osborne, 425 k.w., $72.45; J. E. Thompson, 1027 kw., $106.38; H. Insley, 1026 k.w., $72.21; C. H. Greenly, shop, 222 k.w., $38.81; residence, 564 kw., $63.65; W. W. Weaver, 230 kw., $72.08; A. PESSIMIST WINS AT WARKWORTH

Codrington and Percy Institutes Compare Him With Optimist.

NORHAM, Nov. 23.—On Thursday afternoon a union meeting of the Codrington and Percy Women's Institutes was held in the basement of St. Paul's United Church, Warkworth, to hear the debate that had been postponed from two weeks previous on the subject, "Resolved, that the Pessimist is of greater benefiti to the country than the Optimist." There were about 75 persons in attendance. Mrs. William Hermiston, the president of Percy Institure, had charge of the meeting, which opened by singing "The Maple Leaf Forever." Mrs. William John Harper, in a few well chosen words, warmly welcomed the visitors of the afternoon. The judges were: Mrs. (Dr.) James Richards, Mrs. Helson and Rev. J. F. Everson, of Norham. Timekeepers, Miss Morin and Miss Honey.

Rev. W. W. Jones was called to the chair and requested to call the debaters. Mrs. W. J. Morin and Mr. Aubrey Woof, of Codrington, upheld the cause of the optimist and Mrs. James Black and Mrs. Leigh Isaac spoke in the interest of the pessimist. Mr. Woof took part by way of giving a paper for one of the lady debaters who was unable to be present on account of illness in her family.

After the debate a piano solo was rendered by Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones. A reading was given by Mrs. Lorne Evans and a vocal solo by Mrs. Frank Bowen. Rev. J. F. Everson then announced the decision of the judges, who gave a verdict in favor of the Percy debaters. The meeting was brought to a close by singing 'God Save the King," after which lunch was served. Misses Francis and Beatrice Jones furnished piano music during the lunch hour. Previous to the serving of the lunch, Miss Perry, teacher at the Oak Heights public school, and who was to have taken part in the debate gave an address on "The Benefits of the Pessimist."

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

The Meyersburg Ladies' Aid was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert Bertrand, the president of the society. The attendance was good. The meeting was opened by singing, "Work for the Night is Coming." Prayer was offered by the pastor and the Scripture lesson, St. John, 10, verses 1 to 16, was read. Mrs. William Moore, secretary, read minutes of last meeting which were received and adopted. It was decided, upon motion, that the next meeting should be in the evening, and take the form of a social evening to be held on Tuesday, December 10, at the home of Mrs. William Moore. A chicken supper is to be served at 6 p.m., and is to be followed by a good programme of games and sports. There will be a fish pond in charge of Misses Mae Nelson and Jennie Dilworth. Mesdames Alfred Wilson, Wesley Wilson and George Cook were appointed a programme committee. After a closing prayer by Mrs. J. F. Everson, a lunch of coffee, cake and sandwiches, provided by Mrs. Harry Jaques and Mrs. William Moore, was served.

ANNIVERSARY OF GRACE CHURCH

Presbyterians of Millbrook Heard Rev. R. W. Collins of Toronto.

CHURCHES CLOSED

MILLBROOK, Nov. 24.—Grace Presbyterian church observed its anniversary occasion on Sunday, Rev. R. W. Collins, of Toronto, delivering helpful discourses to large congregations both morning and evening.

The Presbyterian church at Centreville, withdrew its services for the day, and the United Church, Millbrook, cancelled its evening worship, because of the special occasion in a sister church, the number of worshippers in the latter being augumented until, at night, the seating accomodation was taxed to capacity.

The choir, under the leadership of Miss Ethel Richardson, who is also organist of Grace church, greatly assisted in the success an inspiration of the day by the special selections prepared, those at night including a solo, "The Holy City" by Miss Kathleen Lancashire, and two anthems, "The Lord is in His Holy Temple", and "Ere Another Sababth Close", Miss Anna Hawthorne and Mr. W. H. Coombe taking the solo and duet parts in the latter.

Rev. Mr. Collins choose "Temptation" as the subject of his evening sermon, basing his remarks on Matthew 6:13, "Lead us not into temptation," and developing the thought that the Christian is a soldier who sets out on a day's march to the heavenly country through the enemy's land, beset with dangers and pitfalls.

"Generaly speaking, a man is under the influence of only one evil taste or passion at any one time, the nature of things precluding the presence of any other, and though each has his own particular weakness which leads into trouble and sorrow, yet all are not equally prone to fall into the same sins. Our Lord, in the petition of the text, was urging that we pray, then, that we be not placed in situations where this root of evil may grow into a stem and branches of iniquity."

"Many of you have never yet been so placed that your weak points were tested, and a score of untried virtues will not atone for one that has been put in the fire, and proved wanting. Foul temptations may have very fair and plausible pretences.

"Spiritually a man is no stronger than his weakest point, and it is not a true touchstone to establish character by comparison with a long list of sins to which we have no inclination. The question rather is, 'How do we stand in regard to our weakest point?' An untried man is an undeveloped man, and knows nothing of the strength of which he is capable.

Dwelling on the thought that "to tempt" has two meanings, "to prove or test", and "to allure to sin", the speaker said Christ was tempted to show His sinlessness and to unfold His holiness. God often proves us, but He never allures us to sin. There are two classes—those who fall into great sins, and those who are manfully resisting temptation. For the first Gods word has this comfort:

"Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as wool; and though they be red like crimson, they shall be whiter than snow"; and for the others, "Fear thou not, for I am with thee; I will help thee, yea I will strengthen thee, yea I will uphold thee with the right hand of My righteousness."

"It is not the practice of fathers and mothers to proclaim from the housetops the sins of their children, but God has told of the lapses of some of His chosen ones as a warning, and an encouragement.

"There are two ways of overcoming temptation—by a stubborn will power, and by a counter attraction; Jesus Christ reigning in the soul will give such gace and power, and will bring such divine music, that the so-called joys of the world, and its music, will be silenced. And this is the only power that can hold us aaginst the lure of the evil one."

Over three hundred dollars was placed on the plates as a thankoffering during the day, and this amount will be increased as there are still supporters of the church who have yet to make their contribution.

The Ladies' Aid is not holding a fowl supper in connection with the anniversary occasion this year, but will have its annual bazaar in the armouries on Saturday, November 28, with a hot supper served from 5:30 until 8 p.m.

Messrs. R. J. McKnight and J. Thompson acted as ushers for the Sunday services.

ARGENTINE HAS LARGE REVENUE FROM LOTTERY

National Lottery Holds Secure Position in the Country.

MONEY FOR CHARITY

Revenue is Enormous—Administration is Very Honest.

By NELSON J. RILEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 24—(United Press.)—The Goddess of Chance is firmly enthroned in Argentina and gambling is the national pastime.

The National Lottery in the Republic of Argentina, or, for that matter, in any other country of South America, holds as secure position as that of the Shipping Board or Interstate Commerce Commission in the United States. Is is owned and operated by the government and the proceeds go toward establishment and maintenance of various national charitable institutions and public welfare projects. The revenue from the lottery is enormous and the administration of this branch of governmetnal enterprise is scrupulously honest. It is a national institution and its participants include practically the entire population of the nation.

The lottery is operated upon a weekly basis, one drawing being held every Wednesday or Thursday. On alternate weeks the capital prizes are 80,000 and 100,000 pesos, each bearing a second prize of 20,000 pesos and hundreds of smaller awards. On Christmas the government manifests the Yuletide spirit by awarding a capital prize of 2,000,000 pesos, equal in American dollars to somewhat less than $1,000,000. On New Years day the lottery is for 500,000 pesos.

Of all money received the government extracts 30 per cent., the balance going into the general fund. Thus a steady income is guaranteed the various governmentally supported hospitals, soldiers homes and instiutions for the aged, athletic organizations, and the Sociedad de Beneficencia. Only authorized agents are given the right to sell the lottery tickets. These are usually widows of soldiers, old military men or pensioned government employes. Thus the humanitarian side of the lottery is increasingly manifested.

Drawings are held in public and are so arranged as to defeat the most carefully laid plan to defraud. An elaborate apparatus, made entirely of transparent glass is used for the drawing and the operation is performed before scores of interested spectators.

GORDON'S GROWL MADE IN WORDS MOST FLOWERY

Peterboro Lawyer Belied Stories Which Preceded Him to Dept. of Immigration.

(From The Star Weekly)

Hon. George N. Gordon, the biggest man Peterboro ever sent to represent it in parliament, congratulated his triumphant opponent on the very night of his defeat, and is now girding up his loins for the next encounted. That is how big he is. His friends know his bigness of heart, his opponents know his bigness of mind, and he himself jokingly refers to his bigness in avoirdupois.

As deputy speaker of the House of Commons G. N. was often called upon to throw his weight between wrangling members or restore order in the heat of argument. This he did with judicious impartiality and much skill, but also at times with necessary firmness. Some who saw him in action carried to the department of immigration a story of "the growling bear" who presided in the absence of the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux. And then, when the prime minister in the pre-election reconstruction of his cabinet, placed Mr. Gordon at the head of the immigration department, consternation spread. They simply wouldn't stand any growling around the peaceful offices—not if they knew it. It was un-bear-able, in fact.

The day came when the new minister was to make his appearance as active head of the department. Everyone was a-flutter. The minister's private stenographer was in hospital ill. What if he should call for something that she alone knew where to find? Growls!

G. N. walked in. Right of the bat he missed the stenographer.

"Where is Miss So-and-So?" he asked.

"She's in hospital, recovering from a serious operation," someone answered.

Everyone stood breathless, waiting for the growls.

But what G. N. said was: "Send her a dozen roses and charge them up to me."

COLUMBUS HAS ANOTHER RIVAL

Historian Says Irish Monks Discovered America in 800.

COLUMBUS CORSICAN

By Minott Saunders
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Nov. 24 (United Press)—Although certain cartoonists and columnists have been condemning Christopher Columbus since the debt conference for ever discovering America, the moot question of who actually discovered the New World still seriously occupies French students.

Dr. Jules Reynault accords the distinction to Columbus as the first who recorded his exploit officially, but he does not believe that Columbus was the first European to reach America.

Dr. Reynault, who has made a long study of the question, told the Academy of the Var that the ancient Greeks of the third century suspected the existence of America. Columbus, he maintained, was only the rediscoverer of the continent in the Western Hemisphere. He pointed out that Erathenes, in about the year 300, concluded as a result of his experiments in measuring the terrestrial meridians that a large continent might be found between Europe and Asia. He believed that the Phenecians, who became great sailors, might have been the first to cross the Atlantic, but admits it is highly problematical that they ever landed in America because the oldest legends of the Indians make no refrences to the purple draperies that the Phenecians would surely have brought.

During the era following prehistoric times, Dr. Reynault believes that Irish monks were among the first to set foot in North America. He figures that about the year 800 members of St. Boniface's order appeared on the western shores of what is now the United States and attempted to establish missions there. There are no records to indicate what their fate might have been.

The French scholar thinks there can be scarcely any doubt concerning the visit made to the New England coast about the year 1000 by the Dane, Leif Ericson. Dr. Reynault believes that the Norsemen crossed the Atlantic by way of Iceland in their Viking vessels and probably carried on commerce with tribes in North America.

Dr. Reynault has proved to his own satisfaction that Columbus, like Napoleon, was a Corsican.

Women's Advance in England Shown By Sylvia Pankhurst In Story Of The Suffragettes

Sex Discrimination Reduced Till Only From House of Lords is Woman Barred— Better Houses and Shorter Hours Among Reforms Needed.

MILITANT YOUNG WOMEN WON

England is Still Behind Other Countries in Some Respects Witholds the Franchise From the Women Until 30 Years of Age—What Census Shows.

The author of the following article was prominently connected with the militant suffrage movement in England in association with her mother, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and her sister Christabel. The article traces the growth of suffrage in England and deals with many phases of practical domestic reform, some of which have received legislative attention and many more of which remain to be dealt with.

By E. SYLVIA PANKHURST.

It is a far cry to the days of the women's franchise agitation as I knew it in my childhood. It then moved mainly in quiet drawing rooms, where dainty teas and music were provided to attract small audiences of people possessed of leisure.

One of the suffrage societies at that time was the Woman's Franchise League, of which the honorary secretaries were my mother and Mrs. Jacob Bright, sister-in-law of John Bright of anti-corn-law fame. My father and Mrs. Wolstenholme Elmy were also members of the Franchise League Committee. Both had been among the founders of the earliest woman's suffrage committee ever formed in Britain, which originated in Manchester in 1865. Mrs. Elmy had been active in fighting all the legal disabilities; she was a pioneer in obtaining higher education for women and in the then unpopular cause of sex education for children.

Very clearly the memory comes back to me of my parents, with Mrs. Bright, Mrs. Elmy, Mrs. Cady Stanton and Mrs. Stanton Blatch of America, in our old home in Russell Square. I can hear my father crying out, half in play, half in earnest: "Why don't you force us to give you the vote? Why don't you scratch our eyes out?"

It was almost as though he foresaw and approved the militant movement that was to be.

The Early Uproar.

There have been great changes since we started the militant movement in 1905. What an uproar was created by it! The Daily Mirror, the Northcliffe pictorial paper, named us "suffragettes" and filled its columns with photographs and stories of our doings, although its proprietor was then an opponent of our cause. We were "good copy," therefore we broke down the press boycott which had altogether baffled the earlier suffragists.

With us it was always: "We must get the vote this year."

We could brook no delay. Our impatience was rebuked by prominent women in the old suffrage movement, who told us that at least another fifty years must pass before women could get the franchise.

The movement was at a low ebb when we of the younger generation came to it with new tactics. The grosser legal injustice which had fired the earliest pioneers had been removed, and the smart of that injustice which remained was less easily demonstrated—though women still labored under a stigma of social inferiority which handicapped them in every relation of life.

Married women had won the right to their own property and earnings. I am proud to know it was my father who drafted the bill for this great reform, which, with some galtreatment by Lords and Commons, eventually passed into law. The right to the guardianship of their children had also been obtained for widowed mothers, but not for wives. The divorce laws remained—and still remain—unequal; but legal sanction for a husband to beat his wife "with a stick no thicker than his thumb" had been withdrawn, and in the Jackson case the courts had decided that a man might neither beat nor imprison his wife.

The younger universities had been fully opened to women, and after a great struggle they had obtained the right to practice medicine and surgery, but not to be barristers or solicitors.

Substantial Concessions.

The militant suffrage agitation, with its insistence on being heard by a reluctant Government and the consequent police violence and imprisonment which literally thousands of women endured, soon brought a substantial concession. Campbell-Bannerman's Liberal Government had taken office after a long period of Conservative rule and proclaimed itself the champion of democracy and liberty. The suffragettes emphatic challenge to its title proved embarrassing.

To stem a revolt of women Liberals the Government made women eligible for election to country and borough councils and to hold office as Mayor, and Aldermen. "'Let the women ge anywhere but here, to this citadel of power, this 'best club in London,'" urged the dismayed members of Parliament. The suffragettes were merely elated by this proof that their tactics were effective. They vouchsafed no thanks.

The flower of British womanhood was now joining the militant ranks. With few exceptions those who had most distinguished themselves in medicine, science, art and literature music and the drama were active protagonists of militancy, and many actually went to prison. Suffragettism found its way not only into the families of the most exclusive aristocracy but into those of the very Cabinet Ministers who were opposing us.

The working class grew to be almost unanimous in our support. The quiet little movement of the drawing rooms had become a great popular agitation. Never before has any political reform received so large a measure of enthusiastic support or so thoroughly broken down the traditional indifference of the masses.

The vote was won at last, after a continuous agitation of fifty-two years from the founding of the first suffrage society. The earlier woman's rights movement had been begun by Mary Wolstonecraft and others in the latter half of the eighteenth century.

Even yet the franchise is not equal. The Liberal Government churlishly withheld the coping stone to the long effort and deferred even the present compromise measure till the great war had changed the aspect of public life.

English women cannot vote till they are 30 years of age, and the qualifications are more restricted than are those of men. A woman of 30 must be either a householder or the wife of a householder (so many live in lodgings, alas!); or she must occupy land or premises of the yearly value of £5; or she must be the wife of a man occupying such land or premises; or she must possess a university degree. Lodgers occupying furnished rooms, domestic servants, resident teachers, daughters living at home, are usually unable to qualify as voters, even though they be 30 years of age and over.

How valuable the actual struggle for the vote was in advancing the position of women in Britain may, in part, be judged by comparison with Australia and New Zealand. In New Zealand, where women were enfranchised without much agitation in 1893, and in Australia, where the States began giving the vote, also without difficulty, in 1894, the political parties refused to adopt women candidates for the Legislature, and the women's organizations tried in vain to secure the election of their own women nominees. The legislative door has not yet opened to any women in Australasia. Yet, while we in England obtained the vote only in 1917, nine women have succeeded in entering Parliament, and two held office in the Labor Government.

Growth in Respect.

The suffragette agitation brought tremendous gains to women in general social prestige. Women and womanhood came to be regarded with greater respect by men. Still more, there was a remarkable growth in the esteem of woman for woman and of women for womanhood. The militant movement gave women courage and self-reliance—almost banished the old feeling of inferiority. Professional women especially have benefitted.

British census returns record twenty-five medical women in 1881, 101 in 1891, 212 in 1901, 477 in 1911, and then a considerable increase to 1,253 in 1921. It is not, however, so much in numbers as in prestige that the medical woman has gained. Today she is given important public appointments. "Would you go to a woman doctor in a serious case?" sounds like an absurd question to us today; it was a common one, even among educated people, in 1905.

The 1921 census was the first that could record women as members of the legal professions. It enumerated twenty women as barristers and seventeen as solicitors. The census of that year also showed the entry of women into the professional branches of engineering and works of construction. It recorded under the classification "consultant engineers" forty-one women engaged in civil engineering and surveying, three in mechanical engineering, two in mining engineering; it enumerated forty-nine women as architects and eight as ship designers, ship surveyors and naval architects. In 1911 no women had been listed as having entered these branches, with the exception of seven women in architecture.

The 1921 ensus designated 5192 chemists, assayers and metallurgists; 907 as laboratory attendants, 11,295 as articled clerrk and professional students, and 220 as engaged in other scientific pursuits. In 1911 the total number of women engaged in scientific pursuits was only 145. In 1901 it was sixty-six; in 1891 it was forty-two. In 1881 the number was but fourteen.

Women authors, editors, journalists and reporters in 1891 numbered 787. In 1901 the total had climbed to 1,249; in 1911 to 1,756, and in 1921 to 2,028—although reporters were not included under this heading in the 1921 census.

Our legislative gains have been won rather by the tremendous suffrage agitation and its exposure of grievances than by any power or awakening to consciousness resulting from the vote itself. It must be confessed that the post-suffrage demands of the women's societies have been, on the whole, rather narrow and pettifogging.

The Old Age Pension act was passed in the height of the suffragette turmoil. It is remarkable, since women, contrary to British precedent for hundreds of years, are given the same pensions as men. The suffragettes must be thanked for this.

In the Insurance acts, also passed during the agitation, and in subsequent amending acts the position of women is made inferior to that of men. The individual woman (apart from any dependents or obligations) is made by those acts to subsist on less than the individual man. It is certain, however, that women would have been placed in a still worse position had those acts been passed before the rise of the suffragette movement. The same must be said of the war allowances and pensions.

The passage of the Sex Disqualification Removal act in 1919 was an obvious corollary of the franchise success. This act declares that a women shall not be disqualified by sex or marriage from exercising any public function, from holding any civil or judicial position or from carrying on any profession. It expressly admits women to the solicitor's profession, from which they had been excluded hitherto.

House of Lords.

In 1903 all the governing and administrative bodies—save the Boards of Poor Law Guardians—were closed to women. Now all are open to them save the House of Lords, which will also be brought to admit them—unless it is speedily abolished. The peeresses are pressing their claims.

Another act which came as a result of the suffrage agitation was passed in 1920, raising the maintenance payable by the husband to his separated wife to 10 shillings a week for each child up to the age of 16 years. While this act may improve the position of many an unfortunate mother, it does not, of course, remove the hardships under which such women labor, and which are deeply rooted in our present social system.

The act establishing juvenile courts was rendered inevitable by the light thrown on police court practice by suffragette imprisonments. The appointment of a woman inspector of prisons and the introduction of women doctors and trained nurses in the prison hospitals took place during the suffragette agitation and as a result of it.

Equal divorce and equal guardianship of their children English women have not even yet achieved. We have to regret that Lady Astor, the first woman elected to the British Parliament, has there opposed equality of divorce.

Such legislative assistance as women have obtained in the trials and hardships of maternity came immediately after we got the franchise, as a result of four years previous agitation, backed by the strength of the women's movement which had grown up during the franchise fight. During that four years hundreds of maternity and infant clinics, welfare centres and day nurseries were established by voluntary effort.

The Maternity and Child Welfare act of 1918 made public provision for free meals, advice and treatment for expectant and nursing mothers and for children under school age. The slogan "A bottle of milk is worth more than a bottle of medicine" was coupled with an agitation for the public provision of such centres, to indicate that mothers and infants must not be allowed to go in want of nourishment, and that milk, clothing, etc., must be provided by the welfare centre in case of need.

Such provision is a mere palliative of evil conditions, it is true; but while the conditions themselves should be radically dealt with, the mother and infant are critically situated and cannot wait.

This matter was brought to a head by the war, by the urgent case of people who lost their employment through the war, by wives of reservists whose breadwinners, being called to the colors immediately, were left waiting for months while the Government considered what to do about providing separation allowances. The act empowers municipal bodies to establish such clinics and welfare centres and legalizes Government grants to municipal centres—also to those run by approved voluntary organizations.

Mothers' pensions, if granted on ample lines, would be a substantial reform of importance to much larger masses of women than are, in practice, affected by the divorce and guardianship laws.

The mothers' pension legislation, promised by the Conservative Government, is the first substantial measure which can be ascribed to the improved political status of women. The Conservative, Liberal and Labor Parties have all put it in their program. Had the Labor Government enacted, or seriously attempted to enact, this reform, it would probably have won the last general election.

The Conservatives are making the scheme contributory. Their proposals are not generously framed, but the position of destitute widows and orphans is so manifestly unjust and the poor law method of relief so odious that insurance for them is certain to be popular, even though the scheme itself may leave much to be desired.

If the women's movement today had the old, vigorous power of its suffragette period, the present mothers' pensions insurance project would be slashed by rapierlike criticism and the Government forced to adopt a higher standard.

Must Have New Standards.

Yet the highest suffrage standard is not high enough to carry us forward today. We have reaped almost all that was sown in the fifty years of suffrage agitation. We need broader views and higher aims now. We must no longer be content with attempting what men have obtained. Technical equality in many matters fails to give women real equality or to touch their special hardships. Even a broader, more genuine equality should not content us if the conditions it provides are not the best. We must obtain first-rate conditions for the average woman. She must have security and opportunities of development. So will entire humanity be carried forward.

Material security must become an inalienable right. We must banish the possibility of any mother's being forced to see her children denied the material necessities of life and health or to have their mental and spiritual health dwarfed by lack of education and by a stultifying environment. We must banish the possibility of any mother's feeling herself sadly compelled to part with her children by reason of poverty.

We must essay the still more difficult task of opening to the mothers of the race opportunities for self-development and self-culture. That is what Ibsen's Nora needed. It is a need which civilization must enable mothers to realize without becoming outcasts from home and children as Nora became.

Housing Conditions.

Today the average mother, in Britain at least, is suffering countless hardships because of the shortage of dwellings and the dilapidated condition of existing dwellings. Much advertised housing schemes have altogether failed to bridge the gulf between supply and demand. The Weir steel houses, so often talked of, are not appearing in large quantities These and all the dwellings produced under the Government housing schemes are too small to contain a family in comfort and to store its belongings.

Even the best modern dwellings, even the best domestic labor-saving equipment, are behind the times as compared with other branches of development. Domestic work at the best is still in a comparatively primitive state. The landlord does not provide the best of modern developments, and she cannot afford to purchase them. Could she afford to obtain the best possible domestic equipment without drastic organization the unending and distracting character of domestic work would remain.

Hours of labor for other people may be shortened; the mother's work is never done. The mothers of the race require leisure and opportunities for study, recreation and creative work. Every one of us needs these things to attain completeness, to reach our full mental stature.

Civilization must provide—not for a favored few but for every one—a common domestic service. In this service the workers must not be called upon to toil longer hours or under less comfortable conditions, or to occupy a lower social status, than other people. This common service must clean the house and keep it in repair, cook the food and remove its traces, wash and mend the clothing. It must be within the reach of all who desire it.

Only less than the waste of life to those who do the home work of today is the waste of space, fuel and other materials and the discomfort of those who are served by what at best must be an inadequate service, depending, as it usually does, entirely upon one woman's energies—she who is called upon to bear the race as well as to be its domestic servant.

Service for All.

Civilization must ensure that the common service of the future, a service which is inevitably approaching, shall supply only the best; that there shall be no adulteration, no stale and tainted food, no accumulation of garbage and stagnant water butts, with their consequent disease-producing insect pests.

Children will always largely fill the life of the normal, intelligent and happy mother. They should not, however, exclude all other interests. Mothers should be able to keep up their adult friendships, their studies and researches, their practice of arts and crafts. Every fully developed being should be devoted to at least one of these The mother must have opportunity to keep abreast of the thought and culture of her time—and that without being obliged to send her children away from home.

The aim of women today must include security and also culture—not only for the childless woman, but also for the mother; not for a few selected women, but for all.

Throws Corrosive Fluid Over Tightwad Husband

LONDON (By Mail). — Mrs. Phyllis Mansell, aged twenty-two, was sentenced at the Old Bailey recently to twelve months' hard labor for throwing corrosive fluid over her husband at Putney Bridge Station after she asked him for money.

It was stated that the man and woman lived apart. Mrs. Mansell was sent to a reformatory when she was fourteen for stealing, and in 1923 was imprisoned for fraud and theft. In one of the cases she swallowed a diamond ring. She was released from prison last year to be married.

Horses In Triple Tie At Folkestone Races

FOLKESTONE (By Mail).—At Folkestone races, for the eighth time in the history of British racing, three horses dead-heated. One was afterwards disqualified for bumping and boring.

The last triple dead-heat was at the Newmarket Craven meeting last year, when Hope Deferred, Vaddy, and Buddha finished together in a selling race,

The most famous triple dead-heat was in the Cesarewitch in 1857, when Princess, El Hakim, and Queen Bess were bracketed for first place. Prioress won the run-off. At the Newmarket Houghton meeting in 1885 four horses passed the post together, with a fifth a short head away.

Dwarf Appears From Pie Placed Before Queen

LONDON (By Mail)—The Earl of Lonsdale's estate of Barleythorpe, for many years used as a hunting box by the Lowther family, is to be offered at auction. It adjoins the ancient town of Oakham.

Barleythorpe has produced many celebrities in its time, one of whom, Jeffrey Hundson, the dwarf, was a well-known character at the Court of King Charles I. It is said that he stepped into the Royal service out of a large venison pastie placed before the Queen, at a feast given by the Duchess of Buckingham. His minute satin Court suit is in the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford.

GHOSTLY EXHIBITS IN MUSEUM SAID TO BE LEFT BY SPIRITS

First Repository in World for Psychic Souvenirs Just Opened.

AN EERIE SHOW.

Spirit Gloves, Net From Veil and Sticky Ectoplasm on View.

The first psychic museum with exhibits from "beyond the grave" has just been opened in London.

Nervous persons he.itate to enter this amazing exhibition. The place is full of what the spiritualists called "appots," those objects which suddenly appear in sealed rooms, dropped there by "unseen forces."

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, in recent years the chief spokesman of English Spiritualists, has explained the contents of the strange museum. Of a Babylonian tablet, reported to have been dropped in a room during an Australian seance, he says:

"I was told by a famous professor that it was a fake, and he was able to tell me where it came from. He said it had been manufactured by a firm in Bagdad that specialized in reproductions of Babylonian antiquities. But how did it get from Bagdad to a sealed room in Australia?"

The exhibition includes many specimens of ectoplasms, that sticky, unpleasant substance that is said to issue from the mouth or the head of a medium.

A controversy between Sir Arthur Keith and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has been raging over two "spirit gloves" made of paraffin wax and filled, owing to the delicacy of their texture with plaster. Twenty-eight such gloves have been produced by spirits, who, after de-materialization, had left them behind as evidence, Sir Arthur asserted.

In addition to specimens the exhibit contains many enlarged photographs of mediums at the moment when ectoplasm is supposed to be issuing. Numerous spirit photographs show persons already dead in the same photograph with living persons. "One photograph is that of a man named Walker, a friend of the late W. T. Stead. Before his departure on the ill-fated voyage of the Titanic, Mr. Stead had told his friend: "I will try to keep you posted." After Mr. Stead's death there is said to have appeared on the negative side of a photograph of Mr. Walker, taken some time later, the above sentence reversed, as it would appear reflected in a mirror.

Visitors to the show are told about Katie King, the little spirit who is reported to have appeared to many American audiences. A piece of fine white net from the drapery worn by Katie is on display. Katie is described as the daughter of a Governor of Jamaica in the reign of Charles II.

Sir Arthur said that at first sight the public might consider the exhibits childish, but it must be borne in mind, he added, that they represent "something higher," of which it would be well to take notice.

"There is a force outside humanity," he concluded, "that we do not realize, and if the world does not take notice of this it will be worse for the world."

ENFORCE SIX-FOOT LAW FOR GUARDS

Difficulty is Found in Getting Recruits for Crack Regiments.

LONDON (By Mail).—According to a new army order, which recently came into force, only recruits who are at least six feet in height can be accepted for the Guards regiments. This exacting rule has already led to a marked falling-off in the number of acceptable recruits. At Great Scotland Yard, the London recruiting headquarters, for example, only one recruit has been sent to barracks since the new order operated.

"It is astonishing how few men there are who actually stand six feet in their socks, declared a recruiting officer. Plenty of men think they are six feet tall, but they are nearly all an inch or two inches less. Under the order which has been superseded men could be taken for the Irish Guards, at 5 feet eight inches and upwards; for the Grenadier, Coldstream, and Scots Guards at five feet nine inches, and for the Welsh Guards at five feet 10 inches. In the last case Welshmen had a concession—they could get in at five feet nine inches. Infantry recruits need be only five feet three inches, and for artillery men of five feet seven inches will do.

A call for six feet men only for all the Guards regiments is thought to be a record. The reason for the change is because the battalions are over strength.

Member Complains Of Liberal Bores

LONDON (By Mail). — "In the ranks of the Liberal party in the House of Commons there are at least four of the most appalling bores who ever sent members of Parliament to sleep," said Mr. Austin Hopkinson, M.P. for the Mossley Division, in a speech at Mossley Conservative Club recently. . . "It is marvellous how the Liberal party have collected such a lot of bores," he added. "They never say anything that can possibly interest or inform any one listening to them."

BOULDER OF DEATH USED AS ALTAR.

LONDON (By Mail).—A despatch from Rome states that Mlle. Santa, the daughter of the late Princess Borghese, was married to Count Hercolant in a most original manner.

The Princess Borghese threw herself into Lake Garda from the bottom of the garden in front of her villa a year ago, and the marriage between the princess daughter and the count was celebrated on the rock from which her mother committed suicide.

The rock, covered with flowers, was transformed into an altar.

AIR FORCES FOR HOME DEFENCE TO BE RECRUITED VOLUNTARILY

Campaign Started in Britain This Month as Extensive Experiment.

SEEK RIGHT MEN

Some Aerodromes Already Established and Others Being Planned.

LONDON, Eng. (Canadian Press Despatch).—Voluntary recruiting of the special reserve and auxiliary air force squadrons which are to form an important part of the programme of home defence against air attack was commenced at the beginning of this month, following a speaking campaign by Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for Air, in the Kingdom's industrial centres.

This enlistment of the maximum amount of skilled knowledge of aviation in the country on a voluntary basis is only an experiment, Sir Samuel acknowledges, but it is an experiment that must be tried fully, if merely for the sake of economy, for the Royal Air force is bound to be expensive both in equipment and maintenance, depending for its striking power on an entire absence of mechanical breakdown in the air.

The problem before the Air Ministry is to sift from the mass of volunteers the right type of officers and men, with not only the will but also the practical experience through his profession or trade, to build up an efficient air unit of defence with the minimum amount of annual training. No other country has yet endeavored to tackle its air defence problem along the same lines.

Industrial Centres.

The squadrons will, of course, be centered around areas industrial in character, otherwise the skilled force would not be easily available. Equally it is not desirable to have too big a gap between the regular squadrons, always ready for action, and the auxiliary squadrons which are to supplement them as soon as they can be mobilized. Consequently the 13 non-regular squadrons have been divided into two classes. Seven will be special reserve squadrons, in which one-third of the establishment is definitely regular and the remaining two-thirds undergo a very full initial training; and the remaining six have a nucleus of regular personnel for care, maintenance and instruction purposes, and are to obtain their officers and men entirely through the County, Territorial and Auxiliary Air Force association.

The peace time stations of the seven special reserve squadrons will be: London, probably Hendon aerodrome; Bristol, Belfast, Lincoln and Norwich, and two other stations whose locations have not yet been decided. Aerodromes near Lincoln and Norwich, will be ready next summer. At Belfast and Bristol, aerodromes are alreay established.

The six auxiliary squadrons will be stationed in peace time at London, County of London, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Birmingham and at one other station yet to be decided. At all these the aerodromes and barracks are already established.

These barracks for the stations of the auxiliary force will contain social facilities, etc., workshops and instructional halls, so that the greater part of training in the maintenance of aircraft can be given in the centre of a city. While practical flying, of course will be carried out at the aerodrome, all the ground work and general training can proceed at the town headquarters.

Each squadron requires approximately 200 officers and men, all highly skilled in various technical trades, such as for instance, armourers blacksmiths, carpenter riggers, aero engine fitters, drivers and wireless operators. If the number of applications to join the special reserve squadron at Belfast are any criterion, there will be no lack of recruits.

AMAZING RECORD OF BIGAMY UNFOLDED IN LIFE OF CROOK WITH A WIFE IN EVERY PORT

Plausible Vellesz Poses as Polish Patriot and Robs Women.

FOOLED WILSON

LONDON.—(By Mail.)—An amazing record of bigamy and fraud has come to light through the arrest of a man named Desider Vellesz.

He has "married" and robbed women in almost every country in the world. In London he married a wealthy American whom he had met on the continent, and after robbing her of her jewellery and money left her stranded and almost penniless.

Exactly how many "wives" this professional bigamist has married in the course of his career cannot be stated with certainty, but at least eight were traced after his brief visit to Mexico five years ago, and since then almost every country in the world seems to have contributed to his quota of brides. "The world's most-married man" seems a justifiable epithet for this peculiarly daring scoundrel.

Vellesz is a Pole by birth, and his favorite method of working was to frequent hotels of the best class, scrape acquaintance with wealthy women and ingratiate himself by plausible tales of his position in the world.

It was in this way that he met the American women whom he "married" in England. He was then passing in the name of A. Gordon. After the marriage he put up with his wife at one of the London hotels and robbed her of jewels to the value of $10,000 by pretending that it was necessary to show the jewels to the insurance agent with whom it was proposed to insure them for the journey back to Australia.

Probably Vellesz's most daring escapade was perpetrated eight years ago in Washington.

He presented himself to President Wilson as a confidential agent of the Central Powers, with authority to lay before the President the terms on which peace was possible.

Vellesz had all the details worked out and was armed with letters of introduction that seemed in order.

He impressed the President and American officials so much that the proposals were actually taken seriously, and Wilson took them away to put before his colleagues.

It was not until "Gordon" borrowed a large sum of money and left Washington hurriedly that the fraud was discovered.

Gives Japanese Books To English University

LONDON (By Mail). — As a memento of his visit to Cambridge, the Prince Regent of Japan has presented 666 volumes of Japanese classics to the University Library. They were collected over 100 years ago by Hokiichi Hanawa.

Professor Seward, who has been elected for a second term of office as Vice-Chancellor, also announced other gifts of $150,000 and $100,000 from members of the same family, who remain anonymous, towards the cost of the extension of the Fitzwilliam Museum.

TEMPERANCE LADY TAKES TOO MUCH

Cabinet Minister's Wife Who Once Indulged in Strong Liquors.

LONDON (By Mail)—Mrs. Ethel Snowden, wife of the ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the Congregational Union Conference at Bournemouth a few days ago how she, an ardent temperance advocate, once took "strong drink."

"I was in Russia," she said, "and after a very strenuous day, we were sitting down, hot, tired, and exhausted' Being in a prohibitionist country, I accepted at a banquet what I thought was a glass of lemonade.

"But I soon knew that I had been given not lemonade but the poisonous vodka. Never willingly and knowingly as a beverage did I take this poisonous liquid, and it took a very great deal of the grace of God for me to forgive these people for having played such a practical joke upon an unsuspecting colleague.'

Pastor Who Sees Animal Spirits.

LONDON, England (Canadian Press by mail.)— We have seen ghosts of animals in this house and we have seen our cats see apparitions and rear up at them,' says Rev. C. L. Tweedale, vicar of Weston, who has been called the psychic parson," professing his belief in the survival of animals after death, based on apparitions he has seen.

Mr. Tweedale gave some experiences on his word of honor as a gentleman and a minister." He said his wife and mother had seen a white dog in a cupboard. It was my aunt's dog," he said.

Twice an apparition of my aunt, accompanied by that of a large bird, appeared and struck a gong in the hall. Once the apparition of the white dog bounded into the gong and made a sound. And it sprang at my wife and caused her to break a lamp she was carrying. The apparition of my aunt spoke to us in a tremendously loud voice which rang through the house." Mr. Tweedale has a number of spirit photographs" of his wife, himself and his son which show dim figures and spirit faces"

CONAN DOYLE CONDEMNS ARREST OF WOMAN MEDIUM AS 'SHABBY'

"Whole Case is Repugnant to One's Sense of British Justice."

SAYS FRAME-UP

Eminent Author Protests Prosecution of Mme. Estelle, the Clairvoyante.

LONDON, (By Mail).—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle writes to the editor of a London paper to protest against the prosecution of Mme. Estelle, the clairvoyante, who was fined £20 at Marylebone Police Court recently on a charge of fortune-telling. He says:

Is it not time that the prosecution—or rather the persecution—of clairvoyants and mediums should cease? Let us use a little common sense in the matter. What harm was this woman (Estelle) doing to any one? No complaint was made by her clients.

On the contrary, we are told that the court was full of them, ready to testify to the good that they had received. Her messages may, as the prosecuting counsel was bound to say, have been balderdash, but how in that case are we to account for the grateful clients?

The case was a purely artificial one, framed up by two police-women, who are self-confessed instigators of and participators in any breach of the law which may have been effected. The usual procedure is for such policewomen to appear as weeping mourners, clad in black, begging for some consolation in their distress. The whole proceeding is repugnant to one's senses of justice, and is foreign to the spirit of British law, which has never encouraged the agent provocateur.

I hold no brief for fortune-tellers, though I cannot see that they do any harm. In the case of people with real mediumistic gifts, the effect of this law is to discourage that which is the most precious thing in the world. I know one medium to whom I have sent a hundred mourners, eighty of whom have written to me to say that they received complete satisfaction, and that their shadows had passed away.

This woman has twice been trapped by constables and fined in the courts The scale of fines, I may add, is far higher than for personal assault or for aggravated cruelty to an animal.

FISHERMAN'S LASS IS LADY OF MANOR

Romantic Story of Mrs. Sutherland, Styled Queen of Brancaster.

LONDON, (By Mail).— Queen of Brancaster is the best description for Mrs. Sutherland, a one-time fisher girl, who is now Lady of the Manor of the tiny fishing village of Brancaster Staithe, where she was born, and owner of nearly every house and farm in the village.

Her father, who is now 80 years of age, still lives at a little cottage on the shore of the tiny village, and here, too, her brothers remain as fisherman.

Mrs. Sutherland married a few yeart before the war. Her husband, who was more than 70, was an excellent business man, owning many small businesses up and down the country.

It was a surprise, however, when he died in 1915, leaving his widow a fortune of more than $200,000.

Mrs. Sutherland then found herself the owner of most of her native village and the most important person in Brancaster.

She determined to carry on all her husband's undertakings. In 1922 the Manor of Brancaster was put up for auction. Mrs. Sutherland bought it, and so became Lady of the Manor.

A MAORI LADY GUIDED PARTY

And Told of Gentleman Who Walked Into Boiling Pool.

DAFOE TELLS.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—J. W. Dafoe, editor of The Free Press, writing of his recent tour in Maoriland, describes one of the guides: "The guide who showed our party around, spoke perfect English in a cultivated, beautifully moduatetd voice. She piloted us boiling spring, mud volcanoes, to the great Pohutu geyser which obligingly blew off to the height of fifty feet immediately upon our arrival.

"She pointed out a large boiling pool in the village which could no longer be used because a 'Maori gentleman' had walked into it one night and had been parboiled to a turn. It remained, however, quite unprotected, awaiting the next gentleman. Our guide explained it was she who had been specially chosen to show the Prince of Wales through the reservation; but any expectation on our part that we could shine in the reservation was destroyed by the discovery that most of the other groups had also been shown about by a guide specially chosen by the Prince for the same purpose."

SPORTS COATS

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(United Press).—Women who go in for sports have flirted with leather apparel for some seasons but only recently have they fallen completely under leather's wiles. In place of leather pipings, hats and buttons we now choose entire coats of colorful leather, either suede or glazed effects, in both short and full length styles.

The leather coat is decidedly a sport coat designed for motoring, for country or for sports wear. Although we occasionally see one on the Avenue worn by some smart Miss, the effect of its smartness is lost amid the luxurious furs and velvets. The leather coat is equally as warm as the fur wrap since it is usually lined in matching kasha or velveteen. It is practical for the school girl who chooses sports attire in preference to more dressy effects.

One Fifth Avenue shop is showing a smart little top coat of red leather lined in red kasha which is full length and made with a slightly flaring hemline. It is quilted about the up-standing collar and on the cuffs, pockets and hem-border. Since the coat is a loose, flaring affair there is no belt.

Another smart model made of bottle green suede is of wrap-around type with a narrow leather belt worn lown on the hips. The coat is wrapped tightly about the hips and the belt worn rather snugly to hold it in place. A mannish lapel collar made of gray krimmer fur adds softness about the face.

To many, the hip-length jacket of leather is more appealing than the full length style. These come in several bright leathers and may be either single or double-breasted. They are extremely mannish in cut from lapels to the smart slit pockets. Tweed skirts of harmonizing hues are worn with the short models. For actual sports purposes the short model is preferred to the longer type.

The recent wedding of Princess Mafalda of Italy to Prince Philip of Hesse afforded the first instance on record that a member of the royal House of Savoy had married a Protestant.

BABY SMOTHERED.

Coroner Warns Parents Not To Have Children Sleeping With Them.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Nov. 24. (Canadian Press). — A month-old baby smothered to death while sleeping with its parents was the occasion of a warning to fathers and mothers by the coroner, Dr. Rutherford. This is the third case of a similar nature which he has observed. He advises a cot close to the bed for tiny children.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A SMALL GIRL'S OUTFIT.

Monday morning I returned to work after a week-end in the country, feeling ever so refreshed and ready for the week's work.

I had been out in one of the suburbs, visiting a friend who is married and has two small children.

I so seldom see small children that I really enjoyed the variety.

Mabel, the mother, urged me to help her plan some clothes for the two little girls.

"It does seem mean of me to make you think of clothes, when you spend most of your working time concentrating on them," Mabel said, apologetically. "And I did ask you out to have a rest," she added, with a smile.

"But you know I love to plan clothes, and it's no effort," I assured her, honestly.

We began concentrating on an outdoor costume for the oldest small girl, who is five.

"I have some lovely bottle green kasha that I want to use," Mabel explained. "I have a fine seamstress who comes to the house, and we make everything. It is so much less expensive that way."

I concluded that Mabel was very clever to make clothes for herself and the children, and keep house as well, so I was glad to be of some small help.

"After all," I assured her, "people speak of fashion models having such hard work to do, standing all day, but I'm sure you work harder. I can't see that your job ever ends."

Mabel smiled, and said she often thought it never ended either, and then we set to work.

"I love raglan sleeves on a small child, so suppose we design a coat with raglan sleeves," I suggested.

Mabel was delighted with the idea.

"Do you want to go to the expense of buying fur for the small coat?" I asked.

"Anything you say," Mabel answered. "I save so much by making it at home that I'm willing to spend extra money on the trimming, to make it really a coat little Mabel will love to wear."

The result was that we designed the small beaver-trimmed garment I'm showing here, and planned for a tiny cap edged with the fur, and a muff. I'm going to make the cap and muff.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am coming to you for advice. A girl friend and I had been going together since school days. We were always pals and only once were we separated, for a couple of years, and then we started to chum again. Neither of us had a boy friend.

Until one night I met a young man whom I liked very much, and in return he seemed to like me. He asked me to out with him again and he brought a boy friend for my chum, whom she knew and liked. We spent a lovely evening. They asked us to go out again so we did. But this night my girl friend, not satisfied with her fellow, tried every way she could to draw the attention of the fellow I was with, but she didn't seem to appeal to him, in fact, he told me he thought her very forward. Of course I stuck up for her, but finally she vamped him.

For just a week afterwards I met him with my girl friend. He and I had had a few words the last night we were out so we didn't part very good friends.

He spoke real friendly to me that night. But since then he has never been the same to me. He always speaks, but has quit making dates. He has never been out with my girl friend since.

I heard she told a lot of lies about me. We have never been such good frinds since, as she seems to have something different to tell me every time I see her, in regard to this fellow, something he has said about me. She is terribly jealous and always liked this fellow, so I do not believe what she tells me as I know they are untrue.

I still like this fellow and he seemed to like me, until that night. Now, Annie Laurie, do you think that the girl who was supposed to be my friend has told him lies about me. Please accept my thanks and please tell me what to do and how to get him back again.

LONESOME DOROTHY.

LONESOME DOROTHY: Probably the young man, quite sensibly, doesn't want to get tangled up with two jealous girls. It might be a good idea for you to separate yourself absolutely from this girl chum. Never mind what she says or does. You can keep absolutely away from her. Get another girl chum, if you require one, but don't have anything more to do with this one. Then, if she wants your young man, let her have him, or else go ahead and get him back again yourself. But don't make it a triangle again. Keep away from her in any case. Couldn't you ask him quite frankly what she had said about you, or else find out if his coolness to you is caused by the "words" you had with him. And remember, for goodness' sake, that three people don't make a world. Have you ever stopped to consider the niceness and excellent character of some of your other friends? Do you have to spend a lot of time stewing over such a situation when the city is full of better-hearted people than either of these two?

NOVEMBER.

November, cheerless, bleak and bare,
Of murky skies and chilly air,
And aspect drear,
Attended by a gloomy train,
Wild, wailing winds, and drizzling rain,—
Again is here.

November, of sad, surly mood,
Of desolated wold and wood,
And leafless trees;
Reft of fair foliage, and flowers
That gladdened Summer's sunny hours,
Blithe birds and bees.

These charms, which made sweet Summer seem
A glorious and delightsome dream.
As Eden bright—
Are gone, and as on Eden's bowers,
Over this lovely land of ours,
Is fallen sad blight.

November wears forbidding frown,
And somber robe of frostburnt brown
Yet all the while
Her's is a heart, most tender, kind,
And stern exterior behind,
She wears a smile.

Thus when our skies, are dark and dun,
And clouds of woe obscure life's sun,
Faint not nor fear,
The darkest cloud will soon decay,
And bright will shine joy's morning ray,
Serene and clear.

FREE AND EASY ENGLISH SCHOOL

Teachers Compare Notes at Convention— Young Pupils Learn Etiquette.

OUTDOOR WORK.

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Exchange teachers from England and New Zealand spoke recently to a Teachers' Association Convention. The English experience showed that each division has its own head mistress, who is largely responsible for arranging courses, and the use of any method which they may desire. While to the Canadian, this means an appalling lack of uniformity, the English feel that it makes for an individualizing process. In the infants departments, blackboards were scarcely used, small easels taking their places. Pupils pass on, disregarding standing, and acquire what they can. It is the brightest, rather than the dullest students who set the pace. In the first two years lessons are very informal, and at 10 a.m. a little lunch is opened, covers set on the desks, and teachers instruct in table etiquette, while the lunch is partaken of. In the afternoon children have an hour's sleep on matting laid on the floor.

In New Zealand many lessons are taken out of doors and easel boards used. There is no authorized reader, monthly journals being printed by the department. Emphasized especially were wonderful libraries. Much is left to the individual instructor. School grounds were especially commendable for their neatness. Neatness is also stressed in all school work. In music lessons a novel idea was displayed in one school, where gramophone records were listened to for an hour each week. Practically all physical instruction is given outside. Heating is very poor, and many hours spent in shivering discomfort. During an epidemic of infantile paralysis, during which schools were closed, lessons were carried on by mail, over 70 per cent of the children responding.

To a girl of twenty-three belongs the distinction of being the first woman notary public of the British Empire. She is Miss Anna Amphlett of Colwyn Bay. The office of notary public is one of the oldest in England, dating back to the days when practically all the learned professions were in the hands of the church.

RUSSIAN BALLAD LIFE.

Isa Kremer Had To Accept Provisions in Payment For Services.

TORONTO, Nov. 24. (Canadian Press).—Isa Gremer, Russian international balladist, described in an interview experiences under Bolshevik regime. "We were paid for our services. At first we received payment in rubles, but after a time the Communists found it necessary to pay us with provisions. At the end of a concert I would be given perhaps a big bag of flour or a sack of sugar. It was very nice, because I was able to give some of it away to my friends who were without food. Once at the end of a concert, they brought me a large porcelain vase of a very famous make which they wanted me to take in payment for my services. I looked at the vase and I recognized it as one which had once belonged to some rich friends of mine. I asked for provisions in its place; at least they could not take them back.

The CANADA STARCH CO. LIMITED MONTREAL

For some good and sufficient reasons, the whole world seems to love a contest. Maybe it is because we have come from past ages when men had to fight for their very existence. At any rate, a fight or a race, will always draw a crowd. Most of our games are based on ancient contest.

Where a fight between animals is concerned man has shown very great curiosity. Always there is the question "Can a tiger beat a lion?" or what will happen if you cage a parrot and a monkey together? or a wildcat and a bear?

It is all a matter of looking for thrillers.

I suppose, if you are not interested in one or other of the wild things, the contest is not a thriller, but if you know them and love one or others of the fighters, well, that's different.

It was about like that with a friend of mine, not long ago. This man had a general idea that big hawks are not fit playthings for other birds. He also learned to love a certain Kingfisher which, sad to relate, did not seem to care two pins for him.

Now ,although we may know that a certain bird neither likes nor trusts us, we can become so interested in him, watching his actions day by day, and his lovely colors, that we become attached to him very much indeed. We hardy know this, until the bird happens to get into some trouble, or some tight corner, where he is making a game stand for life, and then—Oh, Boy!—if we could only help him.

My friend did not know much about birds, but, as I said, he got attached to a certain Kingfisher, which lived and fished in a small lake nearby. Every day, my friend saw the bird.

One day, as my friend was fishing, he was astonished to see the Kingfisher dash madly by, followed in a moment by a big hawk.

Instantly the man's heart was in his mouth. Then it thumped his chest, as the race for life went on, over the water, with the Kingfisher losing, for the hawk slowly gained. The hawk caught up and was just going to strike, when the Kingfisher watching for the right moment, did a flip and magic speed dive, disappearing with a splash, into the lake. The hawk couldn't stop, so went on. The Kingfisher laughed in mockery, and the man yelled for joy.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

For years I have been interested in what Judge Gary, of the United States Steel Corporation, has had to say about health. On this subject he is one of the best lay preachers it has been my pleasure to know.

At the Fall opening of the School of Commerce of New York University, Judge Gary advised his audience how to succeed in business. "The average man talks too much, he said, but I am sure you will agree with me that this particular man cannot be accused of loquaciousness.

Here is another of the wise sayings of this usually silent person:

"A man should always, so far as practicable, be absolutely clean and healthy, mentally, morally and physically."

Judge Gary states a fundamental truth in his reference to health. Without a clean body, a clean mind and pure soul are almost out of the question.

One of old said, "Cleanliness is next to godliness." Is it not a homely truth that clean hands and a pure heart are natural companions?

I doubt if one can have perfectly normal and sustained mental processes in the absence of health of body and all its organs. All of us have seen terrible perversions of mind induced by physical causes. Every insane asylum has innumerable exhibits of this truth....

But very few go crazy, of course. For that we are thankful, but even though we may escape insanity we are not giving the mind its full opportunities unless the body is kept vigorous and in abounding health.

Modern business makes tremendous demands upon those who engage in it. The competitions and the rivalries are trying beyond words. No man can hope to face all these trials successfully unless he has the stamina, the resistance, the elasticity, the endurance, the physical powers to keep from being worn down and defeated from pure fatigue.

I don't care whether you are training for the gridiron, the cricket field, or for business or profession, you cannot hope for achievement and marked success unless you have a strong and healthy body. Judge Gary is right when he includes health among the very foundation stones of success.

A few men and women have forged to the front in spite of physical handicaps, but have you thought how much further they might have traveled had there been health and vitality in larger measure?

What your health is to be depends in great degree upon your own efforts. It is worth while to cultivate it.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

CAPTAIN ROBERT DOLLAR— "The Grand Old Shipman."

From a cook's boy in a remote Canadian lumber camp to ownership of two great steamship lines and a vast timber business is a long step. But the goal was not gained at a single stride. There was plenty of rough going—some places had to be negotiated by a detour, others by a hurdle, before the lad with the menial job became the lumber and shipping giant of California, and the world in general.

Robert Dollar was born in humble circumstances nearly eighty years ago in Northern Scotland. When his family emigrated to Ottawa, though under fourteen, he was sent to a lumber camp two hundred miles beyond the last outpost of civilization.

Surrounded as he was by rough lumberjacks, there was that within the lad which rendered him impervious to their influence. Thirsting for knowledge, every spare moment found him with a pencil and paper or a book.

Before he was twenty-one he successfully managed a "drive" of saw logs over the Chaudiere Falls, for which he was made foreman over a big gang of men. He invested his savings in a small timber tract, but the far-reaching effect of Wall Street's memorable "Black Friday" cleaned him out.

His first ship—a little 300-ton tug

From Cook's Boy to Millionaire.

—was the nucleus of the Robert Dollar Steamship Company, with one fleet plying between Alaska and the Panama Canal and another between the Pacific Coast and the orient.

Robert Dollar has been the greatest individual creator of commerce between the United States and the Orient. He has been the most potent worker for an American merchant marine. Captain Dollar has been honored and decorated by one Chinese Emperor and two Chinese presidents.

Now, at an age when most men have ceased to care much about the trend of affairs, the Grand Old man of the Pacific tackles the big job of paving the way for the establishment of America's first round-the-world all-American-owned passenger and freight steamship service.

"BOBBED HAIR" with Marie Prevost is a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore is at the hairdresser's, scissors poised above her auburn head. But she has yet to give the operator his instructions. If she attends Aunt Celimena's party that night—bobbed—it will be a sign that she is to marry Bingham Carrington. Otherwise, her choice is Saltonstall Cabot Adams. The engagement must be announced by midnight or she must sacrifice her aunt's estate, to which, otherwise, she would fall heir. The time is short and Connemara's mind isn't made up.

Nor did any dare to snatch off the hat and solve the question. Connemara was not one to stand that.

"You'll know soon enough," she said, and her dazzling smile included the two men most interested, as well as the rest of the noisy, rollicking group.

Home they went and off to dress for dinner.

Surely at dinner they must learn the truth, and could then toast the health of the engaged ones.

But at dinner Connemara appeared with a headdress of silver gauze, wound turbanlike round her head. Skillfully, too, so that no hint of shape or size should betray her secret.

"Oh, well," said Bing cheerily, "you'll have to show down tonight. The fancy-dress ball will last beyond midnight, and at twelve you'll have to confess."

"I will," and Cayenne Fairy laughed happily.

"I know her costumes," said Rose Wraye. "She has a stunning Ophelia rig that she's going to wear if she didn't bob, and a Peter Pan costume that she'll sport about in if her hair is short."

Connemara nodded agreement to this, and later on, when they all went up to don their fancy ball garb, the girls paused in the room of Cayenne Fairy and saw spread out on her bed the two costumes Rose had told of.

They left her, and Connemara closed her door and locked it.

Then she sat down again to her reflections. In the triplicate panel of the dressing table, repeated in the hand-glass she held, her lovely Titian hair gleamed in its auburn glory.

Connemara looked at the two costumes on the bed and smiled.

Passing them by, she took from a wardrobe a box and opened it. From it she took a full costume which she quickly donned, deftly adjusting its long white folds.

Soon, completely attired, she went and listened over the banister. Yes, the guests were assembled; Aunt Celimena was serenely receiving them.

She paused at the top of the stairs a moment. "It's a shame to tantalize them longer," she mused, "but I must—just for a few minutes, anyway."

She went slowly downstairs and entered the dancing room. A cheer greeted her appearance which turned to a groan of impatience and exasperation as they saw her face, saintlike and beautiful, swathed about by the coifed headdress that belonged to her garb of a Dominican Sister.

CHAPTER II.

By Alexander Woollcott.

When it dawned even on the remote and only mildly interested members of the orchestra that the evasive Connemara had found a way to defer her announcement yet a little longer, they flung themselves into the breach with a hub-bub of music, and in another minute the long room of Moorelands resembled a kaleidoscope in a state of agitation. But a refreshed topic of conversation had come as a boon to the house party, and even those whose small talk was usually exhausted when they had commented on the perfectly splendid dance floor and the perfectly splendid orchestra were kept going indefinitely by their speculations on the invisible locks of Connemara.

Thus the perky Miss Glenn knew, when Adam Brewster asked her for the first dance, that dancing was the last, or almost the last, thing he would have cared to do with her. Mr. Brewster was a withered gentleman of slightly malignant aspect who knew all there was to know about Moorelands and the Moore family except for the single detail about the hair of the heir apparent. He was Miss Celimena's lawyer and had been her father's lawyer before that. Without long and acrimonious discussion with Mr. Brewster, Miss Celimena had never bought a bond or paid a tax, and every one knew that the singular document in which the fate of Moorelands was conditioned had been composed with great gusto by Mr. Brewster.

Whereupon Miss Glenn, when the lawyer led her firmly to a seat against the wall and sat down beside her, knew that she was expected to interpret the situation for him.

"I am afraid that our dear Connie is being just a bit theatrical," she said at once, "but I know what's at the bottom of it."

"Perversity?" asked Mr. Brewster.

"Not at all," said Miss Glenn. "Panic."

"Panic?" the old lawyer exclaimed. "When both her alternatives are so agreeable?"

"Oh, they're all right, I suppose. But you'll have to admit that Bing is the kind that calls her his Cayenne Fairy Queen. That must be very fatiguing. And Salt raves on about the pleasures of the intellect."

"How do you know?"

"I eavesdrop, Mr. Brewster. Don't you?"

"Never."

"Well, one picks up a lot that way. For instance, I listened in when you and that law clerk from your office were whispering away there under the stairs. That's how I know you have planted him here in case you should need a witness at twelve o'clock. You lawyers are pretty crafty, but I do think that little trap for Connemara isn't quite airtight."

"Ah, a loophole, eh?" said Mr. Brewster with an indulgent smile.

"An enormous one. She has to announce her engagement before the end of June, and she has to marry by October. Very true. But it doesn't have to be the same man."

Mr. Brewster grunted.

"I wonder if Connemara has noticed that," mused Miss Glenn, brightening visibly at the thought of how easily she could make a little trouble. "I think I'll have to go and tell her."

It was really to detain her there with him that Mr. Brewster went on talking.

"But panic?" he asked. "If she's already decided, why——"

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BETTY REALIZES SHE HAS BEEN UNREASONABLE.

Betty was all put-out when her mama wouldn't let her take off her dress and play in her petticoat.

"But I'm just burning up," she pouted, sitting down on the steps of the porch. "I can't see why I have to wear a dress."

"Phoo," laughed a merry voice softly and Betty turned around to look into Gocomeback's happy face.

"Why, Gocomeback, you dear little elfin, where did you come from?" interrupted Betty.

"You mean, where am I going," laughed the merry elfin. "I was just wondering what you would do if you lived with a little friend of mine and had to dress like she does."

Before Betty could answer, she found herself sailing through the air beside Gocomeback. When they once more lighted on the ground, all Betty could see was a great sea of sand where a few palm trees threw weird shadows over a bunch of low tents.

"Here we are in the Sahara Dessert," whispered Gocomeback, "and my little friend, Alada, lives in that tent with her mama, daddy and brother, Cassan. There they come now," and Gocomeback held out his arms and embraced the two little brown children. "Alada and Cassan, this is Betty Bly, from North America."

All three children looked at one another, smiled and bowed very politely.

"Were you going to a masquerade party?" asked Betty, "or just playing dressed-up?" They looked so funny in their queer clothes. Cassan wore a long white cloth wrapped around his head and a white cotton gown that came down to his feet. On his feet he wore bright red shoes with turned-up toes. Alada wore a bright red handkerchief tied about her head. The sight of it wrapped around her head, made Betty all the warmer. Her light blue dress hung clear down to her sandaled feet.

"No, Honey," laughed Gocomeback, smiling at the little desert children, "these are their every-day clothes. That's what I was trying to tell you. If you lived here in the Sahara Desert, you would have to dress the same way."

"And I'm nearly roasted in just my dress and no hat," laughed Betty. "My, I'd die if I had to dress up that way. But I suppose you like it better than the way we dress."

"I guess we do," laughed Alada. "Will you stay and play with us?"

"I'm afraid we can't stay," replied Gocomeback. "You see Betty's mama doesn't know where we are," and taking Betty's hand, he hurried back to America.

That was the last time Betty ever complained about being too warm.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25.

Fairly active and successful auguries are found among the lunar and mutual aspects for this day. However, there is the presage of some obstacle or delay, but these may be overcome by persistence and courage. It might be well to postpone all new ventures. Those in employment are under excellent prospects, and all that pertains to domestic, social and affectional affairs should thrive, despite some singular situation.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an active and progressive year, if they persist and avoid new ventures. Those in employment should work for promotion or recognition. All heart and home affairs should thrive. A child born on this day should be clever, ambitious and independent, but may make its best success in the employment of others.

ARTICLE No. 11

We cannot all hold good cards but we all can hold our tempers. Many a game and rubber is lost by bad temper, an inexcusable fault from every angle. The writer saw this well exemplified the other night. Two fairly good players had cut together for several rubbers and were not only holding bad cards but also getting bad "breaks." After several such hands, one of the players lost his temper completely and began to blame his partner for their bad luck. This naturally didn't help so they went from bad to worse. Finally, after one hand in which a very bad and unexpected "break" of cards caused a big loss, the hot tempered player said: "Well, partner, I have lost all confidence in you." The very next hand, the partner made an informatory double but the hot tempered one refused to bid, saying: "I know very well what you want me to do but I'll be hanged if I follow your ignorant orders." As a result of this childish loss of temper their opponents went game and rubber. Don't allow yourself to lose your temper at the card table. There's no better way to lose not only your money but also your friends.

Several of the hands that caused this strong difference of opinion, were rather interesting and instructive.

An analysis of these four hands will be given in the next article. They are not tricky but usual, ordinary hands that come up constantly. Study them over and be ready to compare your reasoning with the writer's opinion.

Answer to Problem No. 7

Clubs — Q, 7, 2
Diamonds — none
Spades — Q, 6

Diamonds — J, 10, 5, 4, 3
Spades — none

Hearts — Q, 10, 6
Clubs — K
Diamonds — K, 6, 2
Spades — 7

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can YZ so play the hand that they will win five of the eight tricks against any defense? The solution of this problem has already been given but a possible defense by B was suggested for analysis. At trick one, Z should play the king of clubs and Y should play the seven. Z should then follow with the seven of spades. A should win this trick with the king. It was suggested that A should now play the king of hearts and follow with the nine. If Z plays the six of hearts on A's king, and wins the second round of hearts with the ten, YZ can only win four tricks for Z will have to lead diamonds to B's hand. When A leads the king of hearts, Z should play the ten of hearts and win the second round of hearts with the queen. He should then play the king of diamonds and lead a low heart. A must win this trick with the jack of hearts. No matter what he now leads, Y must make his queen of clubs and queen of spades. This variation is very instructive and should be carefully noted. Play it out and notice the proper play by A and Z.

SENATORS ARE NOT DISMAYED BY QUEEN'S TORONTO VICTORY

Capital Fans Doubt Ability of Big Four Champions to Defeat the Kingston University. Stars.

PRACTICING TWICE A DAY

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 24 (By Canadian Press)—Ottawa Senators started the final week of their training for the Dominion Rugby championship game with Queen's here on Saturday with a double workout Monday. Under ideal weather conditions, the full squad worked out from one to two in the afternoon and then from five till seven last evening.

Coach Dave McCann had Andy Davies assisting him, while Rug. Pritchard also lent a hand in getting the Tubmanites down to razor edge for the biggest game of the season here this week nd. There were no absentees and a line-up practice was indulged in after a lengthy drill had been gone through in signals and formations.

The men are all keen on the job. Undismayed by the beating the Tricolor handed Balmy Beach in Toronto Saturday, the Senators are still confident that they will at least chase the Kingstonians to the wire if they go down to defeat. Every respect is held for Queen's prowess but the limestoners will step up against an aggregation on Saturday that will be ready to fight to the last ditch.

Speculation on the outcome is varied. There are many fans who do not concede the Senators a chance, while on the other hand there are many students of rugby who are of the opinion that Batstone and his clan will have a large sized handful in holding the red, white and black. A small army of Ottawa players saw the Queen's-Balmy Beach game and doubtlessly picked upconsiderable useful information. Twice-a-day practice rules hold for the entire week and there will be no let up in the grind until the issue is settled.

Arrangements are being made to accomodate a bumper crowd and it is expected that the figures set when Ottawas eliminated Tigers two weeks ago will be shattered. Reservations have been requested from many outside points and practically the entire sporting public of the capital will be on hand to see the Senatorial attempt to wrest the Dominion title from the Queen's aggregation.

We your friends and fellow ballplayers felt that we could not let this opportunity pass without in some way showing our esteem and respect of you as a chum and ball player among us.

We also extend a hearty welcome to Mrs. Shaughnessy and hope that she may long remain in our midst.

CHICAGO CROWD TO SEE GRANGE

Rugby Idol of Illinois to Pack Cubs' Park on Thursday.

COIN FOR REDHEAD

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Professional or amateur, the public is so heated up over Harold "Red" Grange that a capacity crowd of 50,000 persons is assured when he makes his professional debut with the Chicago Bears in the Chicago National League Park Thanksgiving morning.

When the 28,000 reserved seats were placed on sale yesterday, two lines of purchasers, each a block long formed at 10 o'clock, and seven hours later appeared to be even longer. Traffic was tied up by the crowds which jammed the downtown ticket office until half a dozen policemen were assigned to keep the lines in order.

The 28,000 seats were sold before night, those falling into the hands of scalpers selling for $15 and some for $25. The standing room and bleachers seats were placed on sale today.

Nobody wanted a ticket because it was the Bears or Cardinals playing—they all wanted tickets for "the Grange game."

Because of the tremendous advance sale and indications of a standing room capacity, the latest figures indicate that the attendance will be around 50,000, with the gate receipts $90 000. All this means gold for Red's pockets, for his contract provides for a general cut of the gate receipts.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

You cannot play close to the pin when pitching to a green unless you actually play for the pin. Of course, you may roll up close to it occasionally but such good fortune is the result of accident rather than skill. Golf pays dividends in pleasure in proportion to the player's increasing skill. The objective with each shot, therefore, should always be definite. If you are pitching 100 yards for the pin, make your objective the top tip of the flag pole itself. If the pin is to the left of the green, shoot to the left and try to hit it regardless of the dangers that may threaten such a shot. Even if you miss it and catch a trap you will have progressed a little with your golf since the try will represent real golf, whereas it is no particular accomplishment to merely set the ball on the green. Whatever the shot, first fix a definite spot for the ball, then shoot.

OTTAWA LIKES YOUNG KILREA

Rookie Handled Himself Like a Veteran Against Champion Cougars.

TEAM IS STRONG.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 24 (Canadian Press) — Jubilant over their double triumph over the world's champions, Victoria Cougars, in the exhibition series which was concluded here on Saturday night, the Ottawa Senators resumed practices Monday for their first scheduled national hockey league fixture against the Montreal Maroons in this city next Saturday evening.

The Senators came out of the Cougar series in splendid shape and no casualties are reported. The men are all in good condition and, judging by their showing against Victoria, are a team to be seriously reckoned with in calculating the National League title winners this season.

Compliments are flying thick and fast in the direction of Hec. Kilrea the youngster who broke in with such a bang in the recent tourney. Kilrea has all the hall marks of a good one and in his two attempts here handled himself like a veteran. He will likely be held as first string relief, if his good work continues. One of the pleasing features of the exhibition games was the return to form of Frank Nighbor. The great center ice player was at his best.

ST. PATS TROUNCE WORLD CHAMPIONS

Babe Dye Drive in Three of the Irish Tallies Past Holmes.

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—St. Patricks and Captain Babe Dye started off the professional hockey season in a very auspicious manner at the Arena last evening. The Irish entry in the National League trouncing the world's champions from Victoria by 4 to 3 and the locals' leader driving three of his many shots past Harry Holmes in Cougars' goal. As a result, the Irish cannot do worse than break even in the two-game exhibition series and the Stanley Cup holders are trailing by two to three in their five games against Eastern teams.

RUGBY NOTES

Queen's victory over Balmy Beach did not occasion any surprise here, says the Hamilton Spectator, but it gives the football fans something to talk about for another week, for the Tricolor will now meet Ottawa in the eastern final. It is the intention of a number of Hamilton enthusiasts to make the trip to the capital next Saturday for the game, and if Ottawa can show the same form they revealed against the Tigers, such a trip will hardly be disappointing. Ottawa will go into the fight with 22 years of reverses behind them, for it was back in 1902 when they last won a senior Canadian championship. Twice since that time the Senators won the Big Four title, but they were never able to take the supreme honors again. Tubman, Miller and company will make a rare bid this year.

The decision of the Hamilton Rowing Club to retire from football was rather expected, and the officials of the club are not to be blamed from their desire to get from under. The team has been a losing proposition for several seasons and has only been maintained by the sportsmanship of the true-blue officials, who acted as "angels" and kept the ship on an even keel through the roughest seas. These men cannot be censured for retiring now. The present season has been as bad as any other, and the officials should be commended for carrying the club through its engagements before throwing up the sponge.

Tigers will undoubtedly benefit by Scullers' withdrawal from football. Several of the Rowing Club's players could be used by the Bengals, and if the Jungle Kings go through with their present intention of taking up the O.R.F.U. franchise and operating two teams, they will be able to put in a strong representation in the lesser circuit. The Bengals carried 26 men all season, whereas they could have done every bit as well, perhaps, and also saved money, with half a dozen less.

If you do it, you're a hero; if you don't, you're a no-account. 'Twas ever thus. Young Alex. Peters, star half of Sam Manson's Tiger Cubs, was the outstanding star in the Tiger-Kitchener play-off at Galt on Saturday. He played a wonderful game throughout and scored all the Tiger points, but in the last two minutes of play he made a mistake, one which any one might have made, and for which he should not be blamed in the slightest, although it made him the "goat" and gave Kitchener the game. It happened when Peters took the ball near his line, started to run and then booted it when advised to do so by one of his own men. Naturally, he had trouble kicking while on the run and the ball was blocked, Kitchener dribbling it across Tigers' line for a touch and the game. Had the kick been high, it might have rolled to Kitchener's line, for it would undoubtedly have been over the heads of the Kitchener backs, and then Peters would have been more of a hero than ever. Fate plays funny tricks with football players.

THREE 'PRO' HOCKEY TEAMS ARE WINDING UP WORK IN MONTREAL

Canadiens, Maroons and Boston Bruins Grooming for Week-end Opening.

SCOUTS STILL OUT

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 24 (Canadian Press) — Three National Hockey League teams are putting in their final practices in Montreal this week, prior to the opening of the "pro" season at the week-end, Canadiens drilling at the Arena, while Art Ross' Boston Bruins have taken over practice hours and are fitting themselves at the Forum along with the Maroons.

Montreal Maroons are dickering for the services of several amateur forwards, a local player being included in the lists. It appears that the Maroons have again put out feelers in an attempt to sign Sig Slater, last year with Victorias, but who is booked for amateur hockey in New York this winter. Eddie Gerard is apparently out to add a little more speed to his front rank and Slater is regarded as right for "Pro" company. Shorty Horne, the Grimsby right wing player, has joined the Maroons fun skating practices and Dr. Frank Scully stated Monday that in all probability he would give the young player permission to get down to serious training.

Canadiens have signed Larochelle as a relief right wing player. Leo Dandurand, while not yet having seen Cormiers' father, being of the opinion that is there is opposition of any sort to the lad signing, that he had better waive his contract. In the meantime, Canadiens still have hopes of landing Gerald Carson from Grimsby and also have strings out for another prominent French-Canadian amateur.

Chief interest centred yesterday in the Boston Bruins and there was an interested crowd at the Forum at noon to see Art Ross' candidates in action.

Spraguye Cleghorn, last year's captain of the Canadians, was on the defence with his former rival Lionel Hitchman partnering him—and a stalwart pair they looked. Sprague appeared a bit overweight, but he did not show it in the speed he displayed travelling down the ice with the puck. Dr. Stewart was in goal.

STEACY SCOFFS O.B.A.A. CENSURE

Kingston President Says the Ponies Had No Alternative But to Default.

BLAMES TORONTO.

KINGSTON, Nov. 24—Regarding the suspension by the executive of the O.B.A.A. of President B. N. Steacy and Manager Joe Daley, of the Kingston club, because of the club's failure to play Niagara Falls, Mr. Steacy in a statement says:

"It seems ridiculous to me that the O.B.A.A. should have taken such action and it sounds very much like a belated wail from Toronto. As far as I am personally concerned, I resigned the presidency of the Kingston club last week, so the O. B.A.A. suspension means nothing.

"However, in fairness to the Kingston club I would like to reiterate the facts. We were scheduled to play Niagara Falls home and home games, the first game in the Falls. This game was postponed due to wet grounds, and the first game was ordered for Kingston. This was impossible as our grounds were in an unplayable condition due to the heavy rains. We therefore wired the secretary of the O.B.A.A. stating the conditions and offered to play Niagara Falls a sudden death game on any neutral grounds. Niagara Falls, however, declined and therefore we had no alternative but to default the series.

"Why the O.B.A.A. should now taken such action after granting Niagara Falls the final sudden death game on their own grounds does not show true sportsmanship. It seems to me that there is a nigger in the woodpile, somewhere and that nigger is Toronto."

BID FAREWELL TO MADOC LADY

Mrs. Alexander Left Village to Join Husband in Bancroft.

A PRESENTATION

MADOC, Nov. 24.—A congregational social evening was held in the United Church Thursday night to say farewell to Mrs. P. J. Alexander, who is leaving for Bancroft, to which town Dr. Alexander preceded her a few weeks ago. Dr. and Mrs. Alexander will be very much missed in Madoc, and many regrets are being voiced at the loss of such good citizens. They have both been staunch members of the Methodist Church for many years, and Mrs. Alexander's assistance in the choir and church societies will be greatly missed. To show their appreciation of the valuable services Dr. and Mrs. Alexander rendered on every occasion, the congregation made them the recipients of a number of handsome gifts.

An impromptu programme was much enjoyed, consisting of vocal solos by Miss Grace Phillips, Mrs. A. H. Foster and Mr. A. Kincaid, who also made an amusing speech in his usual entertaining fashion; an instrumental solo by Miss Muriel Rouschorn, a reading by Miss Gladys Wilson and a quartet by the four little Kincaid boys.

At the close of the programme Mrs. Alexander was presented with a silver flower basket, a cut glass celery dish, a comforter and a club bag, and the following address was read:

"To Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Alexander, Madoc Ont.

"Dear Friends,—We, the members and adherents of the United Church of Canada in Madoc, have been unanimous in desiring to make use of the opportunity which this gathering affords to publicly express our high appreciation of your services as members of this church.

"From childhood Mrs. Alexander has been a member of this church. In Sunday School, Young people's work and choir her help was cheerfully given, and her home was a never-failing source of supply for tea-meetings and the social functions of the church.

"We appreciate the kindness and cheerfulness with which this service was rendered.

"When Dr. Alexander entered our village the church was his home. And as Recording Steward and a valued member of our male quartett and choir, he gave his best to the church he loved. We will indeed regret the severing of our church relationship, but we know that wherever your lot is cast in this world that same helpful service to the church will be rendered.

"On this, the eve of your departure from Madoc to make your home in Bancroft, your many friends gather to clasp your hand and say farewell. We wish you all success in your new home. Will you kindly accept these gifts as a pleasing reminder of your happy days in Madoc.

"Signed on behalf of the United Church, Madoc—A. H. Foster, minister; R. C. Fair, superintendent of Sunday School; Mrs. F. E. Brown, President of Ladies' Aid; J. B. Hough, Recording Secretary."

Much regret was felt that Dr. Alexander was unable to be present on this occasion.

Mrs. Alexander left for her new home on Saturday.

The I.O.D.E. held its annual sale of needle-work and home cooking in Tuft & Thompson's store on Saturday afternoon. Many dainty and useful articles of exquisite workmanship were displayed, and the financial returns were most gratifying.

Everything begins to look like Christmas now, except the weather. Bazaars are making their appearance, children are beginning to practise for the Christmas tree concert, and store windows beckon with their array of attractive gifts. In view of the cold autumn just passed and the scarcity of coal now threatened, most people feel quite contented with the weatherman's delay in sending snow, and would be pleased to have the arrival of "the beautiful" deferred until nearly the festive day.

CAVAN CHURCHES ARRANGE BUDGETS

Proportion Each Should Pay to United Church is Decided.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Cavan United Church was held on Wednesday evening in Cavan Church.

One of the chief items of business was arranging the proportion which each of the three appointments, Cavan, Mount Pleasant and Ebenezer, should pay of the budget. Twelve hundred dollars is the sum allotted, by the Presbytery to this circuit.

Mr. Percy Stewart was the member from Ebenezer. Mount Pleasant was unrepresented at the meeting.

Women's Institute

The Cavan Women's Institute held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Eber Syer on Thursday afternoon. There were twenty-five present. The president, Mrs. F.M. Staples, conducted the meeting which was opened by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

After the business session, a number of letters were read from persons who had received fruit and flowers from the Institute, also a letter of thanks from a family who had been helped to the extent of ten dollars, and who had also received clothing and etc., from members of the Institute.

A paper, written by Miss Jessie Schaffer, on "Steps to Success", was read by Mrs. R. Matchett, as Miss Schaffer was unable to be present.

A pleasing feature of the program was the reading of a letter received from Miss Bertha McNeil, a former president of the Society and who is now attending Guelph College. In her letter Miss McNeill described life in "McDonald Hall," with its routine of study and recreation.

It was decided to follow the usual custom and withdraw the December meeting, but plans were made for Christmas giving to make some hearts happier.

The January meeting will be at the home of Mrs. R. Matchett. Mrs. R. Howden and Miss Francis Hunter will be responsible for the programme.

It was decided to ask the secretary to make application to the department at Toronto, for another circulating library.

Mrs. Totten played some solos on the piano, after the meeting was adjourned. A nice lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Paul, Mrs. Ray Syer, Miss Alathea Kelly and Miss Elinor Pritchard and the opportunity for social conversation was enjoyed while lunch was eaten.

Among those present were: Mrs. A. Kenendy, Mrs. Totton, Miss Elinor Pritchard, Mrs. D. J. Hunter, Mrs. Vincent Fee, Miss Nettie Sutton, Mrs. M. J. A meeting of the executive of the Sunday school Council of Cavan and South Monaghan was held in Cavan United Church on Tuesday evening. Plans were made for the programme of the annual convention which will be held in Cavan United Church on Tuesday evening, December 8.

On Tuesday evening the C.S.E.T. boys also held their meeting under their leader, Mr. Reg. Sutton.

Mr. Cook, a Presbyterian returned missionary gave an address in Cavan Church last Monday afternoon. As the former Methodist church had not had missionairies in India, it was interesting to hear of his work there.

There were not as many out to hear the address as were desired. It had been announced at the Sunday evening service, but owing to the inclement weather the services had not been well attended, consequently many did not hear of the Monday meeting.

Some of the members of Fairmount Church are preparing a play to be given before Christmas.

Mr. Jos. Staples went to Toronto on Wednesday to attend the Winter Fair, remaining until Thursday evening.

Mr. Jas. Paul went to Toronto on Tuesday to attend the Winter Fair.

OLD TRAGEDY OF BREAKWAY RECALLED BY ORLAND PEOPLE

Several People Were Drowned When Lake Broke Loose.

CARD PLAYER SAVED.

Uncle of Present Storekeeper Should Have Been in Mill—Substitute Drowned.

(By a Staff Reporter)

ORLAND, Nov. 24—W. J. Latimer is not addicted to card playing but, nevertheless, he has a friendly feeling for that pastime as an uncle of his, by taking part in a game for what at that time was regarded as high stakes, escaped an untimely and tragic death. The story of that escape is linked up with the history of an event that marked a new era in the records of this district.

"The Breakway"

A short distance from the village of Hilton, in Brighton Township, there is a valley of about 75 acres in extent, surrounded by embankments so uniform in height and thickness as to favor the idea that the valley was years ago a reser-voir and that the banks enclosing it were built by man instead of by nature. Anyway, that valley was once filled with water and constituted a lake which disappeared with tragic suddenness on the night of April 20, 1852.

Prior to that date the lake was drained through a small opening in the south bank and the overflow fed a small stream that ran down the valley. When the water was high in the lake the stream assumed the proportions of a moderately sized river.

There were situated on this stream two saw mills that were operated during the spring freshets. The one nearer the lake was owned by a man named Shearer and in April, 1852, the supply of water was scant and Shearer feared that he would not be able to cut all his stock of logs before it failed altogether.

Shearer gave out that he was going to increase the flow and on the night of April 20 in the year referred to he went to the lake alone. Whatever he did to extend the outlet will never be known but at midnight the waters of the lake broke loose and the torrent rushed down the valley leaving death and desolation in its wake. Shearer was drowned in the deluge.

That Game of Cards

The late Joseph Adams, uncle of W. J. Latimer, who is a merchant here, was on night duty in Shearer's mill at that time but on the afternoon of the day of the catastrophe he became engaged in an interesting game of cards with some comfor Adams to go on duty. Finding it impossible to tear himself away he induced Jake Herrington, for a consideration, to take his place for the night at the mill. That mill was swept away in the flood and Herrington was drowned. Adams, the card player, not only saved his own life but it has become a part of local history that he on the game which was instrumental in holding him back from death.

Two Narrow Escapes

George Montgomery was on night duty in the mill lower down the valley. He heard the roar of the approaching torrent and the crash of trees broken down by the flood and started for the home of Philip Simpson where he boarded. He had gone only a short distance when he realized that he could not reach the Simpson house in time so he returned to the mill. Climbing to the highest point in that structure, he remained until the waters subsided in the morning, the water up to his neck. At that pont the force of the flood was not as strong as it had been higher up and Montgomery's mill stood the onslaught but Montgomery was almost dead from cold.

Philip Simpson's wife was sick in a room down stairs at the time of the flood and the house was in the valley in the path of the torrent. Simpson carried his sick helpmate upstairs and there they spent the night, the waters swirling through the room they occupied.

A Bottomless Lake

The lost lake was in its day regarded as bottomles and for years after it was drained neither man or beast dare venture upon its surface as to do so meant death by being engulfed by the quicksand. Of recent years, however, the valley has been used as pasture land, the ground having become hardened, but not attempt has ever been made to cultivate it. At present the land belongs to three farmers in the vicinity, William Hennessey, Bert Fiddick and Gordon Thorne. Every community under the sun has its tragic story and that of the lost lake is the tale of Brighton Township's greatest historic happening.

STEPS TO SUCCESS.

Written by Miss J. Schaffer for the November meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute.

"He achieves success, who lives well laughs often, and loves much, who has gained the trust of pure women, and the smiles of small children, who has filled his niche, accomplished his task, and left the world better than he found it, either by an improved poppy, a perfect poem ,or a rescued soul. Whatever a person's calling, personal efficiency is the first quality demanded. Efficiency is made up of certain basic qualities which should be taught to all children. It includes reliability. The dependable person is worth more than the brilliant one. The boy or girl who can be counted upon to do his task and not come with excuses is wanted everywhere.

Next and allied to reliability is thoroughness, the doing with one's might, what one undertakes, so there are no loose ends, for anyone else to look after. Next and crowning every other quality, is sheer industry. Work works wonders. Idleness is one of the greatest enemies of characters, as someone has said: "The devil tempts men, but idle men tempt the devil." Simple, steady labor conquers all things. Business is more than the mere barter of commodities, or the exchange of labor for money. It is first of all the means through which a person expresses his life. That storied Irish man was right, who put a whelbarrow on his family crest .By the barrow he had served the world, it was his sign of conquest. Mere business is not always good business, to achieve a life of integrity and usefulness is the world's biggest business. The size of the bank account is entirely a secondary consideration. The people who have tried to pry open a road to prosperity, between the ten commandments and the civil statutes, are being called sharply to book. Some have made vast fortunes only to find themselves gibbeted by the public judgment. Honest output, honest work, honest dealings and high principles beyond all purchase, these are the bed rock foundations of a successful life.

Cultivate friends, for friends are the rungs in the ladder of success. Another thing is economy. Some one has said that economy is itself a great revenue.

The motto of the most aggressive and notable organizations is truth. Hence we see the reforms with respect to pure foods, and honest advertising. Truth in the inward parts, works out into prosperity in outward affairs. Learn well, earn well.

As closing thoughts I would say never get discouraged. When you are about to let go, hold on.

Courtland Myers tells a story in his book, 'Where Heaven Touched Earth,' of a woman who planted a rose bush with greatest care. She watered it, pruned it, enriched it, and gave it every attention, but no roses grew upon it. At last, one day, she discovered in a hole in the wall of her garden, a branch of her rose bush had pushed its way through the opening, and on the other side of the wall were the most beautiful roses she had ever seen in her life. Perhaps when we have toiled over our work and been disappointed and grieved at the lack of fruit, some day, on the other side of the wall, it may be in the garden of God, some beautiful results of our life's toil and victory will be seen. A successful life is made up of days well lived, days in which we have put our best deeds. If we fail one day and we think it below the standard of our ideals, we should get comfort from J. Keble's verses:

"New every morning is the love
Our wakening and uprising prove,
Through sleep and darkness, safely brought,
Restored to life and power and thought,
New mercies each returning day
Hover around us while we pray,
New perils past, new sins forgiven,
New thoughts of God, new hopes of Heaven.
If we could start the day by just repeating Robert Louis Stevenson's prayer and try to remember it, when things are not running as smooth as we would like them, we will be pretty sure of success in all our undertakings.

The day returns and brings us the petty round of irritating concerns and duties. Help us to play the man, hip us to perform them with laughter and kind faces, let cheerfulness abound with industry. Give us to go blithely on our business all this day; bring us to our resting beds, weary and content and undishonored, and grant us in the end the gift of sleep."

DOMINIONS TO BE EMPIRE GUARDIANS

J. H. Woods Says Australia and Canada Will Be Guardians in Future.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—"Australia and Canada, in my opinion, are together to be the future guardians of our Empire."

In these words, J. H. Woods, of the Calgary (Alberta) Herald, and president of the Canadian Press, summed up last night the impressions of his recent visit to Australia to attend the Imperial Press Conference.

The occasion was a dinner given by E. Norman Smith, of the Ottawa Journal, and first vice-president of the Canadian Press, in honor of Mr. Woods, and as marking his return from the Antipodes.

YOUNG HUNTER SHOT HIMSELF

Gun Found With Body Had Apparently Been Used as a Club.

BLED TO DEATH.

CREEMORE, Ont., Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press.)— The body of Leslie James Weatherall, 23, of Avening, three miles south of Creemore, was found in the bush near Mount Zion school house. The young man left home last Wednesday after informing his parents that he was going on a hunt and would not return that evening, but spend the night with relatives, at Lavender, five miles away. No anxiety was felt until Saturday, when his continued absence roused a presentment of disaster and a search party of about 150 neighbors began to patrol the bush.

He had succumbed to a gunshot wound in the leg. Marks on the butt of the gun suggested that it had been held by the barrel and used as a club and had been discharged. the shot entering the leg between the knee and the body. The young man had bled to death.

GREECE WANTS BIG INDEMNITY

Total of $687,280 is Asked From Bulgaria For Frontier Fight.

TWENTY KILLED.

ATHENS, Nov. 24. — (United Press).—Greece has notified the League of Nations committee of investigation into the recent Greco-Bulgar frontier clash that it desires indemnity of 142,000 pounds sterling ($687,280) from Bulgaria.

Athens asks 85,000 pounds for the death of the Greek captain at the outbreak of hostilities and for the alleged slaying of 19 soldiers and the wounding of 36 by the Bulgarians. Fifty-seven thousand pounds is the amount requested for the concentration and transfer of troops and for war materials.

The clash between the two countries was ended when Greece, at the order of the League, retired from Bulgarian territory.

AT THE GRAND

"MISS BOB WHITE" READY FOR INITIAL SHOWING.

Last night, after a strenuous work-out in the Durant Show-rooms, where daily rehearsals are being held for the annual Kiwanis show, everyone gave a deep sigh of relief before wending their way homeward for a much-needed rest. Along with the sigh, however, came a broad smile of satisfaction at the thought of having finished complete rehearsals of the big show far enough ahead of the first presentation to enable them all to go on with the ease and grace of professionals plus the added attraction of fine local talent freshness.

Everyone is beginning to ask, "Have you purchased your tickets for 'Miss Bob White'?" and from all indications at the Grand Opera House box office, where the brilliant comic opera is to be staged, Friday and Saturday nights, there will be a record crowd to witness this newest of successes to be attained by musical, dramatic and dancing talent of Peterborough.

Aside from those who added laurels to Kiwanis prestige last year are some new, yet old faces in this line of work. Truly it is a premier combination worthy of more praise than can be set to type.

The principal parts are most ably taken and played with real merit. In these various parts we find all kinds of fun and seriousness to please everyone.

Following are those who are taking important leading roles:

Lord Bashful, A. J. Reynolds; Friend Rodd, a Quaker farmer, who works tramps, F. G. Stinson; Phyllis, his daughter, Mathilde Masson; Jack Harty, In love with Phyllis, Hugh Niven; Miss Autumn, a One-only-al-dame, Ernestine McManus; Duke of High Titles, an English peer with Ancestors, W. Geo. Henderson; Tre Billion and Van Million, Two Millionaire Clubmen who are forced, through losing a freak election bet, to become tramps for two months, E. Vernon Morphet and Norman Laing; Claire Livingston, "Miss Bob White," Mrs. Walter Byers; O'Yankemin, the Village police force, Art. Blade; DeVere, Tre Billion's man, Harry C. Hunman. All this and a chorus of one hundred and fifty.

T. Roy Barner, James O. Barrows and Marje Astaire, under Edward Sloman's direction.

BUSTER BROWN COMEDIES FOR THE KIDDIES

A new series of Buster Brown Comedies have been boked by McGeachie for the Royal. The first one "Educating Buster" will be on the programme, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Buster, Mary and the Dog Tige made famous in cartoons have at last come to life.

BETTY BALFOUR COMING; "A JOLLY GOOD FILM"

The Prince of Wales was an interested spectator at the premiere showing in London recently of the photo-drama, "Reveille," featuring Betty Balfour. At the conclusion of the showing the Prince remarked, "It's a jolly good film." This splendid production will be shown at the Royal Theatre for three days, starting Monday next.

"SOULS FOR SABLES" A SCREEN TREAT

"Souls for Sables,' a Tiffany production ,tells of a phase of modern life that is always interesting—a woman's longing for beautiful clothes. This picture, which was shown for the first time at the Royal yesterday is suggested from "Garlan & Co," by David Graham Phillips, and has as the featured players Claire Windsor and Eugene O'Brien.

Insofar as the settings are concerned, they are the utmost in elegance, while the direction and photography are of the very best. Evidently no expense was spared in the gowns worn by Miss Windsor, who is seen in more than 26 changes of costume during the run of the picture. A fortune in sable furs is exhibited.

AT THE ROYAL.

ROYAL GETS "THE PRICE OF PLEASURE"

"The Price of Pleasure," Universal-Jewel, co-starring Virginia Valli and Norman Kerry, will be the feature attraction in the Royal Theatre commencing Thursday, according to Manager McGeachie. The story is of a shop girl who enjoys one week of the pleasures. She then becomes the wife of the son of an aristocratic family, and then is thrown on her own resources. Such well-known players as Louise Fazenda, Kate Lester, George Fawcett, of the erring son, Lars, drag through the wet as his old father lies dying in the storm, the flying feet of the dancing girl spurn the love of the faithful youth of the farm, and there is the rocking, nervous foot of the old man as he waits in silence for the return of his daughter. The artistic use of such small homely things almost makes up for the long-drawn out episodes of emotional stress and storm.

ROYAL
THE OLD RELIABLE

It is the story of a beautiful girl reared in the lap of luxury, who marries a business man who is unable to keep up with the demands of his extravagant wife. She wants a sable coat. She wins money in a card game, and invests it in the stock market through the medium of a rich broker who admires the young matron.

Unaware of how his wife gets the coat the young husband shows his disapproval by leaving her. The story has a dramatic finish, which would be unfair to publish.

Miss Windsor as Alice Garlan is more beautiful than ever and gains high honors in her portrayal of the part of the spoiled child of fortune, while Eugene O'Brien as the young business man is more than good in his part. The other members of the cast, including Eileen Percy, Anders Randolf, Claire Adams, George Fawcett and Edith Yorke, are well cast in their respective parts.

"Souls for Sables," which will be at the Royal until Wednesday night, is a picture worth while seeing.

AT THE CAPITOL

LON CHANEY IN "THE TOWER OF LIES."

Admirers of Lon Chaney in the role of Quasimodo in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," in the clown of "He Who Gets Slapped," and in the part of one of "The Unholy Three," will have a chance to see him in a new character presentation in "The Tower of Lies," which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday. He is the central figure of the big picture, and has the difficult role of the father, "Jan," the morbid figure of the opening scenes, the happy parent of the ensuing portion and the half-mad old man of the finale. In his part, he does some memorable acting, and is ably supported by Norma Shearer in the character of Glory, his daughter, first the gay young girl of the country dance, then the prodigal daughter returning home with a purseful of money and a ragged reputation.

The picture is interesting but suffers from a somewhat artificial treatment of emotional scenes. Jan and his daughter both use a constant smile as a symbol of inward pain and agony and the director prolongs the dramatic renditions of suffering to the farthest limit. There is little relief from the repressed and voiceless agony of the wayward girl and her family until the old mother comes to life momentarily and pushes the villain out of doors. This is probably the most natural episode of the whole production. Why the producers did not seize upon the very obvious excuse for the girl that she practically sold herself to the cruel landlord so as to free her old parents from the grip he held them in is not very plain, except that such a denouement would have taken away somewhat from the prominence in the picture of Lon Chaney, and that was quite plainly not their or his intention.

For those who enthused over "He Who Gets Slapped," this picture, "The Tower of Lies," gives another opportunity for enjoyment of the peculiar emotional ambilities of Lon Chaney. His is an art that holds the attention, but keeps it as finely and irritably strung up as an over-taut violin string.

The picture has those little touches that Seastrom uses with great effect. A glimpse of the boat's directing dial conveys the impression at once that the girl who is fleeing from home and the wrath of the villagers will be taken aboard, and the ripples of water that rise from turgid depths form the last view of the crazed old man who follows here. The use of feet is also remarkable. The picture opens with the view of a pair of lagging feet, the feet of the woman who takes the place of the beast of burden at the plow. Again there are baby feet shown, when the little girl runs to her father, the lagging feet

AT THE REGENT

"MAN ON THE BOX" A CHAPLIN SMASH

Whatever else you may neglect to do, don't miss seeing Syd Chaplin, who is starring in "The Man on the Box," the Warner Bros. Classic of the screen which opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre; that is, if you want to see one of the most distinctive combinations of comedy and melodrama ever devised for the screen.

Charles "Chuck" Rehner directed the production and if anybody can get every bit of comedy out of a story "Chuck" is the man. In addition, he plays a Russian spy in this perfect picturization of Harold MacGrath's celebrated novel and play.

The remainder of an excellent cast includes David Butler, Alice and Kathleen Calhoun, Theodore Lorch, Helene Costello, E. J. Ratcliffe, Chas. Gerrard and Henry Barrowes. The adaptation is by Charles A. Logue and Julien Josephson wrote the scenario.

"The Man on the Box" is one of the few pictures you can't afford to miss if you want riotously funny entertainment.

Headaches and Biliousness

Are quickly relieved by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

When you feel irritable, cranky and downhearted, you can easily blame the liver, for there is no organ in the human body which so quickly throws the system out of sorts as a torpid, sluggish liver.

You do not need to be in the blues long, if you know about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for by their direct action on the liver they relieve promptly and prove lastingly beneficial.

Once the liver is right the bowels function regularly and the whole digestive system resumes its work. The bridegroom was assisted by Mr. Jack Milburn of Peterboro.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, to the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

IN POLICE COURT

Two men appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, one of whom alleged that the other had assaulted him. The plaintiff stated that he had taken the mail down to the C.P.R. Station and found that the defendant's car was blocking the passage up to the platform; he asked the man to move his car, and the defendant then hit him with his fist. As he dodged the blow, it did not land effectively, but he had hit him just the same. The defendant entered into a lengthy description of the scene, and when asked by the Magistrate as to whether or not he had hit the man he denied it flatly.

Judgment was awarded the plaintiff, a fine of $10 and costs being imposed on the alleged assailant.

Detention of Child.

A woman appeared in court this morning, charged with detaining a child which was the ward of the Children's Aid Society of Peterboro City and County. Magistrate Langley reserved judgment, adjourning until next Monday that the mother may have an opportunity to return the child. Joseph Wearing, City Solicitor, appeared for the prosecution and J. A. O'Brien for the defence.

FRENCH SOCIALISTS MANOEUVRE FOR RECALL OF HERRIOT AT HEAD OF RADICAL SOCIALIST CABINET

Harassed Briand By Demands For Control of Proposed New Ministry.

DOUMER SUMMONED.

Senator May Be Able To Rally Majority of Chamber.

PARIS, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press).—The Socialist demands for half the portfolios in the new government, the right to name the new Premier and dictate the financial policy, blocked the Cabinet-making negotiations Tuesday and spoiled the efforts of M. Briand to form a Ministry likely to enlarge the government majority in the Chamber.

M. Briand finally declined to accept the task of attempting to form a Cabinet and suggested Senator Paul Doumer, former Finance Minister, who consulted with President Doumergue and requested twenty-four hours in which to give his final answer.

Leon Blum, Socialist leader, and Paul Boncour refused to accept posts under M. Briand, while the entire Socialist group in caucus decided that they must be allowed to name at least half the Cabinet from among their number, and adopted a resolution that they could support the Government only on condition that it adopted the Socialist project for a capital levy.

Briand Declined.

M. Briand offered portfolios to M. Painleve and M. Herriott, as well as to the Socialist leaders. M. Painleve declined, and M. Herriot made his acceptance conditional upon the participation of the Socialists. In the presence of a seemingly well laid plan to manoeuvre him into a corner, Mr. Briand informed President Doumergue that Senator Doumer seemed to be the best likely man to set up a new combination that could rally a safe majority in the Chamber.

M. Doumer agreed to see what he could do, promising a definite reply within twenty-four hours and he started on his task at once by obtaining M. Briand's assurance that he would stand by him as Foreign Minister.

The Senator apparently is so far of success that he went to work last evening on financial projects he proposes to introduce in the Chamber immediately if he becomes Premier, leaving further consultations until to-day.

Doumer Not a Radical.

There was less confidence among the deputies in M. Doumer's ability to solve the situation. The Socialists declared they would have none of him at any price. The Radicals are divided; a considerable number are hostile because M. Doumer is not regarded as a man of the Radical-Socialist coalition. The uncompromising attitude of these two groups is said by the deputies of the other parties to indicate a determination to force President Doumergue to call on M. Herriot to form a Radical-Socialist Cabinet.

It is thought that M. Doumer will endeavor so to choose his official family as to divide the Radical party and shift the majority toward the centre, and thus disregard the Socialists entirely.

French High Cost Of Living Takes Elders Back To School

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press).—The high cost of living has made itself manifest in another French quarter. The French universities all report the enrollment of an unusual number of elderly and middle-aged pupils.

Retired officers, merchants, functionaries and others, finding their incomes from investments too small for present-day needs, are seeking to perfect themselves in some subject with a view to reobtaining employment. The subject most patronized is law, and after that, the modern languages.

COMMUNISTS IN BRITAIN GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Five Are Sentenced To Year in Jail—Seven Go For Six Months.

REFUSE TO QUIT.

Seven Could Have Gone Free if They Quit Communist Party.

LONDON, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—A verdict of guilty was returned today against twelve Communist leaders tried in Old Bailey on charges of conspiring to publish seditious libels and violation of the Incitement to Mutiny Act.

Albert Inkpin, secretary of the Communist party, was sentenced to 12 months in prison. The same sentence was given to Harry Pollitt, noted Communist speaker; W. Rust, secretary of the Young Communists' League; William Gallacher, a member of the Communist executive, and Walter Hannington.

Sentences of six months' imprisonment were given seven other defendants: Ernest Cant, London, organizer of the Communist party; J. Ross Campbell, assistant editor of The Workers' Weekly; T. W. Wintringham, business manager of the same publication; Thomas Bell; Arthur McManus, chairman of the British Communist party and a member of the executive of the Communist International; John T. Murphy, a member of the executive of the British Communist party, and Walter P. Arnot, director of the party's labor department.

The judge said that he would bind over each of the seven given 6 months' imprisonment if they would undertake to have nothing more to do with the Communist organization, but all of them refused.

Has Approval of City Council and Other Civic Officials.

BAND TO ATTEND.

Salvation Army Bandsmen and Male Voice Choir Will Help.

The memorial service in St. Paul's Church tomorrow night, in which the citizens of Peterborough will pay tribute to the memory of the late Queen Mother Alexandra, will be undenominational in character and open to everyone. The Salvation Army Band will render selections appropriate to the occasion, and the Male Voice Choir will sing "Abide With Me," Queen Alexandra's favorite hymn. Dog Cost Man His Wife, Exposed Him As Beggar

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press).—John Sheldon's dog cost him his wife. In Superior Court yesterday, Mrs. Ida May Sheldon testified she firmly believed her husband was a prosperous business man until one day she took his dog out for a walk and the animal went into hysterics of joy at the sight of a white-bearded street beggar. The dog's joy aroused her suspicions, she said, and underneath the beggar's false beard, she found her husband. She was granted a divorce.

WELSH COAL ON SALE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (Canadian Press).—With soft coal being burned on a large scale, and with the smoke ban in New York lifted, the city daily resembles a sooty train shed with a deep haze hanging over the entire island. A 75,000-ton shipment of Welsh anthracite arrived in the harbor yesterday from overseas in eight specially chartered freighters. Additional fleets are reported on the way, which will bring about 75,000 tons each week. The prices quoted ranged from $20 to $22 a ton. All sizes, from stove, egg and nut, to smaller sizes, were represented.

CHAPMAN FREE TO BE HANGED

President Coolidge Has Commuted Unexpired Prison Sentence.

ORDER DELIVERED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(United Press).—President Coolidge has signed an order commuting the unexpired portion of Gerald Chapman's 25-year Federal prison sentence, White House officials said to-day. The commutation, which turns the famous robber over to the Connecticut authorities, who wish to carry out a sentence of death by hanging on Chapman, is understood to have been delivered to the authorities at Wethersfield State Prison in Connecticut last night.

If American wives were remunerated for their home service at the rate of fifteen dollars a week their pay roll would amount to the sum of $17,000,000,000 a year.

CHANG'S FORCES WILL BE MOVED INTO SHANTUNG

Invasion of Province By Other Leaders Prompts Move.

PEACE TALK OVER.

Quiet Fortnight Spent in Negotiations is Succeeded By Action.

PEKING, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Marshal Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord, is contemplating the concentration of his forces around Tehchow, north-west of Tsinan, in the Province of Shantung, apparently with the intention of forcing the fighting against the Shantung invaders. After a fortnight's lull, which was devoted to peace talk, General Yueh Wei Chun, Governor of Honan, allegedly in defiance of a Presidential order to refrain from hostile movements, now is pushing his troops into Shantung from the west, which is impelling Chang to go to the defence of the provinces.

TWO YORKSHIRE CANDIDATES IN HASTINGS CLASH

Each Acted as Chairman For the Other When Paths Meet.

SPORTING SPIRIT.

By-election in Ripon Division Tests Rural English Sentiment.

LONDON, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press Cable). — Curiously, another bye-election besides the one in Bury St. Edmunds is taking place in a constituency that likewise is largely agricultural, namely the Ripon division of Yorkshire, inconsequence of the appointment of the former minister of agriculture, E. F. L. Wood, to the post of viceroy and governor-general of India, and the appointment of W. E. Guinness, former financial secretary to the treasury, to the ministry of agriculture. Mr. Wood represented Ripon in the House of Commons and Mr. Guinness, Bury St. Edmunds.

Ripon possibly is regarded by the thousands of Canadians who were encamped on its outskirts in war time as rather a sleepy city. Certainly the ancient foundation is also the seat of a bishopric. Ripon, however, is the veriest upstart so far as English bishoprics go, as its history scarcely dates back a century.

Sporting Arrangement.

Monday they encountered each other in the market place of a quaint little town, Knaresborough, where they acted as chairman for one another. They decided by the spinning of a coin which was to speak first. It was a good-humored sporty gathering of sturdy Yorkshire farmers, and the meeting was held amidst poultry and butter baskets and other farm produce. The gathering was from many miles of neighboring moorland and it characteristically accorded both candidates a kindly but shrewdly non-committal reception.

Avoids Question.

The Conservative candidate likewise was non-committal on the question of the government's agricultural policy because, like the new minister of agriculture, Mr. Guinness, in the Bury St. Edmunds bye-election, he maintains that a bye-election is no place for revealing the government's policy with regard to agriculture. He does say, though, that governments should interfere with agriculture as little as possible.

The Liberal candidate in Ripon has no use for Lloyd George's land proposals, but is launching a general complaint against the government on the ground that it has done nothing for the farmers.

TO PASS LIFE IN PRISON

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Walter Krauser, who shot and killed a policeman and later killed his cellmate, Bernard Grant, will spend the remainder of his life in jail, his and the state's attorneys decided yesterday.

One Queen Was Fired, Other One Does Her Duty

BANGKOK, Siam, Nov. 25 (United Press)—A daughter was born today to the new Queen of Siam, Chaochom, successor to the childless queen recently deposed.

The King in putting aside his first queen held that she had failed to perform her duty toward the country when she did not have any offspring.

PEOPLE GETTING FUEL SUPPLY IN FOR WINTER

Summer Time Propaganda Urging Early Purchase Is Not Heeded.

30,000 TONS USED.

Annual Cost to City Nearly Half Million—No Shortage Yet.

According to a local dealer, Peterboro people are gradually fortifying their homes in preparation for the approaching battle with the elements by laying in a supply of coal. Notwithstanding all the summertime propaganda calculated to get people to buy fuel while the sun shines, few there are who pay any attention to that sage advice. True, factories and other large business places find it so much to their advantage that they seldom neglect getting in a sufficient quantity. The coal baron, interviewed, said that just at this time it appeared to be the rule to buy in small lots of a ton or even by the hundredweight, so that the home fires could be kept burning at a small outlay. Possibly the sight of a few lumps of anthracite huddling in the corner of the bin acts as a deterrent on the spouse who might be tempted in her husband's absence to hurl discretion to the winds and too much coal in the furnace. Later in the year when these people are assured beyond a doubt that winter has really come and that spring is not in sight, they will be on the market for larger quantities and find that prices have ballooned beyond the reach of many.

The dealer said that in his opinion it required a ton and a quarter of coal per head to keep Peterboro citizens warm and comfortable. Accordingly, about 30,000 tons of that substance are shovelled into the furnaces each winter to the mournful refrain of $450,000. That is the price which Peterboro people pay for the privilege of living in a north temperate region. The twenty-seven odd thousand who live here, however, evidently consider that the benefits outweigh that slight tax on patriotism. The fuel dispenser declared that there was plenty of coal and wood in the city at present, and, providing that the Pennsylvania miners went to work soon, there would be no fear of a shortage this winter. Soft coal and coal substitutes, he said, were becoming increasingly popular, and were taking much of the burden off the anthracite supply.

Lions and Hippopotami Ravage North Transvaal

JOHANNESBURG, Nov. 25. (United Press). — The Petersburg district in Northern Transvaal is suffering from a plague of lions, hippopotami and big buck.

Forty-three lions have been destroyed on two estates within three months, while the hippopotami have developed such a passion for alfalfa that stock-raisers are despairing. A good sized hippopotamus can ruin five acres of alfalfa in a night.

DOMINIONS WILL SUPPORT PACT SAYS BALFOUR

Realize That It Is Great Effort of Mother Country For Peace.

ARE NOT BOUND.

Viscount Grey Says Dominions Have Obligations in Europe.

LONDON, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press).—The attitude of the British Dominions to the Locarno pact was the subject for a lengthy debate in the House of Lords yesterday, and the trend of the speeches was that the overseas governments should support the action of Britain. The Dominions "must not regard the treaties as if they have no obligations in Europe," Viscount Grey of Falloden declared. The Earl of Balfour said he had no misgivings regarding the result of the Locarno pact. The British Dominions, he said, were not bound by the treaty, but he was sure they would realize that this was a great effort on the part of the Mother Country to secure peace.

DOCTOR DEFRAUDED IGNORANT PATIENTS

Regina Judge Permits Him To Resume Practice.

REGINA, Sask., November 25. — Canadian Press. — Dr. E. A. Carefoot, who was prohibited from practicing by order of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, is to be restored to the register of the Saskatchewan College after Jan. 1, 1927, Mr. Justice Bigelow directs in a written judgment. This order is to be conditional upon the doctor filing an undertaking satisfactory to the reasonable wishes of the Medical Council as to his future conduct.

In giving this decision, Mr. Justice Bigelow finds—

That Dr. Carefoot was not guilty of unbecoming or professional conduct in the use of the Abrhms machine; that he was guilty of unprofessional conduct in telling patients that they had diseases which they did not have, and in taking money for treating them, and he further upholds the findings of the discipline committee of the college, that Dr. Carefoot made representations to his patients that Abrams machine used by him was infallible in diagnosis and that he guaranteed to cure their diseases.

SMUGGLED CIGARETTES.

Three Fines Imposed at Tillsonburg.

TILLSONBURG, Ont., November 25. — Canadian Press. — Customs officers and the local police have been successful in cleaning up in a large measure the traffic in American cigarettes which has existed in the district for some months. Tuesday Magistrate Patterson of Ingersoll, fined two men who came in by motor truck from Buffalo, for having contraband cigarettes in their possession. L. Beecroft, Delhi, was fined $50 and costs on a similar charge. His store was raided last week and 1900 cigarettes confiscated. The Dominion Cafe faces a charge of selling contraband which has not yet been settled.

Cheap Home For Barnhill; Stole Price; Was Fined $75

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 25. (United Press).—Robert Barnhall, 40, a dairy employee, paid $75 for an $8,000 home and a $1,000 automobile. Arrested on a charge of stealing cream, Barnhill admitted that for ten years he had stolen two gallons a day, and with the money realized from the sale, had purchased his home and car.

Judge J. M. Kilroy fined him $75.

HER BODY BARED BEFORE JURORS

Woman Broke Down Under Ordeal—Husband Seeks Marriage Annulment.

RHINELANDER SUIT.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Nov. 25. (Canadian Press).—Alice Beatrice Jones, daughter of a negro hack driver, to-day told her version of her romance with Leonard Kip Rhinelander, wealthy young society man, who seeks annulment of their marriage.

For the past week Young Rhinelander, stuttering and red of face, has told his story and submitted to a gruelling cross-examination of intimate questions of his love life. Tuesday he took the stand for a few minutes to clear up a minor point and then stepped down as his counsel announced that the plaintiff rested. Alice was to have gone on the stand as the first defence witness but she was still too shaken by her ordeal of Monday when she partly disrobed in a private room to permit the jury to see the color of her skin.

Shows Color of Her Skin.

A sensation of Monday was when Mr. Davis dramatically called on Justice Morschauser to clear the court-room of all men in it not having business there so that he might have Mrs. Rhinelander partially disrobe and show the jury how dark her skin was. He contends that Rhinelander could not have known her as well as he did without knowing that she was colored. Mrs. Rhinelander was told to go into the jury room, where before the jury and a lawyer from each side she bared her body to the waist. She was crying as she was led to the room and crying as she left it.

When they returned to the court room Mr. Davis asked:

"Your wife's body is the same shade as when you saw her in the Marie Antoinette?"

"Yes," said Rhinelander.

"That's all," said Mr. Davis, and the long cross-examination was over.

Shocking Letters.

The two mysterious letters from Rhinelander to his wife, written be-

WET PROGRAMME TO BE ADOPTED BY FERGUSON?

Report To-day Says Party May Put Through the Legislation.

APPEAL EXPECTED.

Government Control and Local Option Named—Conference of Cabinet.

TORONTO, November 25. Canadian Press. — A Toronto report says: "The fact that for three hours yesterday the Ontario Cabinet had under consideration the programme for the coming session, has strengthened the impression that before long there are likely to be developments of some importance in provincial politics.

Since his recent speech when he said there were to be no more plebiscites on the liquor question, so far as the present government was concerned, it had been taken for granted that Premier Ferguson will appeal to the electorate on a "wet" platform of government control and local option.

Details of such policy are no doubt engaging the deepest thought of the cabinet, in an endeavor to please the "wets," and at the same time keep within such limits as will retain in the party a sufficient number of Conservatives with temperance leanings to carry what will be essentially a "wet" policy.

Hotel men are said to have information from some source that the government control and local option programme will be adopted by the present administration, who will fight the next election on that issue, and it is believed to be not unlikely that before long an amendment will be made, and that that is the government's policy.

CORRUPT PERJURY CHARGED BY JUDGE

Mr. Justice Logie Ordered Arrest of Two Witnesses.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 25. — Canadian Press. — Norman McDonald and Edward West, both of Windsor, were each halted in their evidence by Justice Logie at Sandwich, Tuesday morning, and ordered held on charges of wilful and corrupt perjury, with a suddenness that resulted in J. H. Rodd, K. C., and T. Gerald McHugh, counsel for the defense, abandoning the case rather than submit to such a procedure.

West and McDonald were released on bail on Tuesday afternoon.

SENTENCE OF BARNARDO YOUTH WILL BE SUBJECT OF INQUIRY BY OFFICIALS OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Sentence of Four Years For $4.50 Crime Causes Much Comment.

MAGISTRATE SILENT.

Will Make No Comment on Announcement—Censured By Lodge.

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Official inquiry has been instituted by Attorney - General Nickle into the sentencing of 24-year-old Frederick Townsend, a Barnardo boy, by Magistrate Hind at Oshawa recently, to four years in the penitentiary, with hard labor, for forgery and false pretences, involving, it is said, $4.50. When Townsend appeared in court, it is understood, he was without funds and without counsel. He pleaded guilty to the offences as charged, and after receiving the sentence was led weeping from the court. The case has aroused considerable comment in Oshawa and in Toronto.

Magistrate Silent.

OSHAWA, Nov. 25. (Canadian Press).—Magistrate A. F. Hind declared this morning that he had nothing further to say in regard to the sentence meted out to Frederick Townsend, ex-Barnardo Home boy, in Oshawa Police Court a few days ago for forgery and false pretences, when seen regarding the announcement that Attorney-General Nickle would investigate his action. The cheque forged amounted to $4.50.

At a meeting of Essex Lodge, Sons of England, last evening, a resolution was passed censuring the Magistrate. The resolution in part says: "We certainly do not think a sentence so severe fits the crime or the explanation which he gives as to the way he allots sentences in his court. We think justice and mercy should go more hand in hand."

The resolution will be forwarded to the Attorney-General.

Attorney General Acts

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press) — Frank Field of Cobourg has been instructed by Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney General to act on behalf of Frederick Townsend, the Barnardo boy who was sentenced to four years when convicted of forging a cheque for $4.50. "Townsend is apparently without funds," Mr. Nickle said in making the announcement today.

OPTIMISM FEATURE OF ANNUAL PETERBORO' ENGINEERS BANQUET VOICED BY NUMBER OF SPEAKERS

Eighty Members Gather Round the Festal Board as Speakers, Reminiscent of Former Days, Speak With Encouragement Also of the Future.

SEXTETTE SCORES HASH HIT.

Sir Alexander Bertram and R. J. Durley Respond to the Institute Toast By Anecdotes Connected With Friendships of Peterborough Engineers.

Eighty members of the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada assembled in the Empress Hotel last night on the occasion of the annual banquet. An atmosphere of good humor, aided and abetted by Paul Manning and his five assistants, predominated while the speeches were mainly reminiscent of friendships and contacts of the past with hopes expressed for a larger and more active organization in the future.

A. L. Killaly, chairman of the branch, acted in that capacity last night and interlarded the addresses of the main speakers with what he termed "fillers" but which were in fact bits of encouragement for the Institute and tributes to the work done by the members.

Many Speakers There

Speakers responding to the toast "The Institute," were Sir Alex Bertram and R. J. Durley of Montreal. Professor H. E. Haultain of Toronto replied briefly to that of "Professional Engineers." The toast to "The Branches," was answered by F. S. Keith of Montreal and F. S. Lazier representing the Niagara Peninsula.

Representatives of allied professions were Rev. J. W. Gordon and V. J. McElderry. Other speakers were W. H. Munro, R. L. Dobbin, E. R. Shirley, F. H. Dobbin, and R. B. Rogers.

After grace had been said by Rev. J. W. Gordon a number of letters of regret were read from several who were unable to attend. The Chamber of Commerce had also sent a communication to the effect that the sympathy of that department was with them. An enthusiastic rendering of "Hail! Hail! the Gang's All Here" ushered in the remarks of the chairman, A. L. Killaly, who officially, and on behalf of the Institute, welcomed the guests from other branches and departments.

He paid a particular tribute to Sir Alexander Bertram, who he said, presided over the financial end so ably. He then proposed a toast to the guests whereupon the hosts once more burst into song to the effect that the visitors were all "Jolly Good Fellows." Three rousing cheers followed.

Toast to Institute

In proposing the toast to "The Institute," Mr. Killaly declared that a hard task had been set him to follow in the footsteps of the seven capable past-presidents who had preceded him. He hoped for charitable consideration and declared that efforts which had been made in Peterboro were not in vain as evidenced by the splendid fortnightly meetings which had been held throughout the year with the exception of the summer months.

Sir Alex Bertram

Sir Alexander Bertram in reply thanked the Peterboro Branch for the honour which had been accorded him by inviting him to the banquet. He said that there were a great many pleasing remembrances of his early associations with Peterboro which went back as far as 35 or 40 years ago. Mr. Munro and William Hamilton were particular attractions then he stated and also said that there was another attraction in a man named Dobie who acted on him as a magnet drawing him to Peterboro. Regarding Institute affairs Sir Alexander said he had been treasurer for a number of years and could not understand why he was not allowed by this time to go and sit on the shelf and watch affairs from there. He had found that there were always on the finance committee splendid men who took a serious view of the Institute affairs. Mr. Keith, he said, had found a burden of $5,000 on the books and was gradually getting this cleared away.

"We are paying off the mortgage on our building in Montreal and when we burn that mortgage I will have a little dinner of my own," he said.

Six Years' Apprentice.

It was a great privilege to be associated with engineers and especially mechanical engineers. He had put in his six years' apprenticeship like Mr. Dobie, and the rest, and had always kept in touch with them. The speaker mentioned the fact that the mechanic is proud of his work and regretted that some could not be "pulled into" the institute along with "those who rattle through examinations and all that."

His hardest work had been done in the council, he declared, and told how each candidates record was examined so that the engineers are the "pick of the country."

Mr. Killaly paid a tribute to the sterling work of such mechanical engineers as the last speaker, who were not satisfied with turning out some of the jobs as they are turned out to-day. The first thing Sir Alexander Bertram said, declared Mr. Killaly, on his arrival, was "Where is Bob Dobie." The thing which linked up men of that type through many years, was caused by something deeper than the hail-fellow-well-met attitude so universal now.

Sextette Presents Hash.

At this juncture the "Sextette" introduced a slight change in the menu by serving up a large portion of "Hash-1925 Version," which while not substantial fare, was relished by all, if requests for second helpings indicated the popularity of the dish.

R. J. Durley.

R. J. Durley, the Institute Secretary, in reply to the toast proposed by Mr. Killaly, stated that he was somewhat subdued to find that in making his first bow he would be addressing captains of industry and other high officials in the world of affairs. He said it made him feel something like a lion in a den of Daniels. He had been charged to convey the regrets of the Kingston branch, as they were unable to be represented.

He paid a tribute to the work of his predecessor, F. S. Keith, saying that this was the first opportunity he had had of expressing that sentiment in his (Mr. Keith's) presence. In taking over the secretaryship he found that he had the assistance of a staff which had been highly trained and organized by Frazer Keith, and that all credit was due to him. At present he was making a survey of conditions in Canada and found them unique although the type of organization was well qualified to deal with the situation

Structure of Branch

Mr Durley found that there were 24 autonomous and largely self-governing branches, which were capable of dealing with local conditions, and each autonomy carried with it the responsibilty of encouraging the growth of the institution by securing new members The onus of increasing the membership was entirely the work of branch committees. Formerly there had been no authorized inducements to hold out to intending members. This is remedied by the fact that booklets are now available.

Mr. Durley said it was Branch Cooperation that made things go, and it largely devolved upon the Branch Secretary to do all the work and persuade the committees that they were doing it all. Anyone, however, gets out of a thing just what he puts in it, so the men in the branch who received the most benefit were those who worked the hardest. He said there should be some modification in the method of sending or interchanging papers between branches, controlled by some central agency. He also said the relationship with young members should be improved.

Professor Haultain.

Before H. E. T. Haultain began his reply to the toast to Professional Engineers, some one intimated in a stage shout that he make it sixty seconds, and he occupied just about that space of time. He came from Toronto, he said, as a bearer of congratulations to the Peterborough branch, and declared that it was from the outlying districts that the greatest good would come to the profession. Toronto, he said, was trying to follow the lead of Peterborough.

The toast to the branches elicited a response from F. S. Keith, of Montreal. He assured members of the Peterborough branch of the eagerness with which they would cooperate in anything which would advance the interests of the Institute. He said that engineers were usually considered optimistic and mining engineers especially so.

Possibly as a result of the hash which the sextette slung so freely in its first appearance, it next went into a kind of seance out of which was evolved a "Dream." Should there be a modicum of truth in the revelation granted to the sextette, few indeed of the engineers will pass through the pearly portals.

F. S. Lazier.

F. S. Lazier conveyed greetings from the Niagara Peninsula branch and declared that Peterborough was unique in the bubbling spirit of enthusiasm which seemed to characterize the meetings held here. He said if all the branches were like Peterborough the Institute would soon attain the desired status.

W. H. Munro.

W. H. Munro, who is connected with Vickers, of the United Kingdom, said that the Peterborough branch of the Institute had been a credit to the profession. The speaker said that his position was rather strange, in that he was a Canadian engineer, who was earning a living in England. He didn't come back with spats and an eyeglass or anything else to make the people think that he was a knut, and he declared that one of his greatest delights would be to walk up the Hunter Street hill on a fine day in June.

Mr. Munro said that while some English people were disagreeable, others compensated for them, and "those are the people who have made England to-day the salt of the earth—(applause)—back of the men who come here is a vast reservoir which deserves the respect of anybody and everybody in this country."

Many Local Speakers.

Ross Dobbin congratulated the sextette on the excellence of the programme which the members had provided. (Applause).

E. R. Shirley commented on the progress voted and the need for cooperation to attain the desired results for an efficient Institute.

A toast to the sister professions was responded to by Rev. J. W. Gordon and V. J. McElderry. Rev. Gordon commented upon the upright character of engineers as a class, and thought it remarkable that in such an aggregation there should have been absolutely no "shop talk." He said he had had "a whale of a time," and gave a humorous account of certain scholastic engagements which he had experienced to his sartorial detriment. Where formerly he had thought from a study of their works that engineers were doers of mighty deeds, involving unknown powers, he was now forced to regard them as a happy-go-lucky bunch of loafers who never did any work at all.

Mr. McElderry was pleased to see that the profession of law had been so honored as to be enumerated with the ministry as a sister profession. Where law practice dealt with accepted facts, the engineer encountered the ever-varying conditions of nature, and he had seen them turning out things which might surely pertain to magic or legerdemain.

In the future, concluded Mr. McElderry, Canada must see to it that she retains her supply of skilled and high-minded engineers.

F. H. Dobbin and R. B. Rogers, speaking reminiscently of former connections with the Institute, emphasized the fact that brighter days were ahead and that success was practically assured.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting.

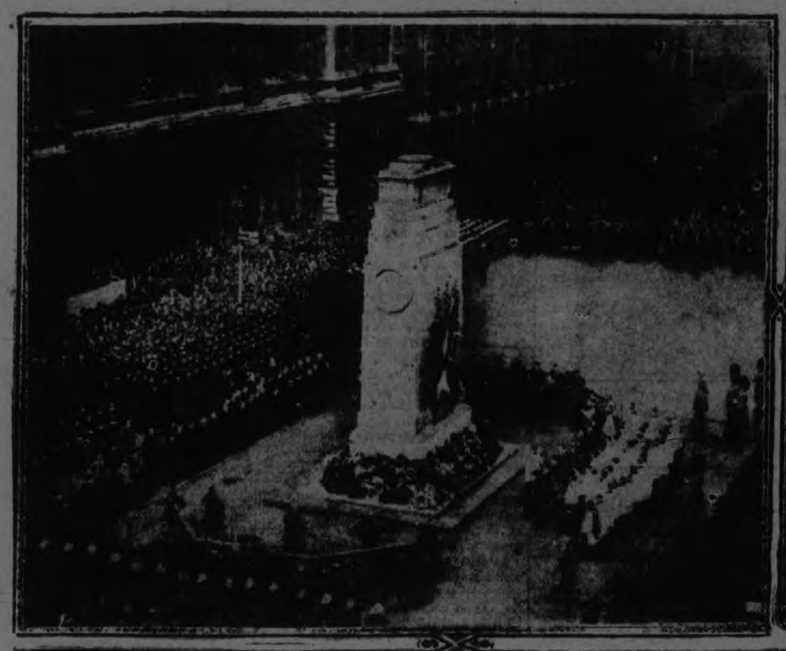
A Nation's Shrine--Armistice Day in London



More impressive than ever, and with an even greater solemnity than in previous years were the Armistice Day celebrations in London two weks ago. Gaiety was banned, the Prince of Wales taking a leading part in this by refusing to attend a huge ball which had been arranged for the benefit of a London hospital in the Royal Albert Hall. So great was the public outcry against turning Armistice Day into a holiday of jollification that at the last moment the ball was cancelled for that night and a religious service held instead. Above on the left is the scene at the cenotaph during the morning ceremonies. The King, who deposited a wreath there in memory of the glorious dead, may be seen inside the enclosure. On the right is seen the great throng, hushed to dead silence and standing bareheaded on the steps of St. Paul's Cathedral, where another service was held.

SHAMBLES FILM DECLARED FAKE

S.P.C.A. IS BLAMED.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—"Shame on England," "I hate my country," "down with the scoundrels who allow this."

These were the cries of hysterical women heard, while others wept and other fainted at the film shown at Central hall, Westminster, illustrating the methods of slaughtering horses in Belgium, which had been bought in England. The film was exhibited by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in an effort to prevent this traffic. The incident depicted were revolting. Screams broke out all over the hall, excitable women being carried out in a delirious state after watching hobbled horses having their throats slashed with a knife by a butcher grinning into the camera, while children peering through nearby fence railing gloated over the spectacle.

Another picture showed women participating in this brutal slaughter, with children assisting.

Faking Charged.

The meeting almost broke up in uproar when Captain Gee, V. C., who, from his place in the house of commons recently accused the S. P. C. A. of faking this film and actually arranging to have horses killed with the knife for the purpose of propaganda against the traffic of wornout horses, raised strenuous protests.

After the meeting Monday, Lord Banbury asked if Captain Gee was present, that he arise in his place. The chairman said: "Do you now repeat these statements you made concerning the society?" "I certainly do," Captain Gee responded. "I am quite willing to repeat from this platform all I have said as quoted in the official report of the house of commons." In answer to H. De Vere Stackpoole, Captain Gee repeated that he had made charges and would continue to make them.

Demand Inquiry.

All the newspapers are demanding that the government institute an official inquiry into the whole affair. Owing to the charge that the film was faked, the Daily Mail has told its readers no longer to contribute funds to the S.P.C.A.

PROPOSED COMBINATION SCHOOL DISCUSSED AT CONFERENCE OF ALDERMEN WITH SCHOOL BOARD

Aldermen Admit Necessity But Consider People Should Make Decision.

ASK NEW HEARING.

Board of Education Will Have Representative at Next Council Meeting.

The construction of the proposed combination extension to the Collegiate Institute was discussed again last night at a conference between the Board of Education and the City Council. The Chairman of the board, J. A. McKone, in introducing the matter, asked for more consideration of the matter, saying that the loss to the children who were not being properly educated in the present buildings was incalculable.

E. F. Reid of the School Board said that the question of altering the old South Central School had been mentioned to him. Mrs. Morris said that plans had been prepared and submitted to the Department of Education. These plans had called for the fixing up of the old school and building a one story addition on one end to contain shops for technical work. The cost would be about $55,000 or $60,000. The Department officials had considered the plans and pointed out that there was no provision for courses for girls, for academic work, or for gymnasiums, recreation rooms or playgrounds. If the building were fitted up in this manner they would permit it to be used for five years only, and would pay the usual commercial grants on maintenance, but not on capital expenditure.

Mr. McKone supplemented Mrs. Morris' data with figures on the cost of an academic addition to the Collegiate Institute, which would be necessary if the South Central were used for vocational work, and which would cost the city more than the present proposal.

Dr. Craig called the attention of the council to the fact that, while in former years only ten per cent of the children passing the entrance examination attended the High Schools, now about sixty per cent of them are enrolled.

Aldermen Questioned

Mr. McKone asked Mayor Turner what had been the sentiment of the Aldermen at the meeting when the request had been refused, and His Worship replied that they had seemed to think that the matter should be submitted to a vote of the people. Mr. McKone replied that it would be difficult to get an intelligent vote of the people, as it had taken the members of the board years to get familiar with the question. He suggested that candidates seeking election or re-election as Aldermen in 1926 should put their opinions on the school in their platform. He then asked all the Aldermen present what information they needed on the subject.

All the Aldermen expressed themselves as being convinced of the need of the school, but all thought that the matter should be put to the people. Aldermen Phelan suggested that instead of a regular money by-law, on which only 38 per cent. of the people could vote, there should be a referendum, which would not be binding, but which would be a guide to the Aldermen. Aldermen Turner said that the onus for edcating the people to the necessity for the school lay with the Board of Education, and that it was up to the board to see that it was given publicity.

All Are Promoted.

Mrs. Morris said that the accommodation was required for academic instruction as well and that the large number of pupils applying for admission made it necessary to promote all those in the first form whether or not they obtained a pass standing. By the time this process had been repeated in the second form the number of pupils who were behind in their work made it very hard for the teachers to instruct either those who had passed or those who had not ,and as a result all suffered.

Inadequate education, Mrs. Morris continued, cost more. She mentioned the case of Guelph, where $1'5 is spent on each pupil but the grants for vocational work and from the county bring the cost to the City of Guelph down to about $60. There is adequate accommodation, and the attendance is over 700.

It was decided that the Board of Education should be represented at the December meeting of the Council and ask the Aldermen to reconsider the matter.

CHANGE SYSTEM OF DECIDING FIGHTS

N. Y. Athletic Commission to Consult Referees.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (Canadian Press).—A change in the system of judging boxing bouts under which the number of rounds won and lost will determine the result, rather than the total point score of each contestant at the end, was decided upon by the State Athletic Commission Tuesday in a new move to obtain uniformly satisfactory decisions.

The new plan, which is expected to have a far-reaching effect in pugilism, as giving the early rounds of a fight equal importance with those at the finish, required almost a complete revision of Rule 8 of the board's regulations, which had previously provided that "the contestant who scores the greatest number of effective points regardless of the number of rounds won or lost" should be the winner.

Amendment to the rule requires that points shall be scored as each round progresses, and that at the end of the bout "the contestant who has to his credit the greater amount of the round fought is the winner."

To put this change into effect, the commission has ordered referees and judges to appear next Tuesday for advice and instructions.

FAMILY NAMES MAY NOT BE GIVEN NAMES

German Parents Must Not Give Children Recognized Surnames.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press).—A German first-born may be baptized with the given name Hindenburg, but the name must not be entered in the church register as part of the boy's name.

In Germany it is not permitted to use a family name as a given name. Such combinations as Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt, Washington Irving, Luther Burbank or Douglas Fairbanks would not be possible in Germany, as the Christian names of Woodrow, Franklin, Washington, etc., would be interpreted to be family names which must not thus be misused.

One will never find a Goethe Schmidt, Schiller Schulz, Mozart Mueller or a Bismarck Steinberg in Germany.

The pastor who keeps the church register or the clerk in the city register's office has the right to question any name that is offered as a given name. The burden of proof is upon the parent to demonstrate that the name he proposes to confer upon his child is a generally accepted Christian name.

HER BODY BARED

fore their marriage, the introduction of which last week brought about an abrupt adjournment of the case, were read Monday after an impassioned conflict between attorneys. The letters proved to be every bit as shocking as had been anticipated. Supreme Court Justice Morschauser had ordered all women excluded from the court during the reading.

There was a tense silence as the voice of Lee Parsons Davis, attorney for Mrs. Rhinelander, read the letters. Young Rhinelander gazed stolidly in front of him. And when both letters had been read and he was asked why he wrote them he said, "Alice asked me to." Mr. Davis demanded that he produce a single letter in which she had expressed a desire for such letters or had written such things to him, and Rhinelander sat silent.

Much had been made by Mr. Davis of the fact that Mrs. Rhinelander did not drink or smoke as "society girls" did, and Judge Mills read a letter from her which said:

Aug. 6, 1922.
5 P. M.

Love Dove,

Such a beautiful day hear to-day, I thought and thought, of you to-day.

To-night, I have asked three girls, and three fellows, and going to have a game of bridge. So will write you a shee until to-day, and this Evening I will finish it as I want to let you no who won the game. I am very clever, with cards, although father never let, us play at home, as he claims, nothing but gamblers, play cards. So dearest, I shall stop hear until to-night when I finish it.

Hellow dearest, it just 1.15 a.m. and feel so good and happy, after our exciting game, of poaker, bridge and black jack, was the three games, we played, and smoked. The first game in poaker, I won three times, and got full house, last in Black Jack, and won several times, in bridge, won four dollars, and half, so I did not do bad did I Lea, but I feel so lively now. One of the boys made two different kinds of high balls, as Mrs. Alderson gave us, a bottle of rye whiskey, and we had fun, I never felt so friskly. I thought of you the night, up at Chatworth, and Carl, how we went home that night, in the car. But a good thing, those fellows did not after go hom in a car, or they would of nevered got there. Can you imagine, finished, the old bottle.

Leonard, if you dont come back soon, you will think, I am going to far. But is the first real good time, I had since, I have been up hear, as the time, is getting very short now, as we go home around 15 of Sept. But one of the girls, lives up hear, and I have gotten very much devoted to hear. She is a reall good pal, and also seems to be a true one. She said, and hear, mother, as asked me just to speak, one week, up hear, in the winter, as I will have a wonderful time, skating and sleigh riding off the Mts. I might, this winter if dear lard spares, me hear. Well dearest I must stop, as its getting to be two oclock in the morning. Good night-night-daddy, half asleep,

ALICE.

When Rhinelander finally left the stand every one watched him curiously as he made his way behind the jury box and through the crowded chairs to his seat. He seemed utterly unconcerned, picking his way carefully through the crowd so as not to step on any one's toes, or brush them too closely.

Last night Lee Parsons Davis, her attorney, announced that she would be the first witness called to-day.

Amend Complaint.

The case may be delayed a little by a legal tangle which has come into it because of an application by Rhinelander's attorney to amend the original complaint. In the complaint the plaintiff alleges that by an affirmative action, Alice defrauded her husband by claiming she was white. The amendment, sought yesterday by Isaac N. Mills, Rhinelander's attorney,would charge her with defrauding him also by negative action in not telling him she was a negress. The amendment brought a point of legal procedure into the case which will be decided by Justice Morschauser.

After the fireworks of the past two weeks, yesterday's session was unexciting. The morning was taken up with testimony of the last of the plaintiff's witnesses and was concerned with Alice's actions during the four days immediately following the break-up of her home with Leonard when news of their marriage was first published.

Friendly With Family.

Three witnesses for the defence were heard in the late afternoon, including Robert Brooks, negro butler, husband of Emily, Alice's sister. Brooks testified that Leonard had always been "very friendly" to him, had played cards and dined at his house often and called him "Bob." He, in turn, he said, called Rhinelander "Len." All of his friends, Brooks said, were negroes, and Rhinelander had played cards with some of them. He denied that he and Emily had been barred from the Jones' house because of their marriage.

ENGLISH MAGAZINE MENTIONS CANADIAN

"Canada" Gives Picture and Story About A. E. Dawson.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 25.—In the issue of November 7 of "Canada," a magazine published in London, England, there is a sketch, drawn for reproduction in the magazine, of A. E. Dawson, general manager of the Toronto Casualty, Fire and Marine Insurance, and a former resident of the village. There is also the following brief sketch of Mr. Dawson's career:

"Mr. Dawson is a native of London, England, where he was born in 1887, and went to Canada in 1905, at the age of 17 1-2. To begin with, he took up farming, but next year entered the service of the Manufacturing Life Insurance Company as an agent. In 1910 he joined the Imperial Life Assurance Company. In 1921 Mr. Dawson organized the Toronto Casualty, Fire and Marine Insurance Co., and became its vicepresident and general manager. The company transacts a multiple line of business, and claims to be doing the largest volume of automobile insurance business in Canada, in competition with 109 other companies.

"Mr. Dawson is also vice-president of the Canadian General Insurance Company, Toronto, and a director of Knight Bros. Co., Ltd., lumber manufacturers, and the Traders' Finance Corporation, Ltd.

"The variety of his interests may be gauged from the fact that he is a member of the Authors' Club of London, England; the Arts and Letters Club, Toronto; the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto, and the Toronto Hunt Club.

"Mrs. Dawson was formerly Miss Lynda Knight of Burk's Falls, Ont. They have four sons and one daughter."

GOVERNMENT ADVERTISING.

Business men generally should take a leaf out of the book of the Ontario Government.

When the Department of Agriculture decided that it was desirable to increase the market in this Province for Ontario-grown apples, the Minister of Agriculture wasted no time in his advertising campaign.

He realized that the most effective way of reaching the most people in the shortest time was through the medium of the press of the Province, and calling in an advertising expert, he launched the present publicity campaign that is bringing before the Province the desirability of consuming more of its own apples.

More and more Governments are beginning to appreciate the value of newspaper advertising.

This form of publicity was used during the war with conspicuous success in floating the various Victory Loans, in the food conservation campaign, in connection with National registration and in explanation of the Military Service Act, and the value of the newspaper advertising was so thoroughly demonstrated that in peace times the same medium is still being used by Governments.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Apparently the earlier date for municipal elections has not solved the problem of securing a more general expression of public opinion, for this year finds St. Catharines, after trying the experiment of an election early in December, reverting to the old system of voting in New Year's week.

Many municipalities are adhering to the December plan, and the civic campaign in these centres is already under way.

It seems difficult, however, to get the electors interested in municipal politics, no matter when the election takes place.

The responsibility of nominating candidates is left to a comparative handful of citizens, and the task of electing them usually falls upon fifty per cent. of the electorate.

The queerest feature of the situation is that most of the complaining about high taxes, inefficient administration of public affairs, etc., comes from the other fifty per cent., the civic slackers who refuse to take any hand in selecting the municipal government.

To secure action from such citizens it is obvious that something more effectual than merely changing the date of the municipal elections will have to be adopted.

GETTING SOMEWHERE.

From time to time reports appear in the press showing the number of accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board and referring to the large sums of money awarded for compensation.

It is interesting to compare the first ten months of 1924 and 1925.

From January to October, inclusive, 1924, there were 49,635 accidents reported to the Compensation Board by all employers under compensation in Ontario, including 322 death cases.

In the same ten months of 1925, there were 49,743 accidents reported, including 284 fatalities.

The decrease in death cases is most encouraging and means much to the whole Province.

A comparison of compensation awarded is most illuminating. In the first ten months of 1924 the Board awarded $5,282,908.29, and for the same time in 1925 the awards totalled $4,592,236.85, or a decrease of approximately seven hundred thousand dollars.

This decrease in death cases and the decrease in accident costs is part of the general evidence that the more severe, more costly type of accident is being slowly reduced in number and that the accident prevention movement is "getting somewhere."

A BUSINESSLIKE MOVE.

One feature of Hon. J. S. Martin's campaign on behalf of the apple growers of Ontario that is not escaping attention is that it is an effort not only for this year alone but one that should have lasting results.

It should not be necessary for Government assistance to be offered to sell Ontario apples to Ontario people, but the Minister of Agriculture realizes that such a policy has become necessary because the Ontario market has been invaded by outside apples to an extent that the home-grown product has to fight for its existence.

This despite the fact that the Ontario apple will stand comparison with apples grown anywhere.

On the basis of quality Hon. Mr. Martin is seeking not only to recapture the home market for the Ontario apple, but to win for it a place in the British market.

He should succeed on both points, and if he does he will have earned the gratitude not only of the apple growers but of the people of the Province generally.

Hon. Mr. Martin has demonstrated by his own success that farming can be made to pay, and he is injecting into the management of his important department some of the shrewdness, vision and enterprise that have enabled him to climb to the top of the ladder.

Such a policy is bound to have important and permanent results.

NEVER HEARD OF HIM BEFORE.

Were Prokop Magera to apply today to a Canadian immigration official and volunteer the information that he thought he'd make a good Canadian citizen there might be some doubt in the official mind, says the London Advertiser. Were he to go farther and say that he had no funds, but a great deal of ambition it might not improve his chances.

But it happened that Prokop Magera came in a good many years ago; he was headed for Western Canada, and he kept on going until he reached the Bon Accord district, north of Edmonton. Since then very little has been heard of Prokop Magera; we can't recall ever having seen his name in print. He took up his homestead, has had his good years and poor ones, but his stock of ambition never ran low even if his finances did.

Magera's ambition was not all centred on himself. It extended to his family. Today a son and daughter are attending Normal School in Camrose; at Edmonton another son and daughter are at High School, while another son is preparing to take a course at the Vermillion School of Agriculture. Magera's ambition went outside his own family, though that in itself was generous in size. He financed the education of a son of an old friend, and the backing of this little Ruthenian immigrant has given the boy the chance he needed. He now holds the degree of M.A.

Prokop Magera has made a good Canadian citizen. His devotion to his family and his passion for hard work has made it possible for him to project an influence into the future that will carry on and be a credit to him long after he has departed. Canada can stand a great many Prokop Mageras.

THE "SPANISH PRISONER."

A new generation of possible victims has grown up since the "Spanish prisoner" swindle passed the peak of its former success, and now it is enjoying a sudden and prosperous revival—so much so, we are told, that it has become advisable to expose anew the workings of the old game. As in former times, the Spanish exponents of the swindle seek their dupes in the United States, and Canada, which they regard as the land of simpletons, and we read that they are finding many of the new generation sufficiently credulous to believe the tale of woe about an unfortunate Spaniard, falsely or unluckily imprisoned, and his beautiful daughter. Just now the ancient swindle is being worked from Barcelona. From there, writes Arno Dosch-Fleurot, Paris correspondent of the New York World, the plotters are broadcasting appeals for help on an unprecedented scale. Taking telephone or city directories of scattered cities in the United States and Canada, they have in the past few years sent out tens of thousands of these letters. The letters are, of course, meant only to appeal to the credulous. The swindlers expect, and probably hope, that all intelligent men will throw them away. No one knows how many generations of crooks have sent out these appeals for help. The writer tells us:

The game is old enough to have its own tradition. It has become an institution. There is no one in the underworld in Spain who does not know how to work it, and the paraphernalia, the fake certificates of incarceration, and the fake receipts given by the non-existent "repositoria judicial," pass current among criminals. There have been hundreds of thousands of these fake instruments printed in the past thirty years, and no one can even estimate how many victims have come to Spain and paid their money over to the swindlers.

What the gold brick has been to American bunco men, the letters from Spanish prisons has been to Spanish swindlers. It is, in fact, much more useful as a method of getting money out of come-ons because it always is worked on foreigners. In Spain there is not a man, woman or child on whom the game could be played. Everybody knows about it and no one believes the outside world is so full of boobs as to fall for it. But the Spaniards, perhaps, would fall for the gold brick.

The letter has become standardized. It has even been mimeographed and done so well that it is almost impossible to detect. But in any case the phrasing is identical, as the writers of these letters long ago worked out the shortest possible formula in which to tell the story and arouse in the recipient of the letter the four essentials—sympathy, cupidity, latent criminal impulses and romantic desire.

Beginning with the information that the writer is in prison, usually for fraudulent bankruptcy, the letters state that he has large sums of money, either in checks or money-orders payable to bearer, which are hidden in a secret pocket of a valise that has been seized to pay a fine, or in bank notes in a trunk, the receipt for which is in the hidden pocket of the sequestered valise. In the letters now flooding this country the hidden sum is given as $300,000, and if the valise is not released within a certain number of days, the letters always state, it will be sold at auction, the wealth will be lost, and, in the case of most of the letters, the prisoner's beautiful sixteen-year-old daughter will be cast alone and undefended upon a wicked world. But if the recipient can only bring or send $2,000 before the time expires all will be well. The little valise will be retrieved, a third of the money given to the generous rescuer, and, as a further tribute to his chivalry, he will be asked to take charge of the grateful Spaniard's daughter, and to deposit for her the other two-thirds of the money in the valise in some Canadian bank. But—.

Of course, there is no prisoner, no bankruptcy, no daughter, no valise, no checks, no court even, and no "repositaria judicial." There is nothing but a tradition among Spanish swindlers and the simple material necessary. One man or a gang can work it.—Belleville Ontario.

A THOUGHT.

VALUE OF NATURALNESS

It is necessary to be natural always. To assume a manner, not your own is affectation and this is awful—perfectly awful. The more simple and sincere you are, the more others will be sure of you.

Naturalness never nauseates. Affectation makes your friends seasick.

When a person is not sure of himself, he assumes the unnatural attitude and causes society to smirk, not smile.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in the local grain market was very active today, there being an exceptionally good demand from foreign importers, and it was estimated that fully 5,000,000 bushels of wheat were sold. There was also a good demand from foreign buyers for coarse grains. The domestic trade in cash grain was likewise brisk.

The feature of the flour situation was the much stronger feeling that developed in the market for spring wheat grades and millers generally advanced prices another 30 cents per barrel which makes a net rise of 50 cents per barrel within the past week. This was attributed to the renewed strength in the Canadian cash wheat market. There was considerable activity in the market owing to the fact that all the offers made by millers overnight were accepted.

Owing to the strength in the wheat situation and the continued scarcity of winter wheat flour, the market was much stronger and prices were advanced 30c per bushel. There was some enquiry for supplies, but on account of the light offerings the volume of business was small. There was no change in white corn flour but prices were firm at $6.80 to $7 per barrel in jute bags, delivered to the trade.

The receipts of cheese were 5,672 boxes, as compared with 6,148 for the same day last week, and 4,578 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no improvement in the condition of the market, business in all directions being reported quiet, and the feeling was easy with early makes quoted at 22 3-4 to 23c per lb, and current receipts at 21 1-4 to 21 1-2c per lb.

Beans were unchanged at $2.40 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Alarming crop news from Argentina hoisted wheat prices the world over today. The maximum advance in Chicago was 6 1-4c a bushel, but the extreme gain failed to hold, and with late messages saying weather conditions had become less adverse the market closed nervous at 2 7-8 to 5 1-2c net upturn, new style, Dec. 161 7-8 to 162, and May 160 3-8 to 160 5-8. Corn finished 1 1-2 to 1 7-8c higher; oats unchanged to 3-8c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 32c.

Rushes to buy wheat began the moment the market opened, and it was only in the last hour that sellers became in the majority. Earlier, the selling to realize profits was of immense volume at times, but was readily absorbed as a result of persistent waves of new orders to purchase. According to advices at hand the damage to crops in Argentina, already serious throughout the northern part of the country, was spreading to the central section and also threatening the south. Injury by black rust was reported both from central Argentina and the North.

Liverpool Excited.

Excitement in the Chicago wheat trade was apparently equalled if not surpassed by the Liverpool and Buenos Aires markets in particular. The widespread effect of the indications of severe crop curtailment in Argentina was also seen in broader export buying for Europe. It was estimated that 3,000,000 bushels of wheat, chiefly from Canada, was taken today for trans-Atlantic shipment. Meanwhile reports were current that heavy rains and unusual heat were prevalent in Argentina, whereas dry cool weather was needed. One authority was quoted as saying that in the last week alone the harm done to Argentine wheat was equal to 18,000,000 bushels.

Scarcity of wheat in Europe available for immediate or nearby delivery was given as one reason for today's steep upturn in quotations at Liverpool. Some trade observers here said European buyers had almost ignored North American wheat for months and had been encouraged to this by a bountiful crop promise in Argentina. Now, however, with the Argentine crop being reduced daily, a readjustment was inevitable.

Corn and oats prices derived strength today, principally from the action of wheat. The corn market was also affected by European purchasing of corn about 1,000,000 bushels the largest single day's total in many months.

WINNIPEG BOYS ARE GIVEN LASH

Five Sentenced To Prison For Terms of Four and Five Years

PETTY CRIME WAVE.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 25. —Canadian Press. — While police and city court magistrates, are waging a relentless war against hold--up men in Winnipeg, a petty crime wave continues to sweep the city, and each night victims are added to the growing toll. The robberies in most cases are carried on by youths, usually headed by a leader, and from two to three members.

One gang was disposed of in the city police court Tuesday. Harry Pearson, alleged leader, and Max Brandley, were sentenced to five years with 20 lashes, while three others, Edward Eckles, Charles G. Ward and John Blain, received sentences of four years each. They were convicted of having staged several recent hold-ups.

In passing sentence, Sir Hugh John Macdonald, declared that robberies of pedestrians must be stopped, while Crown Prosecutor R. H. Graham asserted "the lash is the only remedy."

EMPLOYMENT FELL OFF IN OCTOBER

Usual Seasonal Decline—Situation Better Than 1924.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 25. — Canadian Press—Employment on November 1 showed a seasonal decline, according to a bulletin of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The decline exceeded that recorded on the same date last year.

But the improvement in recent months has been more marked than in the corresponding months of 1924, and November this year is better in respect to employment than last November.

Statements were received from 5876 employers whose pay rolls aggregated $797,790, as compared with $807,371 on October 1. The index number declined from 98.3 on that date to 97.1 at the beginning of November, as compared with 93.0, 98.8, 95.8 and 90.2 on Nov. 1, 1924, 1923, 1922 and 1921 respectively.

Construction, lumber mills and canneries registered pronounced reductions. The losses in construction, which follows a very active season, were unusual heavy, and were probably accelerated by the inclement weather early in the month.

COMPLAINTS OF SCOTIA MINERS ARE TABULATED

John W. McLeod Lays Before Royal Commission the Men's Grievances.

SAYS CAUSE JUST.

Declares Coal Industry of Nova Scotia is Profitable.

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 25 (Canadian Press)—Commencing his summing up of the case for the miners a few minutes before Tuesday afternoon's adjournment of the Royal Commission investigating the coal industry of Nova Scotia under the chairmanship of Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, John W. McLeod, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, said he would classify the grievances of the men under three charges which he has repeatedly made against the British Empire Steel Corporation and wished to reiterate. They were: incompetence, extravagance and impropriety.

The U. M. U. District President spent the day reviewing the relationships developing between the company and the miners from 1922 down to the setting up of the Royal Commission. At the close of the morning session he had brought the narrative down to the early months of the present year and the afternoon's session was taken up with an account of the negotiations prior to the outbreak of the strike early in March, the subsequent endeavors to effect a settlement and the proceedings leading up to the temporary agreement reached in August. The witness read into the record many of the telegrams passing between the heads of government, the corporation and the men, and at the suggestion of the chairman agreed to tender the minutes of the district conventions held during the period of the strike.

Company Forced Issue

He was endeavoring to show, he said, that the company had forced the issue on the men, that he and his associates had done everything in their power to avert a rupture, that public opinion throughout the country was sympathetic to the miners' cause and that both federal and provincial governments had been impressed with the justice of the men's position.

"Thrice he is armed, who hath his quarrel just," quoted Mr. McLeod and he added it was the knowledge of this fact that enabled the men to fight on in the face of very serious deprivations. He told of the weight of responsibility he had been called upon to bear throughout the trouble and stated that whether or not he had pursued the proper course, his conscience was clear and he felt he had acted throughout in the best interests of the men he represented. The miners of Nova Scotia, the witness testified were ready to co-operate in the advancement of the coal industry but he felt they had never been afforded a proper opportunity. He charged that the Corporation had submitted incorrect figures regarding the spread between the cost and selling price of coal, in their negotiations with the men, that the company controlled newspapers which were used for propaganda purposes, that useless officials were employed and that coal was sold to the Steel Company at less than the cost of production. All these things, he stated, "and a hundred and one more," tended to a condition of unrest and left the men with a sense of injustice which only a fact-finding investigation could remove.

To Destroy the Union

The witness further produced evidence, tending to show, he said, that the company had endeavored to destroy the Union.

He recalled the day, he said, when the Cape Breton miner felt that when the operators pressed for a reduction in wages they did so in order to keep the wolf from their own doors. In the course of time, however, had come enlightenment and today they were convinced that they were not receiving a just proportion of the value of their product. They believed the Nova Scotia coal industry was a profitable industry and could afford to set up better conditions for the men employed.

OSHAWA'S LURE GETS FACTORY

Rose Excelsior Company Seemed Bound For Lindsay at One Stage.

EVERY INDUCEMENT.

LINDSAY, Nov. 25 — Lindsay's dream of industrial expansion received a big jolt this week when it was announced that Oshawa had secured the Rose Excelsior, Limited, plant, pust when this town thought it was securely nestled in its lap.

Lindsay's municipal authorities got after the industry a few months ago, and at one time were willing to give the management anything in order to make sure of the industry. A bonus and loan was first thought of, but it was found out that the legislature had very wisely put a crimp on the bonus evil. Then the citizens were appealed to in connection with a guarantee fund, and about $10,000 was subscribed. The managers of the Pickering plant visited Lindsay and buildings ou the old cereal mill property were looked upon as a desirable location for the industry. The firm promised to move their plant to town about the middle of the present month. In the meantime,, however, Oshawa got busy and in a short space of time a few of its citizens took $25,000 worth of stock in the concern which together with certain inducements, caused the management to reconsider its decision to move to Lindsay, selecting Oshawa as a more desirable centre.

PARENTS FAIL IN THEIR DUTY

J. J. Kelso Says They Should Seriously Consider Responsibility.

GET ACQUAINTED

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—(By Canadian Press).—"It is a sad fact that parents today are falling down in their duty to their children," commented J. J. Kelso, Ontario Superintendent of Neglected Children, in speaking of juvenile delinquency. "Fathers and mothers throughout Ontario should seriously consider their responsibilities and turn over a new leaf in dealing with children. They should exercise closer supervision of their child's habits and companions, combine kindness and firmness, require obedience and respect and spend more of their time in getting acquainted. Above all they should avoid dispute in the presence of the child and having a divided policy of management."

The other day a County Constable arrived with a boy sentenced to three years in the Reform School, continued Mr. Kelso. "He was a smart, interesting lad and it was hard to understand why he should have to go to a reformatory. The Commitment papers were in good order and the evidence revealed the cause. To the Magistrate the mother said, 'I could control him if his father would make him do as I say when at home. The father and I disagree in matters of control.' The principal of the school was present and added, 'The parents have no control over this lad and he comes and goes when he pleases.'"

Officials of the air plane company making this announcement declined to disclose the cost of engaging the "ship" for this novel purpose, but said the average cost per passenger, providing there is a full load, would not be much in excess of the speculators' ticket prices, said to range as high as $25 and $35.

COL. MITCHELL ENDS EVIDENCE

Defends Charge of Incompetence in U. S. War and Navy Offices.

EXPLAINS TERMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. (Canadian Press).—After two days of testimony, during which he reiterated and defended the public utterances leading to his trial, Col. Wm. Mitchell late Tuesday was excused from the witness stand in his trial by court-martial.

In the course of a long cross-examination, the accused air service officer maintained that he was right in most details as well as in general principle, in accusing those in charge of government aviation of "criminal neglect" and "almost treasonable" conduct.

Just as he left the witness-stand the court itself asked him to give a definition of what he meant by "almost treasonable" conduct of the national defence.

"I mean the people have put their trust in the war and navy departments to guarantee a proper national defence," he said, "and they have failed in that trust."

A few minutes before, under questioning by his counsel, Representative Reid, the Colonel had recited as examples of his meaning the leaving of foreign possessions unprotected; the lack of adequate defence in the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippine Islands, the Panama Canal and Alaska; lack of proper coast protection in the United States and the allowing of a foreign flight organization to get a foothold in Central America.

TWO POSITIONS FOR BROWNLEE IN GOVERNMENT

Alberta's Premier Also Attorney-General Until House is Re-organized.

TO RETAIN POST.

Will Study Situation Carefully Before Making Any Changes.

EDMONTON, Alta., November 25. — Canadian Press. — That Premier Brownlee of Alberta may at some future time add another Cabinet member to his government is forecast in a statement made Tuesday when asked if it was his intention to carry on permanently, the duties of both Attorney-General and premier of the Province.

"It is not setting any precedent in Canada for the Premire of a province to be also its Attorney-General," said Mr. Brownlee, "since there are several previous instances in the political history of some of the provinces where this has been done.

"The present Cabinet arrangement however is merely a temporary one. It is my intention to size up carefully the entire situation before I consider attempting any re-organization of the Cabinet as at present constituted and before any re-organization is made I must consider carefully the advisability of continuing to hold the dual position of Attorney-General and Premier."

Mr. Brownlee, however, is not thought desirous of relinquishing his important work as Attorney-General of the province, and it is altogether probable that any re-organization, if he decides to mack one, will allocate the work of the cabinet in such manner as to enable him to retain this duty, while possibly including some other minister as an addition to the present cabinet for some portfolio other than that of the Attorney-General's.

The average value of the contents of each church was estimated at $10,800.

MILLBROOK CIRCUIT CANVASS BEGINS FOR ALLOTMENT OF $1,800 TO AID WORK OF UNITED CHURCH

Collection Began on Monday—Drive Continuing All This Week.

BECK MEMORIAL.

Appeal For Fund Postponed Until New Year—Millbrook Social News.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 25. — The house to house canvass, in connection with the $4,000,000 Maintenance and Extension Fund which the United Church of Canada is to raise for the carrying on of its work at home and abroad, will take place locally, in common with the rest of the Dominion, during this week from November 22 to 29.

The canvassers begin their work on Monday, and will continue until Friday, when a meeting will be held in the church to report results, the Brotherhood being withdrawn this week in favor of the other business gathering. Those who are appointed for the Millbrook circuit are: W. Brown and S. Hamilton, for Zion; H. A. Earle and Jas. Might for east and south in the country; G. E. Burnham and M. McDowell for the cillage west from the church; P. Stinson and W. E. Ball for the centre; Dr. A. Jamison, W. G. Hetherington, and W. H. Combs for the east section; T. H. Aiken and W. Fallis, for Fallis Line; J. Whitfield and A. Brown, north; H. W. Johnston and W. Fred Fallis, 7th Line.

Allotment $1,800.

The allotment for this circuit is $1,800. The fund will do away with separate appeals for missions, educational and social service work, etc., during the year, for the three uniting churches. Practically three-quarters of the amount asked for will go to the support of home and foreign mission work of the church. The appeal is based on "Thanksgiving to God for the great Union at last consummated, and for the fruitful land in which we live; so may we all rededicate ourselves to the cause of Christ's Church and provide for our possessions adequately, that the work of the Kingdom may steadily be extended."

In his morning sermon on Sunday, Rev. F. H. Howard made special reference to the "every person canvass," and the need and use to be made of the fund for which the United Church is appealing to her members and adherents, stating that "intelligent giving is a form of praying," and that we should know for what this money is desired. "Giving alone, merely for the sake of easing one's conscience or of getting rid of the one who makes appeal, is not the right attitude, since life, thought, prayer, and intelligence should go into our giving."

Must Spread Gospel.

"The sin of wilfully withholding the good news of salvation from those in need, does it not bring with it the stigma of crime? No man treats Jesus Christ well who treats his brother wrong, and those who know are responsible for sharing the story with others who lack the knowledge, the joy, and the privilege."

"There is that scattereth and yet increaseth, and there is that withholdeth more than is meet and it tendeth to poverty."

The anthem on Sunday morning, "God is Calling You," with duet by Mrs. G. W. Sayles and Mr. H. W. Johnston, was appropriate to the sermon. There will be a special song service next Sunday evening, for which the choir is making preparation.

Beck Memorial.

The public meeting in the interests of the Sir Adam Beck Memorial Fund, which was called for Monday evening in the Town Hall, was attended by the Reeve and Council, some of the local clergy, and a few others, but apparently public interest has not yet been aroused to any appreciable extent.

After discussion, it was decided that the wisest course would be to defer action until after the New Year, in view of the recent special financial appeals in two of the local churches in connection with their annual thankofferings, the every-person canvass for the Maintenance and Extension Fund in the United Church this week, the Christmas shopping season now at hand, and the lack of information on the subject of the Beck Memorial with, generally speaking, a consequent lack of interest and sympathy.

The distribution of educational literature in the intervening weeks will help to increase the response to the appeal when it is finally made.

Women's Auxiliary.

The November meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Church was held at the home of the secretary, Mrs. E. Whyte, on Monday evening; the President, Mrs. (Canon) Allen, taking the chair.

Miss Rose MacNamara took up the chapter from the study book, "The Clash of Color," in an interesting and instructive manner, and afterword the distribution of "Scripture Text" Calendars for 1926 received attention. All the calendars ordered were spoken for, and a fresh supply will be sent for in the immediate future. The information about the Anglican mission fields at home and abroad, with the illustrations from actual photographs, has led the members to keenly desire the possession of these calendars each year.

The Auxiliary will not sent Xmas bale this year, but the spring bale for a child in one of the Indian boarding schools which is sent annually in April, and for which preparation is made throughout the year, will be larger than usual when it is next ready.

The Auxiliary received with definite expressions of pleasure the president's announcement that the rector, Rev. Canon Allen will preach next Sunday for the first time since his severe illness which has kept him absent from his pulpit for some months.

Following its usual custom the Auxiliary will not hold a meeting in December, the next gathering to be in January, when the election of officers will take place.

Young People's League.

The programme in the Young People's League on Monday evening was of a literary character, and was under the direction of the third vice-president, Mrs. P. Stinson.

A study of the life and works of Robert Browning, and his wife, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, was taken up in a general manner, the limited time making it impossible to cover so wide a field with much attention to detail.

Miss Hetherington gave an interesting talk on "Some Facts From the Lives of Robert and Elizabeth Browning," and read selections from his poems, including, The Lost Leader, Abou Ben Ezra, Herve Riel, and England. Miss Margaret Howard gave a sketch of the poem, Pippa Passes, with an introductory paragraph on the importance and usefulness of imagination, the latter playing so large a part in the poem with its quaint and touching story of Pippa and her one days' holiday from incessant toil.

Next week the devotional committee will have charge, exchanging with the citizenship committee, the boys requiring further time to prepare the debate which they have under way for their meeting.

Boy's Parliament.

Voting for the Boys' Parliament will take place on Friday, November 27. Jim Larmer is the deputy-returning officer for Millbrook. The pooling booth will probably be located in H. W. Johnston's store. R. L. Sainsbury and Willard Meldrum, of Port Hope, are the candidates running in Durham East, the former being connected with the United Church, and the latter with the Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burnham and daughter, Dorothy, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham on Sunday.

Dr. Ellis, Messrs. Nattrass, Wainwright, Ellis and Anderson, who formed a party for deer hunting this fall, have returned, bringing their quota of one deer each with them. V. C. Lambert, who was with a party from Muskoka, has also returned with like success.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brookes and two children of Oshawa, and Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Jones of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs .A. C. Darling and daughter, Betty of Peterborough, were guests of Mrs. Margaret Staples, Cavan, and Mrs. E. S. Burnham, Millbrook, on Sunday.

Mrs. E. Kenyon of Peterborough motored to town and was the guest of her sister, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, on Sunday.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRANCIS J. YOUNG

The funeral of the late Mrs. Young will be held on Thursday morning at 9.45 from her late residence, with service at St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, at 10 o'clock, instead of at 9.00 as previously announced.

MR. AND MRS. P. P. YOUNG HELD 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING

In the Hundredth Year After Their Family Founded Young's Point.

CHURCH SERVICE.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 25. — Surrounded by their children and grand children, Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Young of Young's Point, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding on Monday, November 23. Solemn high mass was sung in St. Mary's Church, Young's Point, with Rev. J. J. Garvey (parish priest) as celebrant, Rev. J. V. McCauley, of St. Martin's, Ennismore, as deacon, and Rev. J. J. O'Brien of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Peterboro, acted as sub-deacon. Rev. P. J. McGuire was present in the sanctuary. The choir of St. Paul's Church, Lakefield, sang the mass. The altar of the church was decorated with golden 'mums, in honor of the occasion. The service was beautiful in its deep solemnity marking as it did an epoch in the lives of two of the older parishioners and also the centenial of Young's Point. In 1825 the Youngs arrived in Young's Point, hewing a home out of the primeval forest settling in what was then considered "the back of beyond." It is interesting to note in passing that in this, the centennial year, the famous trans-continental motor boat making its historic trip from the Pacific to the Atlantic passed by the home of the Young's and so one sees the progress made in the century.

Fifty years after the arrival of the Young's, P.P. Young and Ellen O'Connell were joined in holy matrimony in St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterboro, by Rev. Father Lynch and took up their residence in Young's Point where they have since resided, keeping up the traditions laid down by the original settlers, of honor, integrity, and industry. On this the golden wedding day, with the crisp clear sunshine of an ideal November day, Mr. and Mrs. Young were surrounded by their friends who came from near and far to offer good wishes for a continuance of their happy wedded life.

Dinner was served at high noon and followed by the customary toast list. Rev. J. C. McCauley acted as toast master. Mr. F. G. Young of Peterboro read an address from the family to their parents expressing their deep affection and their wish that God would spare them for many more years of usefulness. Mr. H. J. Young presented his parents each with a beautiful gold rosary from their sons and daughters. The daughters are Mrs. P. J. Foley of Toronto and Miss Irene, and the sons Francis G., Fred M., Patrick J. and Harold.

Miss Aileen Young read an address from the grandchildren and Miss Dorothy Young presented a sheaf of fifty golden roses. The grandchildren are Aileen, Dorothy and Rita Young, Gerald, Raymond and Pat Foley.

Rev. J. J. Garvey proposed the toast to the bride and groom, Mr. P. P. Young replying with a neat little speech.

Rev. P. J. McGuire and Mr. C. Young also spoke briefly, signifying the pleasure derived from such a happy occasion and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Young many more years of happiness. Rev. J. J. O'Brien conveyed the regrets of Bishop O'Brien who intended being present but was called to Toronto by the serious illness of Mr. Michael O'Brien. Other speakers tendered words of congratulation, one and all paying tribute to the sterling virtues of their service and money to both church and community; and now, are reaping in a small measure the reward that will surely be theirs, for a Christian home and God fearing family is a good thing in the eyes of both God and man.

A large number of telegrams were received from friends who, unable to be present in person, desired to offer their felicitations on the happy occasion.

An informal reception was held during the afternoon and evening, Mrs. Young receiving in a handsome gown of cut velvet over gold and georgette crepe. She was assisted by her daughters Mrs. Foley and Miss Irene Young and her daughters-in-law, Mrs. F. G. Young and Mrs. Fred Young. Friends from Young's Point, Lakefield and Peterboro were present, among the latter being Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., and Mrs. Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. Young received many handsome gifts from their friends and relatives as tokens of the esteem in which they are held, not only in Young's Point but in the entire community.

LETTER RECEIVED FROM MISSING CAMPBELLFORD STORE KEEPER

Erle Turner Wrote to His Wife From Cleveland, Ohio.

NO STREET ADDRESS.

Expresses Hope That He Will Soon Be Able To Support Dependents.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 25. —The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Erle Turner, the young merchant, who left this town suddenly one Saturday night, about two months ago, without saying anything to his family, friends or business associates, has been partially at least cleared up. His wife has received a letter from him, the missive having been posted in Cleveland, Ohio on November 16th, and, by a strange coincidence, it reached its destination on the 18th, the birthday of the missing man's young son, although it contained no reference to that event. No address, other than Cleveland, was given in the letter, so that even if his friends wrote to him, it is doubtful whether the letter would ever reach him. Nothing definite is said with regard to his future movements ,but Mr. Turner intimates that he expects to secure steady position in a short time to be able to assist those dependent upon him. He adds that he may have made a mistake when he left Campbellford but now that he has gone he does not like the idea of returning.

A Nine Days' Sensation.

The sudden disappearance of Mr. Turner created a nine day sensation in Campbellford, where he was born, and where he had a large circle of friends. He was a member of one of the town's most prominent families, with excellent connections on both sides. His father, the late G. W. Turner, was one of Campbellford's successful and pioneer hardware merchants. After an apprenticeship in the business with E. T. Morton ,who succeeded his father, Mr. Turner bought the stock, and launched out on his own account. He was ambitious and enterprising, and like so many young men of that type, appears to have over-reached himself. He was a clean-living citizen, honorable in all his business dealings and since his departure not a single word has been spoken against his character. His only apparent reason for leaving town was his discouragement over the business outlook and a desire to make a fresh start in a new field.

Suicide Was Suspected.

It was at first feared that the young man had committed suicide, and, following his disappearance, the Canal was dragged at the request of his friends. Later, when the water was let out of the canal between the two local locks, a search was made, but, of course, without result. The stock in his hardware store has since been purchased by Arthur Redden, who is carrying on the business.

Police Chief Active.

Ever since the case was reported to him, Police Chief Brown has been engaged in an attempt to locate the missing man. Circulars containing a description of Mr. Turner were sent to the police all over Canada. Some time ago word was received here that a stranger suffering from loss of memory had been picked up on the streets of Kingston and was in a hospital in that city. Chief Brown followed up this clue, only to find that the stranger in Kingston was not the man he was after.

Inquiry at Cleveland.

A prominent hardware dealer in Cleveland, who spends his summer at Fred. Keller's resort at Healey Falls, was a friend of Mr. Turner's, and Chief Brown, thinking it possible that the young man had gone to that city, wrote asking the Chief of Police in Cleveland to investigate. The reply received to this communication was to the effect that nothing had been heard there of the missing man.

Wife and Children Here.

Mr. Turner has a wife and three children here, the youngest child having been born since the father left home.

Dr. H. M. BOY'S EVIDENCE USED BY STATE TO HANG FATHER

William Russel, 15, Tells of Shooting of His Mother By His Father.

MAN BROKE DOWN.

Boy Told of Siser's Death and of Parents' Quarrel, Which Resulted Fatally.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25. (Canadian Press).—A fifteen-year-old boy, with quivering lips and tear-dimmed eyes, last night gave testimony which the State hopes will send his father to the gallows for killing his mother.

He was William A. Russell, and testified at a night session of the trial of William T. Russell, his father, a former sergeant of police, who shot and killed his mother, Mary Russell, last August, during a quarrel.

The former policeman also broke down and sobbed as the boy told of the death of his sister and of the quarrel when the father and mother returned from the cemetery.

ADVENTURES OF MADOC HUNTERS

One Party Covered Three Miles in 15 Hours on Road Out.

CHARGED BY BUCK.

MADOC, Nov. 25.—Messrs. Chris Henderson, John Mastin, of Picton, and W. A. McCoy, have returned with their quota of deer from the north country. They report great difficulty in getting out of camp owing to the floods and bad roads. Rising at five in the morning of the day they left, they were until 8.30 in the evening going three miles, being forced to portage, but they were successful in getting out their deer and camp equipment in spite of the arduous labor.

Mr. Henry Ray, of Tudor township, was in town Monday. He says he has seen signs of more large deer this year than in many previous years. Mr. Ray was lucky in shooting a buck weighing about 190 lbs. The buck had evidently had an encounter with a porcupine, for in his mouth Mr. Ray found about twenty-five quills, two of which had worked through the mouth and up behind the tongue.

A peculiar little incident befell one of the hunters one morning when he was leading out the dogs. He was standing holding two dogs by their leads, and not expecting to see a deer. Just at that moment when one suddenly appeared. The dogs made such a violent dash that they threw Mr. Hinds, the hunter, flat on the ground, so that he was unable to get a shot at the big fellow before he disappeared.

A still more unique accident happened to Mr. David Grant, of Weslymkoon, who is well known to all fishremen frequenting that lake. Mr. Grant was sitting on a log in the runway, when he saw and shot a deer. The animal, keeping straight on, ran into Mr. Grant, bowling him over the log and causing the gun to go off into the air. Fortunately Mr. Grant's son appeared, just then, finished the deer, which had staggered on a short distance, and rescued his father. Mr. Grant was considerably bruised and shaken up, but considers the deer worth getting, as he proved to be a fine buck weighing about 200 lbs.

Hoped That Operation Will Benefit Knee Hurt in Bicycle Accident.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 25.—Charles Cochrane, the rural mail carrier, takes his 15 year old son, Wesley, to a Kingston hospital today for an operation. The boy fell from his bicycle last August and injured his knee so severely that he has never completely recovered. In September he suffered a stroke of paralysis, but the effect of this have passed away. Wesley was one of the promising students in the High school when he met with his accident.

LAD SPENT NIGHT IN NORTH WOODS

Fred Gardner, Four, Was Lost in Bush For Over Twenty-four Hours.

FOLLOWED BROTHER.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 25. (Canadian Press).—After being lost in the bush for over 24 hours without food or drink or sleep, Fred. Gardner, four-year-old son of Mrs. Mamie Pin, of Sugar Island, was found in the woods. The sobbing and crying of the lad, who had withstood the terrors of the cold night, attracted a party of searchers who were out all night and day. With the exception of frost-bitten hands and face, and a bad scare, the lad was none the worse for his harrowing experience in the woods.

Fred. was lost when he followed his brother to school on Sugar Island.

"Another Secret Wrested from Nature"

—Says the Vegol Chemist

This soap actually grew! Thousands of trees in our African plantations produce the rich palm oil, cocoanut oil, and olive oil, from which Vegol is made. The greatest staff of soap experts in the world have been at work on this problem for many years—"How can we produce the highest grade toilet soap—fragrant and pure—so that everyone can enjoy it, at a few cents a cake."

Nature's oil trees supply the answer. Vegol is the new process, creamy health soap—that you and all your household will revel in. There are no animal fats or irritating chemicals in Vegol. The rich oils, the fresh odor, the natural color of Vegol are all of vegetable origin. Plainly packed, yes, but each cake of Vegol is one-third bigger than the ordinary 10c. to 25c. toilet soap. A wonderful saving.

BOYS' PARLIAMENT

PLATFORMS OF PETERBORO CANDIDATES

TED OUTRAM.

To the Boys of Peterborough.

My platform, as outlined in my speeches, contained two major planks. They are, briefly:

(1) A revival of the C.S.E.T. programme among the boys of this city. Experience has taught me that the C.S.E.T. programme, as conceived by Taylor Statten, is the best programme for developing boys into four-square men. Yet the C.S.E.T. programme is almost at a standstill here. It is my plan to push it strongly.

(2) To enthuse and train the older boys to become leaders of Trail Ranger groups. This can be done through a leaders' class as tentatively proposed by the Local Boys' Work Board. I hope to make this a reality.

If the C.S.E.T. gains the needed impetus it will look after in itself such important features as conclaves, athletic meets, bond-selling campaigns, etc.

If sent to Toronto I will endeavor to represent the real boys of Peterborough in a real way.

Ted Outram.

ADAM SANDS.

The platform which I have outlined below I promise to carry out to the best of my ability, if elected:

(1) Promotion of younger boys' work. The younger boys' work is sadly neglected.

(2) Bigger and better bond-selling campaign. The surplus will be used in promotion of boys' work in the different districts.

(3) More conclaves during the year 1926. These mass meetings in the churches bring the boys together and promote competition in the different classes.

(4) A large Tuxis Boys' annual athletic meet. This is to promote the athletics in the city.

(5) Promotion of the C. S. E. T. programme in all the churches of Peterborough.

Adam Sands.

INFORMAL TALKS ON DISARMAMENT

Washington Is Interested in Knowing Opinion of London on Matter.

LONDON, November 25. Canadian Press.—Informal exchanges are taking place between London and Washington regarding the question of disarmament, the corresponden; is reliably informed. On the British side it is desired to ascertain the attitude of President Coolidge regarding the inclusion of the conference on further naval limitation in the general disarmament conference to be held at some future date, under the auspices of the League of Nations.

At the same time it is said here that the United States Government is interested to know the opinion of Great Britain on the feasibility of holding another naval limitation conference at Washington.

It is also thought likely here that similar informal inquiries from Washington are being made of the other great naval powers.

"BOB WHITE" TO BE SEEN BY ROTARIANS

A very proud host indeed will be the entire cast of the coming Kiwanis show, "Miss Bob White," when the Rotary Club of Peterboro will be graciously received as a welcome guest at the initial performance on Friday night next, at which time the brilliant comic opera success will begin what is fast shaping into a very gratifying two night run at the Grand opera house.

The curtain will rise promptly at eight-fifteen, if everyone is placed by that time. There is nothing more annoying to theatre goers than to have to wait fifteen minutes or so to see the opening of the show. It is not professional in the least and according to the managers of this year's show, the cast is performing far above the amateur class. A representative of the Rogers Producing Company, which company is staging the piece, was in Peterboro last evening, and was loud in his praise of the finished work already attained by the one hundred and sixty-two taking part.

Not unlike last year's show the costumes and scenery of "Miss Bob White' are replete with charm and design, adding much to the needs of the eye to assure a really good time. After all it is the happy combination of music, costumes, scenery and stage business which does the trick. Those in charge of the extravaganza have attained all these as the orchestra is the same one which has been so successfully guided by Mrs. Foster.

One of the big features in the show is the Bubble chorus, which is composed of 50 little tots who look only too cute in a very pretty number called "Meet me to-night in Bubble Land." Myriads of the colored bubbles will float before your eyes and—well, come and see if you can recognize an individual personality in some tot you know.

There are lots of good seats left for either night. Don't miss this treat.

Don't let indigestion after meals, biliousness, heartburn, or dyspepsia take the pep out of you. Take Seigel's Syrup. Any drug store.

ROYAL STABLES NEARLY EMPTY

Londoners Ask What Will Happen to State Coaches.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press).—What would happen to the Royal carriages and the Coronation coach, should the motor displace the horse, is a question Londoners frequently ask. There are only about 70 horses in the Royal Mews now, whereas before the war they numbered upwards of 150.

The cream ponies, which were bred at the Royal stud farm in Hampton Court Park, have gone; so too have the handsome blacks which had been the admiration of the crowds on state occasion. Only the bays remain. Many citizens have expressed the hope that horses would always be used at national functions.

The Coronation coach probably would remain at Buckingham Palace. It has been used for six coronations and is one of the show sights to all favored visitors. It is drawn by eight horses in red and gold harness.

The Royal train, which King George and Queen Mary use in travelling about England, is the finest in the country. It consists usually of 11 coaches of the Pullman type, and two engines are employed to draw it. Running always as a special, the train generally is on non-stop schedule. Full speed is never maintained after nine or ten p.m., so that the motion may be reduced to a minimum and not disturb the slumbers of Their Majesties.

Girl Shoots Her Lover For Refusal To Buy Hat

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(United Press). — Although French courts are notoriously lenient in judging "crimes of passion," especially where young women are concerned, no mercy was shown for Mlle. Germaine Lefevre, 18 years old, who shot and killed her soldier lover, Auguste Godet, in a quarrel.

Evidence showed that Germaine wanted a new hat to suit her bobbed hair. Auguste refused to buy it and she shot him. The jury sentenced her to death on the guillotine.

CHINESE WAR IS STARTING AGAIN NEAR SHANTUNG

Mukden Forces Are Said To Be Taking Field Against Feng.

CHANG RESIGNS.

Rumors From Mukden Say His Son Has Taken Over His Commands.

PEKING, Nov. 25 (United Press)—Renewed hostilities among some of China's army group appeared imminent today.

Reports here indicated that the Mukden forces were about to take the field against the forces of the "Christian" General Feng Yuh Siang. The latter is supported by General Wu Pei Fu.

Persistent, although quite uniformed reports from Mukden speak of a coupe by the "peace faction" which is said to be withdrawing the chieftain Chang Tso Lin and asking his 25 year old son Chang Hsueh-Liang to act in his father's place.

Feng Withdraws

LONDON, Nov. 25 (United Press)—The Tien Tsin correspondent of the Central News cabled today that Honan troops had occupied Tsinanfu in Shantung province, thereby violating an agreement made between General Feng Yuh-Siang and the Manchurian war lord, Chang Tso Lin. The latter is reported to have concentrated forces along the Shan-Hai Kuan-Tien Tsin railroad. Feng's troops were said to be withdrawing toward Peking.

SPRAGUES 93 YEARS GIBRALTAR CONSULS

American Representation on Rock in One Family Long Time.

Surville, France, suffers no apprehensions over long Mayoral terms; its Mayoralty has been held by members of one family for 117 years. No American city can equal that record, though Mayor Doyle of Providence held office during most of his mature life. We have an instance of almost hereditary office-holding in the Sprague, who have been United States Consuls at Gibraltar, Spain, for the past ninety-three years. The present incumbent is Richard L. Sprague, the third member of the family, in direct descent, to appear in Government lists as "American Consul, Gibraltar, Spain."

The first Sprague to hold the office, Horatio, was appointed by President Andrew Jackson in 1832. He served as Consul during sixteen years, until his death in 1848. Then came Horatio J. Sprague, his son, who served for more than fifty years. He too, died in office—in 1901. He was succeeded in turn by his son, Richard L., who received the designation and has performed the duties of Consul at Gibraltor almost a quarter of a century. Before his appointment in 1901, Richard L. Sprague had been Vice and Deputy Consul at Gibraltar under his father.

The Spragues had been conected with the famous Rock long before they began to monopolize the consulship. They settled there, retaining American citizenship, more than a century ago. When the State Department asked Horatio J. Sprague for a sketch of his life and family he replied that his father, the first American Sprague at Gibraltar, had been established there as a merchant and a shipowner before becoming Amaircan Consul. He was a native of Boston.

The second Horatio held his office by appointment of President Polk, and the present Consul, Richard L. Sprague, was commissioned Vice and Deputy Consul by President Cleveland, and full Consul by President Roosevelt.

NORMAL STUDENTS AT GEORGE STREET

Last Friday night the Senior Club of George Street Church, entertained the Normal students about 200 in number, in the Church Parlors. The At Home to the students is an annual event and one which is entered into with much enthusiasm. This year the programme was varied a little and never before did the students prove to be such real sports, when asked to make their contribution to the fun of the evening. There were a good many laughs when the silent orchestra under the direction of Mr. A. Lillow, gave two or three selections, and when some of the best looking gentlemen were asked to trim hats for their ladies.

Miss Mignox Maynard gave a whistling number and Miss Margaret Walker a reading, both of which were encored a second time.

ALTAR BOYS HAD GOOD BANQUET

Ladies of Church Entertained Thirty-two Boys at Supper.

MANY SPEECHES.

Last evening, the altar boys of the Sacred Heart Church, thirty-two in number, were entertained at a sumptuous and artistic banquet in the basement of the church. The function was prepared and executed through the combined efforts of the mothers of the boys and the ladies of St. Anthony's Sewing Circle. The provisions were supplied by the merchants of the parish and some of the generous ladies of Otonabee. Miss Rita O'Connell and Miss Anna Gentille also assisted by preparing the pretty menu cards.

Many of the ex-curates of the parish were present, also W. J. Lee, B.A., Separate School Inspector, all of whom encouraged the boys in what was for the majority of them their first experience in public speaking. Messrs. Collins, Armstrong and O'Keefe enlivened the evening's programme with excellent music, and the following toasts were honored; Leo Richea acting as toast-master:

"Our Pope and Our King" ("To God the Things that are God's") proposed by Leo Masterson, and responded to by Bernard Jones, with a reading by Vincent Anglesey; "The Faithful Shepherd," a vocal duet by Kenneth O'Toole and Jack Collins; "Vivat, Pastor Bonus," and a song by Henry Jones, "The Flag."

"Our Office" (Servants of the servant of God",) proposed by Roy Bacon, and responded to by Arthur Luzure, with a reading by Isidor Coselin, 'John, the Altar Boy," and a vocal duet by Bernard and Maurice Rogers, "How I Hate to Get Up."

"Our Country" ("It is the most lasting passion"), proposed by Joseph Collins and responded to by John Cairns, with a reading by Archie Barnes, 'Breathes There a Man," and the singing of "O Canada," by John Rady, Robert Creighton and Gerald Fleming.

"Our Parish" (East, West, Home is best"), proposed by Herbert Masterson and responded to by Francis Kirkcaldy, with reading by Gordon LaPlante, "The Bell of St. Michel," and song by James Moloney, "Duna."

"Our Mothers," ("The Hand Which Rocks the Cradle Rules the World"), proposed by Joseph O'Toole, and responded to by Gerald Collins, with reading by P. J. Anglesey, 'Mother," and song by Francis O'Keefe, "The Lady Next Door." In responding to this toast, Gerald Collins made a telling little reference to the Biblical story of the Prodigal Son, wondering if this story and its moral had to do with the effects on its inmates of a home lacking a mother.

"Our Guests," ("The Guests are Met, the Feast is Set"), proposed by Albert Guerin, and responded to by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church; Rev. J. Garvey of Lakefield, Rev. G. Maher, Rev. J. V. McAuley of Ennismore, Rev. P. P. Butler and Rev. J. Finn, of the staff of St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. J. C. Moloney, of the Sacred Heart Parish, and W. J. Lee, B.A. Connected with this toast was the reading by James Fleming, "Scottish Hospitality," and the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," by Omar Boucher, Roy Courneyea, Murray Corkery and Joseph Goselin.

Rev. Father Maher aroused the amusement of his hearers when responding to this toast, by reciting some humorous verses having to do with Rev. Father McAuley, and Father McAuley, during his brief speech, referred to the traditions inculcated in the boys by the late Joseph Picard, Senior, who had so much to do in the early days of the Sacred Heart Parish with training the altar boys, and to the fact that Rev. Father Finn, one of Mr. Picard's altar boy students, had prepared his teacher for death.

PARKS IN ROCKY MOUNTAINS ARE OF GREAT VALUE

A. O. Wheeler, F.R.G.S., of Victoria, Gave Illustrated Lecture.

GREAT BEAUTIES.

Pictures Showed Mountains and Streams of Canada's National Parks.

A very interesting and instructive lecture, copiously illustrated by a number of beautiful lantern slides, and entitled "The Glories of Our National Mountain Parks," was given in the hall of the Public Library last evening under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club, by A. O. Wheeler, F.R.G.S., of Victoria, B.C. There was a very good attendance of members and their friends. The speaker was introduced by the president, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, and was accorded a hearty salvo of applause at the conclusion of a delightful address.

Mr. Wheeler, who appears to be filled with enthusiasm for his special hobby of mountain climbing, spoke with authority gathered from a long experience in the sport, and his views were a revelation of the wonderful natural beauties of some of Canada's distant mountain ranges. He prefaced the showing of slides, which was interspersed by pleasant and humorous reminiscence of his own experiences, with a brief review of the extent of Canada's National Parks, and of the forming of the National Parks Association, which has enforced a "hands off" policy against those who might wish to exploit Canada's scenic beauties for commercial purposes, such as water-power rights. The parks bring in an enormous annual revenue to Canada, between one hundred and fifty and two hundred thousand people visiting the Rocky Mountains Park alone last year. It is estimated that thirty or forty millions of dollars was added to the Dominion's revenue last year because of their tourist value.

Beautiful Views.

The lantern slides were exceptionally fine specimens of views of the glories of Western Canada and rivalled in many instances scenes of the same type taken from European countries, giving a wonderful exhibition of natural beauty that could hardly be surpassed anywhere in the world. They opened with a view of the Vermilion Lakes and the pack trains fording the Saskatchewan River, reminding one spectator of the fording scene in "The Covered Wagon." A great river of ice was shown near Mount Assiniboine, twelve thousand feet high, with Mount Mitre and the Mitre Glacier, Mount Lefroy and Mount Victoria, the latter slide showing the avalanche from the Mountain. Pinnacle Mountain, with the odd pinnacle-shaped rock formations that give it its name, reminds the onlooker of the "Castled Crag of Drachenfels," in the old song, that "frowned o'er the broad and winding Rhine," and is companioned by Eiffel Peak, also named because of its curious tower-topped head.

Members of the Canadian Alpine Club were shown, coming down in sliding formation a mountain that had taken about five hours to ascend, and about fifteen minutes for the return journey. Here in these mountainous solitudes, the lakes are colored in various shades of blue and green, even white and yellow, from the rock dust blown down by the glaciers and congulating in fine silt on their surfaces.

Other freaks of rock formation were the Turtle's Head, and a huge specimen of a balancing rock, topping a smaller portion. The Great Divide was shown, where water flows east to the Atlantic Ocean and west to the Pacific; the Valley of Cataract Creek; Lake O'Hara; the Eagle's Eyrie, reminding one of the "Dark Tower" to which Childe Harold came; fossils in the Yoho Valley region which are relics of the ages when the Rocky Mountains formed a portion of the ocean bed; Emerald Lake with its falls twelve hundred feet deep; the snow fields of the Yoho Glacier, rugged and terrible as some war-torn area; the moraines at the sides and foot of the great moving glaciers; the narrow canyons of this section, and the Kicking Horse Valley with Spike Peak in the distance.

"There is something about climbing on ice and snow that gets into your system, once it gets in," said Mr. Wheeler, who was very enthusiastic about the hazards to be encountered in this perilous sport.

Mummy Mountain.

Mummy Mountain was a curiously shaped height, whose side view gave the reason for its re-christening as Ptolemy Peak, in the strong resemblance to the old Egyptian kings, and the Hoodoo valley was a collection of strange rough pillars with flat tops that Mr. Wheeler said had always reminded him, of the faculty of a college, and perhaps had given rise to the naming of the mountain at their rear as Chancellor Peak. The snow-capped peaks of Mount Sir Donald were shown, with the Silver Glacier flashing five thousand feet down its side.

"At the top of the world, one receives a wonderful sensation of an Almighty Creator. I don't think an agnostic could exist in the mountains," said the lecturer.

The queer sand cones that form in some of these districts, with their centres of solid ice and the oddly-shaped "snow mushooms," the clouds which gather on mountain peaks and the wraith-like spectre in the clouds formed at certain heights by the shadow of the man observing it, were peculiarities observed by mountain climbers, and the views closed with a picture of Mount Robson, clustering lakes about its feet, and photographs of one of the speaker's favorite guides.

MALE VOICE CHOIR HAS GOOD PRACTICE

New Pianiste Was Welcomed —Will Attend Memorial Service.

One of the most successful practices in connection with the Peterboro Male Voice Choir was held last night, in the auditorium of the G.W.V.A. Hall. There was a splendid attendance of the choir members, with a feeling of good fellowship existing. Possibly one of the outstanding features attributable to the success of the practice was the first appearance of the choir's new pianiste, Miss Agnes Logan.

A very cordial greeting and warm welcome was given Miss Logan by President Gandy, which was made more manifest by continuous applause by the choir. The success of the choir is now assured, and no doubt one of the finest concerts of the season will be looked forward to by the music loving people of the city.

A new feature of the practice has been adopted this season, whereby every member of the organization will be given an opportunity to make a contribution by way of a solo or duet, during intermission. Those taking part last night were John Hodgson, who contributed a solo very acceptably, and Willis Brothers, a duet, which was also very favorably received.

In connection with the Civic Memorial Service for the late Queen Mother Alexandra, planned for Thursday night in St. Paul's Church, in charge of the Ministerial Association, the choir have offered their services as a body, and will assist in the musical part of the service. At the close of the practice and as a tribute to the late Queen Mother, one verse of her favorite hymn, "Abide With Me," was sung, after which the entire choir stood with bowed head in silence for two minutes.

YOUNG PEOPLE IN MANY ACTIVITIES

A. Y. P. A. of St. George's Church Has Had Busy Week.

On Monday evening, the A.Y.P.A. of St. George's church, were entertained by Mr. Devey, who gave a very interesting and educational address on Music.

In the course of his lecture, Mr. Devey made many Biblical references as to music. He also explained the difference between the old classical compositions and the present day jazz music. The latter he condemned very strongly, remarking that it was the ruination of all music and the present day youth who were musically talented.

The lecture was thoroughly enjoyed by all members present, and Mr. Devey was thanked very much by the president, Miss E. Parkes, and by the usual St. George's A.Y.P.A. applause.

Sunday being A.Y.P.A. Sunday, the Rector, Rev. J. L. Hughes, gave a special sermon in the morning, and S. Robertson read the lessons, and F. Darrell and W. James took the offerings.

Monday being Gentlemen's night, the male members of the club entertained the ladies for the evening.

The evening was spent in games, dances, and a fireside talk, after which the Bachelors gave the Ladies a surprise, in providing them with a grand table of eats, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all, and the b'hoys of the club were highly congratulated by the fair sex.

At 10:30 all the members departed for home after having spent a most enjoyable evening at the expense of the Bachelors of St. George's A.Y.P.A.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my 'teens and I used to go with a boy that I liked very much. Lately he has been going out with another girl and at the same time being nice to me.

Could you tell me how I can regain his friendship again? Should I keep on being nice to him or give up hope?

DOWN HEARTED.

DOWN HEARTED: In any case, why be downhearted? If you are in your 'teens, the world lies all before you. This habit of putting all your eggs in one basket will keep you permanently in the blues, if you keep it up. Have you ever considered just how many men there are in the world? Millions and millions of them, and all pretty much the same. The exceptional man is far less rare than the exceptional woman, perhaps because men are not so emotional and are content to go along in a conevntional groove. If this were not so, how could they stand the monotony of wearing the same type of clothes century in and century out, every man like his fellow, except for a few small details? So you see you are very unwise to bother your head about one man, if he is not looking in your direction. It is likely that he is going out with the other girl because he prefers he company instead of yours, and he is nice to you because he is just a little sorry for you at being unable to hold such an excellent catch as he doubtless thinks himself. The thing for you to do is to adjust yourself to circumstances. Look around for some other man who has not such an exaggerated idea of his own importance in the scheme of things and probably you will like him a great deal better than this one.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my 'teens and am coming to you for advice. I like a boy very much and am not going with him. How could I win his friendship? He is a mannerly boy and comes from a respectable family. Hoping to see your answer soon, and thanking you very much.

MITZI.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl and would like some advice from you. I am not going out with any one boy in particular, but there is one which draws my attention most. He seems to be very nice and is quite popular with my other boy and girl friends. Please advise me as to how I could win his love. Thanking you for your answer.

A LITTLE FRENCH GIRL.

MITZI and A LITTLE FRENCH GIRL: As your letters are similar in their subject matter, perhaps you won't mind if I answer them together? Mitzi, although she speaks of friendship, probably means love.

This problem of winning the attention of a man seews to be a very modern one. Time was when the man was supposed to be the pursuer and the woman always the pursued, but possibly cases were just the same in those days as now, except that the ladies did not reveal their intentions quite so plainly. A man who had seen the world in his time once laid down as a rule for women: Smile. That is to say, I suppose, always be amiable and never allow your temper, if you have one, to appear. That can wait until you have married the gentleman. Perhaps an equally good rule is: Study him. Men are just as different in their ideas and tastes as women. Some men prefer a real quiet girl and others like a talker. Again one man will require a flashy dresser and another thinks the plainly attired girl would make the best wife. Some of them want a good cook and others like a songbird. Why not try and find out just which types these young men prefer. If you get them talking about girls, they will let you know soon enough. And then, if you think the game is worth the candle, model yourselves along the lines indicated.

ENSEMBLES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(United Press).—Since everything is fur-trimmed this winter, those who wish to be fur-trimmed on an economical basis will be interested in one of the most recent of Parisian ensembles.

This is a three-piece ensemble consisting of tunic, skirt and coat. The tunic is cut the exact length of the coat and the skirt is longer than both tunic and coat and is banded with fur at the hem. When the coat is worn it appears to have a border of fur since it extends just to the fur border of the skirt. When the coat is removed, the tunic likewise appears to be fur-bordered. Thus, one band of fur acts as a trim for both coat and tunic.

The coat of this ensemble is slender-lined and of wrap-about type being held closed with the hand and not buttoned. Sleeves and shoulders are narrow to give the popular scant upper effect. The collar is narrow for the same reason and is made of fur matching the border fur. Coat, skirt and tunic are of the same fabric. The model described is made of bottle green woollen cloth of soft texture with grey fox used as a border and collar. Another similar model of striking effect is made of wine red velvet with dark beaver as a trim.

The winter season began with burgundy reds the popular shade and even at this early date we find burgundies giving way to more vivid shades of reds, such as lip-stick, vermillion, orange-reds and hennas. Many of the younger set of New York are choosing top-coats of the brightest red imaginable. Red hats are also numerous. Several red cloth coats trimmed in black seal are noted. One of vermillion is lined in black velvet and bordered in zig-zag bands from hem to hips. There is an accompanying frock of black velvet.

ONCE UPON A TIME — THE PUMPKIN PIE PRINCESS—IX — by W. J. ENRIGHT.

If you want thrillers, just take a peek into this nature business for a while.

"Maybe when I am old and looking for nice quiet byways for something to do, I will take up nature study," said a young woman to me, not long ago. She says she cannot see anything exciting in the woods or in birds.

Listen!

Thrillers in nature do not run every day at the same hour, and you cannot go over the fence into the woods and pay your ten cents to the lady bug at the entrance, see a movie of birdland and go home at bedtime. But the thrillers are seen, just the same, by more folks than is commonly known.

The other day, I was poking around outside, fixing things up for the winter, and taking a glance every few minutes at the bird feeding table. Some late stragglers, on the way south, were there, eating crumbs and seeds.

There was a white-throated sparrow, three song sparrows, three chickadees and several English sparrows. Or perhaps I should say that a Sweet Canada Bird, three Rossignols, three Chicadees or Cheerys, and happiness, were being upset by those dirty and annoying English sparrows.

I often wonder what the English sparrow thinks of the native birds. It must be quite a puzzle to him, to see wild birds in waves, coming from nowhere and going to the same place without any rhyme or reason. The English sparrow is still a foreigner and it costs him dearly, and us too.

I was leaning on the rake, watching the birds, when, without warning, the wild native birds seemed to surrender the food and table to the quarrelsome English sparrows, and slipped off the table edge and down into the shrubbery with a swiftness and natural ease that escaped the greedy foreigners, who noticed it too late, for before they too could move, a sparrow hawk was upon them, picking a fat male off the table with astonishing ease and speed.

Every English sparrow left the place for good, that day, but the native birds came right back, confident of their own keen sight and ability to keep out of danger. The experience was a thrill.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Nature is long suffering but is never cheated. In the long run she is exacting and insistent. If you persistently and consistently violate her rules you will pay for your foolishness.

The worst of it is, too, we violate many a rule of whose very existence we are ignorant. That makes no difference. We have to pay just the same.

There is an old saying that "ignorance of the law is no excuse." It seems a pity to think we must suffer for doing what we did not know was wrong. But there is no escape. Nature's laws are immutable and unescapable.

Almost every illness is due to ignorance. If it is not due to ignorance, it comes from wilful disregard of known facts. Carelessness, indifference, conceitedness and pure cussedness are important casual factors in disease production.

There is little prospect of overcoming wilful disregard of the rules of health. The indifferent individual must be left "to stew in his own juice." He is hopeless. The only way I know of reaching him is to appeal to his regard for his family and friends. When he realizes that others suffer if he is sick, that their burdens are increased and their lives endangered, he may shake off his indifference and seek to be well for their sakes.

I am endeavoring to point out to interested persons the pathways which lead to health. I want to dispel the ignorance of health's geography. There are physical landmarks which should mean just as much to the seeker after health as material landmarks mean to the explorer.

To get the point, what are the fundamental things? How can one begin to cultivate a manner of living which will make for health and long life.

The so-called "vital organs" are the heart, kidneys, lungs, brain and digestive tract. It would be difficult to get along without a spleen, liver, eyes and, indeed, all the other organs but the five I have mentioned are absolutely essential to life.

The brain is so shut off and protected by the bony skull that we need not worry about that. But the heart, kidneys, lungs and digestive tract are ours to abuse or to protect just as we please. Abuse of the kidneys and abuse of the digestive organs are founded on the same manner of living, so we can group them together. You see, then, what we do with the heart, the lungs and the digestion will decide our physical fate.

Exercise or its omission determines the heart health. Fresh air and proper breathing fix the lung health. Right or wrong eating decides the condition of the digestion.

In the last analysis health depends on exercise, fresh air and proper eating. When these are taken habitually and the brain is treated to right thinking, you have laid the foundation for health and long life.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

DICKY HAS A CHAT WITH A LITTLE AFRICAN.

"Gracious-on-us!" Dicky exclaimed, when he peeked into the great big tank at the Zoo and saw the large creature basking on the rocks. "You're the largest Alligator I have ever seen in all my life!"

"Alligator," repeated the captive creature rolling its eyes, "I'm not an alligator in the first place. My name is printed above the fence there. Can't you read?"

Dicky looked up at the letters above the fence that surrounded the tank and carefully spelled them out loud.

"Crocodile," of course chuckled the captive creature. "I'm a Crocodile, if you please."

"Well, Mr. Crocodile," Dicky said, "You could fool me anytime, for I couldn't tell a Crocodile from an Alligator at all. You both look alike to me."

"In the first place Alligators very seldom grow as large as Crocodiles," Mr. Crocodile snorted. "Alligators have more pointed snouts than we have and their teeth don't fit together as ours do. Look at my teeth. What do you think of that?" and he opened his mouth so Dicky could see his teeth. He counted fifty-four teeth above and fifty-two below. "And under every one of them you'll find at least two or three other teeth growing, ready to come through when these teeth wear out and drop."

"I'm a Crocodile."

"We only have two sets of teeth," said Dicky. "What a mouth full you have. Say, Mr. Crocodile, where did you live before you came to this Zoo?"

"Came to this Zoo," chuckled Mr. Crocodile, "you mean before I was brought here. I lived in Africa of course. And I'm mighty glad I came here too. You see my wife always had a hard time to raise a family back home. She laid her eggs in the sand to let the hot sun hatch them and so many times, our so-called-friends would eat them up. Then when they did hatch, it kept us both fighting to keep other folks from devouring the youngsters. Of course it was our fault in a way; for Crocodiles, from the beginning of time, have always devoured anything that happened to suit their fancy. They were only getting even with us, so they can't be blamed. Though it was hard on Mama and I, but here we have a family and we're mighty proud of them too. You'll find them scattered all over the Zoo here.

"Now in the wild state, as soon as the youngsters are hatched from the eggs, they begin to make themselves just as disagreeable as they can. Here they are much nicer and are not so ready to fight. Here comes the keeper with our supper. Come and see me again sometime." When the keeper tossed the food into the tank, Mr. Crocodile hurried after it. Dicky watched him a long time, then trotted on home to his own supper.

Suffered with rheumatism for years

GOT RELIEF FROM RHEUMATISM AT LAST

Spent more than $100 for remedies before help was found

How an obstinate case of rheumatism was given relief by a simple home treatment is told by a man in Los Angeles, California, who suffered for years with rheumatic pain in the feet and back.

"I spent more than $100 for liniments and medicines in twenty-four years," he writes. "Then I used Sloan's Liniment and it gave me complete relief."

And it is amazing—the quick, genuine comfort that Sloan's gives to even the most long-standing rheumatic aches. Sloan's doesn't just deaden pain—it helps your body to throw off the cause.

No need to rub even. A little Sloan's patted lightly on—and a healing tide of fresh, germ-destroying blood begins tingling through the aching place. Before you can believe it, the pain, swelling and stiffness are relieved. Try it! All druggists—35 cents.

"BOBBED HAIR" with Marie Prevost in a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore promised that if she appeared at Aunt Selimena's party tonight with her hair bobbed, she would become engaged to Bingham Carrington. Otherwise she would accept Saltonstall Cabot Adams. The guests—including the two suitors—are assembled, but Connie aggravates them by wearing a headdress that conceals her auburn head. The decision must be made known before midnight or her aunt will disinherit her. And the minutes are flying by—rapidly.

"Oh, my dear Mr. Brewster, you've never known any woman except Miss Celimena, which misleads you frightfully. Of course, it's because she has decided that Connemara is so frightened now. Busily pushed from behind by her aunt and her aunt's lawyer, she has shut her eyes, jumped over the precipice—and then—well, behold her hanging by a slender branch."

Mr. Brewster seemed unaffected by the picture. "She will have to drop before twelve o'clock," he said.

"But that's nearly three hours away," mused Miss Glenn. "And so many things can happen in three hours."

"As for instance?"

"Well, the world might come to an end at 11:30. Or Miss Climena might weaken."

"I agree with you," said Mr. Brewster, "that those two events are likely to occur at about the same time."

"Or a beautiful young ruffian might step out of the syringa bushes and carry her off in his arms."

"I should think," said Mr. Brewster, "that she would rather prefer crashing on the rocks below."

"I told you," retorted Miss Glenn, "that you had never known any woman except Miss Celimena."

Meanwhile, this good lady, along whose path in life the syringa bushes had given forth nothing but a refined fragrance, was restlessly on the prowl. The dances at Moorelands had begun at 8:30 in her youth, and they still began at 8:30 even if she alone was ready at that hour.

Usually she drifted on the fringe of the dance floor, indicating with a skillful shoulder blade and an expert eyebrow that the daughters of her old neighbors were disporting themselves in an unseemly manner. But this evening she was alive to nothing but the discomfort caused by the fact that, partly through her own unacknowledged fault, the peace of Moorelands was disturbed by the rowdy commotions of melodrama.

The heroine of this gaudy play was dancing with simple earnestness. As the orchestra paused for breath and just as the two suitors were starting to waste theirs on the hidden ears of Connemara, her aunt advanced upon her formidably, detached her from some limber but socially negligible partner, and led her out on to the veranda. A young and affectionate couple, who had retreated to its shadows in response to some primeval instincts, scented the approach of a family scene and scuttled obligingly into the house.

Connemara, outwardly serene in the mild garb of the nun, sat on the rail of the veranda, leaned her secretive head against its weather-beaten pillar and looked out across the acres that could be hers at the drop of a hat—or at least of a bandeau, cap, and veil. The local fireflies were doing their best to make Moorelands seem festive. A mile or so away there was a faint glow in the sky. That was Stamford.

Nearer by there was an occasional twinkle in the darkness—one of the several battered farmhouses where tenants had once toiled for old Daniel Moore, but which had been taken over of late years by refugees from the pueblo cliffs of New York.

The once orthodox countryside, dotted with something like peasantry that had doffed respectful hats to young Miss Celimena as she drove smartly along the roads in her shining pheaton, was now infested with a strange riffraff of column conductors, feminist agitators, comediennes, and music critics. These not only did doff their hats; they didn't wear any. And even Miss Celimena knew that the pretentious names which adorned their reclaimed cottages were affixed in derision of that delusion of grandeur which had possessed her revered father when, after accumulating his fortune, he turned ducal on a surprised neighborhood and named his estate Moorelands—for all the world as though it were a shooting box in Devonshire.

Thus one of these new neighbors had named his tottering cottage "The Ricketts" and another—a brilliant young Jew from Harvard—had sardonically hung out a sign which announced to the offended Miss Moore that the name of his house was "The Hebrewst."

"My dear Constance," her aunt began in a tone which suggested that by "dear" she meant "expensive."

"Yes, aunt."

"You are so like your dear mother tonight. She could never merely come into a room. She always had to make what that actor friend of yours calls an entrance."

"Yes, aunt."

There was a pause. Miss Celimena broke it. "I would like to know what is under that headdress of yours."

"Thoughts, Aunt Celimena."

"What a change!" observed her aunt gloomily. "I think a penny would be an exorbitant charge for them."

Connemara chuckled. "You're quite right," she admitted cheerfully. "I was thinking as it happens about that Mrs. Buxton who got into one of your luncheons by mistake. That Mrs. Malaprop. You remember. She was the one who said her daughter had gone to a masquerade in the garbage of a nun."

There was another pause—an acrid pause. This time it was the old grandfather's clock in the hall which broke it. Both of them counted as its sweet bell rang ten times.

"Well," said Miss Celimena, gathering her shawl about her, "you have two hours in which to indulge yourself in this fiddle-faddle. I suppose it would be asking a good deal to expect any one of your generation to repay a lifetime of affection by a little courtesy, but it would add to my somewhat impaired enjoyment of this party if you would assure me that you intend to take off that contraption before you hear that clock strike twelve."

"I promise, aunt," she said, and added speculatively, "before I hear that clock strike twelve."

Miss Celimena's resentful skirts swished against the French window, and Connemara was alone on the veranda. The orchestra had subsided with a final snort and the only sound came from the lawn, where a sprinkler whirred in the darkness or from across the hedge where a streak of light told of some automobile heading for Stamford and New York. The night air was sweet with syringa.

And at that moment one of those cars slowed down and stopped—stopped alongside the road as if its driver had begun to have suspicions about its internals and was minded to peer under its hood. That, as a matter of fact, was just what had happened, and when young David Lacy finally straightened up he was aware that someone had stepped out of the darkness and was standing in the dusk that lay beside the path of light his lamps were making. It was a woman in white and, in a voice which he later decided was the loveliest sound he had ever heard, she spoke to him thus simply and to the point:

"If that car will run now, I think I'll go with you. Where are you going?"

"To Paris," he replied happily.

COSTS OF WAR STIFLE BRITAIN

Pensions Form Largest Item —No Diminution for Many Years.

BIG DEBT PAYMENTS

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Great war ended seevn years ago, but its staggering cost goes marching on. Since November 11, 1918, the British government has paid out $2,075,000,000 in pensions to the war wounded and to the families of those killed in the war. This payment for pensions alone is a sum greater than the total pre-war debt of Britain.

Yet, relatively speaking, payments have only just started. On March 31 of this year 625,000 wounded men were still on the pension lists, and of this number not less than 400,000 are on the permanent pension rolls. Not until death calls them will their names be taken off the lists. Last year their cost to the government was $330,000,000. Some reduction in this figure will come as the years roll by, but pension officials estimate it will be two decades at least before the pension totals fall below $250,000,000 yearly. But these statistics apply to pensions only.

Rehabilitation Takes Billion.

Another $1,000,000,000 has been spent—wholly apart from the pension payments—in the work of the occupational rehabilitation of the wounded.

A further item—small beside these huge figures—but still of consequence to the taxpayers, is that of $170,000,000 paid out since 1920 in the medical treatment of the wounded, who though sufficiently recovered to go about their occupations, are not yet beyond the need of medical treatment.

At this date the number of soldier still undergoing treatment for their wounds—seven years after the last shot was fired—is 40,540. Ten thousand of these are still lying in hospitals, a majority of whom will never leave until death takes them away.

Dole Cost Runs High.

On top of these expenses directly attributable to the war, taxpayers are digging into their pockets to the tune of another $200,000,000 yearly for the payment of doles to England's one-and-a-quarter million unemployed who are out of jobs, the British call, as one of the after-effects of the war.

Yet all these figures with their rolling cyphers pale into insignificance beside Britain's $4,500,000,000 debt to the United States, which she will be paying off for the next 60 years (two years payments have already been made) at the rate of some $165,000,000 yearly for the next eight years, and $190,000,000 a year for the 52 years following.

"Who won the war?"

That is a favorite question here nowadays.

FEWER FRENCH NOVELS

About One-Eighth of Books Published in France Are Novels.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press).—Changed times in Europe are lessening the popularity of the French novel.

People in France are studying more closely economic and social questions. Works on history, costing three times the price of the novel, have found a remarkable sale, and there also has been a revival of editions of Greek and Roman classics in the original text and in translations.

Of the 8,987 books published in France last year, only 1,148 were novels, while 2,008 were on social and economic questions. A comparison of books on sale with those offered before the World War showed a greatly marked improvement in taste.

RADIO IN SWEDEN.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 25.—(United Press).—The new broadcasting station of Stockholm has just been opened. The number of licensed receiving sets, which pay the cost of operation, is constantly growing and plans are made for continued improvements of the programs, the latest novelty being a lecture by Prince William on his impression during his official recent visit to Finland.

APPEARANCE OF CITY IMPROVED

Much Surface Has Been Saved Along George Street This Summer.

CARPENTERS BUSY.

While the actual amount expended for repairs on the business section of George street from Charlotte to Brock streets does not exceed $10,000, that amount is no index to the improvements which have been effected during the current year. Painters have been swinging an effective brush all summer and have wrought a miracle in alleviating the painful and dingy appearance which formerly obtained. Store fronts have been caused to blush with much of their pristine glory and the result reflects credit on the enterprize of the business men. R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, in commenting on the matter recently, said that Peterboro' was conspicuous among other cities in this regard. Other places of similar size, he said, did not show the interest in neat surroundings which was evidenced in Peterboro'.

WOMEN FENCE FOR GRACEFUL FIGURES

British Ladies Find Fencing Keeps Them Slender and Healthy.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press).—American women opposed to excess flesh and in search of means to retain an attractive figure might follow the example of those English women who believe fencing keeps them graceful and slender as well as healthy.

The Professional Women's Physical Culture Club, just organized here, made fencing one of the principal exercises. The idea is not to develop the Amazonian type of woman, with bulging muscles and large wrists and ankles, but to ensure the health and figure of women who have to remain most of the day in a sitting position.

LAND HAS SLUMPED IN CITY OF RHEIMS

People Have Not Returned as Fast as Building Have Been Restored.

RHEIMS, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press).—Rheims is among the few cities in France with empty apartments and a slumping industrial real estate market. The return of the population has not kept pace with rebuilding and restoration, as there are only 76,000 inhabitants as compared with 117,000 before the war.

To the world, Rheims generally is associated first with cathedrals, and then Champagne. Before the war, however, it was an important industrial city, where wool weaving, spinning and bleaching employed 10,000 persons, now reduced to about one-third of that number.

Land which at Armistice time sold for 10 to 30 francs the square meter, when it was thought that the city would be itself again in a short time, is now offered at from 5 to 10 francs.

The "League for the Industrial, Commercial and Labor Development of Rheims" has been formed to come to the rescue.

MONTREAL FANS GET THRILLS AS TEAMS PRACTICE

Several Minor Bouts in Heat of the Maroons' Workout.

DEADLY EARNEST.

Boston Bruins Conclude Training and Leave Montreal For Home.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 25—There was action in plenty at the local rinks Tuesday when the Montreal and Boston teams took their turn in drilling on the ice. Most of the thrills furnished the large gathering at the practice hours was furnished by the local Maroons.

In the morning the team went through a fast workout at which the spectators became so enthusiastic that their cheering became a handicap to the coach and players and for a time the question of drilling behind closed doors was considered. However, the team went at it again in the evening before a crowd provided an hour's play that gave the fans much food for thought.

To start with it was a practice in deadly earnest and one which was enlivened toward the end by a couple of minor frays between overzealous players. Dinny Dinsmore was feeling in fine fettle and was mixing matters up at a lively clip with the first string squad. He annoyed Punch Broadbent with a stick around the face and the pair came to grips, but soon broke loose. The excitement had hardly subsided when the determined little Maroon was again in a mix-up, Babe Seibert taking exception to Dinny's method of stick holding. This hubble soon subsided and the practice ended in the greatest harmony.

Kitchen On Defense

But these skirmishes were only minor side attractions. The fans got their first breath-taker when they found Hobey Kitchen working on the regular defence with Reg. Noble and Captain Dunc Munro performing in a white sweater on the scrub line.

A further fillip was provided the railbirds half way through the proceedings last eevning when Shorty Horne jumped on the ice in uniform and armed with his hockey stick. After a couple of turns around the ice, the former Grimsby amateur started to work into the play. He showed some tricky stickhandling for a couple of spurts down the ice, but on his first attempt to work through the defence, showed he was still too weak from his recent illness to stand fast practising and was ordered back to skating only by Manager Eddie Gerard.

Art Ross sent his Boston Bruins through an hour's work at noon, and the drill was a vast improvement over their practice of the day previous. High spots of the workout were the showing of Red Stuart and Carson Cooper and the tricky play of young Brackenborough.

Home to Boston

Art Ross will give his team one more practice today and will then board the train for Boston where the Bruins will open the N.H.L. season against Odie Cleghorn's Pittsburgh team Thursday night.

The local teams will continue their workouts until Friday for their openings on Saturday night. Canadiens will start the local league season away when they play the Pittsburgh team. Montreal will open their scheduled campaign at Ottawa at the week-end. The team will leave Saturday morning for the capital. They will be the guests of the Club President, James Strachan, at the Queen's-Ottawa Eastern Rugby final in the afternoon and will play the Senators in the evening.

Canadiens are rapidly rounding into condition for the start. The game with Victoria last week served as a splendid training medium and with their forwards ready and the deefnce men capable of going the route, the champions will be at top early-season form for their game against the team from Pittsburgh.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

Good golf is accomplished by narrow margins. After the player gets into the 80's he has more of a task if he wishes to improve than has the 120 player. There comes a point in golf, too, where the player who has played all his golf merely with his clubs must put another factor to work—his head. This gets down to pretty fine points when expert players begin to figure quarter strokes, as they now do. For instance, of two players approaching from 100 yards or so, one will be 10 feet from the hole, the other 25 feet. The one inside figures he has a quarter stroke on that hole to his advantage even if both putts are downed. The tournament players have figured it out that with hole after hole halved the man who is inside the majority of times will ultimately win through these quarter strokes because of the slight advantage they give him as the match goes along. Hagen, I am told, figures these quarter strokes as an important part of his play.

SENATORS PUT FIELD IN ORDER

Lansdowne Park Levelled For Supreme Test With Queen's.

TRY SCOUTS' TIPS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 25 (Canadian Press)—In addition to grooming their team to the finest possible fighting pitch for Saturday's big game here with Queen's on Saturday, Ottawa rugby club officials are leaving no stone unturned to have all attending arrangements letter played here three seasons ago when downe Park is being given special attention and a steam roller was at work practically all Tuesday levelling the big surface. Automobile parking areas are being roped off and everything is being done to accommodate a record breaking crowd.

Requests for reservations continue to arrive and if the weather holds anywhere near fair, the throng that enters the grounds on Saturday afternoon should be far in excess of any that has yet seen a game in Ottawa.

Work On Interference

Meanwhile Senators are grinding along at top speed, two practices a day having been the rule since Monday. The double workout yesterday found the entire squad on hand and the information picked up in Toronto by the scouts was worked on as far as possible. Interference and tackling are the two main items on which the coaches are concentrating and the men are working their heads off to perfect their styles.

Unless accidents occur before game time, there will likely be no changes in the line-up that has carried the red, white and black to the big four title. Vince Monohan was in Brockville for a few days but has returned again and was working out Monday and Tuesday. Ketchum has been drilled at the middle wing position and will likely be carried in as first relief.

The entire team is in good condition. Care is being taken to not overdo the workouts and the men are all hard and paying strict attention to the business on hand.

Fandom Eager

The advent of the Queen's machine is being looked forward to with rare interest. The Tri-color played here three season ago when Dave Harding was on the Ottawa backfield, and since then, except for occasional glimpses in Kingston and Montreal games, Hughes' clan have not been seen in action by Ottawa fandom. Their prowess is acknowledged, but at that there is a local feeling much in evidence that they will have to show their very best rugby to defeat Ottawas at home.

Queen's ability to rise to their greatest heights at crucial moments is one of their greatest fortes and they are never beaten until the final whistle has blown. The Senators have shown, particularly in their two games with Tigers, that they can finish as fast and as hard as any other team, and they will be in there until the curtain goes down.

BANQUET ENDS LEAGUE SEASON

Mercantile Baseball Players Gather For Presentation of Trophies.

A HAPPY PARTY.

The Mercantile Baseball League held their annual banquet in Chen's restaurant last evening. Mr. Harry Cressman the president of the league acted as Chairman and was ably supported by C. B. Westbrook, R. C. Heideman, H. Archambault and Fred Whaley. The chairman opened the proceedings with a few appropriate remarks and said that the purpose of the league was to foster sport among the younger element in the City and was of the opinion that no better league existed for this purpose than the Mercantile. He congratulated the Lock Works team on winning the two trophies. The Chairman then called on A. Cichetti the donor of one of the cups to make the presentation. Mr. Cichetti in presenting the cup stated that he considered the winners good sports and felt that they should be congratulated on the sporting manner in which they had acted during the season. J. Burke the manager of the Lock Works team thanked the donor and congratulated Mr. Cressman on the manner in which he had officiated over the different meetings and also eulogised the Bankers team who had given them such a close run for the championship. C. B. Westbrook stated that the Mercantile League was the best for real sport and fun and was of the opinion that it got everybody into the game. He said that next year the league would be stronger than ever and advised that they stay together for the good of sport in general and baseball in particular. The banquet then took on a festive strain and song and story reigned supreme for the remainder of the evening. The meeting then dispersed and in the words of the chairman was the "most successful banquet that the Mercantile League had ever staged."

GRANGE REBUKED BY COACH ZUPPKE

For Decision To Join Ranks of Rugby "Pros"

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 25.—A slashing rebuke was handed "Red" Grange by his friends and football coach, Bob Zuppke, speaking on Monday night before the annual banquet of the Illinois team.

"I tell you," Zuppke snapped, "that no other $100,000 player is going to be on one of my teams."

Red, who had returned to Champaign to attend the banquet and receive his 'letter' before beginning his professional football career, arose from the table and left the room. There were tears in his eyes, but he said he would not change his decision to join a professional team in Chicago and later organize an eleven to be seen in Florida.

"Remember, Harold," said Zuppke, addressing his remarks directly to Grange, "I have no fight with professional football, and if you choose to enter it, that is your business. But the Grange we knew and the Grange we have watched for three years is now a myth. As time goes on, those runs will grow in length with the telling. Grange will pass on and be forgotten."

Zuppke then declared against "$100,000 players."

Grange has returned to Chicago, where football fans staged a riot in a "loop" street to buy tickets for the Thanksiving Day game in which Grange will make his first professional appearance.

Zuppke's remarks follow controversies waged in collegiate circles as to the value of a star football player to a university, and as to whether "one-man teams" were advisable.

The Illinois coach, recognized as one of the greatest gridiron figures, in declaring against the "star system," is regarded as paving the way for the development of a new type of football machine, with no emphasis laid on the development of a stellar player.

TRAVERSI TO WRITE TWO BIOGRAPHIES

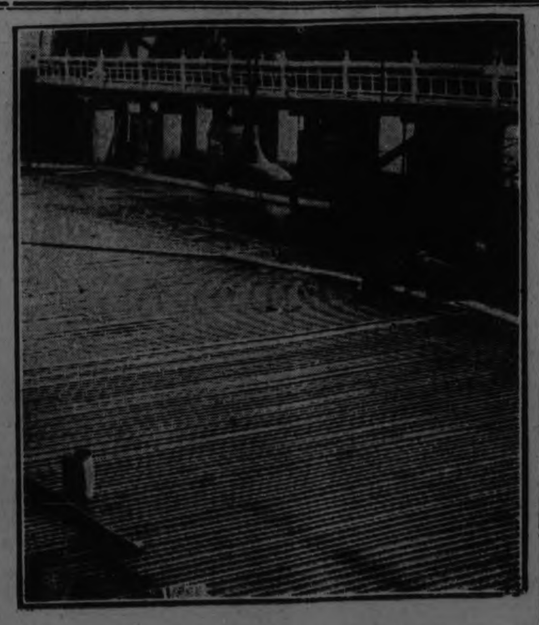
D'Annunzio and Duse Will be Subjects of Books.

ROME, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press).—Camillo Antona-Traversi, whose dramatic works were well known in Italy a generation ago, is embarking on the task of telling the life story of Gabriele d'Annunzio, as well as writing the biography of Eleonora Duse, the actress. Traversi for 35 years has been a resident in Paris.

Of the two works, that on d'Annunzio will be the more difficult, Traversi believes. "To write the life of such a great living author is a difficult, audacious and perhaps courageous enterprise," he said. "I do not know a life more varied, more beautiful or more romantic. My work will be in many volumes."

The book on Duse, which Traversi already has begun, will be called "Eleonora Duse, Her Life, Her Glory and Her Martyrdom."

A total of $626,592 in purses was distributed by the Grand Circuit during the season just closed.



Toronto devotees of the besom an' stane are soon to have a fine new artificial ice curling rink, the first of its kind in Canada, and the second on the continent. Rosenkavalier Proves To Be Winning Horse For Strauss

Attending one of the Sunday races in Kriau, Strauss was so greatly amused in learning one of the entries was named after his opera that he placed ten shillings on him.

"You are simply throwing your money away," his friends remonstrated. "He's a rank outsider."

But Rosenkavalier won the race at 50 to 1 and Strauss pocketed 500 shillings.

SENIOR PETES OUTPLAY GRIMSBY, INTERMEDIATE O. H. A. CHAMPIONS IN FAST EXHIBITION ENCOUNTER

Losers Had Superior Condition, Due to More Ice Practice.

SCORE WAS 4-1.

Neither Team Was at Full Strength—Petes Were More Effective.

By F. D. C.

HAMILTON, November 25. — The Peterborough Senior O.H.A. team, last year's S. P. A. winners, started their 1925-26 season auspiciously here last night by beating the Grimsby Peach Kings, the Intermediate champions, 4 goals to 1 in an exhibition game at the Hamilton area. The Petes got the only two counters in the first period. The second was scoreless, and in the final dash the Blue and White outpointed the Intermediate title holders by 2 to 1. Throughout they enjoyed the edge on Grimsby in speed and effectiveness, although the superior condition of the losers helped to hold the score down.

In the early stages the Petes had a wide margin, getting two markers in the first six minutes, and while they had the condition to go at top speed, were much the better team. Later on, when the initial fleetness of foot had slowed down perceptibly, the Petes had enough left to hold the Peach Kings, although the latter lasted better and never stopped trying.

Neither team was at full strength. Bert McLeod and Shorty Burgess being absentees from the Petes' line-up, while Grimsby mourned the absence of Gerald Carson, whose negotiations with the Canadiens kept him out of the game. The newcomers to the Peach Kings this season, who were in action last night, were Foulis, the veteran Collingwood-Welland player, and Bas Harrington, a member of last year's Parkdale Seniors. Foulis came close to being the most effective man in a Grimsby uniform, doing a lot of useful rushing, in addition to performing efficiently on the defence, where he teamed up with McVicar. The best of the Grimsby forwards were the well-seasoned Reid at centre, who is still a shifty puck carrier, and Clarke at left wing, a hard checking little player, who displayed some nice stick-handling at times. "Bud" Fisher gave a fine exhibition in the nets, the four that beat him giving him little chance to save.

The Petes showed not only a lot of speed but, what was more encouraging, displayed commendable efforts to play combination. Naturally the team work lacked the sureness and precision of mid-winter hockey, and the final touch that means goals, was missing in many plays, but the blue and white broke fast and together, and gave promise of speedy development into an effective machine into which the two new comers, Bogardis and Cox, should fit smoothly. Defensively, the Petes' poke checking was splendidly successful, and wrecked many a likely Grimsby attack. Irvin Bailey, the Petes' fleet-footed right wing player, was the outstanding star of game. His speedy skating and clever stickhandling gave the Peach Kings all kinds of trouble and three of the Petes' four counters were the result of dazzling rushes by Bailey, who is apparently in for a great year. Frank Collins also turned in a splendid game at centre, his speed and his most effective poke checking in midice making him a tower of strength. Ray Rose playing left defence, in place of Bert McLeod, showed to great advantage, both defensively and offensively, doing a lot of dangerous attacking. Joe Dwyer performed spectacularly between the posts. The Peach Kings gave him plenty to do and he blocked with his old-time nonchalance.

On the night's play this quartette were the Petes' most effective players but the others are contributors to the victory. Parker, although, far from being in condition, showed flashes of his wizard stick-handling and poke checked effectively while Ranger, Bogardis and Cox all turned in useful games on the forward line. Bogardis is an experienced puckchaser who knows how to make every move count and when he rounds into condition will be of great help to the Petes in their chase for the senior honours. Cox, the Collingwood boy, is a fast skating youngster who should steadily improve.

All in all the showing of the Petes last night warrant bright for the O.H.A. race.

The line-up:

Grimsby		Peterboro
Fisher	goal	Dwyer
McVicar	defence	Parker
Foulis		Rose
Reid	centre	Collins
Harrington	r. wing	Bailey
Clark	l. wing	Ranger
Farrel	sub	Bogardis
Burnsides		Cox
Hayhoe

Referee—Mallen, Hamilton.

The Petes carried the battle to Grimsby right off the reel, their fast breaking giving the Peach Kings a busy time. Fisher blocked several tidy shots but four minutes after the game started Bailey broke away from centre, shot down the left boards, skated behind the Grimsby net and swept the puck around the post to score on a carrom off Harrington, the rubber bounding past Fisher.

That was a bit lucky, but there were no horseshoes on Bailey's next counter two minutes after. This time he secured possession in his own territory and 'ooled the Grimsby forwards in a dash down the right rail, stickhandled around the red and white defence and went right inside to flip a neat goal past Fisher.

With two markers under their belts the Petes were well away and they were able to stave off the hard working Grimsby crew when the latter's better condition began to be a factor in the game. The Peach Kings, led by Foulis, Reid and Clark, staged many raids in the last part of the period but the Pete's good checking kept them shooting from well out and Dwyer did the rest.

There was no scoring in the second period. That is officially. The Petes did get a marker just before the end of the session when Rose passed out from behind the Grimsby net and the puck bounded in off Fisher. The goal umpire turned on the red light but Referee Mallen missed the signal and the Petes made no attempt to press the point.

There was some rattling nice hockey in this period with Grimsby fighting hard to break into the scoring column and the S.P.A. champions holding them out effectively and staging many dangerous raids on their own account. The Petes missed several counters by the proverbial inch.

The third period was a repetition of the second, with plenty of fast hockey. Both teams missed good opportunities early in the session.

Once Bailey hurdled the defence and was inside with the puck, but Fisher spilled him and in the mix-up Petes' right-winger got a crack on the nose and hurt his knee, having to retire temporarily for repairs. A little later Foulis worked in on top of Dwyer, but the red-top robbed him with a great stop. Fourteen minutes had gone when Rose made it 3 to 0 when he trailed Bogardis and Cox on a combined rush, picked up a loose puck and drove a wicked shot knee high past Fisher. Two minutes later Foulis gave the Grimsby fans, who formed the bulk of the crowd a chance to cheer by snapping a shot from the left boards that caught the top corner of the net for a counter.

Just before the final bell Bailey made it 4 to 1 when he pulled off another of his spectacular dashes. He dodged through the Grimsby forwards and worked out of the corner to go in on top of Fisher for a pretty goal.

Summary:—

First Period
1—Peterboro—Bailey....4 minutes
2—Peterboro—Bailey....2 minutes

Second Period

HEALTH WORK IN CITY DISCUSSED AT CONFERENCE

Consolidation of Work Under Full-Time Officer Talked of.

NO ACTION TAKEN

Boards of Health and Education Met Last Night to Consider Matter.

Consolidation of the city's health activities under one head was discussed at a conference between the Board of Education and the Board of Health last night. No definite proposition was laid before the trustees by the Board of Health but a general resume of the idea was given by Mayor Turner and discussed by those present. The members of the Board of Education will consider the matter but will take no action until the Board of Health has a more definite proposition to present.

The reason for asking the conference was explained by Alderman McIntyre, chairman of the Board of Health. Mayor Turner then explained the matter fully. He said that the nation's most important asset was the people and that the health of the people should be one of the first cares of any public body. The elimination of friction, economy, and greater efficiency were the benefits which he streased as being derived by consolidation of all health work under one medical officer, who would be a full time man.

The question of control of such an officer was brought up by several members of the Board of Education. Mr. Strickland wished to know who would appoint him. Mrs. Morris said that the Board of Education considered this a most important phase of its work, and would hesitate about giving up control to another body. Dr. Craig questioned whether a full time officer would be able to give the schools the time given by the School M.O.H. at present. He also thought that the School Dental officer would expect more money for half time, if the full time M. O. H. were given a much larger salary for full time. The question in the mind of the chairman, J. A. McKone, was how it worked in places where such is scheme was in operation.

More information and a definite plan were promised by the Board of Health, Alderman McIntyre, the chairman, mentioning that no definite discussion of the scheme had been held at the Board of Health meetings.

Nearly 150 golf courses now dot the State of Florida.

Racing and football are the two sports most popular in Argentina.

"Wait a Minute! Save Your Life!"

For the first ten months of 1925, headquarters of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal report twenty-six cases of motorists who, no longer satisfied with attempts at beating trains to level crossings, have hit upon a new method, that of trying to push the engines off the track. In every one of the instances reported the train was already in the process of crossing, completely blocking the road, when the driver of the machine charged straight into the locomotive or cars.

The report shows further that the number of these totally unnecessary accidents is on the increase. In 1923 there were 12 instances of gross carelessness and 27 in the whole year of 1924. In the last three years and two months, or 1,157 days from September 1, 1922 to October 31 last, 69 cases are reported at level crossings in New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, where motorists drove head on into trains already blocking the crossings.

According to the "remarks" column in the Canadian Pacific Railway report, covering seven typewritten pages, there is only one case where it is stated that the driver of the automobile was intoxicated. In all other instances the drivers were apparently in their right senses. Yet the reports run in every case, "ran into side of engine", "struck side of car behind engine", "ran into baggage and express car".

These accidents resulted not only in damage to the automobiles and injuries to the occupants but also caused injuries to employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway. In one case on record an auto struck a track motor car, injuring three employees. The same results were suffered when a hand car on the rails was struck.

It seems obvious in view of the above that it is time "speed hounds" realized the futility of trying to scare engines off the rails. Measuring wits with cold steel and iron is usually a very unprofitable pastime and just about as nonsensical as trying conclusions with a mad bull. The results are far more serious in the former case.

If hurrying motorists would only remember that a minute may save years of grief, partial or total disability, physical disfigurement for life, or even the total loss of life, the toll of human lives taken through motor accidents would soon show a marked decrease. At present the loss of human life through motor accidents runs a close second to fatalities in the Great War.

LIBERAL PARTY COLLECTS FUND

Third of Million Stirling Asked For Is Now Subscribed.

WANT GEORGE'S FUND.

LONDON, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press).—In connection with the Liberal party's campaign to collect 1,000,000 pounds for political purposes, it is announced that 300,000 pounds has been subscribed so far and some of the Asquithians are suggesting that the time has come to take over the Georgian party chest which up to the present time has remained separate, notwithstanding the amalgamation of the two branches of the Liberal party.

Hostile critics among the Asquithian leaders make out that the supporters of Lloyd George are holding on to the Georgian chest until the fusion of the two sections holds greater promise of being lasting than it does at present.

With reference to Lloyd George's land scheme a special conference of the Liberal party is to be called in a short time, when it will be decided whether the party shall officially adopt the scheme or not.

PASS OBJECTIVES IN CHURCH DRIVE

Present Indications Show United Church Going Over the Top.

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—Reports up to yesterday indicate that almost one-third of the $750,000 allotted to the three Toronto presbyteries as their share of the United Church $4,000,000 maintenance and extension fund had already been raised. Large subscriptions which are known or are not yet officially reported. The total at noon yesterday was $235,000.

The canvassing is going on every night this week, and some of the men are working at it in the daytime. Old St. Andrew's Church has 80 men out, and many of them are using motor cars to reach the members of that scattered congregation. They have $20,000 in special subscriptions.

One of the Bloor Street Church canvassers reported that he got cheerful contributions from nine out of ten homes he visited, and another feature is that the canvass for money is rounding up some members and adherents who had fallen away from regular church going.

West Church has already raised $6,500 of its $7,000 allocation. Western (Congregational), where Rev Dr. Salem Bland is pastor, is a small church and was allotted only $500, but it has already oversubscribed that amount. Central Church has $18,000 already in specials on its $28,000 allocation. St Columba's Church, with $7,000 to reach, has already $4,600.

St. Paul's Church (Avenue Road), is to raise $15,000, and has four specials of $1,000 each to serve as a foundation. Port Credit has guaranteed that it will raise its allotted $800. Yonge Street Church is rated for $7,000, and has raised $6,100 already.

At Howard Park Church on Monday night 60 canvassers had supper, and listened to Rev. T. W. Neal's inspirational talk, and a presentation of the cast by Frank Littlefield, before going out to canvass for the $18,000 they are to raise.

Toronto and British Columbia conferences are setting standards in the canvass. Wesley Church, Vancouver, raised double its allotment, and Ryerson Church in the same city gave 160 per cent. of it quota. Fourteen congregations in Vancouver and Victoria raised a total of $60,000 on Sunday. A telegram from Dr. G. A. Wilson listed Metropolitan and First Churches in Victoria, and Chalmers, Chown, St. Giles, Knox and Korrisdale in Vancouver presbyte / a shaving reached objectives.

With the canvass scarcely under way in Ontario, H. W. Ackerman of Belleville, reports that in Bay of Quinte Conference, seven churches have $11,135 after one day of work. St. Andrew's, Napanee, and Havelock and Prince Albert Churches have their quota.

Six congregations in presbytery of Montreal have passed their objectives, reports W. B. Wood, Montreal.

STROBOSCOPE IS NEW INSTRUMENT

Apparatus Emits Rays Which Make Rotating Object Appear Still.

PARIS, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press) —Stroboscope is the name of a new apparatus shown to the Academy of Sciences by George Claude.

The new instrument, the invention of two brothers Seguin, projects powerful lightning — like flashes, from a tube of neon gas. These flashes when directed on anything which is rotating rapidly, even in full daylight, make the rotating article appear to be completely still if it is so desired, to be turning very slowly.

An airplane propeller making 1,200 revolutions to the minute was shown. It appeared to be absolutely motionless. It had a bit of string tied to one end of the propeller blade. This also appeared motionless in place.

MANY BYLAWS ON OTTAWA LIST

Taxation on Land Only, and Removal of C.N.R. Track Most Prominent.

RAISE COUNCIL TERM

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 25.—(By Canadian Press).—Several by-laws and plebiscites are to be submitted to the people of Ottawa at the Civic elections on Dec. 7, perhaps the most important being one to obtain the opinion of the electors on Controller Tulley's scheme to gradually exempt business income and improvements assessment by 10 per cent, until 50 per cent. is exempt, and secure the taxes thus lost by placing assessment on all land in the city.

A by-law is being submitted to electors qualified to vote on money by-laws, regarding the removal of the cross-town tracks which asks whether they favor the city applying to the Legislature for authority to raise and pay to the Canadian National Railways $350,000 if the company will remove its Bank and Elgin street yards and cut out through train movements between the canal and the westerly city limit.

A money by-law is being submitted asking whether property owners approve of $12,000 being spent on improving the West End market. There will also be a by-law extending the term of office of City Council to two years.

In the absence of other issues chief platform utterances of candidates this year seem likely to be confined to the tax exemption proposal and that regarding the cross-town tracks.

BRASS STIRS THINGS.

Orders the Peterboro Store Cleared Of Its Overload of Men's Clothing At Once.

Brass' store will be closed all day Thursday to prepare the big stock of Men's Clothing for the greatest sale ever held in the history of Peterborough. Mr. Brass, who is in town to-day, has decided that, owing to backward weather, the stock is too heavy at this season, and ordered it sold at once regardless of what losses it means to the store. Mr. Caldwell, who will be remembered as the man who popularized the Hickey Bankrupt Stock Sale and again of the Art Silk Co. stock, has been placed in charge of this big overloaded sale, and people will know what to expect when he is at the helm.

Mr. Caldwell's instructions are to unload the entire stock at once, and those who reaped the advantage of the former sales he managed will remember the wonderful values he presented on those occasions.

Mr. Caldwell's advice is to come early as possible, as all previous records for bargains will be shattered.

Remember, the sale opens at 9 a.m. on Friday. Extra sales people, fast service, astounding values. Mr. Caldwell states that this will be a grand opportunity to secure a winter supply of clothing and also Christmas gifts of the most acceptable kind for men.—Avdt.

TWO MEN DIE IN MINE ACCIDENT

Were Drilling and Struck Missed Hole From Former Blast.

ANOTHER HURT.

GOBALT, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Two men are dead and a third is in Haileybury Red Cross Hospital as the result of a blasting accident at noon yesterday at Contact Mine, North Cobalt. Godfrey Bilodeau, 25, and James Culhane, about 18, while operating a drill, ran into a missed hole. Culhane was killed outright, his body being frightfully mutilated, and Bilodeau died in hospital. Vinkle, who had entered the drift where the others were working to tell them the time, was not seriously hurt.

TOURIST VALUE IS RECOGNIZED

Provincial Tourist Association is to Hold Meeting Friday.

DO DISCUSS PLANS

It is conservatively estimated that an addition of $40,000,000 has been spent in Ontario by tourists from outside the Province. This new found money goes into every possible channel, from food products to costly souvenirs. Switzerland, Florida and California are outstanding examples of how tourist traffic affects development. Ontario's revenue has been the result of an open door policy and advertising by railway companies, and district organizations. It can easily be imagined that a province-wide movement to sell Ontario to particularly our wealthy neighbors to the South of us will have the effect of increasing this amount considerably. Through provincial organizations in Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and British Columbia remarkable results in the development of tourist traffic have been achieved. During the past year The Tourist Association of Ontario has been formed and at the First Annual Meeting to be held in Toronto on November 27th, definite action will be taken to advertise the holidaying possibilities of the Province.

Our natural heritage of scenic beauty, a climate tempered by the Great Lakes, fishing and hunting in close proximity to the most thickly populated areas in the United States tend to make Ontario the mecca for holiday seekers.

Heretofore our natural possessions as an attraction for tourists have been taken little advantage of, whereas by judicious selling can be made a source of revenue second to none.

Experience has shown that the tourist of today is the settler of tomorrow and with unbounded possibilities for the development of our natural resources, it can easily be imagined that capital will find its way to Ontario by this first hand knowledge gained by the tourist.

In every way an economical province-wide movement for the development of tourist traffic to our Province should be encouraged, as one of the greatest channels through which all business can be stimulated.

TWO IN CAR KILLED.

Baker, president of the Simmons-Baker Company, one of the wealthiest real estate operators on the Niagara frontier, and a woman companion, were killed at a grade crossing here last night when their automobile was hit by a passenger train. The death of both was almost instantaneous. Baker was well known throughout the state as a breeder of blooded stock.

Cheque For $750,000 Has Been Issued After All Expenses Met.

GOES TO BORDER.

Will Give Winter Service Into Rouyn District of Quebec.

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press). — The Provincial Treasury has been enriched by a cheque for $750,000, representing the net results of the operations of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway for the fiscal year ending on October 31. While this sum is somewhat lower than last year's, when earnings ran in the neighborhood of $1,000,00, it is achieved after the payment of interest charges on borrowings which the railway recently transacted for its extensions.

The T. & N. O. Railway is extended now to the Quebec border, and thus affords the only existing railway service to the Rouyn mining district of Quebec. Arrangements are being made by the commission to give the necessary service and the transportation of supplies during the present winter so that the development of the new Quebec field will not suffer.

"PRICE OF PLEASURE" FOR ROYAL SCREEN

Virginia Valli and Norman Kerry Are Co-Starred by Universal.

"The Price of Pleasure," one of the outstanding Jewel productions made by Universal Pictures Corporation in its 1924-25 release schedule, is coming to the Royal Theatre tomorrow, Virginia Valli and Norman Kerry are co-starred in the picture which is said to have an extraordinary appeal to all classes of motion picture spectators.

Miss Valli plays the part of a shop girl struggling for existence, who never has had any real pleasure. Kerry has the part of the son of a millionaire family of high social position, and the story begins when, clad in the garb of a mechanic, he overhears the shop girl bewailing her fate. He decides that she shall have her wish. But their happiness comes to an abrupt end when his mother and sister return from abroad and find him married to a woman they cannot possibly receive as a member of the family. The story develops from there, with a blending of comedy.

Louise Fazenda and T. Roy Barnes have the comedy role of the picture the first as a friend and fellow shop girl of the heroine, and the latter as the janitor in an apartment house where the other two live after a baby has come to the young bride.

Others who have important parts in the supporting cast are Kate Lester, George Fawcett, James O. Barrows and Marie Astaire.

Edward Sloman, who directed the picture, paid especial attention to the atmosphere of the action and to that effect some of the scenes were made in one of the big department stores in Los Angeles, the players taking the part of clerks and waiting on real customers, who, however, did not know that they were being filmed as they attended a bargain day rush. Other scenes were made in a mansion, and in cafes attended by the wealthy, to the effect that the picture abounds in contrasts.

AT THE CAPITOL

COLMAN CRIES FOR BLONDES, AND GETS BUDAPEST BEAUTY

"Give me blondes or give me death," is the slogan of Ronald Colman, who appears at his best in George Fitzmaurice's latest screen offering, "The Dark Angel," a First National picture presented by Samuel Goldwyn at the Capitol Theatre Thursday.

Of course, Colman being himself of dark complexion it is only natural that he should be case almost unfailingly opposite the most beautiful of the cinema blondes, but it is nice that his own taste and preference correspond with the decision of the producers.

"I was happy to learn," he said, "upon hearing that Mr. Goldwyn intended that I should appear opposite a new beauty he had discovered in Budapest in 'The Dark Angel' that the girl, Miss Vilma Banky, was a beautiful fair-haired lady.

"Even with this advance warning I was scarcely prepared for the beauty and charm of the girl herself. She is without doubt one of the most beautiful actresses, and one of the most gracious that it has even been my good fortune to appear opposite. She is endowed with an instictive talent for emotional work, and I predict a great future for her."

Colman undoubtedly enjoys one of his greatest roles in "The Dark Angel." As Hilary Trent, the British officer, opposite Miss Banky, as Kitty Vane, he finds much opportunity for the interpretation of a role unlike any he has hitherto attempted, but apparently "written to order" for him.

George Fitzmaurice personally directed the entire production.

SYD CHAPLIN DOES HENRY DIXEY ROLE

Screen Version of "Man on the Box" Said to Be Best Film.

"The Man on the Box," the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, now playing at the Regent Theatre for a week's engagement, has Syd Chaplin in the stellar role of Bob Warburton.

This is Syd's first appearance for the Warners and this picturization of the Harold MacGrath novel and play is said to be ideally suited to the man who made "Charley's Aunt" one of the most popular of screen productions, and who is as remarkable a comedian in his own field as his brother Charlie is in his.

Syd used to manage his brother's financial affairs, but with the success of "Charley's Aunt," he needed a manager of his own in the realms of higher finance. Now "The Man on the Box" comes along as one of the biggest popular comedy hits of the season. Chaplin plays the role that Henry Dixey played on the stage.

Charles "Chuck" Reisner not only directed this production, but also appears in the cast that includes David Butler, Alice Calhoun, Kathleen Calhoun, Theodore Lorch, Helene Costello, E. J. Ratcliffe, Charles Gerard and Henry Barrowes.

Reviewers in other cities have acclaimed "The Man on the Box" as Syd Chaplin's best. It has a story of gaily romantic adventure, in which money, intrigue, inventions and politics are excitingly combined.

100 DROWNED BY FLOOD IN GREECE

Torrential Rains Caused Great Floods in Athens.

OLD TOMBS OPENED.

LONDON, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press)—More than one hundred persons are believed to have perished in floods following a torrential rain of an hour and twenty minutes on Tuesday, says a despatch to the Daily Express from Athens. Many houses in the refugee settlement collapsed. The inmates were buried in the ruins, and many were swept away and drowned. The flood waters from Mount Lykabettos washed up thirty-eight tombs in Ananganoupolous Street. Five mummies and numerous gold ornaments and vases were uncovered. It is not known to what epoch the tombs and mummies belonged.

Prehistoric Sunlight Obscures Modern Sun

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(United Press).—Coal is "stored sunlight" of the past ages; but man of the present day in burning it creates smoke which obscures the sunlight of the current age.

This was the substance of a discussion before the Sociological Society of London which had to do with questions of better methods of burning coal so as to rid cities of the pall of smoke which hangs over them as the result of the universal use of coal in heating and industry.

Argentina Wheat Surplus Sets Back Chicago Prices

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—Owing largely to an estimate from a British authority that Argentina would have an exportable surplus of as much as 168,000,000 bushels of wheat, prices underwent an early setback today. Reports of better weather in Argentina counted also as a bearish factor. General selling on the part of commission houses took place, but the decline which ensued led to a noticeable increase of buying. The start, 1 3-8c lower to 1-4c advance, new style, December 161 1-4 to 161 7-8, and May 159 1-4 to 159 7-8 were followed by a general setback, with December touching 159 3-4 and May 158. Corn reflected wheat's weakness, after opening 1-8 to 1-2c lower, December 73 7-8 to 74 corn continued to sag. Oats were almost stationary. Starting unchange, December 38 3-4, the market kept with narrow limits.

In provisions, the influence of an upturn in hog values was offset by the downward swing of grain.

Firm Market At Toronto With Smelters the Leader

TORONTO, November 25. Canadian Press. — Some declines were shown on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, but the market on the whole was firm. Consolidated Smelters, Brazilian and Barcelona were the active leaders, with transactions reaching a moderate volume. Smelters were sold up to 147½ from which it eased only a half point at the noon close, closing at 147 for a net gain of a point and a half. Brazilian reached 75 and closed at 74 7-8, 7-8 higher. Barcelona was a quarter point stronger. Canada Steamship Lines preferred in active dealings strengthened three quarters of a point at 55, and in the banks Standard gained a point while Montreal advanced 3-4. Atlantic Sugar and British Columbia Fishing were fractionally easier.

Easy Tendency Evident In To-day's Mine Session

TORONTO, November 25. Canadian Press. — An easy tendency was again evident on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, but declines were not large. Consolidated West Domes Lake, Argonaut and Everett were the leaders in volume of turnover, and all showed declines. Argonaut eased a ½ point at 15¾, West Dome a point at 14 3-4 and Everett a half at 6. Other slightly weaker stocks were Goldale, Kirkland Lake, Castle Tretheway and Mining Corporation. Tough Oakes strengthened a point at 49 and Beaver was fractionally higher.

Ill Health Drives Field From New York Exchange

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—Ill health has driven from the New York Stock Exchange one of the most active and picturesque floor traders.

Jacob Field, known generally as "Jakie" has sold his seat after 58 years in Wall Street, and 27 years on the "Big Board." Incidentally he got $152,000 for the seat, the highest price on record. Although he won and lost millions in Wall Street, a cubby hole in a broker's branch office served Mr. Field for an office. He preferred to operate as a free lance. On the floor of the Exchange he worked so fast that fellow members, operating at the same point, often were unable to tell whether he was long or short of any particular stock.

Mr. Field started as a messenger boy.

Province Issues Serial Bonds New Departure In Finance

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—A radical departure in Province of Ontario financing is being made with the announcement of $21,000,000, 4 1-2 per cent 30 year serial bond issue. This is believed to be the first issue of serial bonds that the Province of Ontario has made. It represents an obvious effort on the part of the Provincial Government to inaugurate a policy of pay as you go. The presumption is that the retirement of $700,000 annually over a 30 year period will be effecting by drawing funds from the current revenue. When official announcement is made, it is understood that the payment of principal and interest will be made in Canada, London and New York. Tenders will be sought today and they will close at noon on Tuesday, Dec. 1.

Stock Prices Recover From Recent Weakness

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—Stock prices made an impressive recovery from the recent weakness in today's market. Operators on the long side, apparently convinced that necessitous liquidation was completed, started to bid up prices from the opening, beginning with rails and gradually extending their operations to motors, steel equipments, tobaccos, mercantile and chemicals. Three weeks of reactionary price movements apparently had resulted in the establishment of an enormous short interest with the result that aggressive short covering took place when the market showed definite signs of pointing upward again. The usual merger and dividend rumors accompanied buying movement.

FRENCH SOCIALISTS LIKELY TO RENEW THEIR EFFORTS TO FORCE CAPITAL LEVY THROUGH CHAMBER

Will Also Demand Chief Ministerial Positions — Herriot Assumes Reins.

POLITICAL CRISIS.

Herriot, Defeated Last April, Again Refuses to Form Cabinet.

PARIS, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press) Former Premier Herriot today informed President Doumergue that he definitely declined to form a cabinet. It is understood that the President probably will call next on Senator Maurice Serraut, of the Radical Socialist group to attempt the formation of a ministry.

The Socialist group in a party caucus today decided to refrain from participation in a cabinet headed by M. Herriot.

Earlier despatches said:

PARIS, Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press).—The Socialist and Extreme Radicals yesterday finally succeeded in forcing the President of the Republic to call on M. Herriot to form another Cabinet. The group manoeuvres in the past few days made it clear to President Doumergue, that Senator Paul Doumer would be unable to do better than M. Briand, and that it would be useless to call upon any other public man outside the limited list of available men acceptable to the Socialists.

After M. Doumer had given up the task Wednesday afternoon there remained only M. Herriot and Leon Blum to choose between. President Doumergue decided to send for the President of the Chamber — M. Herriot—who, after an hour and a half of earnest talk, promised that he would do his best to "respond to the confidence of the President." The studied avoidance of the word cabinet in this declaration and its vagueness are taken to mean that the former Premier is none too sure that he will be able to set up a successful combination.

What Socialists Demand.

M. Herriot, it is declared by experts who are closely following the political crisis, will be obliged to rely upon Socialist collaboration. If M. Blum, the Radical leader, and his friends are as exacting with the President of the Chamber as they were with M. Briand, they will demand the Ministry of Finance for Vincent Aureol, the Ministry of War for Paul Boncour, the Ministry of Justice for M. Blum, Agriculture for Compere-Morel, Public Instruction for M. Locquin and three other portfolios.

Socialist participation in the Government will, it is assumed, mean another attempt to force a capital levy through the Chamber, that being the essential feature of the Socialist programme. All through the crisis the Socialists have declared that this must be the price of their support of any Cabinet. The duration of a Ministry tied to such a programme, it is thought, would be extremely doubtful.

PIG IRON TRADE MUCH IMPROVED

Increasing Signs of Healthy Business Conditions in Canada.

EXCEPT BUILDING.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press).—Signs of improving business continue to appear in the reports published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Out of six indicators of basic conditions recently published by that office, five show an upward trend. The single exceptain is building. The indexes that show upward movement are rail way loadings, employment, pig-iron, exports and imports. Expressing the latest figures issued as a percentage of the corresponding figure for a year ago, the following are the results:

Railway Loadings	115%
Employment.	104
Pig-iron	255
Exports	104
Imports	114
Building	96

The pig-iron figure is exceptional as it represents a re-action from a low figure. The comparisons in the other cases are from normal returns.

Danish King and Princes Attending London Funeral

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press)—King Christian and Princes Axel and Valdemar left for London yesterday to attend the funeral of Queen Mother Alexandra. They took enormous boxes of wreaths.

To-day is the seventy-eighth birthday of the former Dowager Czarina of Russia, Queen Alexandra's sister, and by a tragic coincidence it falls on the same day as the commencement of the funeral ceremonies in London. The Czarina will not be able to attend her usual service at the Russian Church in Copenhagen.

Wife Kept Him Too Clean, Missouri Man Gets Divorce

MEXICO, Mo., Nov. 26 (United News) — As a beau brummell, "Uncle Bela" Hughes, 79, is a good farmer. Appearing before the circuit court here in his suit for a diovrce, Hughes said his wife, Suda, 59, insisted that he keep himself "too clean."

Uncle Bela further declared that Suda had such distorted ideas about what the well dressed man should wear that he was obliged to desecrate his Sunday go-to-meeting clothes by wearing them in the barns and stables.

The couple married in July and separated in October. Now Uncle Bela has regained his single blessedness and his overalls.

A thankful heart makes a melodious life. If we thought more of our mercies, and brooded less over our cares, we should fill the day with music.—Elmo.

KING RAMA OF SIAM DIED TO-DAY IS SUCCEEDED BY HIS BROTHER

Recent Operation Was the Cause of Death in 45th Year.

HAD NO SONS.

Recently Deposed Childless Queen, Raising Another To Her Place.

BANKOK, Siam, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Rama VI., King of Siaim for 14 years, died today about a month after he had divorced his queen and taken another wife in the hope of having an heir to the throne.

His hopes were not realized, and his younger brother, Prince Praja Dhipok, succeeds to the throne. A daughter was born yesterday to the new Queen. Rama VI., who was 45 years old, recently underwent an operation for an abdominal abscess from which he did not recover. Prior to the operation, he had suffered from acute gastritis.

Educated at Oxford, Rama on his marriage in 1912 to Princess Lakshmi Lavan abjured polygamy and abolished the harem which his father had maintained.

In 1910 it was decided that until King Rama had male issue, the succession should be through the Queen Mother's son. Last month Rama deposed his Queen on ground that she had not carried out her duties "toward King and Country" in a satisfactory manner.

The daughter born yesterday to the King and the new Queen, Chao Chom Suvadana, was the first child to be born to a King of Siam for 32 years, the last being Prince Praja Dhipok, who now succeeds to the throne.

When King Rama last month raised the Lady Suvadana to the rank of Royal Consort in place of the childless Queen Lakshmi, the following proclamation was issued:

"The King has observed that the new Queen has served him with faithfulness and love and it is fitting, therefore, that she should be raised to high estate in order to support the rank of the child she will bear His Majesty in the near future."

Youth's Head Blown Off When Charge Exploded

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 26. (Canadian Press). — A. M. Wicks, 22 years of age, was instantly killed this forenoon when blasting stumps on the new golf course near Niagara Glen. His head was partly blown off. Wicks was alone, and it is believed a charge exploded prematurely. He was single, and the only son of William and Mrs. Wicks, Stamford Township.

HOTEL MANAGER IS ARRESTED ON ARSON CHARGE

Ugly Rumors Were Circulated Following Fire at Summer Hotel.

AT HALIBURTON.

Provincial Officer's Investigation Result in Arrest of Manager.

LINDSAY, Ont., Nov. 26 (Special to The Examiner)—Following the destruction by fire about a fortnight ago of the large summer hotel on Kushog Lake, Haliburton, many ugly rumors have been circulated about the village relative to the origin of the fire.

Provincial Officer Storey went to the Northland this week end as a result of his investigations, W. J. Cooper, of Guilford, late manager of the hostelry, was placed under arrest on the charge of arson. The accused was brought before police magistrate Jordan of Minden last night and was remanded for a week. This morning he was brought to Lindsay and placed in the county jail.

WATER IS HIGHER THAN USUAL HERE

Present Record Has Only Been Equalled Twice in Thirteen Years.

The water level in the streams and lakes in the vicinity of the city are much higher than is usual for this time of the year, due to the abnormal rainfall since September 1. It has only been equalled twice in the last 13 years, 1912 and 1918. In the Kawartha Lakes district the water, while it is high, has not yet exceeded the height allowed by the authorities, and it is not anticipated that it will, as the peak has been passed, every day showing a decline in the amount of water passing through.

With the present height there is no danger of a power shortage in Peterborough this season.

MULTITUDES OF BRITONS CROWD FUNERAL ROUTE

Unusual Precautions For Handling of Throngs Along Half Mile.

FOUR KINGS WALK.

Dozen Princes and Suites in Queen Alexandra's Funeral Cortege.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press).—The shortness of the route of Queen Mother Alexandra's funeral Friday morning from the chapel royal, St. James Palace, to Westminister Abbey, which is only about half a mile, necessitates unusual precautions in handling the multitudes which will surge into the heart of the capital to view the gun-carriage bearing the coffin and the Kings of England, Denmark and Norway and the King of the Belgians walking through the troop-lined streets. They will be followed by a dozen Princes and their equerries and suites and an elaborate procession drawn from many British military units, the first of which will be a detachment of Alexandra's Own Yorkshire Hussars.

The pressure of the throngs in the Mall, Trafalgar Square, the short length of Whitehall and around Parliament Square is expected to be overwhelming. The police authorities yesterday warned the public to keep to the open spaces and the horse guards parade and the Mall, instead of jamming the narrow streets nearer the Abbey.

Public's Interest.

The removal of the body late at night from the Abbey to Paddington Station on the way to Windsor will give additional thousands an opportunity to pay their last tribute. To countless of the King's subjects the pageantry of a royal funeral is second to a royal wedding, and, particularly on the occasion of the passing of the beloved Queen Mother, the public will be out en-masse.

Among the floral tributes by the side of the coffin yesterday there was noticeable a little spray of two red carnations, to which a card was attached, reading:

"From your faithful old C. A." It came from Miss Charlotte Knollys, Her Majesty's aged friend and lady-in-waiting. A large number of wreaths is reaching Sandringham House, from members of the royal family down to the humblest servants of the dead Queen. There was a little bunch of cream-colored roses with a card saying they are from "Stephen, a little boy of 6, who will always remember how the Queen smiled at him a few weeks ago."

TAXI MEN VIEW COMING OF BUS IN MUCH ALARM

Say People Have Developed Walking Habit—Fare is Too High.

NO PROFIT.

One Man Says People Will Have Better Service Than Ever Before.

Peterborough taxi men view the proposed bus addition to the street car service with feelings of gloom. One man, W. J. Poulson, said: "They've got us down now as far as we can go. Any change would be for the better if that was possible." He sid that the city was full of autos and bicycles and that the poor man would not pay to ride on anything while the rich man didn't have to. The seven cent fare killed the transportation business in Peterborough, he claimed, and the people developed the habit of walking so much that they won't soon give up the practice. This city, he said did not compare with the big centres where they could operate the street cars and buses side by side and still not have enough service.

See No Profit.

W. J. Clancy declared that buses could not operate at a profit on a tariff of ten cents. "They can't stop one of those big cars and start it again for ten cents," he asserted, "because every time it stops there is a wearing of the brake bands and every time it starts there is an excess amount of gasoline used. Twenty-five cents would be a more likely figure if the buses are going to pay."

Better Service.

William Worboy said that if the buses were operated under the correct system, it might be a paying proposition. "There's no doubt about it, it will give the people a better service than they ever had before," he said. "What they should do is cut out all the street cars entirely." Mr. Worboy said that belt line loops would be better than straight lines.

Italian Inventor Lights Cities Electrically Without Wires Trains and Ships Can Be Moved On Same Principle

MILAN, Nov. 26.—(United Press.)— Narcisco Midali, Italian inventor, is engaged in developing an electrical vibration system, whereby cities can be lighted without wires and trains and ships can be moved on the same principle.

He has demonstrated here that the lighting system will work at a distance of nearly 200 yards and he hopes to develop this gradually.

He uses electro magnetic waves which are almost similar to light waves and differ from radio waves. The magnetized waves are shot through the air to an apparatus which re-converts them into lighting and transportation energy.

Winnipeg Robber Returns Stolen Proceeds Of Santa Claus Stocking Concert

Winnipeg, Man., November 26. —Canadian Press. — The bard's claim that "there's so much good in the worst of us," found tangible expression yesterday in the act of a highwayman who on Tuesday held up and robbed C. V. Combe while on his way home with $227, the proceeds of a concert held for the benefit of a Christmas stocking fund for the poor children of Winnipeg.

Yesterday a thirty, shabbily clothed man called at the offices of the concern promoting the campaign for funds and deposited a package with the cashier, and then departed in a hurry. In the packet was found the money, and Mr. Combe's watch, together with a note bearing the following:

"Sorry we did the job we did not know whose money it was; spent two dollars before reading."

LORD ROTHERMERE SAYS DEMAND FOR WOOD PULP IS INCREASING

Artificial Silk Industry Has Added to Uses of Forest Product.

CANADA FORTUNATE.

Will Benefit From Competition For Pulp Wood That is Developing.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press)—"What strikes Lord Rothermere as a neswpaper proprietor," said C. Ward Price, special correspondent of the London Daily Mail, authorized during the British Publisher's visit here to give an interview for him, "is that all over the world the consumption of pulp is going up, not only among the newspapers which are increasng their size, but also as a result of the striking development in the artificial silk industry, which is rapidly becoming a keen competitor with the newspaper for the supply of raw material.

"Lord Rothermere thinks," continued Mr. Price, "that the time will come when the fortunate people of Canada who possess timber limits in accessible positions will benefit very greatly from the inevitable competition among the consumers of wood pulp which these tendencies will bring into operation."

Barnardo Boy Sentence Appeal Being Prepared

OSHAWA, Nov. 26. (Canadian Press).—As the first step in his appeal from the four years' sentence imposed on Frederick Townshend, Barnardo Home boy, F. M. Field, K.C., of Cobourg, will interview the 24-year-old English youth in Portsmouth Penitentiary to-morrow. The boy was convicted of forgery of a cheque for $4.50 and false pretences.

MUKDEN UNDER MARTIAL LAW AS FOES APPROACH

General Chang's Position is Precarious Because of Defection of Troops.

FENG STRENGTHENED.

Christian General Gains as Chang's Southern Power Is Broken.

PEKING, Nov. 26 (United Press)—Mukden was reported today to be under martial law following the attempted coup aimed at the Manchurian chieftain, General Chang Tso Lin.

His position was reported more precarious, through defection of two of his chief subordinates in and near Tien Tsin, but the reported coup itself is believed to have been abortive.

General Kuo Sun Ling, leader of the revolt against the war lord has imprisoned the most important Chang leaders, and is reported advancing from the South toward Mukden.

Tso, who claims to have the support of 100,000 Chang Tso Lin forces, is reported to have suffered a defeat at Shan Hai Kwan.

Chang's power south of the great wall of China has been irippled, and that of the "Christian" general Feng Yu-Hsiang has been correspondingly strengthened. Railroad and telegraph communication with Mukden has been cut since Tuesday.

Chang Resigns.

OSAKA, Japan, Nov. 26 (United Press).—General Chang Tso Lin is reported to have announced his intention of retiring in favor of his son.

"I HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR A VISIT FROM THE CANVASSING COMMITTEE, AND THEY HAVE NOT CALLED YET," SAID A MAN LAST NIGHT.

GORDON MATTHEWS TO CONTEST PETERBOROUGH UTILITIES SEAT; EXPECTED R. HICKS WILL RUN

Whips Negroes To Death; Jail Head Is On Trial

ALBEMARLE, N. C., Nov. 26. —Canadian Press. — Stories of how negro convicts were "beaten so unmercifully" that they died within a few hours, are featuring the trial here of M. C. Cranford, Stanley County superintendent. Eight witnesses testified yesterday of the "known cruelties" of Cranford, extending over a period of several years.

Some of the witnesses, white convicts, testified to having seen Cranford whip two negroes one afternoon and that both men died that night.

Head of Local Plant of Canadian Packing Company Since War.

Gordon Matthews, head of the local branch of the Canadian Packing Company will be a candidate for the Utilities Commission at the coming municipal election.

Mr. Matthews yesterday authorized the Examiner to announce his candidature which is in response to pressure from a number of citizens that he should allow his name to go before the electorate.

The first candidate definitely in the field for municipal honors is one of the best known of the city's younger business men and has been at the head of the extensive business of the Canadian Packing Company here since shortly after his return from overseas services.

He is a son of T. F. Matthews who for eighteen years was chairman of the Utilities Commission and whose good work in that capacity is well remembered by the people of this city.

The retiring member of the Commission is Robert Hicks who it is expected will offer himself for re-election.

SON ACCUSED OF MOTHER'S DEATH

Held Criminally Responsible By Coroner's Jury in Montreal.

HEIR TO $30,000.

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Eugene Bigaquette, 40 years of age, appeared yesterday before Judge Lachance, in police court, to face the charge of having murdered his 79-year-old mother.

Bigaquette pleaded "not guilty" and the preliminary inquiry was fixed for Friday.

The arrest was made in the morgue after the coroner's inquest. After hearing nine witneses the jury rendered the following verdict:

"Mrs. Alexander Bigaquette died of strangulation caused by Eugene Bigaquette and the said Bigaquette is held criminally responsible of her death."

A will signed by the deceased in May 1925 was found by detectives in Mrs. Bigaquette's house. In this will, she named her son, Eugene, the sole heir to her fortune valued at $30,000.

The brothers of the accused testified at the coroner's inquest that Eugene Bigaquette had caused great trouble in the family and for the last six months they had seen the recorder and the police with a view to having him interned in the asylum.

LASH CURBS CRIME.

Court's Threat Has Effect in Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 26. —Canadian Press. — The threat of the lash for street bandits appears to be effective already, and the record of nine hold-ups and two attempted robberies during recent weeks stands for not a single case was reported Tuesday night.

The campaign against the gunmen was continued in the police court to-day, when Frank Rocker, a former convict, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for carrying a revolver.

He was arrested in a local hotel with a .45 revolver and a belt of ammunition.

THE WEATHER.

More seasonable weather now prevails. Last night the thermometer got down to 14 degrees, and there was a crisp freshness in the air which was in pleasing contrast to the dampness of which we have had so much lately. The stage is now set for winter's advent. Some years ago an old gentleman, who had seen many winters, told me that he had never seen the snow to come and remain for the winter, unless there was a preliminary freeze up of mud and slush on the country roads, and they were in a rough condition. If the law of averages holds good, we should not have very much snow this winter owing to the abundant rains this fall. —W. P.

THIEVES FORCE HELP OF DRIVER

Professor Moulton Had To Drive Two Robbers From Evanston to Chicago.

LIFE THREATENED.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press).—With two pistols pressed against his body, Professor Elion J. Moulton, of the department of mathematics of North-Western University, yesterday was forced to help two robbers escape by driving them out of Evanston in his automobile. The robbers, fleeing from an Evanston home from which they had been routed by screams by a maid, ran into an alley, where they found the professor in his garage. The robbers ordered him to start the car and drive them out of Evanston, and in constant fear of his life, Professor Moulton obeyed, driving them to Chicago, where they ordered him to stop, and fled.

While it is true a lot of money is spent each year for fun, there are some folk who never seem to have any.

He asked the depth of the snow, but manifested no interest whatever in the case or in his fate.

KLAN MOTION WAS DEFEATED

B. C. Legislature Carries Amendment Opposing Resolution Against Klan.

STIR UP DISSENSION.

VICTORIA, Nov. 26. (Canadian Press). —The British Columbia Legislature washed its hands of the Ku Klux Klan controversy. Putting an end to the debate of a Ku Klux resolution introduced by Frank Browne, Labor, Burnaby, the House by a vote of 24 to 20, carried an amendment declaring that inasmuch as the incorporation, existence or civil rights of any organizations rest upon the laws of British Columbia and Canada as now enforced, it was opposed in principle to the introductions of "resolutions which can have no practical effect and in particular such resolutions as are calculated to stir up religious and racial dissention."

ALBERTA MEMBERS DISCUSS SUPPORT

Progressives Find More Reason To Side With King Than Meighen.

CALGARY, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press) — In connection with the meeting of the U.F.A. Federal members of Parliament held here yesterday, the Albertan will carry the following on its news page:

"Discussing the possibility of co-operating with Mr. Meighen the members came to the conclusion that the Conservative leader's attitude on the tariff and upon the Western freight rates made cooperation with his party an impossibility. As far as the Liberal stand on the tariff was concerned, they were inclined to the opinion that little could be expected in the way of tariff changes. There were three points upon which the U.F.A. members felt that they could seek to co-operate with Premier King and the Liberal party with some hope of success. These were the establishment of a system of rural credits, the introduction of the single transferable vote, and the transference of control of national resources to the Provincial Governments.

BACCARAT FAVORED ON EMERALD COAST

Five and a Half Millions Profit Netted By Gamblers at French Resorts.

DINARD, Nov. 26.—(Associated Press).—Baccarat was the favorite game this season on the Emerald Coast of France, with la boule running it a close second. La boule surpassed baccarat at some of the smaller casinos.

Gambling at all the resorts—Dinard, Saint-Malo, Parame and Saint Lunaire—netted a profit of 5,251,687 francs. Of this the State receives 1,958,100 francs. The cities in which the casinos are located also receive part of the earnings.

Gambling was slightly heavier this year on the Emerald Coast than it was last year, when the earnings of the casinos were 4,030,288 francs.

SETTING A GOOD EXAMPLE.

The difficulty that has been experienced in getting the younger citizens of Peterboro interested in municipal affairs makes the announcement that Mr. Gordon C. Matthews, head of the local branch of the Canadian Packing Company, will be a candidate for the Utilities Commission particularly gratifying.

In throwing his hat into the ring this early in the campaign Mr. Matthews sets an example for other aspirants for civic preferment, and his declaration, it is hoped, may pave the way for other well-known citizens to offer their services in some capacity or other.

The opportunity for service that is provided by our system of municipal government is wide enough to challenge the citizenship and patriotism of the community, yet many citizens capable of excellent work on behalf of their fellows refuse to lend their assistance to the task of administering Peterboro's affairs.

To such citizens Mr. Matthews gives an excellent lead by announcing his intention of entering the contest for the Utilities.

In his case it is an instance of "like father, like son," for his father, Mr. T. F. Matthews, was Chairman of the Commission for eighteen years, and his excellent service during his long tenure of office is gratefully remembered by the citizens of Peterboro.

MR. NICKLE IS RIGHT.

An Inspector of Prisons is convicted of the theft of many thousands of dollars from the Province.

Sentence four years in the penitentiary.

A Barnardo home boy pleads guilty to forgery involving the amount of $4.50.

Sentence four years in the penitentiary.

The young man brought up in an institution and denied the opportunities that are open to most other youths of his age, receives the same punishment for obtaining a few dollars under false pretences as is meted out to a trusted official of the Province who is convicted of taking advantage of his position to misappropriate a very large sum of public money.

There are too many people now who profess to believe that even under our admirable system of justice there is one law for the rich and another for the poor, and their conviction in this respect will be strengthened by such cases as these.

Attorney-General Nickle does well to hold an inquiry into the Oshawa incident, in view of the general opinion that the sentence passed upon the former Barnardo boy was too drastic.

He may have led an idle and useless life, as the Oshawa Crown Attorney alleges, but the public finds it difficult to accept as just a sentence which appears to be unduly severe when compared to the punishment ordered for better known individuals guilty of much greater offences.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

There was a championship speaking contest for the boys and girls of York Township the other day when the winners of the oratory competitions at the Township School Fairs met that produced some interesting features.

The first was that there was only one boy winner, as compared with eleven girls, and the second was that one of the best speeches of the day was made by a young Swedish-Canadian girl who arrived in this country two years ago and who knew not a word of English when she came here.

The results indicate that if the boys of Ontario do not embrace the opportunities that are being given them to master the art of public speaking there may soon be a whole battalion of Agnes MacPhailis in the House of Commons, while the success of the Swedish girl demonstrates what can be accomplished by industry and perserverance.

The growing interest that is being taken in oratory, as shown in such contests as this and in the various debating clubs that are flourishing in the Province, is a decidedly healthy symptom.

Ontario, it is true, does not suffer from a lack of talkers; there are plenty of people in every community ready to talk on any platform at any time, on any subject, at any length.

But there is a real lack everywhere of speakers who can express themselves easily, smoothly and in good English.

The speaking competitions that are becoming so popular should do much to remedy that condition of affairs.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press).— Telegraphic communication between the East and the West on the Canadian Pacific lines was severed yesterday morning when a westbound train crashed into a leaning telegraph pole and tore down six pole length of lines, tangling the twenty odd wires that carry the company's business between Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver. The accident happened about 100 miles west of Port Arthur

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—Stockers and feeders are a little draggy at the high prices. For a load of breedy black feeders a little over 900 lbs. each $6.50 a cwt. is being asked, but at this the sellers say they can see money in them next spring. Some heavy steers for export and home purposes sold at $7.75 a cwt. and export feeders $6.40 to $7.25 a cwt. One good baby beef sold at $11 a cwt. Export and good butchers' bulls were strong at $5.50 to $5.75 a cwt. Cows were firm, with tops at $3.50, and good cows up to $3 a cwt. Canners were hard to buy at $2.50 a cwt. Light butchers' heifers were easy at $4 to $5.50 a cwt. The market was quite active this morning and the supply will be taken up during the day.

With scarcely enough calves for the local trade this market keeps decidedly firm. Top calves are 13 to 13½ cents and good calves 11 to 12 cents a pound. Good medium calves are 9 to 10 cents a pound.

Lambs are distinctly steady at 13½ to 13¾ cents a pound on ewes and wethers and 11 to 12 cents on bucks and heavies. Top handyweight sheep hold from 6½ to 7 cents a pound.

If packers have their way the hog prices will go down as fast this week as they went up last. The bid price today is only $11.50 a cwt. f.o.b. against $12.25 a cwt. last Thursday.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—After a hectic session on Tuesday, the wheat market today displayed quieter tone, and prices slumped 3-4c to 1 1-2c at close, with November at $1.49 1-2. Market acted stubborn, receiving good buying support on dips, but lack of export trade and reports of improvement in the Argentine crop area held quotations at low levels during the final hour. Selling by "longs" and increased "hedging" sales were features.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—Conditions on the Canadian egg market are unchanged today. American fresh markets remain firm while December futures show an upward movement.

Toronto—Market steady. Jobbing fresh specials 70, extras 65, storage extras 46, firsts 43, seconds 37.

Montreal—Jobbing fresh extras 68, firsts 65, storage extras 46, firsts 41, seconds 36.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK

WINNIPEG, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).— Arrivals, 2,870 cattle and calves; 3,700 hogs; 485 sheep and lambs.

Brisk demand, imparted a steady tone to the cattle market here today. The outlet for stockers and feeders continued broad, while a good clearance was reported in the other classes. Prices were firm.

The hog market continued unsettled, thick smooth selling at $11.

Prices were a trifle easier on the sheep and lamb market. Top lambs brought from $11 to $11.25. Sheep ranged from $5 to $6.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—Largely as the result of a forecast from a British trade authority that Argentina will have an exportable surplus 38,000,000 bushels larger than recent estimates by American experts, wheat prices today averaged lower. The wheat market here closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-4c down, new style, Dec. 161 3-4 to 162 and May 159 3-8 to 159 1-2, with corn unchanged to 3-8c off, oats 1-8c up, and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 10c.

According to the British estimate, which came as a surprise to wheat traders here, the Argentine exportable surplus will amount to 168,000,000 bushels, whereas recent advices from Chicago crop experts now in Argentina have been pointing to a likelihood of 130,000,000 bushels or less. The fact that export demand for North American wheat was inactive today and that European buyers were holding off tended also to weaken values. Besides, early reports said the weather in Argentina was better than has recently been the case. Under such circumstances, general selling carried prices down nearly 4 cents on some transactions.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—The demand for oats in the coarse grain market was quiet, but the tone of the market was steady and prices were unchanged, with car lots of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white selling at 53 cents, No. 3 white at 51 1-2 cents, and No. 4 white at 49 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track.

There were no further developments in the flour situation, but the undertone to the market was firm at the advance in prices noted for Spring wheat grades.

The trade in potatoes was a little more active, there being an improved demand from outside buyers for supplies, and this coupled with the steady movement for local account resulted in a larger volume of business being done. The tone of the market was firm.

The receipts of butter were 131 packages, as compared with 125 for the same day last week, and 190 for the corresponding day a year ago. The trade in a wholesale jobbing way was reported fair and prices were firm with sales of finest creamery at 45c per lb. in solid packages, and at 46c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 1,740 boxes, as against 2,991 for the same day last week, and 1,763 for the corresponding day a year ago. The market was without any new feature to note.

Beans were selling at $2.40 per bushel.

PLAN TO EXTEND SCHOOL EXHIBIT

Teachers and Officers of Schools Near Young's Point Held Meeting.

NEED MORE MONEY.

YOUNG'S POINT, Nov. 26.—On Monday night a meeting was held in the school house, Young's Point, of teachers, trustees and secretary's of each six schools taking part in the School Fair held annually at Young's Point.

The meeting was well attended, each school being represented by its teacher and five by two trustees and one school by one.

Mr. A. Higgins, who acted as chairman, opened the meeting, those present singing "Maple Leaf," after which Mr. B. Fitzgerald, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting.

The purpose of the meeting was to decide on some way of raising more money to enlarge on the school fair; to give better prizes and have more contests and sports.

Several suggestions were thought over and it was finally decided that $100.00 more than former years be paid into the School Fair fund on equal amount from each school, according to the assessment.

The meeting was brought to a close with the singing of "God Save the King."

GIFTS FOR BRIDE.

Members of Choir Made Presentation to Their Organist.

HASTINGS, Nov. 26.—On the eve of her approaching marriage Miss Loretta McMillan, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMillan of the Dutch Line was made the recipient of a handsome set of walnut candlesticks and comport bowl from the members of the choir of the church of Our Lady, Mount Carmel. Miss McMillan has been organist of the church for some time. About fifteen members of the choir gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jones on Monday evening. The gifts were presented by Mr. Leo Rivard and Rev. Father Bretherton gave a short address, and himself presented a beautiful rosary to the bride-to-be.

The evening was spent in cards and music and a beautiful lunch was served by the hostess.

During his thirty-six years of ministry, the Rev. Edgar Ball, recently appointed to a Willesden Green Church, has never asked a bride to promise to "obey."

RIVALS SEEKING ELECTION HOLD JOINT MEETING

Candidates From East Northumberland For Boys' Parliament Spoke.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

Jack Haig, Clarke Lawson and Will Brown are the Nominees.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 26—Something novel in the way of a public gathering was staged here Tuesday night, when Jack Haig of Campbellford, Clarke Lawson of Smithfield and Will Brown of Brighton, East Northumberland's candidates for the Boys' Parliament of Ontario, held a joint meeting in the school room of St. John's United Church to advance their several claims to the offices to which they aspire. After recent experience it was certainly refreshing to hear rivals of office conduct a campaign without indulging in personalities or harsh criticism of the platform of each other. If the Boys' Parliament of Canada can be regarded as a training school for Provincial Legislature and the wider field at Ottawa then the choice of pupils so far as East Northumberland is concerned, at least, has been peculiarly fortunate. All three boys are good speakers with easy stage presence and as the outstanding point in the platform of each is the fostering of the universal brotherhood of man, with that end achieved all other things to which they aspire will automatically become part of the human economy.

Premier Lapp Presided.

Rev. Wesley Elliott introduced the chairman of the evening, Gordon Lapp of Brighton, twice elected to the Boys' Parliament and last year chosen premier, a young man whose name has been associated with every forward movement in the county since the days of his early boyhood. Mr. Lapp has attained his majority and automatically becomes ineligible for further membership but this year he is returning officer for the riding.

After the singing of the hymn, "Faith of our Fathers", the chairman, explained how the election which will be held next Saturday all over Ontario is conducted. He had a good word to say for all three candidates with a special and graceful encomium for Campbellford's nominee, Jack Haig, whom he pronounced the equal of any who had ever sought the office.

Hard boiled politicians are not allowed to take the platform in support of any candidate lest they sow political tares in the wheat field which the young fellows are so anxious to keep free from the thorns of discord. Each candidate, however, is allowed a champion of his own estate to speak on his behalf and last night there lieutenants were: George Flintdall of Smithfield who backed up Clarke Lawson and Jack Body of Campbellford, a promising young orator who advanced the claims of Jack Haig. Will Brown's advocate was unable to attend but Brighton's nominee was given the first chance to address the meeting.

"Vote For Best Man."

There are three candidates for the premiership of the next Boys' Parliament but the speaker would not commit himself to support any of these until he had heard them. The chief planks in his platform were universal brotherhood and world-wide peace with all else that is included in the modern boys' movement. He advised the boys who had the right to vote to support the best man, regardless of every other consideration.

"The Cigaret Must Go."

Clarke Lawson said that one of the great evils that menace the boys of today is the cigaret and told his hearers that they should work shoulder to shoulder to uproot this danger. "The cigaret must go."

The speaker also advocated the extension of missionary effort, saying that the million and a half dollars spent annually for chewing gum might be better applied to the sending of the Gospel light to the benighted heathen.

Believer In Team Work.

Jack Haig, as an all round athlete, understands the nature of team work and he would use it to make the boys' movement worth while in East Northumberland. The organization in the northern part of the riding should be made stronger to bring it nearer an equality with the Southern portion. He would try to make East Northumberland something that would be looked up to by the rest of the province in boys 'work.

"I do not ask you to vote for me," concluded Jack, who was as cool on the platform as a veteran campaigner. "All I ask you to do is to spend five minutes before you sleep tonight thinking over the different platforms and how they were put before you. Think which will be the best for East Northumberland and if you do this I am sure you will vote for the best man."

Voting On Saturday.

Rev. C. D. Daniel, who is deputy returning officer for Campbellford and Seymour, stated that the town vote would be taken in the Public Library Assembly room, the hours that the polls will be open to be announced later. There will also be a voting place at Hoard's Station with R. Parks in charge and another at Trent River where G. Van Volkenburg will preside.

Premier Lapp gave an interesting statement of the aims and achievements of the Boys' Parliament, with which he is perfectly familiar. Brief addresses, complimenting the candidates on their ideals and their methods of expressing them were made by Rev. Wesley Elliott, G. A. Kingston, P. B. Nelson, S. J. Abernethy, S. A. Maguire and T. H. Rowe.

As a tribute to the memory of the late Queen Mother the audience at the close of the meeting stood with bowed heads, instead of the usual procedure of singing the National Anthem.

There are now more than 1,088,000 telephone users in Canada, an increase of 61,000 in number during the past year. The Dominion ranks second to the United States in the number of subscribers per head of population, the ratio being about one in nine.

NEW PREMIER SOON BOWSER PREDICTS

Former B. C. Premier Says King Has Not Lost Prestige.

VANCOUVER, B. C., November 26. — Canadian Press. — Criticism of Premier Mackenzie King for retaining office after his Richmond Hill speech, was voiced by Hon. W. J. Rouser, former premier of British Columbia in addressing the annual meeting of the Vancouver Conservative Association here.

"Mackenzie King is to-day much lower in the estimation of Canadian people than he was on October 29th," Mr. Bowser said.

"Not only has he failed to carry out his Richmond Hill declaration, but he has avoided two clear precedents—that case of Sir William Hearst, in Ontario, in 1919, who was in the same position, with the second largest group, and resigned, and the case of Premier Baldwin, who in 1923, although he had the largest group in the British parliament, had resigned because he did not have a majority."

Mr. Bowser added: "We will soon have a new premier, Right Honorable Arthur Meighen, and I believe he will appeal to the country for endorsement before July."

WINNIPEG, Nov. 26—(Canadian Press).—T. A. Crerar, President United Grain Growers, Limted, issued the following statement yesterday:

"The news in Eastern Conservative newspapers that I have been recently in Eastern Canada in conference with Premier King or any one representing him is incorrect in every particular. I have not been in Eastern Canada since the close of the last session of parliament in June last, nor have I seen Mr. King or had any communication with him directly or indirectly."

STEAMER STRANDED ON WALCHES REEF

Boat Left Port McNichol on Tuesday, But Went Off Course in Snow Storm.

PORT McNICOLL, Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press).—Word has just been received that the American steamer William E. Rapprich, that cleared from Port McNicoll Tuesday afternoon, is stranded on the reef known as Walches. It is presumed that the blinding snowstorm experienced on that night is the cause for her being so far off her course. Reports do not contain any word of loss of life. In shipping circles it is feared that the boat will be a total loss as the position is an extremely exposed one.

WOMEN ATTACKED IN THREE CITIES

Philadelphia, Toledo and Bridegport Are Alarmed.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 26. — Alarm spread to other cities yesterday as efforts were doubled in Philadelphia, Toledo and Bridgeport, Conn., to capture insane fiends who have terrorized women and young girls.

A "strangler" in Philadelphia, a "phantom stabber" in Bridgeport, and a "clubber" in Toledo, have plunged these communities into a reign of terror.

Toledo police believed yesterday that the "clubber," who has attacked more than a score of women, had left the city, as no new victims were reported. For the first time in a week women walked about the streets unescorted.

In Bridgeport the two latest victims of the "stabber," a girl of 12 and one 13, were recovering, as citizens considered organization of armed volunteer bands to patrol the city.

Two murders in Philadelphia are attributed to the "strangler," and two new attacks this week were added to the fiend's toll. A dozen suspects rounded up in a desperate effort to capture the "strangler" have been released for lack of evidence.

Has Fled City.

Believing the club-wielding fiend who struck down nine women in Toledo, has fled to another city, police yesterday relaxed a little of their vigilance, and the panic among the terror-stricken famflies appeared considerably lessened.

Easy To Gain Weight With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast With Vegetable Iron Builds Up Weight in Three Weeks

Thin, run-down and underweight men, women and children can improve their health, increase their energy and put on from five to twenty pounds of good solid flesh in three weeks.

A new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with the vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food, but not until we perfected "ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. It makes no difference how old you are—or how young you are—how long you have been under-weight—or how much under-weight you are, "ironized yeast" tablets are positively guaranteed to pick you right up, and add from five to twenty pounds of good firm flesh in three weeks' time. If they fail get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package, or sent direct from laboratory on receipt of price. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

VESSEL LASHED BY SEA FURIES REACH HAVEN

British Steamer Stripped of Loose Parts of Her Superstructure.

WAS LONG OVERDUE.

Docked at Brooklyn With 6,000 Tons of Welsh Coal.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. (Canadian Press).—Her superstructure crazily awry, the starboard side of her officers' quarters gone, her galley wrecked, lifeboats missing and smashed, skylights and rails swinging listlessly in the wind, and half of her crew of 36 injured, the British steamer Falls City limped to her dock in Brooklyn Wednesday, many days overdue.

She left Swansea, Wales, on October 27, with 6,000 tons of coal under hatches. When but a few hours out she ran into dirty weather, which continued during her entire trip. On November 5, 6 and 7 her daily cruising speed of 300 miles was cut down to ten miles a day by terrific gales.

A giant sea caught John A. Gurce, seaman, while he was reinforcing the lashings on a lifeboat. It sent the lifeboat spinning off to leeward, and only the line which Gurce had tied about his waist saved him. He dangled over the side for ten minutes before being rescued.

Narrow Escapes.

Arthur Bottinger, another seaman, was flung by a sea which raked the ship from bow to stern, and only a timely grab by a fellow seaman saved him as he was going over the taffrail. Walter Knowles, cook, and William Freese, steward, were washed out of their galley by a counter-sea which sent pots and pans flying, and Donald Swain, seaman, was sent hurtling against a capstan, receiving serious injuries.

The crests of towering seas thundered to the decks of the belabored steamer, smashed her skylights, and sent tons of water crashing below to terrify the stokers, while wind and sea together tore half the galley away, and sent the starboard side of the officers' quarters crashing through the rails and overboard. Efficient stowing of the coal cargo, which prevented it from shifting, is credited by the seamen with enabling them to make port.

ELECTION BET CAUSED FIGHT

Winner and Stakeholder Clashed—$30 Disappeared During the Scrap.

THE WINNER LOST.

LINDSAY, Nov. 26.—The aftermath of a quarrel arising out of an election bet was aired at a session of the county police court here this week. Some days prior to the Federal fight, Garfield Hawkins, of Reaboro, made a wager with a thresher in the employ of William Myles that T. H. Stinson would win out in his contest with Bruce McNevin, Progressive, in the riding of Victoria and Haliburton.

The amount of the wager, which was quickly covered, was $10, and Myles was entrusted with the money. It appears that some one raised the question of Myles being a proper person to hold the stakes. This reached Myles' ears, and he naturally resented what he considered a reflection on his character. When the smoke of the election battle had cleared away and Mr. Stinson had been declared the winner, Hawkins straightway proceeded to collect his winnings. It was charged in court that when Hawkins asked Myles for the money, he refused to hand it over until Hawkins told him who the party was that made the statement. Myles went further, and offered Hawkins $20 if he would divulge the name. Words flew thick and fast, and when Hawkins feared that Myles was about to strike him, he closed in and laid hands on him, as a matter of self protection, so he claimed. The trouble did not end here, as according to the evidence, a broken fork handle was brought into play by Myles. A peculiar incident in connection with the melee, according to the story told the court, was the fact that the $30 in Myles' possession at the opening stages of the fracas mysteriously disappeared.

Counter Charge.

Hawkins charged Myles with assault and battery with intent to do actual bodily harm, and Myles came right back with a charge against Hawkins of assault and battery. A crowded court room heard the evidence. Myles elected to be tried summarily, and after evidence had been taken, counsel for both parties agreed that the evidence in the first case should govern both cases. Argument was waived, and the magistrate asked to give his decision.

Police Magistrate Bradford declared the affair a draw. Both parties, he held, were at fault, and both should pay the same amount in fines—$10.00 and costs. As the charge against Myles was an indictible offence, and required the presence of the County Crown Attorney in Court, he was assessed an extra $5.00 as Attorney's fees.

HOUSE OPENING TO BE DECIDED MONDAY DEC. 1ST

Premier King Still Hopes To Convene Parliament on Dec. 10.

SETS PRECEDENT.

Permits No Expenditure While Result of Election Is In Doubt.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 26. (Canadian Press).—"We still hope to call Parliament by December 10," said Premier MacKenzie King last night, at the close of a long Cabinet council. The Prime Minister intimated that a definite announcement on the subject probably would be forthcoming on Monday next, so that the usual ten days' notice of the opening of Parliament could be given to its members-elect. After a final consultation with the chief electoral officer, the Government will then decide if there is reasonable likelihood of all the writs being returned by the tenth. The Premier suggested that if there remained only one or two writs unreturned on the date decided on, it might be possible to begin the business of Parliament, if it was probable that the members affected by these delayed writs could take their seats before the House reached a vote at the Christmas adjournment. As to when this adjournment would be taken, and how long a recess would ensue, the Premier pointed out that this was for Parliament to decide.

His sole reason for hastening the meeting of the House, he said, was that the whole question of who is to carry on the Government could be put up to the people's elected representatives. Meantime he would make no appointments nor proceed with contracts, etc. One pressing problem was how such contracts should be dealt with. There were several contracts which should be decided on one way or another. Too long a delay might involve the Government in litigation. But Premier King stated that he intended to set a precedent that a Government faced with such a situation, following an election, as now confronted him, that the country was committed to no expenditures until Parliament had had its say.

It is understood that about a hundred of the writs issued for the elections of October 29th, are still out. Most of these are held up through some technical omissions on the part of deputy returning officers, and the bulk of them will be returned completed within the next week or two. Inquiry at the office of the chief electoral officer elicited the opinion that practically all of them would be in within the next two weeks. Difficulties of transportation however may delay the completion of all polls in some of the northernmost ridings and it is possible that the writs cannot be returned this year. This would prevent the members elected for those ridings taking their seats.

COMMUNISM IN GREAT BRITAIN HURT BY TRIAL

Labor Executives To-day Discuss Imprisonment of Communist Leaders.

EXPECT REACTION.

Suggestion of Political Prosecution Ruled Out By Judge.

LONDON, Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press).—The trial of twelve Communist leaders which ended yesterday in Old Bailey, with sentences of imprisonment of twelve months for the five principal prisoners, against whom previous convictions had been proven, and six months for the seven others, against whom no previous convictions were recorded, is the greatest blow the Communist Party has yet experienced in this country.

The men who were charged with conspiring to publish seditious libels and with violation of the incitement to mutiny act, will be classed in the "second division," which means simply deprivation of their liberty.

Strong efforts were made to give the case a political aspect, but the judge, who instructed the jury to accord the accused the benefit of the slightest doubt, refused to admit the idea of political prosecution. He said if they were guilty it did not matter that they were prosecuted by a rival political party animated by the desire that they should be convicted.

The prisoners' counsel made a great play of alleging police espionage with political motives, but the judge defended the police, who, he declared, had no other means for the discovery of secret sedition.

In view of the leniency with which a number of Fascists, who had attacked a newspaper van, belonging to the Daily Herald, the Labor organ, were recently treated, the case is certain to cause great political commotion. A joint meeting of the executives of the Labor party and the Trades Union Congress was called for to-day in the House of Commons to discuss the case.

PARSON AND DUKE IN SHARP DISPUTE

"No Longer an Honor To Be Kicked By An Earl."

LONDON, Nov. 26.—All England is laughing over a very bitter controversy which is raging between the Duke of Argyle, chieftain of the Campbell clan, and Rev. J. S. Thompson, minister of Inverchadlin Parish in Argyleshire. The battle arose originally over a missing baptismal font from the church, and Rev. Mr. Thompson was severely rebuked by the Duke for referring in one of his utterances about the matter to "an episcopal missionary to the aborigines of Inverary."

The Duke further accused Rev. Mr. Thompson of ill-breeding, adding: "I intend to have religious peace throughout the marches of my lordship of Cowal. Between this and Easter I shall write, setting you certain penances to do." The Duke also referred to the "innate quarrelsomeness of Presbyterians," pointing out the church controversies in Canada as an instance.

Pungent Retort.

Rev. Mr. Thompson retorted by detailing his letter in reply. "On or about the anniversary of the Lamont murders," the reference being to the historic massere of a hundred Lamonts by members of Clan Campbell. Following this pungent preliminary, Mr. Thompson informed his grace that the day had gone by when it was reckoned an honor to be kicked by an earl, cursed by a count or maltreated by a marquis, or when a Campbell sheriff, backed by a Campbell jury, a Campbell prosecutor, a Campbell chaplain and a Campbell court could glut the vengeance of a Campbell chieftain.

A Pimply Face Is Unsightly

Miss C. C. M. Smart, South Battleford, Sask., writes:—"A while ago I was troubled with facial blemishes, especially pimples, and was really ashamed to go out with such a bad looking face.

I tried 2 or 3 different remedies, but they didn't help me any, so one day a friend, who had been troubled the same as I was, advised me to use

Burdock Blood Bitters

After I had taken two bottles there wasn't a pimple of any kind left on my face, and I now have a clear, smooth and velvety complexion."

PROWLERS ANNOY WOMEN IN CITY?

Unconfirmed Reports Say South End is Haunt—Police Are Uninformed.

That women have been annoyed in the south end of the city on recent nights by mysterious men who dogged their footsteps, is current as a report, but is unconfirmed by the police, to whom no reports have come.

Nothing is officially known of the bad behaviour charged to the unknown men, but it has been suggested that they exist only in imaginations sharpened by reports from other cities of attacks on women. Certainly, it seems to the police that definite reports would reach them immediately any woman was annoyed or menaced.

Once in every two or three months this story breaks, but the authors of it are always difficult to find, and their reticence leaves the police with nothing to work on. It is impossible for the police to watch every lady in the city, and unless they know the haunts of these alleged prowlers they are unable to catch them.

KIWANIS SHOW WILL BE LIVELY

Rehearsals Are Full of Pep and Show Great Promise.

MANY PERFORMERS.

To the casual visitor at the old Oriental who drops in for a brief look-in at the busy Kiwanians practising for their big show, "Miss Bob White," which will be presented at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, it is quite evident that patrons of the production will see something lively and interesting and hear music that is tuneful and catchy. The pep and esprit de corps that Si Perkins, the popular director, injected in such large quantities into last spring's show under the Kiwanis Club auspices, is just as apparent this time in "Miss Bob White" rehearsals, for all seem to be taking a real personal interest in the proceedings, and to be up on their collective toes in their concerted efforts to make the show go across with a real swing and a bang.

"Something doing every minute" is in the atmosphere of these cheerful rehearsals. From the tiny tots in the cunning "Bubble" chorus to the seniors in the leading roles, everyone is imbued with a desire to do the very best, and when that spirit is evident in a cast that totals up to nearly one hundred and sixty people, something really worth while may be expected.

An idea of the extent to which the dramatic reputation of the characters in this city is at stake may be gleaned from the fact that leads in the same show were once taken by Marguerite Sylva, as "Miss Bob White" and Raymond Hitchcock and John Slavin as the two millionaires who are forced to be tramps.

Musical items of special interest in the program are several snappy choruses tha tinclude the "Lovin' the Girls" number, the juvenile "Bubbles" chorus, the "Colonial Dames," with the girls in stately panniered dresses and carrying shepherdess' staves, and the Fox Hunters, with the men in hunting "pink."

Some of the most attractive numbers are the "Mystery of Love" waltz, with its haunting refrain, sung by Mrs. Walter Byers, the "Swing Song," a duett on the stage by Miss Mathilde Masson and Mr. Hugh Niven, and the song of the "Milkmaids and Farmerettes," that forms an attractive eye-opener for the second act.

This evening, a dress rehearsal for "Miss Bob White" takes place on the Grand Opera House stage. The seat sale has been very satisfactory for both performances, with a number of good seats still available.

TAXI MEN VIEW

He suggested that a good route would be for the buses to travel along Rogers and Hunter West to Park, thence North to Smith, touching Reid and the Chemong Road. At Aberdeen the route should connect with Benson Avenue and the Normal School; out Smith and around the Oval to Rogers again.

Two buses, he said could cover that route and another good one would be down in the southern part of the city. He admitted that it was a very hard city to route, but that in his honest opinion the street cars should be dispensed with. He declared that the bushes would gain time where the cars were at present forced to halt at switches.

All men interviewed saw difficulties in operating the system during the winter months. All admitted that the service would be of great benefit to the people if they could be "educated to make use of it," and all saw financial problems in the way, some suggesting that a five cent fare was the solution, others saying that such a low rate would not pay the operating expense. Many adopted the "wait and see" attitude, withholding premature judgment on a move which was not yet instituted.

FARLEY—CAVANAGH

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Joseph's Church, Douro, on Wednesday morning, November 25th, at nine o'clock, when Bessie daughter of Mrs. Mary Cavanagh, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Stanley Farley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Farley of Otonabee.

The bride was attired in pencil blue crepe-back satin, with trimmings of cocoa brown. She wore shoes of pencil blue velvet and brown stockings and gloves and a large black picture hat. Her corsage bouquet was of pink sweetheart's roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Annie Whibbs, was in brown panne velvet, with trimmnigs of gold, and hat of henna and gold velvet. She wore a corsage bouquet of pink sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom was supported by Mr. Kenneth Cavanagh, brother of the bride.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a gold rosary, to the bridesmaid an onyx and pearl ring, to the best man a pearl tie pin, and to the soloist, Miss Margaret McCarthy, who sang an "Aye Maria" during the signing of the register, a white gold pin set with pearls was presented.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother at which the immediate friends of the bridal party were present, after which Mr. and Mrs. Farley left for Buffalo, N.Y. The bride travelled in a black canton crepe dress, black hat and beaver wrap.

Is it not true today, just as of yore, that all women love furs? Of course we carry a large stock, but it is well to remember while we can fit a great many from stock, there are some who prefer a made to measure garment. It is to these friends especially that we would say, this is our busy season and that it takes time to make a fur coat.

QUITE STARTLING IN THEIR REALISM

Re-productions By New Orthophonic Victrola Are True to Life.

"Absolutely marvelous" was the verdict of a brilliant assemblage of scientists, artists, critics and educators in the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, on November 18th, to hear demonstrated the Victor Talking Machine Co.'s new Orthophonic Victrola. And a representative of this paper, after listening to a similar demonstration in Heintzman Hall, this city, yesterday afternoon, is quite in accord with that verdict.

While the reproductions of instrumental or song numbers by this wonderful machine are truly startling in their realism, the Orthophonic has no tubes nor batteries—it is a phonograph pure and simple, but new in principle, design, construction and in results. The whole conception of music in the home is changed by this amazing achievement of the Victrola people, for the naturalness and fulness of whatever is heard reproduced, the heretofore unapproached clarity of tone, together with the absence of all mechanical noise convey the impression that the original prformers are actually in the room with you. Such was the recent experience of fifty couples, who at Fort Garry Hotel, Winnipeg, toed the light fantaistic to music by a famous band heard through this remarkable new instrument.

The Orthophonic Victrola has been demonstrated all over Canada before famous critics and musicians who one and all endorse it as positively 'true in sound' and a marvelous new phonographic product. A mechanical feature which will be much appreciated is that no matter where the needle is set, it cannot over-run the record, but the machine will automatically stop as intended; another welcome improvement is noticed in the compressed air support for the lid of the case, which cannot drop with force, no matter how careless the operator may be.

Mr. A. E. Clarkson, representing the Victrola Talking Machine Co., is in town, introducing the new Orthorphonic Victrola, and as a description in print is totally inadequate, he invites all interested to call at Heintzman Hall, corner of George and Hunter Streets, when either he or Mr. C. A. Searle, the genial local manager for Ye Olde Firme, Heintzman & Co., will be pleased to demonstrate this latest phonographic wonder, which is no more expensive than the latest Console Victrolas.—(Advt.)

PRAYER MEETING.

The regular Cottage Prayer Meeting of Truth Mission will be held to-morrow evening at the home of the pastor, Rev. David and Mrs. McKee, 280½ McDonnel Street. All welcome.

FASHION SHOW.

Three young lady models demonstrated a very interesting showing of afternoon and evening frocks in the Richard Hall store yesterday afternoon, before a large number of ladies from the city.

The fashion parade included a number of the newest ideas in ladies' wear, and the costumes elicited much admiration as shown by the graceful models. As accompaniment to the demonstration were the new style posters in the lower windows, showing tiny figures clothed in real materials tacked on to the cards.

A lovely gown was of a new "geranium petal" (rose pink) color in the new two-piece idea for evening wear. The upper section of this was separate from the skirt, the bodice having diamond-shaped triple ornaments or rose velvet, that were edged with gold braid and ended in gold lace tabs, the same motifs appearing on the long sleeves.

A pencil blue georgette had the prevailing flared skirt draperies with tiny cuffs and jabot of white, edged with round pearl buttons. A dark blue georgette, the material of which was used in so many of the frocks shown, was done in bolero effect with long strips of Oriental embroidery on the front and sleeves and skirt and little blue ball buttons edging the bolero.

A mulberry colored gown had a whole front panel of deeply encrusted gold embroidery.

There were several particularly fetching evening gowns. One was the new ocean blue, really an apple green shade, and was made with flaring godets and wide low-hung folded belt. It was draped over a double meshed slip of gold and rose tissue, over a green silk foundation.

A gown developed in the new rose shade that resembles a deep mauve, was also of georgette, its only trimming being a line of lovers' knots in sparkling rhinestones at the waist line, while a deep maize and yellow gown had long vertical lines of maize and yellow flowers on the skirt portion.

A deep orchid georgette was ornamented with a large hand-painted flower, and there were gold tassels and gold braiding on the cuffs and collar of an afternoon gown of black georgette. Black gleaming satin was in several of the tailored afternoon frocks and there was a new idea in sleeves in a pale grey and blue gown. The upper portion was tight to the elbow, ending in a deep circular flare, that swirled about the lower arm and wrist. This dress was trimmed with wide bands of silver braid over horizontal pieces of sapphire blue velvet.

A white georgette had its entire bodice beaded thickly with a floral design in pink, blue and silver and a pale, pink mo.. ended in a deep all-round flare of heavy beads in bright colors. A black georgette was posed over an orchid slip and trimmed with small red velvet flowers joined by tiny green velvet lines and a particularly beautiful and intricate design was noticed on one pale pink dress of georgette. The skirt was ornamented with large flowers of gold lace, outlined and fringed with red beads, the flowers centred with clusters of tiny pale pink velvet blossoms, dotted with tiny rhinestones. The hem and waistline of this gown were defined by triple rows of beads, in red, pink and crystal colorings. Several gorgeous evening wraps were shown, one noticeable model done in figured French velvet, with yellow the predominating note in the odd color scheme, and collared and cuffed with wide fur bands.

MORE MONEY TO DAIRY FARMERS

High Price Was Paid For Cheese at Dunsford Factory.

LARGE SHIPMENTS.

An indication of the greatly increased financial returns obtained by the dairy farmers of this district this year was furnished on Monday at the annual meeting of the patrons of the Dunsford Cheese Factory. The report presented to the meeting by the secretary, Mr. Kennedy, showed:

Total receipts of milk, lbs.	615,965
Total pounds of cheese	53,389
Total money received	$12,372.00
Averages price per lb of cheese	22 1-5c
Average price per cwt. of milk	$ 1.61
Expenses	2,961.60
Net returns to patrons	9.910.74

The average price per lb. of cheese for the province last year was around 16.90c. It will be noticed that the average price of the Dunsford factory this year was over 5c a lb. higher than the average price for the province last season. It was the highest average price received by the patrons of the factory since about 1919, just at the close of the war.

This factory has been selling its cheese through the United Dairymen Co-operative, Ltd. H. B. Cowan of Peterboro, secretary-treasurer of the Co-operative Company addressed the patrons on cheese marketing methods through the Sidney Weaver, who lives on the Sidney side of the town line about 4 miles west of the village has traded farms with Mr. Albert Stapley of the 3rd Concession of Rawdon. He had a successful sale of his farm stock and implements on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. C. N. Clancy was the auctioneer.

The hog market is a little stronger this week at 12 1-2 cents for selects. This will be the last week for the most of the cheese factories to operate for this season. Not since war time have they had so successful a season's work as this year; as regards the quality made and the price obtained. Dairy butter is down a little, selling at 45c; creamery being held at 50 cents.

UNITED CHURCH LADIES' MEETING

Arrangements Were Made For Annual Christmas Entertainment.

YOUNG PEOPLE MET.

OMEMEE, Nov. 26.—The regular monthly meeting of the ladies of the United Church, was held on Thursday afternoon in the Sunday school room. The president, Mrs. W. Henderson, conducted the meeting. Prayer was offered by Mrs. F. G. Sandy, followed by the Scripture lesson, Psalm 47, by Mrs. G. Overholt. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were listened to with interest, the latter showing a balance in the treasury of $291.53 after all bills had been met after the recent fowl supper.

The church blackboard was again discussed, and it was unanimously decided to let the contract at once.

A motion was carried to have the slate roof on the parsonage repaired at once, at the expense of the society.

It was decided, as in previous years, that the society be responsible for the annual Christmas Tree for the Sunday School. The programme was discussed and a committee of four ladies was appointed to look after it. Other business relative to the entertainment was transacted and the meeting was brought to a close with prayer by Mrs. R. Poast.

Y.P.L. Meeting.

Monday night was social night in the Young People's League, Miss Rita Kennedy, literary and social vice-president, was in charge of the meeting. The topic was ably taken by Miss Eva Race. The speaker could only set forth a few of the great reasons for belief, as the subject was one capable of extended discussion. Some of these reasons were: Jesus Christ never once doubted His power; His teaching was absolutely flawless nineteen hundred years ago, and is absolutely flawless today, and that teaching is applicable to all sorts and conditions of men. It has been accepted from the north to the south as no other teaching has.

At the close of the address, the president, on behalf of the meeting, expressed appreciation of the rector's efforts.

Next Monday is to be the boys' musical evening, and an excellent programme is undoubtedly being prepared.

DRUGGIST SELLS MADOC BUSINESS

J. W. Vince Is Moving To Toronto—Is Succeeded By J. K. Lenahan.

MADOC, Nov. 26.—Mr. J. W. Vince, who recently purchased a drug store on Weston Road in Toronto, has disposed of his business here and intends leaving for the city very soon. Mr. Vince came here from Toronto twelve years ago, and has conducted a thriving business during his stay. His customers and friends wish him every success in his new home.

His successor is Mr. J. K. Lenahan, who for the last five years has been managing stores for the Lewis K. Leggett Co. in Toronto, St. Thomas, Sarnia and Hamilton.

At a meeting held last evening in the Bank of Commerce rooms, it was decided to enter a team in the Trent Valley Hockey League. An association, to be called the Madoc Hockey Club, was formed, and the following officers elected:

Mr. C. Jewell, president; Mr. G. White, vice president; Mr. Nicol, secretary treasurer; Mr. Nugent, team manager; entertainment committee, Norman Whytock, L. McConnell and J. Henderson.

Motions were passed to the effect that:

1.—Wm. Nugent and Kenneth Nicol go to Havelock on December 3, to attend the meeting of the Trent Valley Hockey League for the purpose of entering a team in the league.

2.—That Thos. Rupert interview J. Hailstone re rink facilities, etc.

3.—That the meeting ad adjourned to meet again on Wednesday, Dec. 2.

An enthusiastic meeting was held in the Community Hall at Bancroft, which was attended by the Warden of the county, the doctors of the community and representatives from the northern municipalities for the purpose of establishing a ten or twelve bed hospital.

Mr. A. E. Ebey was chairman of the evening, and outlined a scheme to raise the funds. Miss Wilkinson, member of the Red Cross Society, outlined the great work being done in the Wilberforce Hospital. Warden Wiggins, Dr. Alexander and Dr. A. T. Embury, M.P.-elect, also spoke, giving endorsation to the work.

A committee was formed composed of Warden Wiggins, Dr. Alexander, Dr. Embury, Mrs. Connors and Mrs. Jones to investigate and report to a meeting to be held in the near future.

This proposition, if carried out, should mean a great boon to the north country. The nearest hospital now is at Belleville, which means great loss of time in cases of accident or severe illness.

Mr. Carmichael conducted the ceremony. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served after which the happy couple left on their honeymoon amid showers of confetti and good wishes.

JOHNSON—BOLTON.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 26.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at high noon Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, Nelson street, when Hazel Mae, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bolton was united in marriage to Mr. Melville Ray Johnson, son of Mrs. Johnson of Peterboro. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a beautiful gown of rose cut velvet, with a large rhinestone buckle and gale lace trimmings. She wore silver brocaded shoes with silver grey stockings and carried a large bouquet of Killarney roses and lily of the valley. She also wore a rope of pearls, the gift of the groom.

The bridesmaid was Miss Etta Bolton, sister of the bride, who wore a flame colored dress of georgette over satin and carried a bouquet of bridesmaid roses.

Rev. Melbourne Johnson of Toronto attended his brother.

The ceremony was performed under a floral arch by Rev. W. H. Howard. Miss Lottie Johnson, sister of the groom, played the wedding march and also the accompaniment for Miss Beatrice Campbell, who during the signing of the register sang "Until."

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was an opal ring, to the pianist and soloist white gold bar pins, and to the best man gold cuff links.

After a bountiful wedding luncheon the happy couple motored to Peterborough to catch the westbound C.P.R. train for Toronto and other points, the bride going away in a gown of pancy purple georgette over satin, with a pansy purple hat, trimmed with appliqued flowers in contrasting shades and wearing a muskrat coat. On their return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will reside in Peterboro.

Prenuptial events included a miscellaneous shower at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. Robert Bolton of Douro, and also a shower given by a bevy of young girls, friends and neighbors, on Friday evening last. Among the latter were: Misses Crawford, Beatrice Campbell, Olive Northcott, Zelda Northey, Molly Thompson, Beatrice Johnston, Doris Hill and Edna Howard. The bride received a large number of beautiful gifts including a substantial cheque from her father.

Out of town guests included: Mrs. Johnson, Miss Smith, Mrs. Wm. Bolton and Mr. Harry Edmonston of Peterborough; Miss Lottie Johnson and Rev. Melbourne Johnson of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. D Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bolton of Douro, and Mr. and Mrs. John Webster of Otonabee.

INFANTS' ILLS ARE DISCUSSED

Well Babies' Clinic Addressed on Tuesday By Dr. F. O'Reilly.

INFECTION.

The room devoted to the use of the Well Babies' Clinic at the G.W.V.A. hall was filled on Tuesday afternoon with the large crowd of ladies who attended the weekly meeting, and listened to a splendid address on "The Common Ailments of Infants", given by Dr. F. O'Reilly, who enumerated some of the most prevalent diseases of babies, and whose talk was listened to with evident enthusiastic appreciation by the mothers present.

"A good baby is a well baby", said the doctor, who took up the disturbances of digestion first. "These usually mean that the child is not getting the right kind of food. Breast milk is the premier diet for infants." Flatulence, vomiting, diarrhoea or constipation and stationary weight are signs of such disturbances.

Another rather uncommon ailment spoken of was intussusception, which is the telescoping of one part of the bowel into another portion. Attacks come on quickly and should be attended to with speed.

The infectious diseases were then spoken of. "Infants under three months of age practically never take measles, and although apparently isolated cases of measles occur, it usually appears in epidemic form. The chief danger from measles is brancho-pneumonia, and deafness is not uncommon after an attack. All ear symptoms should be carefully watched."

Nursing babies, said the doctor, rarely fall a prey to scarlet fever. Infants sometimes have very scvere attacks of whooping cough. The use of vaccine is now quite general, with gratifying results. "Again pneumonia is the bugbear, and is blamed for nine out of ten deaths from whooping cough. Although the spasms may end fairly promptly, there seems to remain an irritability of the throat and the child is very subject to colds, with a hacking cough."

FOR GRAY DAYS.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(United Press).—Gray has never had the the vogue for Winter that it has had this year. Previously we have accepted gray as a Spring, Summer or early Fall color but this year it is one of the smartest of the Winter shades.

This season's gray is a soft, pinkish gray that is bound to be becoming to everyone who chooses it. Smart coats and ensembles of gray velvet or cloth trimmed in squirrel or gray fox are worn by debutantes and matrons whose costumes are the envy of the shop girls. While one sees few entire gray fur coats one sees numerous gray cloth coats heavily trimmed in gray fur. Squirrel coats are not extremely popular nor have they been for several Winters.

A smart young woman appeared on the Avenue yesterday wearing one of the loveliest gray coats we have seen. The coat was of a luxurious gray cloth resembling a heavy duvetyne and had quite a pinkish cast in the gray. It was a wrap-around model with slender shoulders and with width enough at the hips to give the new diagnol closing. A matching gray fox wrapped about the neck with the head worn on one shoulder and the tail falling to the rear and a long stole of fox extended from neck to hem. Cuffs were likewise of fox and a cluster of purple violets were worn one cuff as a corsage. The accompanying hat was a small gray felt affair. Gray suede shoes and gray suede gloves completed the color scheme.

Many gray cloth coats are trimmed in squirrel with this fur forming the hem border and trimming collar and cuffs. One unusual model made on slender lines has the sleeves and upper portion to the hipline made of gray squirrel with the slender skirt portion of heavy matching cloth. Usually the gray wrap uses a matching frock of silk or cloth although red, green and purple frocks often accompany gray coats. In the later case, the hat matches the frock.

BIBLE CLASS HOLDS TWO SOCIAL EVENTS

St. John's Women Were Entertained By Mrs. Bugg and Mrs. Deyman.

On Friday evening of last week the members of St. John's Women's Friendly Bible Class were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Bugg, Wolsley Street, about 24 being present. Many were in fancy dress. The evening was spent in singing and dancing. Excellent music for dancing was supplied by Mr. Marshall, piano; Mr. Childerhose, traps; and Mr. B. Budd, saxophone. Mrs. Bugg presided at the piano for the singing. A thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent and was brought to a close about 12 o'clock after dainty refreshments had been served. A very warm vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Bugg for their kind hospitality.

On Tuesday of last week the same Class met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Deyman, 177 Rubidge Street, for a shower in aid of their work. Music and singing were enjoyed and dainty refreshments served. Mr. and Mrs. Deyman were warmly thanked for their kindness in giving their home for this event.

QUAKER EMPLOYEES SUCCESSFUL DANCE

Victoria Hall Was Filled Last Night With Happy Dancers.

About three hundred happy dancers tripped the light fantastic toe in Victoria Hall last night to the strains of splendid music furnished by the Peterborough Juvenile Symphony orchestra. The occasion was a dance under the auspices of the Quaker Oats employees. The dance was one of the most successful held in the hall this season, and all those present had a most enjoyable time. At midnight dainty refreshments were served, after which dancing was resumed until two o'clock.

The success of the affair has encouraged the committee in charge to start making arrangements for another to be held on Wednesday, Dec. 30.

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 26.—A very successful shooting match was held in Pontypool Nov. 21 by Mr. James Brown, the prizes being ducks and geese. Among the successful ones were Mr. Ted Graham and Mr. Lewis Jamieson.

Mr. Ernie Bowin's sale took place on Saturday, the weather being very favorable. An immense crowd gathered, and prices soared high, shoates selling at $9 a piece and year-old calves $35 a piece. A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A STUNNING AFTERNOON FROCK.

To-day I stopped in to have tea with a young friend of mine who has just returned from abroad.

"Aggie, you do have a hard time, being able to go abroad and replenish your wardrobe any time the fancy strikes you," I commented when we had exchanged greetings.

"I do have an easy time," admitted Aggie. "But I try to be grateful for it—and do come and have some tea so I can show you my new things afterward."

We drank tea and chatted about many things. I asked Aggie about what she had done in Paris, and about the fashion openings.

"What did you see most of at the openings?" I queried.

"Metal cloth," Aggie answered without hesitating.

"I don't see how there could be much metal cloth left in Paris, there is so much on this side," I suggested.

"It is surprising," Aggie agreed. "I saw it used there for daytime overblouse, for afternoon frocks, for evening gowns and evening coats."

"Madame is showing it in every lovely colorful pattern in the world," I informed her.

"Let me show you a few of my metal cloth things," Aggie said, so I followed her into her own room, and prepared to feast my eyes.

She had a beautiful evening coat, tailored, of gunmetal cloth that was woven in a sort of basket design, and which was lovely.

The costume that struck me as very effective, and quite easy to copy, I am reproducing here.

"Don't you think this perfectly simple black and silver overblouse, with its banding of gray fur, is smart?" Aggie queried.

It was smart, perhaps because of its utter simplicity. The overblouse was semi-fitted, and the black satin skirt concentrated its fulness at the front.

"I love the gray fur, I assured her.

"What fur is it?"

"Gray dyed ermine," Aggie replied. "They dye any fur at all these days, don't they?" I asked.

"You should have seen the dyed mole in the openings," Aggie assured me. "They had it in orange and blue, with cloth to match. It was lovely."

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Having seen answers to other people which we thought were very interesting, we have now come to you for advice also. We would like you to tell us:

1. When and where should a fellow take the lead when going into buildings with his girl; and when is it proper for a girl to go first?

2. How often do you advise a fellow to take his girl out so as not to be going too often and yet be going as a steady?

Please give us your advice as you have given to others. Thanking you in advance, hoping to see our answer in the paper soon.

CHUMS.

CHUMS: (1) When entering a building the man should follow his companion, as he usually opens the door for her to precede him. A man is supposed to take the lead when going up a stairway and to follow the lady when coming down one. In a theatre or church the lady follows the usher, her escort bringing up the rear. If no usher is present, the man goes first, finds a suitable seat, and stands aside to allow his companion to enter the pew or row of seats first.

(2) Well, that depends. If you really want to be considered a "steady," the accepted rule appears to be that you see her two evenings a week at least and Sunday evening. The Sunday evening is absolutely necessary to be a real "steady." Of course, you don't have to take her out three times a week, but she will probably expect a couple of jaunts anyway, unless she is of a quiet disposition and likes to stay in occasionally. These things depend a great deal on circumstances. We have known cases of young love where the admirer appeared to think that an every evening visit, with an afternoon and evening session on Sunday, and a noonday telephone conversation, was absolutely necessary to his well-being. And, again, there are young men who rest quite content, apparently, with a glimpse of the object of their affections from afar, as it were. When you are seventeen, you will want to be with her all the time, but when you are thirty, you might find it just a little wearing to go over the same line of conversation seven or eight times a week. As I said before, it all depends. Why not work out a formula to suit yourself and your own inclinations and then discover if the young lady is satisfied with it?

"Sad, isn't it?" he agreed. "But I hadn't thought of atetmpting it. I was planning to transfer in New York to a boat which sails tomorrow morning."

For a fleeting instant Lacy thought of all the tales he had heard about the wicked folk who ask you for a ride and who, just when you are obligingly speeding along the road, press sudden revolvers against your ribs and then make off with all your portable wealth. This apprehension had short shrift. For the potential brigand stepped forward into the light of his lamps and he saw he was talking with a Dominican nun. Her head was bent a little, so he could not see her face clearly, but he had a conviction—it must have been her voice, and the way she moved—that she was young, and probably beautiful.

"Excuse me," he murmured, in vague apology for a dozen unspoken thoughts, and helped her without more ado into the seat beside his own. They had been driving steadily for twenty minutes and were slackening their speed in a small snarl of traffic in the outskirts of Greenwich when they looked at each other and smiled.

"You are running away, aren't you?" he ventured.

"How long have you known that?" she asked.

"For quite a time, back. But I didn't know how to address you. I don't yet. I practiced saying: 'Where are you going, Sister?' But it somehow sounded rowdy. And I don't feel rowdy. You see, I don't know much about nuns. Don't you all have Latin names? Like Sister Benedictine, or something like that?"

"Yes, something like that," she agreed, smiling. Then she added as an afterthought: "They call me Con Amore."

Well, then, Sister Con Amore," he began, and lapsed at once into another silence. Out of his jumble of thoughts several questions kept rising to the surface and lingering there unspoken. Wasn't Con Amore Italian, anyway? And why had he thought he wanted to go to Paris? And why—above all why—should the same slim and lovely person put on not only the white dismissive cloth of the Dominican nun, but also a perfume? It was a wicked and worldly perfume—a beckoning perfume.

"I hope you're not going to ask me any questions," she put in gently. "It is so pleasant to ride along like this. It is so pleasant to ride in silence along the road that leads away from Trouble."

"I am glad," he said, "if that's what we are doing. To think that I drove past Trouble and never saw it in the darkness. I suppose I might have known?"

"How might you have known?" she asked, for she really did not care much about silence.

"I had been told," he explained, "that it was not far from New York."

CHAPTER III.

By Louis Bromfield.

It was a night filled with a sense of the imminent, one of those nights when the very air, for all its softness and the frail, trailing scent of syringa, was vibrant with the unexpected, the remote, possibly even the tragic. Even to Lacy, a man sophisticated, worldly, experienced as neither the boisterous Bing or the intellectual Adams was experienced, understood this. There was in him nothing of the primitive which colored the rude gestures and the passion of the Southerner, nor anything cold, fishlike, of the intellectual penetration which distinguished the Bostonian. He was, in short, a man who lived by his senses, without reflection, without worrying very profoundly about the reasons or the motives of any action. He took what came his way.

Now as he sat at the wheel of the purring Isotta-Franchinla, with a perfumed and renegade nun by his side, his mind slowly turned over adventures of the past. One by one he recounted his conquests. . . . Not all of them perhaps, but at least the major ones—those which might have been underlined in red. . . . Blanquita, the Argentine dancer; place, London; time, in full season. Frau Sembacher; place, the Black Forest; time, late spring, harebells and columbines flowering among the black trunks of the trees, an elderly husband in the background taking the cure celebrated far and wide for its purgative qualities. The Honorable Mary Wallop, second daughter of Lord Squint, D. C. F., K. Y. B., a tall pale girl with gold hair, slightly marred by the protruding teeth that were the mark of her direct descendance from Oswald Scuinente, first baron who came over with William the Conqueror; time, late autumn; place, Vallombrosa; falling leaves strewing the brook, etc., etc. Yvonne (what was her other name?), to whose room he had climbed from balcony to balcony of a gawdy Venetian palace; time—he couldn't quite remember—probably in season. Nobody was in Venice at any other time of the year.

He had a head for detail, Mr. David Lacy. He began already to construct in his imagination the probable course of this present adventure. A nun, perfumed! This adventure resembled one of Casanova's. Yes, he could see already that it must be underlined in red.

"Purrr-rr-rr," ran the motor, singing along beautifully. On either side of the road the marsh grass lay spangled with fireflies. The scent of syringa still clung to his companion, but with it there mingled another scent, more subtle, yet even more penetrating. What was it? Ah, mimosa, to be sure! Clever of her. None of these T.N.T perfumes called l'air embaume or l'air insupportable. Mimosa . . . Mimosa . . . Of course; he'd overlooked one red-letter affair . . . that one with the Princess Drosckl Impermeable, at the Hotel Negresco.

"The carburetor sounds better now," he observed presently.

"Yes," said the nun.

It must be said that the all-conquering Mr. Lacy was not entirely at his ease. He had talked to many women. Carrie Nation would have appalled him no more than Ninon de l'Enclos; but here was a nun! What did one say to a nun? Only once before had he been reduced to such a condition of helplessness. It was an American girl; at least the old dowager at the Ritz told him so. He had seen her beside the paddock at Auteuil, the day Haricot came in fourth and cost him fifty thousand francs; a girl grave, beautiful, red-haired, calm among the painted courtesans and manikins at the race track. "American," Mrs. Murgatroyd had said, "from New England—stinking rich."

But what the devil was her name? Slowly there came over him once more the same feeling of mingled warmth and awe, the same sensation of being refreshed, of losing all sense of the cynical weariness which had enveloped him for so long.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

CHARLES MICHAEL SCHWAB—THE "BOY" STEEL MAGNATE.

In America's industrial realm no figure looms more conspicuously than that of Charles Michael Schwab who, starting as a lowly "dollar-a-day stage driver," became a "Million-Dollar Salary Man" within the brief period of fifteen years.

Schwab became internationally famous as the only man who ever tore up a $1,000,000 a year salary contract.

At Sixteen He Drove His Father's Stage.

But when the United States Steel Corporation was formed, that contract was the only obstacle to his acceptance of the presidency and the ownership of $28,000,000 (par value) of its capital stock. So, like every other obstacle he had encountered in his meteoric career, he hurdled it.

The Schwab family moved from Williamsburg, Pa., where Charles Michael was born February 18, 1862, to Loretto, Pa. Charles spent two years at St. Francis College, and at sixteen was driving his father's stage. Then he went to work in a grocery store at Braddock where the Edgar Thomson Works, owned by Phipps and Carnegie were located. Captain Jones, superintendent of the steel mills gave "Charlie" his first job as a stake driver. Six years later Charlie was superintendent.

The brilliantly conceived Homestead Steel Plant was Schwab's next step. He became its superintendent also, with about 8,000 men of the two plants under him. He was then only thirty. In five years more he was the president of the Carngeie Steel Company and his fame was trumpeted throughout the world as a "miracle worker."

The foremost steel manufacturer in Great Britain tried to get him away from Carnegie, but he was loyal, and Carnegie rewarded him with the famous long-term million-dollar contract. The idea of the great steel merger was born in the brain of Charles Schwab in 1900. He put it up to J. P. Morgan who was captivated. And the United States Steel Corporation was the result with Schwab as president.

He then took over the Bethlehem Steel Company, which he had owned once before, and sold out to the ill-fated United States Shipbuilding Company.

What Schwab has wrought there all the world knows. But what the world does not know is that he closed his French chateau on Riverside Drive, went to live in the little town of South Bethlehem, Pa., took off his coat and worked early and late for eight years, backing the reorganized Bethlehem plant with every dollar he owned and could borrow.

For instance, he spent $15,000,000 in proving Gray's invention which gave Bethlehem the world's leadership in the structural steel business. He spent over $100,000,000 in expanding and acquiring subsidiary companies, some of which are in Chili and Cuba. It employs a total of about 75,000 men. Its ship-building companies on both coasts give it forty per cent. of America's total ship-building facilities.

A CUP OF HOT BOVRIL is a fine "PICK ME UP"
SOLD IN BOTTLES ONLY

"Breast of Black Duck" was on the menu of a cafe in which I dined not long ago, and later, as I walked up the street, I saw some black duck for sale.

These things reminded me of some experiences which I had a few years ago, down in the Laurentian Sea, commonly called the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

We were taking motion pictures of wild life, for one of the Nature Film companies, and were waiting for a horned Grebe to make up her mind to have her picture taken, when we noticed an old Black Duck enter the reeds, followed by several young ones.

The old girl must have been so busy admiring her flock that she failed to see us. Of course we wore green and brown mottled clothes, which helps to conceal objects, but we were keeping very still, in order not to alarm the Horned Grebe. At any rate, little Mrs. Black Duck entered the reeds, not far from us.

When perefctly sober and serious naturalists go into marshes to take movies of Horned Grebes on their nests and all that sort of thing, and have the machines all set up and the Horned Grebe not far away, you don't suppose that they would be so silly as to go chasing a common black duck and scaring the Grebe and spoiling the mornings chances for taking movies, do you? Oh, no! We were too serious for that. We sat still and waited on the Grebe.

But some way or other that old mother Black Duck kept talking duck talk to ducklings, over in the reeds. We couldn't stand it any longer and went quietly over, inch by inch, until we surprised Mrs. Black Duck, and captured three of her little ones.

Some say it is only a common black duck. They hang, dead outside butcher's stores sometimes. But I couldn't eat one.

Say! Listen! That old common wild black duck was more of a woman and mother than some women I know. While I stood with her little ones, to have my picture taken with them in my arms, she almost climbed up my leg, pleading for their freedom. So we did not take Horned Grebe pictures that day. Instead, we took for the children of America, movies of a man answering the pleading of a Black Duck Mother, by letting her children swim away to freedom.

...first game. Z dealt and bid one heart, A one spade and Y and B passed. Z bid two diamonds, A two spades and Y and B passed. Z now bid three diamonds, A passed, Y bid three hearts, B and Z passed and A doubled. All passed and A opened the king of spades. How should Z plan the play of the hand? Before Z plays a card he should size up the situation very carefully. His reasoning should be somewhat as follows: "A has bid two spades without any help from his partner and has doubled three hearts. The only cards that would justify his bid and double would be at least six spades to four honors, four hearts, probably to the ace ten and the ace queen of diamonds. I can make eight tricks easily as I must win one spade trick, two club tricks, four heart tricks and one trump in dummy of club. The question is, how can I get the extra trick, in the diamond suit?" After this analysis, Z should win the first trick with the ace of spades. He should then lead two rounds of clubs and trump the third round in Y's hand. If A has only two clubs, he must play the ten of hearts to win the trick. If he does, Y should discard a diamond. Assume, however, that Y won the fourth trick. He should now play the three of diamonds and finesse the ten spot in Z's hand. If A has the queen, he is now in a difficult position for if he leads trumps, he will only make one trump trick and if he doesn't Z can trump the third round of diamonds in Y's hand. If A leads a spade, Z will trump and lead another diamond, forcing A into the same difficult position. Played in this way YZ should make three odd against good play and with all the high cards in A's hand. The important point to note about this hand is that Z must not lead trumps at any stage of the game. He must make the most of Y's little trumps. It is an object lesson in when not to lead trumps.

Hand No. 2

Hearts—K, J, 8, 2
Clubs—A, J, 9, 3
Diamonds—K, J, 7, 6
Spades—7

	Y
	A	B
	Z

Score, YZ 10, AB 0, rubber game. Z dealt and bid three spades, A and Y passed, B doubled and all passed. What should A lead? To the writer, this seems easy. Z has made an original bid of three spades and if correct, it should indicate lack of help for hearts, the other major suit. For that reason, the lead of the deuce of hearts seems to be A's best lead. The next best lead would be the ace of clubs.

Hand No. 3

Hearts—A, 9, 6, 2
Clubs—K, J, 8, 4
Diamonds—7
Spades—9, 7, 5, 2

Hearts—J, 10, 5, 3
Clubs—A, 10, 7, 2
Diamonds—A, 8, 4
Spades—8, 6

	A	B
	Z

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one spade, A and Y passed and B bid two diamonds. Z, two spades, A three diamonds, Y three spades and all passed. A opened the ace of diamonds and all follow. What should A now lead to the second trick? There are two possibilities for A to consider. First, the lead of the deuce of clubs. Z may finesse the jack and if B has the queen, AB may save game then and there. The objection to this lead is the fact that Z may have a singleton club and play the king from Y's hand. The second alternative is the lead of the trey of hearts. If B has the king queen of hearts, AB can save game by making two heart tricks and the ace of clubs. The writer favors the lead of the trey of hearts but would not criticize the lead of a low club. It is a very close hand.

Hand No. 4

Hearts—K, 7, 5, 3
Clubs—7
Diamonds—A, K, J, 8, 3
Spades—J, 7, 6

	A	B
	Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one club, A one diamond, Y one heart and B one spade. Z now bid two hearts, A two spades, Y three hearts and B three spades. Z now bid four hearts. What should A now bid with the foregoing hand? This is another close hand. A has the choice of doubling four hearts or of bidding four spades. It is the rubber game so his decision is an important one. If he doubles four hearts, he cannot figure on winning more than one heart trick, two diamond tricks and one spade trick. In other words, if he doubles he cannot hope to defeat his opponents more than one trick. On the other hand, if he bids four spades, he ought to make it. AB should not lose more than one heart trick, one club trick and one spade trick. If that analysis is correct, A should certainly bid four spades in preference to doubling four hearts. If he makes the bid, he scores game and rubber, the value of which is easily 400 points. If he could only win 100 points on the double, the odds are just four to one in favor of the bid of four spades.

testinal disturbance, including mucous colitis.

One of the first things to do in the treatment of a chronic skin disease is to get the digestive organs into normal condition. Unless they are made to act properly it will be extremely difficult to clear up the skin.

Mucous colitis is an inflammation of the lining membrane of the large intestine. Strings and masses of mucus are expelled from the bowel.

This ailment is associated with nervousness and run-down condition. Hysterical persons are likely to have it.

The attacks come on suddenly. There may be colic-like pains. These may be so very cutting and severe as to cause great anxiety to the family. They may fear appendicitis or something else more serious than mucous colitis.

It is difficult to draw the line between mucous colitis and inflammation of the large intestine, a form of "enteritis," as the doctors call it. However, it is not important to discuss differences. The dietary treatment for both is practically the same.

You will find long lists of foods, some of which may be taken, and some of which must be avoided. I am not going to give you any such lists. In my opinion, if food is tolerated at all, any food can be given which is free from fibre, husks and irritating indigestible parts.

Just think about foods: The cereals, unless they are carefully prepared, contain the outer covering of the grain. Vegetables, like squash and turnip, contain more or less fibre. Beans and peas have the indigestible and irritating skin and capsule.

Every food given the victim of mucous colitis, during the attack certainly should be strained. It should be put through a fiite collander to take out husk, capsule and fibre.

The cereals should be strained. The vegetables should be strained. The cooked fruits should be strained.

Keep out of the diet everything which is likely to scratch, scour or otherwise irritate the bowel lining. This is the secret of feeding a patient with enteritis or mucous colitis.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

DAVID HAS A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

David wandered through the woods, wishing he could find something new that would make him forget his homesickness.

"New Zealand may be all right for some folks," he mused, "but to a lonesome boy like me, why—"

Something stirred in the shadows and at first David didn't know whether to run or stand still. Two very queer figures moved like vague shadows in the moonlight.

David's foot touched a twig and the crackling noise startled the creatures and they looked up right into David's face.

"Well, good evening, young lad," said the largest shadow, "come over and let's get acquainted. Didn't we just hear you say you were lonesome? You don't live in New Zealand, then?"

"No, I'm glad to say I live in good old North America," replied David. "But," he added quickly, "perhaps if I knew some one to talk to, I'd like New Zealand better."

"I'm sure you would," laughed the big shadow-like creature, "I'm

Mr. Kiwi Bird, and this is my wife. Some folks call us Apteryx but I rather like the name of Kiwi Bird better."

"Kiwi Bird!" exclaimed the astonished David. "Bird, did I hear you say? Are you folks birds?"

"Of course we are," chuckled Mrs. Kiwi Bird coming closer so David could see her quite plainly. "I'll have to admit that we can't fly, but we can run just about as fast as our relative, the Ostrich."

"I can't see any wings at all," said David. "But I can see your long legs and that long sharp beak. My goodness, what in the world do you have to be burdened with such a beak for?"

"True, our wings are so very small,

A moderately successful day is forecast from the predominant sidereal activities. New projects and transactions with trusts, large corporations and with secret societies are under auspicious rule, but there is an augury of ready expenditure both in business and in personal indulgence. There is a figure read as heralding either irregular or sensational occurrences in social or romantic affairs. The planet of the unconventional holds away in these matters.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a moderately successful year in business with probable new contracts or connections with large concerns. CHAPTER II—Continued.

"Sad, isn't it?" he agreed. "But I hadn't thought of atetmpting it. I was planning to transfer in New York to a boat which sails tomorrow morning."

For a fleeting instant Lacy thought of all the tales he had heard about the wicked folk who ask you for a ride and who, just when you are obligingly speeding along the road, press sudden revolvers against your ribs and then make off with all your portable wealth. This apprehension had short shrift. For the potential brigand stepped forward into the light of his lamps and he saw he was talking with a Dominican nun. Her head was bent a little, so he could not see her face clearly, but he had a conviction—it must have been her voice, and the way she moved—that she was young, and probably beautiful.

"Excuse me," he murmured, in vague apology for a dozen unspoken thoughts, and helped her without more ado into the seat beside his own. They had been driving steadily for twenty minutes and were slackening their speed in a small snarl of traffic in the outskirts of Greenwich when they looked at each other and smiled.

"You are running away, aren't you?" he ventured.

"How long have you known that?" she asked.

"For quite a time, back. But I didn't know how to address you. I don't yet. I practiced saying: 'Where are you going, Sister?' But it somehow sounded rowdy. And I don't feel rowdy. You see, I don't know much about nuns. Don't you all have Latin names? Like Sister Benedictine, or something like that?"

"Yes, something like that," she agreed, smiling. Then she added as an afterthought: "They call me Con Amore."

Well, then, Sister Con Amore," he began, and lapsed at once into another silence. Out of his jumble of thoughts several questions kept rising to the surface and lingering there unspoken. Wasn't Con Amore Italian, anyway? And why had he thought he wanted to go to Paris? And why—above all why—should the same slim and lovely person put on not only the white dismissive cloth of the Dominican nun, but also a perfume? It was a wicked and worldly perfume—a beckoning perfume.

"I hope you're not going to ask me any questions," she put in gently. "It is so pleasant to ride along like this. It is so pleasant to ride in silence along the road that leads away from Trouble."

"I am glad," he said, "if that's what we are doing. To think that I drove past Trouble and never saw it in the darkness. I suppose I might have known?"

"How might you have known?" she asked, for she really did not care much about silence.

"I had been told," he explained, "that it was not far from New York."

CHAPTER III.

By Louis Bromfield.

It was a night filled with a sense of the imminent, one of those nights when the very air, for all its softness and the frail, trailing scent of syringa, was vibrant with the unexpected, the remote, possibly even the tragic. Even to Lacy, a man sophisticated, worldly, experienced as neither the boisterous Bing or the intellectual Adams was experienced, understood this. There was in him nothing of the primitive which colored the rude gestures and the passion of the Southerner, nor anything cold, fishlike, of the intellectual penetration which distinguished the Bostonian. He was, in short, a man who lived by his senses, without reflection, without worrying very profoundly about the reasons or the motives of any action. He took what came his way.

Now as he sat at the wheel of the purring Isotta-Franchinla, with a perfumed and renegade nun by his side, his mind slowly turned over adventures of the past. One by one he recounted his conquests. . . . Not all of them perhaps, but at least the major ones—those which might have been underlined in red. . . . Blanquita, the Argentine dancer; place, London; time, in full season. Frau Sembacher; place, the Black Forest; time, late spring, harebells and columbines flowering among the black trunks of the trees, an elderly husband in the background taking the cure celebrated far and wide for its purgative qualities. The Honorable Mary Wallop, second daughter of Lord Squint, D. C. F., K. Y. B., a tall pale girl with gold hair, slightly marred by the protruding teeth that were the mark of her direct descendance from Oswald Scuinente, first baron who came over with William the Conqueror; time, late autumn; place, Vallombrosa; falling leaves strewing the brook, etc., etc. Yvonne (what was her other name?), to whose room he had climbed from balcony to balcony of a gawdy Venetian palace; time—he couldn't quite remember—probably in season. Nobody was in Venice at any other time of the year.

He had a head for detail, Mr. David Lacy. He began already to construct in his imagination the probable course of this present adventure. A nun, perfumed! This adventure resembled one of Casanova's. Yes, he could see already that it must be underlined in red.

"Purrr-rr-rr," ran the motor, singing along beautifully. On either side of the road the marsh grass lay spangled with fireflies. The scent of syringa still clung to his companion, but with it there mingled another scent, more subtle, yet even more penetrating. What was it? Ah, mimosa, to be sure! Clever of her. None of these T.N.T perfumes called l'air embaume or l'air insupportable. Mimosa . . . Mimosa . . . Of course; he'd overlooked one red-letter affair . . . that one with the Princess Droscki Impermeable, at the Hotel Negresco.

"The carburetor sounds better now," he observed presently.

"Yes," said the nun.

It must be said that the all-conquering Mr. Lacy was not entirely at his ease. He had talked to many women. Carrie Nation would have appalled him no more than Ninon de l'Enclos; but here was a nun! What did one say to a nun? Only once before had he been reduced to such a condition of helplessness. It was an American girl; at least the old dowager at the Ritz told him so. He had seen her beside the paddock at Auteuil, the day Haricot came in fourth and cost him fifty thousand francs; a girl grave, beautiful, red-haired, calm among the painted courtesans and manikins at the race track. "American," Mrs. Murgatroyd had said, "from New England—stinking rich."

But what the devil was her name? Slowly there came over him once more the same feeling of mingled warmth and awe, the same sensation of being refreshed, of losing all sense of the cynical weariness which had enveloped him for so long.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

CHARLES MICHAEL SCHWAB—THE "BOY" STEEL MAGNATE.

In America's industrial realm no figure looms more conspicuously than that of Charles Michael Schwab who, starting as a lowly "dollar-a-day stage driver," became a "Million-Dollar Salary Man" within the brief period of fifteen years.

Schwab became internationally famous as the only man who ever tore up a $1,000,000 a year salary contract.

At Sixteen He Drove His Father's Stage.

But when the United States Steel Corpporation was formed, that contract was the only obstacle to his acceptance of the presidency and the ownership of $28,000,000 (par value) of its capital stock. So, like every other obstacle he had encountered in his meteoric career, he hurdled it.

The Schwab family moved from Williamsburg, Pa., where Charles Michael was born February 18, 1862, to Loretto, Pa. Charles spent two years at St. Francis College, and at sixteen was driving his father's stage. Then he went to work in a grocery store at Braddock where the Edgar Thomson Works, owned by Phipps and Carnegie were located, Captain Jones, superintendent of the steel mills gave "Charlie" his first job as a stake driver. Six years later Charlie was superintendent.

The brilliantly conceived Homestead Steel Plant was Schwab's next step. He became its superintendent also, with about 8,000 men of the two plants under him. He was then only thirty. In five years more he was the president of the Carngeie Steel Company and his fame was trumpeted throughout the world as a "miracle worker."

The foremost steel manufacturer in Great Britain tried to get him away from Carnegie, but he was loyal, and Carnegie rewarded him with the famous long-term million-dollar contract. The idea of the great steel merger was born in the brain of Charles Schwab in 1900. He put it up to J. P. Morgan who was captivated. And the United States Steel Corporation was the result with Schwab as president.

He then took over the Bethlehem Steel Company, which he had owned once before, and sold out to the ill-fated United States Shipbuilding Company.

What Schwab has wrought there all the world knows. But what the world does not know is that he closed his French chateau on Riverside Drive, went to live in the little town of South Bethlehem, Pa., took off his coat and worked early and late for eight years, backing the reorganized Bethlehem plant with every dollar he owned and could borrow.

For instance, he spent $15,000,000 in proving Gray's invention which gave Bethlehem the world's leadership in the structural steel business. He spent over $100,000,000 in expanding and acquiring subsidiary companies, some of which are in Chili and Cuba. It employs a total of about 75,000 men. Its ship-building companies on both coasts give it forty per cent. of America's total ship-building facilities.

ARTICLE No. 12

The test hands given in the preceding article have caused considerable comment and a wide difference of opinion. In hand No. 2 for example, where A's proper lead is in question, every card in his hand has been suggested as the proper lead. Needless to say, only one card should be led so that a number of correspondents will be disappointed. Don't allow the difference in my opinion and your own to discourage you, however. Learn to profit by your mistakes and you cannot help but improve.

Hand No. 1

Hearts — 8, 5, 3
Clubs — 10, 7
Diamonds — 9, 3
Spades — A, 8, 6, 5, 4, 3

	Y
A		B
	Z

Hearts — K, Q, J, 9, 7
Clubs — A, K, 4
Diamonds — K, J, 10, 8, 2
Spades — none

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one heart, A one spade and Y and B passed. Z bid two diamonds, A two spades and Y and B passed. Z now bid three diamonds, A passed, Y bid three hearts, B and Z passed and A doubled. All passed and A opened the king of spades. How should Z plan the play of the hand? Before Z plays a card he should size up the situation very carefully. His reasoning should be somewhat as follows: "A has bid two spades without any help from his partner and has doubled three hearts. The only cards that would justify his bid and double would be at least six spades to four honors, four hearts, probably to the ace ten and the ace queen of diamonds. I can make eight tricks easily as I must win one spade trick, two club tricks, four heart tricks and one trump in dummy of club. The question is, how can I get the extra trick, in the diamond suit?" After this analysis, Z should win the first trick with the ace of spades. He should then lead two rounds of clubs and trump the third round in Y's hand. If A has only two clubs, he must play the ten of hearts to win the trick. If he does, Y should discard a diamond. Assume, however, that Y won the fourth trick. He should now play the three of diamonds and finesse the ten spot in Z's hand. If A has the queen, he is now in a difficult position for if he leads trumps, he will only make one trump trick and if he doesn't Z can trump the third round of diamonds in Y's hand. If A leads a spade, Z will trump and lead another diamond, forcing A into the same difficult position. Played in this way YZ should make three odd against good play and with all the high cards in A's hand. The important point to note about this hand is that Z must not lead trumps at any stage of the game. He must make the most of Y's little trumps. It is an object lesson in when not to lead trumps.

Hand No. 2

Hearts — K, J, 8, 2
Clubs — A, J, 9, 3
Diamonds — K, J, 7, 6
Spades — 7

	Y
A		B
	Z

Score, YZ 10, AB 0, rubber game. Z dealt and bid three spades, A and Y passed, B doubled and all passed. What should A lead? To the writer, this seems easy. Z has made an original bid of three spades and if correct, it should indicate lack of help for hearts, the other major suit. For that reason, the lead of the deuce of hearts seems to be A's best lead. The next best lead would be the ace of clubs.

Hand No. 3

Hearts — A, 9, 6, 2
Clubs — K, J, 8, 4
Diamonds — 7
Spades — 9, 7, 5, 2

	Y
Hearts — J, 10, 5, 3
Clubs — A, 10, 7, 2	A	B
Diamonds — A, 8, 4
Spades — 8, 6	Z

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one spade, A and Y passed and B bid two diamonds, Z, two spades, A three diamonds, Y three spades and all passed. A opened the ace of diamonds and all follow. What should A now lead to the second trick? There are two possibilities for A to consider. First, the lead of the deuce of clubs. Z may finesse the jack and if B has the queen, AB may save game then and there. The objection to this lead is the fact that Z may have a singleton club and play the king from A's hand. The second alternative is the lead of the trey of hearts. If B has the king queen of hearts, AB can save game by making two heart tricks and the ace of clubs. The writer favors the lead of the trey of hearts but would not criticize the lead of a low club. It is a very close hand.

Hand No. 4

Hearts — K, 7, 5, 3
Clubs — 7
Diamonds — A, K, J, 8, 3
Spades — J, 7, 6

	Y
A		B
	Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one club, A one diamond, Y one heart and B one spade. Z now bid two hearts, A two spades, Y three hearts and B three spades. Z now bid four hearts. What should A now bid with the foregoing hand? This is another close hand. A has the choice of doubling four hearts or of bidding four spades. It is the rubber game so his decision is an important one. If he doubles four hearts, he cannot figure on winning more than one heart trick, two diamond tricks and one spade trick. In other words, if he doubles he cannot hope to defeat his opponents more than one trick. On the other hand, if he bids four spades, he ought to make it. AB should not lose more than one heart trick, one club trick and one spade trick. If that analysis is correct, A should certainly bid four spades in preference to doubling four hearts. If he makes the bid, he scores game and rubber, the value of which is easily 400 points. If he could only win 100 points on the double, the odds are just four to one in favor of the bid of four spades.

YOUR HEALTH

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.,

Here is another request from a sufferer with "mucous colitis," asking that I suggest a diet. She wants to know what are the chances for recovery.

This particular person has some skin disease and wants to know if this is one of the symptoms of the disease.

Particular skin trouble mention-Miasma nodosum is unlikely to Mucous colitis. It must testinal disturbance, including mucous colitis.

One of the first things to do in the treatment of a chronic skin disease is to get the digestive organs into normal condition. Unless they are made to act properly it will be extremely difficult to clear up the skin.

Mucous colitis is an inflammation of the lining membrane of the large intestine. Strings and masses of mucus are expelled from the bowel.

This ailment is associated with nervousness and run-down condition. Hysterical persons are likely to have it.

The attacks come on suddenly. There may be colic-like pains. These may be so very cutting and severe as to cause great anxiety to the family. They may fear appendicitis or something else more serious than mucous colitis.

It is difficult to draw the line between mucous colitis and inflammation of the large intestine, a form of "enteritis," as the doctors call it. However, it is not important to discuss differences. The dietary treatment for both is practically the same.

You will find long lists of foods, some of which may be taken, and some of which must be avoided. I am not going to give you any such lists. In my opinion, if food is tolerated at all, any food can be given which is free from fibre, husks and irritating indigestible parts.

Just think about foods: The cereals, unless they are carefully prepared, contain the outer covering of the grain. Vegetables, like squash and turnip, contain more or less fibre. Beans and peas have the indigestible and irritating skin and capsule.

Every food given the victim of mucous colitis, during the attack certainly should be strained. It should be put through a fine collander to take out husk, capsule and fibre.

The cereals should be strained. The vegetables should be strained. The cooked fruits should be strained.

Keep out of the diet everything which is likely to scratch, scour or otherwise irritate the bowel lining. This is the secret of feeding a patient with enteritis or mucous colitis.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DAVID HAS A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

David wandered through the woods, wishing he could find something new that would make him forget his homesickness.

"New Zealand may be all right for some folks," he mused, "but to a lonesome boy like me, why—"

Something stirred in the shadows and at first David didn't know whether to run or stand still. Two very queer figures moved like vague shadows in the moonlight.

David's foot touched a twig and the crackling noise startled the creatures and they looked up right into David's face.

"Well, good evening, young lad," said the largest shadow. "come over and let's get acquainted. Didn't we just hear you say you were lonesome? You don't live in New Zealand, then?"

"No, I'm glad to say I live in good old North America," replied David. "But," he added quickly, "perhaps if I knew some one to talk to, I'd like New Zealand better."

"I'm sure you would," laughed the big shadow-like creature, "I'm

"Are You Really Birds?"

Mr. Kiwi Bird, and this is my wife. Some folks call us Apteryx but I rather like the name of Kiwi Bird better."

"Kiwi Bird!" exclaimed the astonished David. "Bird, did I hear you say? Are you folks birds?"

"Of course we are," chuckled Mrs. Kiwi Bird coming closer so David could see her quite plainly. "I'll have to admit that we can't fly, but we can run just about as fast as our relative, the Ostrich."

"I can't see any wings at all," said David. "But I can see your long legs and that long sharp beak. My goodness, what in the world do you have to be burdened with such a beak for?"

"True, our wings are so very small, you can't find them under our bird-like feathers," laughed Mr. Kiwi. "But we don't need them to get over the ground. And these long slender beaks may look awkward but they are great things. You see we Kiwi Birds live mostly on earth-worms and other small creatures and insects that burrow in the ground. To be able to get to our prey we must have these long slender beaks to poke down into the ground. Another thing, if you'll take a good look at this beak of mine, you'll see something surprising," and he held his long, slender beak down so David could see quite plainly in the moonlight.

"Is that your nose, way down at the very tip end of your beak?" asked the astonished David.

"You're right," chuckled Mr. Kiwi Bird, "I can scent a victim so much quicker with my nostrils down there than I could if my nose were up at the other end. Look here! I smell an earth-worm right here," and quick as a wink, he poked his long beak into the ground and yanked out a great, long, wiggling worm which he handed to his wife. "How did I know it was there? Smelled it. Well, Mama, come along. We must be on our way before the moon gets too high," and bowing very politely the strange looking birds strutted off through the woods.

David watched them disappear, then he ran back to the house and crawled into bed, his lonesomeness all gone.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 27.

A moderately successful day is forecast from the predominant sidereal activities. New projects and transactions with trusts, large corporations and with secret societies are under auspicious rule, but there is an augury of ready expenditure both in business and in personal indulgence. There is a figure read as heralding either irregular or sensational occurrences in social or romantic affairs. The planet of the unconventional holds sway in these matters.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a moderately successful year in business with probable new contracts or connections with large concerns. These may call for some unusual expenditures or there may be such in the way of pleasure. There is a forecast of sudden or unconventional episode in the purely unusual expenditures or there may on this day should be versatile and gifted in ways out of the ordinary. It may be extravagant and unconventional in its personal habits. It should make a moderate success of its affairs.

A CUP OF HOT BOVRIL is a fine "PICK ME UP"
SOLD IN BOTTLES ONLY

"Breast of Black Duck" was on the menu of a cafe in which I dined not long ago, and later, as I walked up the street, I saw some black duck for sale.

These things reminded me of some experiences which I had a few years ago, down in the Laurentian Sea, commonly called the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

We were taking motion pictures of wild life, for one of the Nature Film companies, and were waiting for a horned Grebe to make up her mind to have her picture taken, when we noticed an old Black Duck enter the reeds, followed by several young ones.

The old girl must have been so busy admiring her flock that she failed to see us. Of course we wore green and brown mottled clothes, which helps to conceal objects, but we were keeping very still, in order not to alarm the Horned Grebe. At any rate, little Mrs. Black Duck entered the reeds, not far from us.

When perefctly sober and serious naturalists go into marshes to take movies of Horned Grebes on their nests and all that sort of thing, and have the machines all set up and the Horned Grebe not far away, you don't suppose that they would be so silly as to go chasing a common black duck and scaring the Grebe and spoiling the mornings chances for taking movies, do you? Oh, no! We were too serious for that. We sat still and waited on the Grebe.

But some way or other that old mother Black Duck kept talking duck talk to ducklings, over in the reeds. We couldn't stand it any longer and went quietly over, inch by inch, until we surprised Mrs. Black Duck, and captured three of her little ones.

Some say it is only a common black duck. They hang, dead outside butcher's stores sometimes. But I couldn't eat one.

Say! Listen! That old common wild black duck was more of a woman and mother than some women I know. While I stood with her little ones, to have my picture taken with them in my arms, she almost climbed up my leg, pleading for their freedom. So we did not take Horned Grebe pictures that day. Instead, we took for the children of America, movies of a man answering the pleading of a Black Duck Mother, by letting her children swim away to freedom.

QUEEN'S HOLD SECRET PRACTICE CONFIDENT OF OTTAWA VICTORY

Concentrated On Signals Yesterday — Snow Film Over Stadium—Finish Workout in Riding School — "Are in the Pink."

KINGSTON, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press)—On a snow covered field, the first strictly private practice of Queen's seniors was held yesterday afternoon in the Richardson stadium, when practically nothing but signals were gone over. Eevryone except the players and officials were excluded from the grounds during the practice.

A light snow fell about three-thirty and the players refrained from any tackling practice at the stadium. Instead they were afterwards taken to the riding school building, where scrimmage practice was indulged in, under strong arc light, for over an hour. Coach Hughes had the kickers in action at the stadium, but no line work was attempted there.

The only absentee was "Cib" McKelvey, who watched the workouts from the side lines. All the other players were in the pink of condition, "Tiny" Adams and "Bill" Muirhead, inside wings, being again at the work out.

Queen's players are confident that they will win on Saturday. They are determined to enter the game with the intention of making no mistake that they are the best team in Canada. Every man, from Coach Hughes down, will be in there battling to the finish for the verdict against the Senators.

SPRAGUE AND ODIE CLEGHORN RIVAL LEADERS IN BOSTON GAME

Bruins and Pirates Open the Season With Brothers Matching Wits.

PIRATES UNTRIED.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 26. (Canadian Press).—The National Hockey League's winter schedule for 1925-26 will be set in motion at the Arena here to-night, when the Pittsburgh Pirates, new entry into the League, make their debut to the professional hockey world in the inaugural tilt with the Boston Bruins.

When the referee's whistle calls the opposing sextettes to centre ice for the face-off of the opening match, it will also pry the lid off a brotherly battle of captaincy wits. The Pirates will be led into the fray by Manager Odie Cleghorn, and to meet the rush, the cagy Sprague Cleghorn, captain of the Boston team, says he will pit the best his rugged Bruins have to offer.

Much interest also centres in the probable figure the Pittsburgh aggregation, composed largely of former "simon-pures," will cut in their new professional company. Recruited from the ranks of the Yellow Jackets, a team which had a successful career in the United States Amateur Hockey Association last season, many of the Pirate men have never before played against teams of professional calibre.

However, Manager Cleghorn reports his men as shining in speed and aggressiveness after their early season training at Dusquenne Gardens, and predicts a victory for them. To this, brother Sprague retaliates: "The strong defensive game worked out by the Bruins towards the end of last season is certain to slow down the Pittsburghers."

The early seat sale augured a packed house to-night.

RICKARD IN TORONTO.

Joe Matte will not be with Vancouver this winter. Frank Patrick has not heard from the former Hamilton player since the close of last season.

Frank Patrick of the Vancouver Maroons is said to have picked up a promising player in Frank Waite from Brandon. Waite is said to be as tall and angular as Lester Patrick, and his style is distinctly reminiscent of the handsomest of the Patricks, in those hectic days of 1921-22, when Lester was leading the field.

BUSY TIME IN FRONT OF PETES

Blue and White Play Falls To-morrow and T.C.C. and Windsor Next Week.

PREPARE FOR S.P.A.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for an exhibition tomorrow night against Gene Fraser and his Niagara Falls senior champions at the Falls, and the Peterboro squad will leave for Roseville tomorrow morning.

The game with their old rivals should put the Petes in fairly good shape for their S.P.A. game with Toronto Canoe Club in Toronto next Wednesday night. The Falls and Petes outfits have clashed five times so far, the blue and white getting the verdict once in the Falls and twice in Toronto while the Fraser men won once at home and once in Toronto. The unique part of the Niagara-Peterboro series now starting on its third year, is that the Falls team has yet to play in Peterboro.

After playing their S.P.A. game on Wednesday the Petes will journey to Windsor on Friday of next week for an exhibition game with the new Windsor senior team in their splendid new arena, making the fourth game of the season for Joe Dwyer and his men.

Among the spectators at Tuesday's game in Hamilton were "Butch" Kelterbourne and Burmister of the Niagara Falls team, who came over to the Ambitious City to give the Petes the once over.

GRANGE DEBUT AS PRO. TO-DAY

College Rugby Star Big Attraction at Chicago Cubs' Park.

RETAINS NUMBER 77.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — Harold "Red" Grange, "phantom of the gridiron," will plunge into the fortunes of professional football, playing with the Chicago Bears against the Cardinals with indications that the Chicago National League Baseball Park will be jammed with 45,000 or 50,000 fans.

If the crowd exceeds the 45,000 mark, it will be the biggest that ever stormed the home of the Cubs. The situation reached such alarming proportions yesterday that President Veeck of the Cubs asked that police establish a deadline around the park, admitting only those holding tickets. There were a few hundred standing room seats for sale at the park this morning, but after these are disposed of, President eVeck figured that it would require the services of the police to keep the overflow in order.

Sixteen thousand standing room tickets were snatched up Wednesday as fast as ticket sellers could hand them out. More than 31,000 reserved seats have been sold, the scalpers re-selling them for as much as $25 for choice seats.

The University of Illinois plans to drape Grange's famous "77" faded blue jersey inside a glass case in the Illinois Hall of Fame, but Grange, like a superstitious ball-player, is determined to go into professional action today with another 77 on his back.

SOLD TO ROCHESTER.

W. M. "Mickey" Divine, a member of the New York Giants' catching staff, has been sold to Rochester, of the International League. Terms were not announced, but no other players were concerned in the deal.

M'GILL LOSING GRIDIRON STARS

Will Graduate at End of the Year—Eddie Hanna Recovers.

CAN'T PLAY AGAIN?

Press).—Eddie Hanna, star McGill half-back, who was injured in the game with University of Toronto here on November 7, is lost to football for all time, according to unofficial announcement at McGill Wednesday. Hanna received an injury to his neck early in the game when he brought down Warren Snyder with a tackle as the Varsity star was speeding toward a touchdown. The McGill half was removed to the hospital and at first his condition was considered grave. He rallied quickly, however, and while he was still considered in a serious condition he was not regarded as being in danger. Later it has developed that Hanna was suffering from a partial dislocation of one of the cervical vertebrae. He is expected to be around shortly but heads of the McGill rugby club doubt if he will ever again be seen on the gridiron.

Hanna's loss will be a severe blow to McGill, as it will leave a gap on the backfield as well as many on the line to be filled by new men next Fall. The team looses this season through graduation such stellar front rank performers as Captain Philpott, Art Manson, Hammie Boucher and Cordner Wright. Herbie Murphy, who could fill any role in a pinch with a fighting game will also graduate, as will Les Parsons, one of the finest battle line men Shaughnessy had on his front rank in the 1925 campaign. The McGill coach will have as a nucleus from this year's first string the following players for his 1926 squad: Ralph St. Germain, Joe Cameron, Jack Mickles, Ney Gordon, Gordon Hughes, Bruce Spears, and Tiny Sullivan.

ELEVEN RUGBY TEAMS REMAIN

Three Senior, Five Intermediate and Three Juniors Survive.

SATURDAY GAMES.

Three senior teams, five intermediate and three junior, are still in the running for the C.R.U. championships, and this number will be reduced to seven on Saturday. Senators and Queens will decide the Eastern Senior title at Ottawa on Saturday, and the winners will be lined up against Tammany Tigers, of Winnipeg, probably at Toronto, on December 5. The Ontario Junior winners will meet the M.A.A.A., Quebec champions, on the same day. The finals in the Intermediate series will not be reached until December 12.

Queens will go to Ottawa on Friday in private 'busses, and on Saturday morning a special train will leave the city at 8 o'clock for the capital.

Important Games.

The Intermediate O.R.F.U. final will not be started until Saturday, when Sarnia and the Twin City team meet in London. Efforts are being made to rush along the eastern intermediate teams and have McGill default its second game of the intercollegiate finals to St. Michael's and allow the Saints to play Montreal C.N.R. on Saturday instead of completing the Collegiate series. St. Michael's have a 14 point lead, which seems big enough to give them the honors, and if McGill dropped out it would save a double trip to Montreal for St. Michael's and get the intermediate finals settled on December 5, with the other two C.R.U. finals.

The Interscholastic series will find Central Collegiate battling with University of Toronto Schools at Oakville on Saturday, in a sudden-death game for the eastern semi-finals. The winners of this game will meet Sarnia Collegiate for the Ontario championship. U. T. S. came through a gruelling battle with Oakwood Collegiate, of Toronto, last Monday, and have proven their strength. They will give the local lads a rare battle.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Port Arthur seniors have arranged a schedule of six exhibition games on their coming trip east.

"Red" Armstrong and "Yank" Boyd, two of the most sought after players in Toronto, have turned out with the Toronto Canoe Club juniors.

Windsor Maroons and Brantford will meet at Windsor in an exhibition game on December 1st.

Brantford's intermediate team will work out on outside ice, going to Grimsby and Windsor for practices.

Woodstock has good prospects of having a junior and intermediate team in the O.H.A.

Over six thousand tickets had been sold Tuesday, for the pro exhibition at Windsor to-night between the New York and Victoria teams.

Several new towns will be represented in the North Bruce league this season.

Twenty-seven candidates turned out Tuesday night for the Kitchener junior team, while fourteen senior players were out.

Alvin Schlegel of Preston, will be a candidate for election on the O.H.A. executive this season.

Lack of accommodation will probably bar St. Thomas from the O. H. A.

Meaford will again enter a team in the junior O.H.A.

Grimsby will play at London on Friday night.

Port Elgin has completed arrangements for the season and will enter in the Northern Hockey league.

Johnny Sheppard, who is with the Victoria Cougars on the eastern trip, is the property of Edmonton, and will return to the Eskimos after the tour is completed.

PETES IMPRESS HAMILTON FANS

Peach Kings Battled Them in Every Period of Tuesday's Game.

IN FAIR SHAPE.

The following is taken from the Hamilton Spectator's report of the Petes' victory over Grimsby on Tuesday night:—

Grimsby, without two big stars of last year, Jerry Carson and Shorty Horne, could not offer the Petes the same kind of battle they would have been able to do with these lads in the line-up, and although they showed a stubborn and aggressive front, they lacked the class of the Peterboro squad, almost intact from last year, and the contest was never in doubt after the Petes had scored early in the first round.

For an exhibition game, and the first of the season at that, the contest was an interesting tilt. Neither team appeared in the best of shape, and in the matter of condition the Peach Kings had an edge on their opponents, who were forced to rely to a large extent on their subs to keep the play on an even basis. The Peach Kings battled the Petes through every period and had they been able to show an offensive effective enough to bore in deeper, the final result might easily have been different. By using their regulars at the start and finish of every period, and giving the subs a chance halfway through, the Grimsby outfit maintained a fast pace, and while they were not successful, they forced the Petes, and showed enough to convince the fans that they will have little difficulty in offering stern battle in the intermediate ranks again this season.

Fair Crowd Out

A fair crowd turned out to see the teams clash, and they appeared well pleased with the class of hockey offered. Many were attracted by the rumor that the Grimsby club would play all its home games here this winter, and there was a curiosity on the part of many to see what kind of a team it was that desired to come here. The Peach Kings had a real test, for the Peterboro outfit represented the same line-up that made such a success of last year's schedule, with the exception of Bert McLeod, their big defence man, who was unable to make the trip. The Petes were strengthened by the addition of Bogardis, formerly of Port Colborne intermediates, who fitted in well with the Petes' front line stalwarts, and was used very frequently.

The Petes showed their strength in the early moments of the first period, and they tallied the opener after four minutes of play, that was practically all in their favor. Two minutes later they rang the bell again, but then on to the end of the second period they were "holed up" by the Grimsby crew, who battled every way they knew how to hold off further scoring on the part of their opponents and to register themselves. Peterboro's defense was a little too solid for the Fruitbelters to penetrate with any degree of success, and the experienced stars on the front line back-checked hard and efficiently all night; but this could not keep the Peach Kings from trying, and their continual charges classed them as a fighting crew that will take a lot of beating when they get organized properly.

Little Combination

The Peach Kings played under a big handicap. With Carson and Horne off the team they trotted out Harrington, a former Torontonian, at ring wing, and Foulis, of Welland, on the defense with McVicar. Not at any time during the game were the Kings able to show the smooth combination work that featured their sterling play of last season and their individual rushes were upset before they had much chance to do any great amount of daamge. Grimsby's greatest offensive weapon was their condition and they used this to full advantage, frequently outspeeding the Peterboro squad when the latter got their work to a high pitch.

Bailey Was Star

Bailey, Peterboro's classy right winger, was the individual star of the game, for he scored three of his team's four goals and narrowly missed getting a couple more. He showed the best all-round work of the night, his stick-handling, especially in and about the defense, being of a high order. Ranger and Collins were not as effective as they will be later, but they managed to threaten quite often and were always dangerous. Parker and Rose were strong defensively, but they tired of too many rushes and were not important factors in this regard. Rose was credited with the other goal secured by Petes, but he secured this by slipping up to the Grimsby defense and flipping in a loose puck while the red and white guardians were skating another Peterboro player into the boards.

"Scotty" Reid, veteran of the Grimsby team, showed flashes of his old-time brilliancy at times and, with Clarke and McVicar, stood out for the Grimsby crew. There was little or no combination work attempted by the Peach Kings, so the bulk of the work fell upon the individuals and this trio more than carried their own. Reid was a constant menace on the offensive and both he and Clarke drew howls of delight from the Grimsby fans for their defensive work. Both used their bodies whenever necessary and broke up many plays at center ice. McVicar was a real barrier in front of the nets, and the heavy work he was forced to do there didn't prevent him from staging many a lone effort the length of the ice. On his play he deserved several goals at least, for he shot hard and true at the Peterboro guardian at the end of a dozen runs and was continually trying. Foulis and Harrington rendered good service, as did Rayhoe, Burnside and "Bo" Farrell. Everyman on the team worked hard, but lack of practice was always evident and they could not show to the best advantage without the necessary co-operation.

By CHESTER HORTON

Always hit the ball hard when you are playing a water hole. Water holes are expensive when they constitute real hazards, but when the player gets so he isn't bothered much by the deceiving. Obting the ball up he may easily fall into an error of taking it too easy when negotiating water. Distances over water are deceiving. Observe the play at any water hole and note how very seldom the ball is beyond the pin. I don't know why this is unless the hazard has the effect of causing undue stiffness, which kills the full flight of the ball. One good rule is always to figure a water hole as 25 yards more than the distance you ordinarily would call it. Then, having made this allowance, you have sufficient margin to allow for a deep divot, so that the ball will fly high and land safely.

VIENNESE INFLUENCE IN ROME NIGHT LIFE

Cabaret Performers of England and France Giving Way to Others.

ROME, Nov. 26. — (Associated Press). — The influence of Vienna, before the World War a rival of Paris as the capital of European gayety, again is making itself felt in the night life of Rome.

Vaudeville "turns" and cabaret performers from France and England gradually are giving way to Austrians. As a result, the soft Viennese German is heard more frequently than French in places where Romans go to amuse themselves.

BANK PRESIDENT HAS COME BACK FROM STATES

Dr. Schacht Had Many Conferences With American Financiers.

MANY REQUESTS.

Is Urged to Make Reform in Reichbank's Credit Policies.

BERLIN, Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press).—The return of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, from his six weeks' tour of United States financial centres, has raised keen interest in Berlin industrial and financial circles in regard to his extended conferences in the United States. With credit facilities severely restricted and industrial activities curtailed by the loss of markets and the compulsory shutting down of numerous plants because of the lack of operating capital, Dr. Schacht already is being importuned to make an immediate reform in the Reichsbank's credit policy. He also is being urged to use his influence to bring about a change in the Government's inexorable taxation policies which are held responsible for unprofitable activities in many lines of industry and commerce.

FOUR TEAMS IN SENIOR SERIES

City Hockey League Has Also Entries From Three Junior Team.

MORE EXPECTED.

At the meeting of the City Hockey League, held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening, entries were received from four senior teams and three junior teams.

The senior teams entered are the De Laval, Raybestos, Crescents and Brinton Carpet. These four teams will make up the senior series.

The junior teams entering were the Raybestos, St. Peter's and Sacred Heart. This series will be composed of eight teams, as it is expected that five teams from the Junior Church League will throw in their lot with the City League.

The league expects that the coming season will be the greatest in its history, and the fans can look forward to seeing high-class hockey. The O.H.A. rules will be followed.

WALKER HOLDS TITLE.

Defended the Welterweight Crown in Bout Last Night in Newark.

NEWARK, Nov. 26. (Canadian Press).—Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N.J., world's welterweight champion, successfully defended his title in a 12-round no decision fight with Sailor Friedman of Philadelphia at the Newark Armory last night.

Except for the eleventh and twelfth rounds, Walker was master of the situation. A desperate rally by the Sailor in the closing rounds threatened to cut Walker's lead, but the champion recovered from the storm which Friedman directed at him and earned an even break for rounds.

VILMA BANKY WINS HOLLYWOOD FAVOR.

American Film Stars Laud Budapest Beauty in "Dark Angel."

Vilma Banky, the beautiful Hungarian actress, who plays the leading feminine role in George Fitzmaurice's screen version of the famous play, "The Dark Angel," now playing at the Capitol Theatre, has created a veritable sensation in Hollywood during her short residence there.

"The Dark Angel," a First National Picture sponsored by Samuel Goldwyn, marks her first appearance upon the American screen. And many of the greatest personalities in Hollywood who have seen her and have witnessed her work have unhesitatingly predicted a wondrous future for the girl.

Elinor Glyn, noted novelist and motion picture producer, says:

"Vilma Banky is a great find for the screen, because there is something about her which suggests 'background,' and that she has suffered. Her eyes have magnetism and are not just 'blah' beauty eyes.

"My hallmark of charm, which I call 'IT,' has been tacked so often lately onto persons whom I have never even seen that it cannot mean anything now unless I use it myself and sign my name to it, which I shall be happy to do in this case. Miss Banky has 'IT!' So that's that! 'Tis a major quality!"

Charles Chaplin, probably the greatest genius of the screen, said:

"Miss Banky has unusual qualities for the screen—dramatic power with refinement of feeling — rare beauty and magnetism, and an unusual finesse in her technique, which should establish her as one of the great stars of the screen."

Sid Grauman, Los Angeles' foremost showman, after seeing Miss Banky work in "The Dark Angel," said:

"From a showman's analysis Vilma Banky is a great 'find.' She has the qualities which mean box office appeal. A wonderful actress —most beautiful to look at and a personality that will win any audience. Miss Banky will be a great star."

Joseph M. Schenck, one of the foremost producers and judges of screen talent, after following Miss Banky's performance closely, pronounced it as "marvellous."

"There can be no question as to her ability," he declared. "She has the European polish as well as a deep insight into the realisms of acting. I predict great things for Miss Banky, and feel assured she will deliver them."

Ronald Colman has the leading male role in "The Dark Angel," and the supporting cast includes Wyndham Standing, Florence Turner, Frank Elliott, Helen Jerome Eddy, Charles Lane and others.

AT THE ROYAL.

AMATEUR NIGHT AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT

Amateur night at the Royal always means that patrons get more than their money's worth. To-night in addition to usual single turns, there will be presented a trio composed of Harris, Brioux and Collins, of singing, talking and music, entitled "The Sign of the Rose."

MARY PICKFORD IN SECOND PLACE.

Canada and the United States boast their Mary Pickford as the "darling of the screen." In England, however while Mary Pickford is conceded a great artist, the average motion picture fan will insist that she is not in the same class with their Betty Balfour, whom they have lovingly dubbed "Britain's Queen of Happiness." Miss Balfour has the leading role in the great photoplay "Reveille," which will be shown for three days at the Royal Theatre, starting on Monday.

Patrons who remember "Me and My Gal," "Squibs," "Squibs' Honeymoon," "Squibs wins the Calcutta Sweeps,' or any of the former Betty Balfour successes, will need no urging to see "Reville."

"THE PRIDE OF PLEASURE" BUSTER BROWN COMEDY AND GREAT CIRCUS MYSTERY AT ROYAL TO-DAY.

Virginia Valli and Norman Kerry find themselves happily associated and happily cast in "The Price of Pleasure," Universal-Jewel, which opens to-day at the Royal theatre, and in which they are co-starred. The picture is one of the most entertaining seen in a long time for it tells a perfectly natural story, replete with human interest.

There is for most persons something fascinating in the love romance of those from divergent walks of life or at least when it is a love romance between one of great fortune and social prestige, and one rom a more humble position. This is the situation in "The Price of Pleasure," for Miss Valli has the part of a shop girl and Kerry that of the son of a rich, socially established woman.

The picture opens with a most natural scene in the basement of a great department store. Miss Valli and a fellow clerk resting a moment between the rushes of a bargain day tornado. Kerry in the guise of a mechanic enters the place to make a purchase and overhears Miss Valli's plaint that never has she had a real good time. Immediately interested, and impressed by her beauty and evident fine character he invites her out. She consents and then is shown a scene to make one's heart warm for the girls who live in the tenement boarding house rob their meagre wardrobe so that their friend can make a presentable appearance.

The young man in the case drives up in a big limousine, much to the surprise of the girls, and finally drives away with the scarce-believing young woman. From then on her experience is like that of the princess of a fairy tale for the young man takes her to his magnificent home, has a maid take her to his sister's room and bedeck her in his sister's gowns.

For a week the girl leads this dual life and then the man's mother and sister return from abroad. After that comes tragedy stalking into the lives of these two young folks, and very human indeed is the manner in which the story is deftly developed by Director Edward Sloman.

There is a decided comedy element, cared for in competent manner by Louise Fazenda and T. Roy Barnes. Others in the supporting cast are Kate Leslie, George Fawcett, James O. Barrows and Marie Astaire, all splendid players of the screen.

AT THE REGENT

SYD CHAPLIN OUT FOR A GLOBE HIKE.

Star of "Man on the Box" Plans Walk Around World.

There are few people treading the earth to-day but have some secret ambition, something they would like to do other than their present occupation if only the opportunity presented itself. Syd Chaplin, now starring in "The Man on the Box," the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, at the Regent Theatre, is no exception to this rule.

It is probably a natural urge that makes the "grass on the other side of the fence look greener," and even a motion picture star is not exempt from this desire.

Syd Chaplin's ambition, however, is probably the most peculiar of any of his fellow-actors. He wants to walk around the world and says that it is the goal to which he is working. His idea of Utopia would be to pack all his belongings and send them to a large city ahead of him and then catch them by walking, stopping off at the various small towns and hamlets on the way. Then, when America has been thoroughly visited, he would take Europe and Asia. Chaplin figures that he could accomplish it all in five years and says that some day he is going to do it.

When one knows Syd it is not startling news to hear his ambition, because he is an insatiable reader of travel stories and history, and has the characteristics of the various countries at his finger tips. So if the newspapers ever flash the story that Syd Chaplin is missing you will know he has started a round-the-world tour on foot.

"The Man on the Box," adapted from the Harold MacGrath novel and play by Charles A. Logue, was directed by Charles "Chuck" Reisner.

Normal Vision is an Impossibility

For some. But if a person's vision is below par and he is not wearing glasses, an improvement as the result of an examination is practically a certainty. Our endeavour always is to give our patients the best vision compatible with comfort. That is the most that anyone could hope for under any circumstances. Let us look over your eyes.

ARE YOUR EYES 100 PERCENT EFFICIENT?

We do not expect you to answer yes or no to that, because we realize no one knows the answer to that question until his eyes have had a thorough examination. The well-informed person makes it a point to KNOW about his eyes. We can determine the condition of your eyes and give you the help they need.

And gone to a home of peace.
We miss him, yes we miss him,
Each day we miss him more;
His happy greetings when friends came in,
Now all of that is o'er.
He went from home with a smiling face,
How little did we know
That he be brought back cold in death,
But God had willed it so."

Memory of Beloved Queen Mother Honored by Sorrowing Citizens At Civic Service in St. Paul's Peterborough People Of All Creeds Gathered in St. Paul's Church To Hold Memorial Service for the Beautiful and Queenly Alexandra.

"ALL ARE ALIKE IN GRIEF FOR THEE."

St. Paul's Church was filled with the congregation that gathered last night to take part in the memorial service held for the late Queen Mother Alexandra. Besides hundreds of citizens there were members of the City Council and other civic bodies, the local Boy Scouts, and the officers of the local militia units. All joined heartily in singing the hymns, listened reverently to the prayers, the scripture lesson, and the address, and stood with bowed heads while the band of the Salvation Army played "The Dead March."

The service was in charge of Rev. J. W. Gordon of St. Andrew's Church. Others in the pulpit were Rev. William Allen of St. Paul's, G. J. Bousfield of St. Luke's, M. C. Mackinnon of Knox and A. J. Langford of Trinity, Commandant A. J. Smith of the Salvation Army, and His Worship Mayor Turner. The hymns were led by the Peterborough Male Voice Choir, which also rendered in most touching manner the late Queen Mother's favorite hymn, "Abide with me." Martin B. Chenhall presided at the organ.

After conveying the regrets of certain prominent citizens who were unable to be present, Rev. Mr. Gordon announced the opening hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Rev. William Allen then read for the lesson the ninetieth psalm, "Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations." Part of the solemn and impressive funeral service of the Church of England was then read by Rev. G. J. Bousfield, after which the hymn, "Asleep in Jesus," was sung.

Rev. Mr. Langford started his address with a statement of the birth of the late Queen. She was the daughter of King Christian IX of Denmark and the Princess Louisa of Hesse. She was born on Dec. 1, 1844, and died on Nov. 20, 1925, a life of almost eighty-one years.

"The mother, Princess Louisa," said Mr. Langford, "lavished the love and care of a true mother on the children that were born to the royal couple. She paid particular attention to the education of her children and was careful, while having them instructed in all the graces and accomplishments befitting their position, to inculcate in them the love of God, the love of the fellow creatures, and the love of family and home. The home was a modest one, where great economy was necessary, but there the princess attained all the attributes of goodness simplicity and reality of life which had a great influence on the character of the future Queen of Great Britain.

"A story is told of her girlhood days," said the speaker, "that illustrates her character. One day, in her childhood, she, with two of her sisters, sat in the forest near their home, and in the course of their conversation they expressed their wishes concerning the future. One wished for power and influence so that she could do much good; another wished to be clever and accomplished; but Alexandra said, 'I wish above all to beloved,' and she surely had her wish fulfilled.

"Princess Alexandra and her sisters were trained by their mother in housework, and for many years not only attended to the various domestic duties such as cooking, cleaning and mending, but also made their own clothes and trimmed their own hats.

"Not only personally beautiful, but beautiful of mind and of charity," said the speaker, "when it was first mooted in England that she was likely to be the choice of the Prince of Wales, there was a feeling of joy and gratitude.

"It was on Tuesday, March 10, 1863, that Prince Edward of Wales and Princess Alexandra were married in St. George's Chapel at Windsor. For thirty-eight years she and her husband stood in the shadow of the throne, maintaining the difficult position of prospective King and Queen with dignity. She was welcomed to British society and was soon recognized as leader of the ladies' set, as her husband was of the men's set.

"During their thirty-eight years as Prince and Princess of Wales they travelled extensively through the European continent and in other countries, but their happiest days were spent at home, particularly at Sandringham, their beloved Norfolk home. They took the deepest interest in their estate and in the people of its villages, and were proud of the model conditions existing in their domain. Many stories are told giving evidence of her kindness of heart, helpfulness, and human sympathy."

Mr. Langford then touched on the ascension to the throne of the royal couple, Alexandra was at the height of her popularity, and she had also the sympathy of the people for less than a year before the heir to the throne had died. Although she disliked ostentatious show and ceremony for their own sake, no queen filled the regal part with more brilliance and lustre when the occasion demanded it. During their short reign of nine years her influence as powerfully felt on the side of goodness and purity of life and conduct, and she carried on the good work in this respect of Queen Victoria.

Farewell To Alexandra

May 7, 1863
A Sequel to "A Welcome to Alexandra"

Sea-King's daughter from over the sea,
Alexandra.
Gone is the poet who welcomed thee,
But all who are left are mourning thee,
Alexandra.
Fire your salutes, O Fort and Fleet,
Lower your voices, O crowds in the street.
Think of her youth so joyous and sweet,
Think of her life with good replete.
Scatter today your loveliest flowers,
Sing, English birds, your choicest songs.
Sing of her deeds of charity,
Sing of her great simplicity,
Sing and make of your song a prayer
That joy be waiting her "over there."
Flags of England wave for her now,
Wave a half-staff as you waved on high;
Flames on the headland rise higher and higher,
Make her a mighty funeral pyre.
Moan, O bells, in the autumn air;
Gone for aye is the royal pair
That once ye greeted with joyous clang
As through all England your joyous music rang.
She came, and she conquered us, one and all,
Sea-King's daughter from over the sea,
Saxon and Norman and Dane though we be.
But she in turn became one of us—
An English queen of royal grace
Who added new lustre to our race.
And although in her passing we are sad,
There's an undertone in our hearts that is glad;
For she gave us memories rich and rare,
The Sea-King's daughter and bride of our heir,
A gift to the people, a gift to the throne;
She came to us, loved us, and made us her own.
And Saxon or Dane or Norman we,
Teuton or Celt, or whatever we be,
We are all alike in our grief for thee,
Alexandra.

SCORE OF LIVES LOST IN WORST STORM ALONG NORTH SEA COAST

Wireless Towers Whiffed Over—Wind Flattened Out Waves.

SHIPS ICE-CAKED.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Sea captains arriving at London Thursday on ships caked with frozen spray to their funnel tops described a storm which raged in the North Sea Wednesday as the worst in their experience.

Reports from the Northern European countries indicate widespread damage. Three high wireless towers at Norddeich, near Bremen collapsed while in Denmark the storm, which caused the King to change his route to London for the funeral of the Queen Mother Alexandra, disorganized traffic generally and severed communications.

Along the North Sea coasts of England and the continent numerous fishing boats and small craft were wrecked, with a score of lives lost.

"At one time," said the skipper of a channel boat from Amsterdam, "the wind was so strong it flattened out the waves until the sea looked like a great expanse of white table cloth spread around us. In all my years at sea I have never seen anything like this."

HEAVY DAMAGE IN EARLY BLAZE

Several Antigonish Firms Lost Stock and Equipment.

BUILDING DESTROYED.

ANTIGONISH, N.S., Nov. 27 (Canadian Press)—Damage estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000 was done by fire early this morning which broke out in the ice cream parlor of Brines Limited, destroying the three storey frame building occupied by that concern and spreading to the Cope Drug store and the dry goods store of W. E. Cunningham. Dr. Agnew, a dentist with offices above the dry goods store, also lost his equipment.

THE WEATHER.

While several inches of wet snow have fallen here, and the temperature has risen above the freezing point, a decided cold wave has come in from the north and is spreading over the northwest provinces. Zero to thirty below was registered in some places last night. While it is unsafe to speak definitely as to what the weather will do, or will not do, the likelihood is that high winds will prevail, and a change to considerably colder follow.—W. P.

MOTORIST DROVE OFF PIER, TAKING IT FOR BRIDGE

Four of Family Were Trapped in Car and Drowned.

DRIVER GOT OUT.

Was Unfamiliar With Streets and Made Mistake in Dark.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Nov. 27. — (United Press):—Mistaking a pier for the approach to Brooklyn Bridge, Michael Gentile, of White Plains, drove his touring car at top speed until it plunged over a string piece into the East River, drowning a father, a mother and two children.

Gentile freed himself after the car had sunk and was taken to a hospital, suffering from submersion. The dead were Antonio Bellatoni, his wife Dominica, their daughter Edith and son Antonio.

The Bellatonis had gone with Gentile to the home of friends here. The driver was unfamiliar with Brooklyn streets, and did not heed the whistle of the watchman who saw the car speeding into inevitable disaster.

VERY DESIRABLE.

BERLIN, Nov. 27. (Copyright, 1925, by United Press).—The venerable Admiral Von Tirpitz, who advocated submarine war against Germany's enemies and developed the U-boat to its highest war efficiency, told the United Press to-day in an exclusive interview that he favored abolition of the submarine as a war weapon.

Asked for his opinion of this question, in the light of England's renewed effort to have the "wasps of the sea" banished by international agreement, the Admiral declared this would be "desirable," although he attached a condition to his advocacy.

"The sanctity of private property on the seven seas," he said, "confroms to an ancient principle of law. Therefore, the abolition of submarines is extremely desirable, providing that the subsequent abolition of the blockade follows as a logical consequence."

GOVERNMENT WILL BUY BROADCASTER

Britain Plans To Nationalize Radio Service and End Monopoly.

LONDON, Nov. 27. (Canadian Press).—There are grounds for believing that the Government contemplates buying out the British broadcasting Company and nationalizing the radio service upon the expiry of the present monopolistic lease next year.

The original revenue of the company consisted of half of the Governmental license fees of 10 shillings for each broadcasting apparatus and also the sale of instruments.

Prize winners at the card party held on Wednesday evening in the basement of the Sacred Heart Church were Mrs. A. McMurray, Miss Nora Killen, Mr. J. Dennie, Mrs. H. Brioux and Mrs. Rice. Thirty-five tables of euchre were played.

Bachelors Have Place In The Scheme Of Matrimony Lady Astor's Ironic Praise

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Lady Astor paid tribute to the old maid and expressed sympathy for the bachelor in her remarks as presiding officer at the final session of the Social Insurance conference Thursday.

"The bachelor is the most helpful creature that ever was," Lady Astor declared. "He is the one thing making matrimony possible. If married women look at a bachelor they get a little more reconciled to their own husbands."

Lady Astor said she couldn't say the quivalent about the old maids. They carried on the work of the world, whereas the bachelors got crotchety and narrower as they got older.

"Old maids expand; old bachelors concentrate," she added. "Old maiden ladies usually become more beautiful as they grow older while man—the poor, lonely animal—the older he gets the lonier he becomes."

FRENCH CHAMBER FEARED TO GIVE SOCIALISTS THE REINS OF CABINET; PRESIDENT APPEALS TO BRIAND

Herriot, Obstructed By His Own Followers, Abandoned Cabinet Making.

CRISIS CONTINUES.

Second Overture to Briand Within Week to Save the Situation.

PARIS, Nov. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Aristide Briand, former Premier, last night was making his second effort of the week to constitute a Cabinet to succeed the Painleve Ministry which resigned Sunday.

The failure of former Premier Herriot to form a Cabinet, made known to President Doumergue on Thursday afternoon, brought the crisis back to the point where it was at the beginning of the week. The President, before seeking a fourth Cabinet maker, conferred again with the Parliamentary leaders and then appealed to M. Briand to step into the breach again and prevent the situation from going from bad to worse.

M. Briand, who was Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Painleve Cabinet, found the situation quite different than when he tried to make up a Ministerial combination early in the week. The Socialists in the meantime had by their manoeuvres forced President Doumergue to call on M. Herriot, and it was discovered that they had made it impossible for M. Herriot to succeed in forming a government.

Afraid of Socialists.

The experiments remaining to be tried were a Socialist Cabinet or a concentration government which would be formed regardless of the Socialist vote in the Chamber. A good many Radicals, and some of the more moderate parliamentarians advised that the Socialists be given a chance to show what they would do in power. It was thought the venture would last only a few weeks, when the situation would be cleared of Socialist obstruction and a stable government could be formed.

President Doumergue decided, however, that the experiment was too dangerous, and would be likely to bring further depreciation of the franc, disorganization of the country's finances and further tangling of the political situation. He gave preference to the idea of a concentration cabinet, and called M. Briand again after consulting with the Radical leaders as to the possibility of rallying the Radicals to a union of parties that would eliminate the Socialist influence.

Briand May Succeed.

Although preferring to take second place—that is, Minister of Foreign Affairs—in a Cabinet combination, M. Briand consented to make another effort. The general opinion last night is that, if he choses to rely on a majority composed of Radicals, representation of the Left and other moderate parties, he will be able to form a government that will last long enough to untangle the financial and political situations.

Man comes into this world naked and with nothing on him, but in a short time everybody has something on him.

Killed Muffling Bells For Memorial Service

SUNDERLAND, Eng., Nov. 27.— (Canadian Press.) —As he was muffling the bells for to-day's memorial service for the Queen Mother Alexandra, R. C. Hudson, warden of Bishop Wearmouth church, was killed. The big bell, which had been tilted, fell over and pinned him to the floor of belfry with his head and body badly crushed. Warden Hudson was a veteran of the World War.

LABOR MOTION WAS BLUNDER

Decision to Move Vote of Censure is Considered Tactical Blunder.

EXTREMIST MOVE.

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Canadian Press)—The Daily Mail says the decision of the Labor party in Parliament to move a resolution of censure of the government for having instituted the prosecution of the Communists is considered a tactical blunder into which the Labor leaders must have been forced by the extremist wing of the party.

The motion censuring the Government is sponsored by Ramsay MacDonald, J. H. Thomas, Philip Snowden, Arthur Henderson and others.

Alexandra Departed In Snow, as She Came Sixty-Two Years Ago

Simple and Impressive Service Held in the Great Abbey Church of Westminster While the Empire Mourned For Its Departed Queen.

MEMORIAL SERVICES THROUGH EMPIRE.

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Canadian Press) — Winter reaching out an icy hand, laid tribute on the bier of the gentle Alexandra, Britain's Queen Mother, today, covering her casket with a fleecy blanket of snow as it was trundled on a gun carriage from the Chapel Royal in the Palace, to Westminster Abbey, where the simplest of funeral services was held. Thus, the sea king's daughter departed from the capital of her adopted Empire as she had entered it, for snow was also falling on that distant day sixty two years ago when she came from Denmark to be the bride of Edward VII.

Close behind the casket, walking alone and with bowed head, came her son, head of England, muffled in a great coat and wearing the plumed hat of a field marshal, which also received a coating of white flakes before the procession had gone far. Abreast behind this solitary figure came the monarchs of Belgium, Norway, and Denmark, and back of them the Prince of Wales and his brothers, and the Crown Princes of Rumania, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, and Belgium, with Lord Lascelles and other nobles who have married into the royal family.

Under gray coats these royal figures wore the dress uniforms of the ranks they hold either in the army or the navy of Great Britain, but of the uniforms only the gold braided hats relieved the austere shades of the funeral procession. There was but a single other spot of color—Alexandra's own Royal Standard with which the casket was draped.

At the boom of the gun marking 11 o'clock, the casket was brought from the Chapel Royal and placed on the same gun carriage used at the funerals of Queen Victoria and Edward VII. King George emerged from the Palace, and the procession began its measured march through the Mall, Trafalgar Square, and Whitehall.

The soft slow music to the cadence of which the procession moved, was stopped as the gun carriage reached the entrance of the Abbey, and the coffin was carried into the darkened building on the broad shoulders of eight Guardsmen, who placed it upon a catafalque before the high altar. In the Abbey, waiting for the arrival of the procession was Queen Mary, dressed in deep black, her face covered with a heavy veil, and around her were the Queens of Spain, Nor-

POLICE JOURNAL PRAISES FORCE

Team Work Guide To Success, Says New York Paper of Peterboro' Police

LONG DESCRIPTION.

Under the head of "Teamwork Guide to Success of Newhall's Peterboro Constables" the following occurs in The Police Journal, a New York publication:

"Although a city of nearly 30,000 population and supporting many large factories and their heterogenous employees, Peterborough, Ontario, is ably policed by a department numbering eight men. Few are the serious crimes reported in this city in the course of a year, for it is a proverb in Peterborough that summary justice invariably pursues the malefactor. The answer to that is 'system,' a system carefully planned upon the most efficient and up-to-date lines, tried and shown effective.

"True, there is a spirit of contentment with prevailing conditions among the generality of Peterborough citizens, but credit must be given to the police for causing such conditions to prevail. While it may be contended tht, for instance, the police have no direct responsibility for such examples of the Peterborough working-man's prosperity as his ownership of his own home, yet it should be considered that a feeling of safety in a community is a decided inducement for men to settle there. Chief Newhall's police have made Peterborough a safe place in which to live.

"Many Peterborough workmen, foreign as well as native, own their own homes, as said before, and these homes are usually quite handsome and well kept. Thrift is encouraged in this city, many of whose citizens are men of marked affluence and own residences in the city which have been called palatial. Peterborough is a manufacturing city, having a number of plants domg a world-wide trade.

"The Peterborough police are governed by a commission. Samuel Newhall is chief constable; a clerk, sergeants, detectives, constables and chauffeurs form the remainder of the local police personnel.

"This force is a small one, as police departments go, but it is provided with the best of equipment. The police station is up-to-date in its equipment with such comforts and conveniences as are considered appropriate to police headquarters everywhere.

"The guide to Peterborough police efficiency is teamwork; each constable and superior knows definitely what it is his business to do, just what part he plays in the game; he knows his exact relation to the other members of the force—to just what extent he is to act independently or in conjunction with others. Chief Newhall is largely responsible for this spirit of co-operation among his men as well as for the good fellowship that prevails among them.

"The chief is held in the greatest esteem by his subordinates, and by his superiors and the general public also. The goodwill of the public in general likewise extends to the force as a whole which makes the task of policing Peterborough a more pleasant one than it might otherwise be."

In conjunction with the above article appears a photograph of Chief Newhall and also one of the entire force.

DRESS REHEARSAL OF KIWANIS SHOW

Everything Went Off in Good Style in Final Practice of "Miss Bob White."

There was a good dress rehearsal of the Kiwanis Club production, "Miss Bob White," at the Grand Opera House last evening. Everything went forward in fine style, and indications point to a decidedly successful two nights' performance with the opening this evening. A good-sized audience is already assured for both nights, although some good seats still remain unsold.

The story of the comic opera deals with the adventures of two young millionaires who have made and lost a freak election bet, and, as a consequence, are compelled to masquerade as tramps for two months and to suffer incidentally the hardships usually attributed to genuine "Knights of the Road."

There are three acts, and the cast of principal characters in order of their appearance is as follows: Lord Bashful (Mr. A. J. Reynolds); Friend Rodd, a Quaker farmer who works tramps (Mr. F. G. Stinson); Phyllis, daughter of Friend Rodd (Miss Mathilde Masson); Jack Harty, a farmer lad, later a Jackie (Mr. Hugh Niven); Miss Autumn, a one-only-al-dame (Miss Ernestine McManus); Maggie, the Maid (Mrs. E. V. Morphet); the Duke of High Titles, an English peer with ancestors (Mr. George Henderson); Artie Tre Billion and Billy Van Million, millionaires who are forced to be tramps for two months (Messrs. E. Vernon Morphet and Norman Laing); Claire Livingston, "Miss Bob White" (Mrs. Walter Byers); O'Yankemin, the village police force (Mr. Art Blade), and Devere. Tre Billion's man (Mr. Harry C. Huffman).

The musical numbers in the first act include a Hunting chorus by the Fox Hunters, a Swing song by Miss M. Masson and Mr. H. Niven, the Famous One-only-al Dames, by Miss E. McManus, and chorus, "An English Sparrow told me so," by Messrs. Henderson and Reynolds; Miss McManus and chorus, "By Chance we're both Willies," and the "Hunger Song," by Messrs. Morphet and Laing, who also sing "A Tramp has ups and downs in life," "Bob White (Quail Song)," by Mrs. Walter Byers and chorus, "There once was a King," by Messrs. Henderson and Reynolds, Miss McManus and chorus, and the "Churning Song," by Mrs. Byers, Miss Masson, Messrs. Reynolds, Morphet and Laing.

In the second act, the Milkmaids and Farmerettes have a Milkmaids' Chorus, and the ensemble sings "The Mystery of Love," which also winds up the third act. In Act Three, Miss Mathilde Masson and the Bubble Chorus sing "Meet me to-night in Bubbleland," Mr. Hugh Niven and chorus have "I Can't Help Loving Every Girl I See," "I just came in to say 'ello," is the Flirtation Chorus' selection, and "If you would be a Jackie," is sung by Mr. H. Niven and the Jackies.

ONTARIO'S FORMER INSPECTOR OF PRISONS BEGINS PRISON TERM

W. W. Dunlop, Guilty of Stealing From Government, Can't Eat or Sleep.

TORONTO, Nov. 27.—It was a vastly different W. W. Dunlop, under penitentiary sentence, who entered the jail Tuesday night, from the former W. W. Dunlop, Provincial Inspector of Prisons and Charities, who used to visit the jail on periodical inspections. In the old days he would enter with a swaggering, monarch-of-all-I-survey attitude.

His air of bravado, which he had maintained all the time he was in the witness box at the County Judge's Criminal Court, had left him. He entered the familiar portals as though in a dazed, highly nervous state. And he didn't seem to find a friend there to give him cheer. No smiling guard moved forward to learn his wishes and apprise the Governor of his presence. In silence he entered, and turned into the office to be "entered" on the jail books as a prisoner awaiting transfer to Kingston. It was seemingly hard for Dunlop to adjust himself to his position as he stood there. He was inclined to talk in an excited manner. A few moments were sufficient for him to state his name, age and other required particulars. His occupation he gave as "inspector."

Moralizing.

A few moments more sufficed to find him lodged on the third floor, and for a few minutes he was left to his own thoughts. Perhaps, in his bitter reflections, he recalled what he had written in his introductory comment to "the 58th annual report on the reformatories and jails of the province" when he moralized "Crime is a consequence, a result of some cause—a cause for which the criminal may or may not be responsible. The psalmist exclaims: 'Behold, I was shaped in iniquity.' Further on his prayer is, 'Let not inquity have dominion over me. Without attempting to dogmatize on what he meant, it is sufficient to state here that crime in its causes may be classified under three heads; heredity, environment and a fundamental tendency to revert to a lower stage of moral development, in which man resolves to do evil in spite of the prohibitions of God, human government and his own conscience. Which of these three causes is the greater may be left to theologians and penologists to decide."

Can't Eat Or Sleep.

Then came the supper hour. He had no appetite and declined a menu that was an improvement on the one he himself had so often inspected, for not long ago changes for the better were made in the jail dietary. It is recalled that at one time Dunlop had been asked to make a report on the dietary, but had neglected to do so. It came about after he was removed from his job, when "Andy" Pepall's experience brought the matter to the department's attention.

An hour later Dunlop retired for the night in an ordinary cell. He spent a very restless night, but in the morning he was compelled to rise with other law-breakers, to make his bed and clean his cell. Then came breakfast, with unsweetened porridge as the principal dish. Again he declined food. His attitude was still that of one under great nervous tension.

May Not Appeal.

Dunlop will likely remain at the jail for some days before his removal to Kingston. He can, if he wants to, stay there for a week or ten days to straighten up his personal affairs, if he makes an application to do so. And he may stay for a period up to 30 days if he and his counsel decide, on an appeal, which seems to be not likely.

Causes of Crime.

Dunlop, in his annual report to the Government for 1923, said in part: "As a cause of crime, heredity is more insidious and subtle, while environment is more superficial and conventional, though equally powerful. The third cause—the fundamental tendency to wickedness, or what the theologians call original sin—plays a smaller part in the make-up of the criminal. It is not so predisposing as heredity, nor so direct a force as example. The youth who, in spite of college education turns out to be a profligate, is an example of the power of heredity. His background weighs more than his education. The child born in a home with a high moral average, and who has been indulged in everything he wants, has insufficient will power to withstand the lure of temptation. He does not lead the way, but he readily falls into the swim, whether that swim be good or evil, and is carried along irrespective of his inheritance."

Jail "City of Refuge."

And, further on, he said, in commenting upon the fact that 40 per cent. of Ontario's crime was found in Toronto: "If there is any moral to be deducted herefrom, it is that we must carry in our social equipment the facilities for imposing a penalty."

And he added: "The common jail is something more than a safe place of restraint. A man of mature years, educated in literature, law and chemistry, makes this statement: 'I hope when my time comes to die that I will die within the precincts of a jail.' Why this wish? His answer is equally logical:

"'When I am in jail I am always penitent, trying and hoping to do better, but when I get out into civilized society I lose my penitence and my hope of salvation.'

"To this man the jail was a city of refuge, where he felt safe from the temptations of civilization and where he was able to live in a proper attitude towards God and man."

Williams Next.

In all probability the case against Fred Williams, an inspector of prisons and charities, under the Ontario Government, charged with the theft of $3,000 from the Government, will be brought up to-day at the least. This trial will not likely last very long as Williams has made restitution of the monies he received.

Williams was a witness in the Dunlop case.

Turks Don't Like Hats Rebellion At Erzerum

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 27 (United Press) — A revolt has broken out at Erzerum against the modernization policy of the Angora government.

Great masses of the populace closed the shops and rushed to the governor's house, shouting "Down with irreligious officials."

Martial law was declared and many have been arrested.

Erzerum is the principal city of Turkish Armenia and is the capital of the vilayet of the same name. Its population is about 50,000. It will be recalled that under the government of Mustapha Kemal, the Turkish assembly recently passed a law declaring the wearing of any headgear except the hat to be illegal. There were only two dissenting votes but this step toward modernization has caused much resentment.

NEW INVENTION SAVES MILLIONS

A Lamp That Burns 94 P.C. Air.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent. air and 6 per cent. common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. B. Johnson, 240 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

TANNERY WORKER TERRIBLY MANGLED

Pole Was Caught in Machinery and Had Both Arms Torn Out.

GUELPH, Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press.)— Mike Nickoluk, aged 50, an Austrian Pole, employed at the Beardmore tannery, Acton, was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital, Guelph, this morning, suffering from frightful injuries sustained when caught in a leather wringing machine there this morning. Both arms were horribly mangled and torn from their sockets before the machinery could be stopped, which necessitated their amputation on arrival at the hospital here. Advices from the hospital indicate that the injuries may prove fatal because of the shock.

Gas, biliousness, heartburn, dyspepsia, and similiar ills will not trouble you if you take Seigel's Syrup. Any drug store.

WEDDING BELLS.

FARLEY—CAVANAGH.

DOURO, Nov. 27.—A pretty November wedding took place on Wednesday morning at St. Joseph's Church when Catherine Elizabeth (Bessie), fourth daughter of the late Richard Cavanagh and Mrs. Cavanagh, was united in marriage to Stanislaus D. Farley, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Farley. The pastor, Rev. M. J. McGuire, performed the celemony and celebrated the nuptial mass in the presence of many friends and relatives. Miss Mabel Allen presided at the organ and the choir sang hymns. Miss Margaret McCarthy of Peterboro, a young niece of the bride, sang two solos in splendid voice.

The bride wore a gown of pencil blue satin-faced Canton, with black velvet picture hat and coat of plucked beaver, with corsage bouquet of white roses and Maidenhair fern. The bridesmaid, Miss Annie Whibbs, cousin of the bride, wore a nigger brown velvet dress with silk trimmings, velvet hat in burnt orange shade and a Hudson seal coat and a corsage bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Kenneth Cavanagh, brother of the bride, supported the groom. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl rosary, to the bridesmaid a pearl ring and to the groomsman a tie pin.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, only immediate relatives being present. Many splendid gifts were received by the young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Farley left on the afternoon train for Buffalo, where the honeymoon will be spent, and later will make their home in Detroit.

TOWNS—O'BRIEN.

DOURO, Nov. 27.—A pretty November wedding took place Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's Church when Seraphine, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Brien, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles Edward Towns, second son of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Towns. The ceremony was performed and the nuptial mass said by the pastor, Rev. M. J. McGuire in the presence of many friends and relatives. The organist, Miss Mabel Allen, presided at the organ and the choir, of which the bride is a member, sang appropriate hymns. The bride wore a gown of rosewood satin-faced Canton, with trimmings in peach shade. Her coat and velvet hat were also in the rosewood shade and she wore the groom's gift, a rope of pearls. Miss Kathleen Towns, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and wore a gown of rose Canton crepe, with black satin hat and brown fur-trimmed coat. She also wore the groom's gift, a gold bracelet. The groom was assisted by Mr. Garnet O'Brien, brother of the bride, who received a pair of gold cuff links from the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. A splendid array of useful and beautiful gifts was received by the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Towns will reside on their farm near the village.

A pleasing feature in connection with the wedding was the fact that the date was the twenty-ninth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Towns, the groom's parents.

FLEETING FAME.

How fleeting is fame!

Readers of the Examiner, at least those whose lives are reaching the sere and yellow stage, must have thought so the other day when they read of the funeral at New Canaan, Conn., of the once renowned Clara Morris, a native of Canada, who climbed to the highest heights in the theatrical world.

One lone motor car followed the remains of the erstwhile famous artist to the cemetery—one lone car in the funeral cortege of a woman who at one time was acclaimed the greatest actress in America.

A generation or so ago the praises of Clara Morris were being sung on every side. In such roles as "Camille," as "Mercy Merrick" and "The New Magdalene," as "Cora" in "L'Article 47," and in many other popular plays of a bygone age, she scored a triumph such as has rarely been achieved by an actress on this continent.

Under the management of Augustin Daly, a contract that continued for nearly twenty years, Clara Morris went from one successful part to another, until her pre-eminence as the foremost actress of her period was universally admitted.

The other day the once widely-acclaimed star was buried in a Connecticut town with only three or four people in attendance at her funeral—the funeral of an actress over whose talent and genius a whole continent raved but a few short years ago.

SLACKER VOTERS SCORED.

Mr. Justice Riddell does not mince words in his reference to citizens who fail to take enough interest in public affairs to vote when called upon to do so.

In an address in Toronto this week His Lordship declared that a man who is entrusted with the franchise and fails to u it, or who uses it merely for his own benefit, is in a sense a traitor to his country.

In his opinion and in his defence of politicians, Justice Riddell will have plenty of company.

There is too great a tendency, as he points out, to treat politicians with a "holier than thou" attitude.

"A politician," explained the speaker, "is one who takes an interest in the affairs of his country, in how it is governed and in how its revenues are spent. Any person who looks with contempt upon a man of this kind is himself unworthy to be called a Canadian freeman. I say that the man who goes to the polls and votes with as much intelligence as he possesses is the real citizen, not the man who stays away and neglects to execute his trust on behalf of himself and others."

These are words that should be remembered in view of the rapidly approaching municipal elections, which are usually treated with indifference by about fifty per cent. of the electorate in Peterboro.

A TIMELY WARNING.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce is demonstrating its desire to serve the community by issuing a timely warning to the recipients of insurance moneys as to the desposition of these moneys.

This action has been inruced by a knowledge of the ease with which the average widow and others without business training or experience can be wheedled into putting the money left them by life insurance policies, endowments and other matured investments into the most worthless of stocks, wild-cat real estate promotions and other schemes of the most doubtful character.

As the Chamber of Commerce points out, any lawyer or banker can cite dozens of instances where the entire savings of a thrifty man's life-time, amassed by years of sacrifice and toil, were swept away simply because a widow or an orphan trusted one of the bogus stock salesmen, or other smooth crooks who rob women as a means of livelihood.

Many Peterboro people will find the warning of value, and would do well to secure satisfactory answers to the following questions before signing agreements for the purchase of any stocks or bonds:

1. Does your banker or some other reliable financial adviser say it is a safe investment?
2. Will a bank lend money on the stock?
3. Who are the men behind the company or enterprise?
4. How much of your money goes to the salesman?
5. Can you sell the stock or other securities offered when you need money?

A CROOK WITH A HEART.

Somewhere in Winnipeg there is a hold-up man with a heart that is too big for the "profession" its owner is following.

The other night a Winnipeg man was on his way home when he was held up and robbed of $227, the proceeds of a concert held for the benefit of a Christmas stocking fund for the poor children of Winnipeg.

The next day a shabbily-clad man left a parcel at the office of the headquarters of the fund and departed.

In the parcel was found a watch belonging to the citizen who was robbed and the missing money, with this note inclosed:

"Sorry we did the job. Did not know whose money it was. Spent two dollars before reading."

Hard up as the thief undoubtedly must have been, he was too big a man to keep money that he knew was to bring Christmas cheer to children who were worse off than he was.

Most of us reading of this incident will hope that the tide will speedily turn for this kind-hearted criminal and that he will find himself located in a legitimate and profitable employment.

A man so full of the milk of human kindness should be saved from the penitentiary term toward which he is undoubtedly heading—and the average man will pray that his feet will soon be placed squarely on the right path again.

The genuine spirit of Christmas breathes in him—hold-up man though he be.

IN DEFENCE OF CHATTER.

A woman writer has come to the defence of chattering women. Instead of denying that women are talkative she admits it and as a woman seems rather proud of it, says the Stratford Beacon-Herald. There is much to be said for chattering, she says. It is restful to the speaker and does not put a heavy burden on the listener. Neither, apparently, does it subject the talker to any great strain. Probably the worst that can be said against chattering, when it does not descend to malicious gossip, is that it means a waste of time. On the other hand, it helps to fill in time that might otherwise drag painfully. And, no doubt, it is helpful to the nerves.

But while it is the custom to speak of women as the talkative sex, it must not be assumed that men do not do their share of chattering; they would probably find it as difficult to fill in their spare time without chattering as would the women. The subjects which men use may be different from the subject favored by the woman; but the men do indulge in a lot of idle talk. Perhaps they can't help it any more than the women can. It is an exceedingly difficult matter to carry on a really good conversation; and it is probably no easier for men than for women. It is sometimes said that good conversation is one of the lost arts. Probably there is some truth in the saying. One explanation may be that everybody reads the newspapers these days; and every time that anyone has something good to say he feels restrained by the thought that his hearers may have seen it already in the papers. And people are too busy with other things to think of anything original to say. There was a time when a man could make a reputation for himself as a conversationalist by learning the jokes in an almanac; but that time is gone. Even the almanacs get their jokes from the newspapers.

WEATHER IN 1816.

Weather prophets are proclaiming a summerless year for 1926. They say it will be the equal of 1816. Then the people of Canada and Europe had a year of great distress. Frank Moberly, C.E., Barrie, Ont., has fyles of the Montreal Herald for the momentous years 1916-17-18-19. They form a history of Canada and the world that is very replete. They tell of a world then suffering from the convulsions of the French revolution, the Napoleonic wars and the war of 1812-15 on this continent, as well as a glance at the beginning of the struggle which ended with the destruction of Spanish dominion in America.

Speaking of the weather of 1816 the paper tells of a year in which frost occurred in all of the summer months in many sections. In the issue of the Herald, August 24th, record is made of "dreadful storms of rain and hail with intense cold for the season" in Montreal district. In the issue a week later "hail in quantities almost exceeding belief" was reported. September was marked by intense drought in the early part, with severe frosts on the 11th and still more severe frosts on the 26th and 28th, the result being that potato tops, which had been partially frozen early in the month, were wholly destroyed before the month ended. The corn crop was also cut down by the frost of the 11th and oats were left in a condition fit only for forage. In Quebec district generally crops were short of middling and in some parishes they wholly failed. Potatoes and hay were each only half crops in the Province, and because of the shortage of the latter the use of thistles, milkweed and wild parsnips was advised as substitute forage crops. Even with this it was seen that all live stock could not be carried through a winter that began in the middle of November and holders were advised to kill and salt down those cattle for which feed was not available.

Sir John Cope Sherbrooke, Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of Canada, suspended the tariff and permission was given to import, duty free, from the United States bread, biscuits, flour, rice, beans, potatoes and grain of all kinds. The value of this concession was, however, modified in a measure by requiring all such imports to be made in British vessels by British subjects. The value of the concession made was further modified by the fact that anything but a condition of plenty existed across the line.

Europe suffered equally as severely with added political strife. In the United Kingdom the suffering endured by the tenantry was "beyond precedent," prices of farm produce, despite a third shortage of the wheat crop, being as low as in 1784, while rents had trebled in the meantime. In manufacturing towns conditions were still worse, the general distress surpassing all previous records. Maintenance of the poor was costing English parishes six millions sterling annually and the pending discharge of 300,000 soldiers and sailors, with the restoration of peace, was expected to aggravate the situation. As if all this was not enough, serious riots occurred in various parts of England, following upon the introduction of machines for dressing woollen cloth, and manufacturers in Leicester and Nottingham were forced to fly to distant parts of the country to escape the fury of their enraged workmen. In Ireland conditions were still worse and three regiments of cavalry were sent over to check the armed bandits that were ravaging the country.

In an effort to escape from an accumulation of horrors emigration to the United States from England, Ireland and Germany reached, for that time, enormous magnitude, but for many of the migrants the new world was found to be no better than the old. These were the conditions that prevailed in the summerless year. No such a condition could be encountered now, for great and remarkable have been the improvements during the century which has passed since frosts were an episode in every month of the year 1816.—Kingston Whig.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

American apples sold in England were found to contain arsenic. One of those every day wouldn't keep the doctor away.

The early Christmas shopper is discovering that Peterboro's stores are full of Yuletide gifts, and that the best of service as well as the widest choice are available.

Rural opposition killed an Elgin County bylaw proposing to compel all vehicles travelling after dark to carry lights. Evidently many farmers prefer to risk their lives to having to suffer the expense and inconvenience of providing lights.

Parliament, it is expected, will open in December and close—when? Mr. Forke may have the answer, but he's Scotch.

TORONTO, Nov. 26—This morning's sales included a number of left-over handy and medium weight butchers' steers and heifers. These brought $6.50 to $6.50 a cwt. One only fair quality baby sold at $8.50 a cwt.

A number of butchers' cows sold today at steady prices, and one good cow brought $5.25 a cwt. Speculators advanced stockers and feeders this week to the detriment of sales and a large number are being carried over. Offerings of these were made today at a drop of 25 cents a cwt.

The calf market was strong again today and a few were sold below 10 cents a pound. Good to choice calves brought 11½ to 12½ cents a pound.

Lambs close the week steady at 13½ cents a pound for the ewes and wethers and at 12½ cents for extra heavies. Sheep were firm at 7 cents for choice handyweights.

With over 9,000 hogs in the market this week, the packers were favored and the price was lowered 50 cents a cwt. Attempts to get the market down to $11.50 a cwt. f.o.b. failed on Wednesday, and tickets were all marked at $11.75 a cwt., which is today's price.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—There was some enquiry for Canadian Western No. 2 feed oats which resulted in sale of several loads being made and purchases against these were made in the local market at 2 3-4 to 3 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg November option, c.i.f. Montreal.

The tone of the market for oats was firm and prices were unchanged with some demand for car lots and sales of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white were made at 53 cents, No. 3 white at 51 1-2 cents, and No. 4 white at 49 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track. Ontario malting barley sold at 85 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track.

Advance in Flour.

The feature of the flour trade was the stronger feeling that prevailed in the market for spring wheat grades of flour and millers generally advanced prices another 20c per barrel, which makes a net rise within the past week of 70 cents per barrel, but they are still 50 cents per barrel lower than at this date a year ago. The strength in the situation was attributed principally to the further rise in the prices for cash wheat at Winnipeg and the good demand for all offerings to fill tonnage.

In sympathy with the above and the continued upward tendency of prices for the raw material the tone of the market for winter wheat flour was also strong, and prices were marked up another 10 cents per barrel. The offerings from Ontario millers show no improvement and this coupled with small stocks held on spot also tends to strengthen the situation.

The volume of business was small and the market was quiet. There was no change in the condition of the market for white corn flour, but the undertone was firm with sales of small lots at $6.80 to $7 per barrel in jute bags, delivered to the trade.

The market for rolled oats displayed further strength, and prices were marked up 15c per bag, which was attributed to the good demand for supplies from local and country buyers and the small offerings.

A very firm feeling continues to

BRITISH HOUSE DEFEATS LABOR CENSURE MOTION

Government Charged With Failing to Remedy Unemployment Situation.

VOTE 322-133.

Ramsay MacDonald Asserts Dole Publicity Injures Britain in U.S.A.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—During a debate on the unemployment question in the House of Commons Thursday J. Ramsay MacDonald, former Labor Premier, declared nothing had done the British business and political intelligence more damage in the United States than the widespread belief there that the unemployment dole in this country is a state charity instead of a state insurance, as is the case. He ridiculed the contention that re-imposition of the McKenna duties has been followed by greater employment.

The debate was precipitated by an attempt by the Labor party to censure the government for not dealing with the unemployment problem in an adequate manner. Although official weekly figurs in recent months have shown a gradual reduction in the number of unemployed persons, Tom Shaw, who introduced the resolution of censure stated the present figure of 1,198,077 unemployed was misleading and that at least 7,000 more should be added.

Mr. Shaw was interrupted frequently and challenged from the government benches. Premier Baldwin finally was forced to appeal for an orderly debate. The Minister of Labor, Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, denied there had been any misrepresentation of unemployment figures. He said: "There is, without question, a very distinct improvement in British trade, but it is an improvement with very dark patches still there."

The Laborite motion of censure was defeated 322 to 133.

GERMAN REICHSTAG APPROVES LOCARNO TREATIES TO BE SIGNED IN LONDON DEC. 1

Overwhelming Majority On Second Reading — Ensures Attendance of Luther and Streseman at London For Signatures.

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—By an overwhelming majority the Reichstag yesterday adopted, on the second reading, the law approving the security pact and arbitration treaties initialled at Locarno and Germany's entry into the League of Nations. Today the treaties will be formally ratified with the third reading of the measure, thus enabling Chancellor Luther and Foreign Secretary Stresemann to proceed to London to sign the pact and treaties. In the course of the next month Germany will make formal application for admission to the league.

The only opposition to the various treaties came from the German Nationalists, communists and extreme nationalists, led by General Ludendorff. The attempt of the nationalists to forestall Germany's adhesion to the league by demanding the enactment of a special law authorizing such procedure, was defeated by a heavy vote.

With regard to Germany's entry into the league, the Centrists, German Peoples Party and Democrats have adopted a resolution "to urge the government to exercise all possible energy to obtain amplification of the concessions in accordance with the spirit of Locarno prior to Germany's entry into the league."

The resolution will be supported by the social democrats.

FIFTY PER CENT. FOR PREFERENCE

Canadian Goods Must Be Half Made Here To Get British Rate.

NEW ZEALAND LAW.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—New Zealand is doubling the percentage of British labor and materials required in imports under British preferential rates. The present percentage of "British origin" required is twenty five. The new regulations, which comes into force on April 1 next, will be fifty. The effect of it will be that Canadian goods exported to New Zealand will have to be fifty per cent Canadian labor and materials if they are to get the advantage of the British preference. The increase will particularly affect the Canadian branches of American firms which are only assembling or partly manufacturing in Canada.

LAW TOO LENIENT FOR WIFE BEATER

Husband Deserved Flogging, Magistrate Declared.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—It took Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon only five minutes in police court Thursday to dispose of a case termed by him "the most aggravated that has ever been brought to my attention" when he heard evidence, convicted and sentenced Frederick Barr, 38 years old, to a term of one year in the common jail on charges of non-support and wife desertion.

"You ought to be locked up and flogged," the court said after Mrs. Maud Carr told a sordid tale of ill treatment, abuse and neglect at her husband's hands. "There isn't a person in the courtroom who has any respect for you."

Mrs. Carr declared her husband had punched her face and knocked her down five times. Carr himself admitted striking his wife although he had hit her with his open hand, he said.

Art From Wembley Is Being Shown Now in Whitechapel.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Canadian artists' paintings which were on exhibition at the British Empire exhibition at Wembley have been removed to White Chapel in the east end of of London, where they will remain temporarily. Andrew Taylor, a well known London art expert, at the opening of the temporary exhibition in Whitechapel remarked that Canadian art might be described as virile. It was not finished art he said, and some of it was crude but it possessed immense possibilities.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

FARMER TO HANG FOR OLD MURDER

John Cooling Sentenced Today For Crime of Nov. 5, 1921.

SLEW FOR MONEY.

MINNEDOSA, Man., Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — For a crime committed four years ago, John Cooling, a Shoal Lake district farmer, was this morning sentenced to be hanged on February 19. Cooling was yesterday convicted of the murder of Dymtro Czayka on Nov. 5, 1921. During the trial alleged confessions of the convicted man were submitted, stating that Czayka had been killed with an axe and robbed. The body was discovered underneath a pig pen. Cooling was in poor circumstances at the time of the murder. In his confession he declared he took the money to help his wife who was without food.

BARACA VOLLEY BALL LEAGUE IS OPENED

Four Teams Are Evenly Matched and Opening Games Were Good.

The Baraca class of Murray street Baptist Church has formed a volley ball league and the four teams got off to a flying start last night at the "Y" gym. The first tilt saw the Indians and Pirates in action. Two games were played and the Redskins subdued the Buccaneers twice, 15-12, 15-10. The second struggle was between the Giants and Tigers. Owing to erratic serving the Giants fell in three straight games to the Tigers, 15-10, 15-8, 15-10. The teams are well matched and under the capable leadership of Roy Perdy, Jack Lewis, Bob Miller and Bob Sturgeon, who manage the Indians, Pirates, Giants, and Tigers respectively. The future of the organization is very promising. The next games scheduled are;

Wednesday, Dec. 2—8.00-9.30—Tigers vs. Indians; 8.30-9.00—Pirates vs. Giants.

DOHERTY SAYS HE AGREES WITH MEIGHEN POLICY

PROBLEM ECONOMIC.

King Has Disregarded Co-operative Marketing, Which Is Needed, He Says.

TORONTO, Nov. 27. (Canadian Press).—Manning Doherty, M.L.A. for East Kent, former Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, and leader of the Farmers' group in the Legislature at the 1924 session, following the defeat of the Drury Government in June, 1923, is resigning his seat. In a letter to his constituents of East Kent, he states that he has notified Hon. Joseph Thompson, Speaker of the House, of such action and explains that he feels that it would not be honest to remain in the Legislature as a Progressive member when he is bound to support the Conservative party in Federal matters, though recognizing that Federal and Provincial issues are not identical. Hon. Mr. Doherty says he is of the opinion that the immediate problems of agriculture are economic rather than political. He considers the most important thing where the farmer is concerned is the co-operative marketing of products. While Mr. King has utterly disregarded this question, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen has pledged himself, if returned, to give every assistance toward the establishment of a national co-operative system of marketing of farm products, both at home and abroad. As to tariff, Mr. Meighen's promise of a tariff board and tariff adjustments largely coincides with his own views.

CONCESSION MADE TO GRAIN VESSELS

American Ships May Load Canadian Grain For Spring Delivery.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—United States vessels are permitted to load grain for winter storage at any Canadian port before the close of navigation this year according to an order in council made public here yesterday. This suspension of part of the Canadian coasting regulations is conditional upon the unloading of such cargoes at a Canadian port when navigation is resumed next Spring. This concession has been made for several years past toward the close of the navigation season.

VETERANS DRAFT PRINCIPLES FOR PROPOSED UNION

Unity of All Ex-Service Men of Canada First Object.

PRESENTED TO-DAY.

Conference at Winnipeg Will Also Discuss Name To-day.

WINNIPEG, Nov 27 (Canadian Press)—Loyalty to the Empire and a programme of useful service to Canadian veterans are the outstanding features of a draft constitution for the proposed union of veterans, which will be presented to the conference of war veteran organizations here today.

The conference spent most of Thursday debating a name for the Union, and the session adjourned until today, to permit the constitution committee to conclude its labors.

The conference will be asked to approve the following principles as part of the constitution:

"The Association shall be democratic, non-sectarian and shall not be affiliated to, or connected with any political party or organization.

"It shall stand for loyalty to the reigning sovereign, Canada, and the Empire; for the maintenance of the foundation principles of the British Constitution, for the development of a national and united spirit, and for ordered government in Canada, and, while striving for peace and goodwill and friendship among all nations, will advocate the maintenance by Canada of adequate forces, on land, sea and in the air for the defence of our country, for the discharge of those obligations which rest upon us by virtue of our partnership in the British Empire.

"It shall stand for strong and united comradeship among all those who have served in His Majesty's forces throughout the Empire."

The aims and objects of the new association are set forth at great length, including among other things the right of the union of veterans to take any constitutional action to secure the rights of the ex-service men.

Unity First Object.

Unity is set forth as the first object of the new organization. Other aims are, preservation of the records and memories of service, to see that

SCORE WAS 2-1.

BOSTON, November 27. — Canadian Press. — The Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, now calling themselves the Pirates, stepped from the ranks of amateur hockey last night to defeat the Bruins of Boston, in the opening game of the National Hockey League season. The score was 2 to 1. The Boston Arena was jammed with a holiday crowd to see Pittsburgh's first appearance as professionals, and the former western club of the amateur association, proved themselves a far stronger offensive team.

CROWDED AUTO BUS AND TRAIN COLLIDE

28 Passengers Narrowly Escaped Injury in London, Ont.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Collision between one of the large auto buses of the Metropolitan Bus Lines and a C.N.R. yard engine at the C.N.R. backway track on Adelaide street at ten o'clock Wednesday night in which 28 passengers narrowly escaped may result in police court action against operators of the bus lines, acording to Chief of Police Robert Birrell.

Individual bus licenses call for a seating capacity with a maximum load of 20 passengers. If 28 passengers were on board the bus at the time of collision it was an excessive load, Chief Birrel points out, and a direct violation of the bus licenses for operation in London.

One seat (Bagot) is vacant.

BELL RINGER KILLED.

Muffling Bell For Alexandra's Memorial.

SUNDERLAND, Eng., Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—As he was muffling the bells for to-day's memorial service for Queen Mother Alexandra, R. C. Hudson, warden of the Bishop-Wearmouth Church, was killed Thursday. A big bell which had been tilted fell over and pinned him to the floor of the belfry, with his head and body badly crushed.

Warden Hudson was a veteran of the World War.

COLD DIP IN WEST.

North Wind Ends Indian Summer Mildness.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 27. — (Canadian Press). — Temperatures throughout the three Prairie Provinces took a steep nose dive on Thursday as a bitter north wind brought to an abrupt end a period of Indian summer weather. The Arctic blast chased the mercury down to four below zero at Edmonton, which was the coldest point in the whole Dominion. Prince Albert, Sask., and The Pas, Man., were near the zero mark.

The Great Economy in Home Cooking

When Grandmother was a girl, it wasn't much of a hardship to live well on little money. A dinner of fried chicken, four vegetables and custard dessert meant very little outlay.

In the good old days when eggs were 5c. a dozen, milk 3c. a quart and chickens 12c. each — when maids received $30 a year instead of $30 a month, and coal was NOT $16 a ton — housewives did not have to look after the pennies as they do today.

With such former prices doubled and doubled and doubled again, one of the chief problems in the kitchen is to make economical dishes more attractive and to utilize the left-overs.

Making Every Penny Count

Fortunately, the woman of today has an invaluable ally in "OXO" Beef Cubes. With these to supply the rich flavour and the food elements of prime fresh beef, she makes every penny count in buying and preparing meals.

The less expensive cuts of meat become as tasty as porterhouse when a couple of "OXO" Cubes are added to the gravy.

Delicious Dishes from Left-Overs

Stews, croquettes, meat pies and baked hash have the fresh beef flavour when "OXO" Cubes are added.

Vegetable soup of any kind, is vastly improved by the tasty flavour which "OXO" Cubes give.

Beefsteak Pie

The proportions here given are suitable for use with about one cupful of left-over beefsteak cut into inch slices. Where more steak is on hand, the other ingredients may be increased accordingly if desired.

1 cup cold beefsteak cut into inch pieces.
2 cups potatoes (parboiled five minutes and cut in cubes.
1 small onion minced.
1 carrot (or this may be omitted).
1 tablespoon of butter or beef suet.
2 tablespoons flour.
2 cups boiling water.
2 "OXO" BEEF CUBES.

Fry the two cupfuls of boiling water over the beefsteak, potatoes, carrot and minced onion and cook slowly until the meat is tender. Then remove the butter or beef suet and stir into the stew and let cook again until it begins to thicken. Dissolve the "OXO" BEEF CUBES in the cup of boiling water and add. Remove from the fire. Taste and if more seasoning is required, season to taste. Pour into a buttered baking dish or casserole and cover the top with a rich baking-powder biscuit dough. Bake in a hot oven for about 20 to 25 minutes.

Because "OXO" CUBES are the concentrated flavour and nourishment of the choicest beef—they give flavour and strength to dozens of dishes; they help you to make meals more attractive, and are soundly economical.

ANNUAL REPORT BIG SISTERHOOD

Great Deal of Work Has Been Done During Year By Association.

CASH ON HAND.

While their work is mostly done in the cold weather, they have found it necessary this year to supply milk and other necessaries, up to the present, and for this fall's work have already looked after three families.

The cash handled by the association does not show the amount of work accomplished among the needy. The ladies make many personal calls, in each home, giving a helping hand and advice where needed.

The clothing and bedding donated by the generous citizens of Peterboro last winter was wonderful.

The ladies of Bridgenorth sent in last winter a most generous bale of clothing, practically fitting out a very worthy family, where father and mother were very ill and several small children were in dire need.

The George Street Church ladies made up some splendid clothing, which found its way to those most needing it.

Sixty-two families—children numbering eight in many—were the families assisted last winter. Many of these small hands and feet found comfort in the articles handled through the association.

The association is preparing for another winter's work, and ask all ladies interested to attend a meeting to be held in the Chamber of Commerce on Monday afternoon, Nov. 30th, at 3.30 o'clock. The organization is in need of workers, and trust that many ladies will respond.

In the very near future, the members hope to have a room where they can receive all donations of clothing. Announcement of location of same will be made later. The president, Mrs. J. Knox, may be telephone for any further information, at 788-W. Mrs. George Benton is the secretary and Mrs. B. W. McLennan treasurer.

FIND TRACES OF NORSE COLONIES

Many Evidences in Greenland of Early Norse Settlements There.

STARTED 1,000 A.D.

The Danish archaeological expedition to Greenland has recently discovered many evidences of the early Norse settlers there. Graveyards of old churches have been dug up and many relics found. The last inhabitant of this first European colony in the New World disappeared hundreds of years ago. Had the colony survived and prospered, the white man's sway in this hemisphere would have begun fully five centuries before the time of Columbus, and America would have to-day a civilization nearly a thousand years old.

It is now regarded as certain that the Norse settled in Greenland about the year 1000, attained a population of 10,000, and flourished for several centuries. The colony was "lost" when communication with Europe ceased, about 1400 A. D. When Greenland was rediscovered, some three centuries later, no white men were found.

The colony was a republic. Twelve churches were built and were regarded as of sufficient importance to have a bishop to direct them. The planting of the colony followed the voyages and discoveries of Eric the Red. Of the fleet of twenty-five vessels that set out to carry inhabitants to Greenland, only fourteen reached their destination. Two centres of population were founded, and soon comprised 190 farms. Leif Ericsson brought Christianity in 1000 A. D., and the foundations of the churches then built still remain.

From Greenland sailed Ericsson and, later, Karlsefan in hope of planting towns on the coast of what is now New England. One colony is believed to have dwelt for three years near the site of Boston. Ships plied more or less regularly between Europe and Greenland until 1410. The new land was not visited again until 1585, by which time the Norse had vanished. It was not until 1721 that the present Danish European settlement in Greenland was made.

The Danish archaeologists believe that the first settlers were not exterminated by the Eskimos, as has been supposed, but were overcome by the rigors of the polar climate.

THE MARKETS

prevail in the local market for eggs and prices show no important change. The demand for strictly fresh stock is still somewhat in excess of the daily receipts and the prospects are that there may possibly be a further rise in values in the near future. The trade in storage eggs was fairly active, there being a steady demand from grocers and other dealers for supplies to meet actual wants. The receipts were 768 cases, as against 810 for the same day last week, and 133 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Potato Market Active.

There was a steady demand for potatoes and the volume of business accomplished was somewhat larger with both local and outside buyers. The market was moderately active and the undertone firm with sales of car lots of Quebec varieties at $2.50 to $3 per bag, and New Brunswick Cobblers at $2.80 to $3 per bag of 90 lbs, ex-track.

The receipts of butter were 301 packages, as again 577 for the same day last week, and 762 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market remains very firm and prices showed no change, but the volume of business was not large owing to the fact that buyers in most cases are only operating in a moderate way to meet nearby requirements.

The receipts of cheese were 3,528 boxes, as compared with 2,017 for the same day last week, and 3,108 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no change in the condition of the market, the demand being still small from all sources and business in consequence was quiet with early Western makes quoted at 22 3-4 to 23c per lb., and current receipts at 21 1-4 to 21 1-2c per lb.

Beans were steady at $2.40 per bushel.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.83 3-8.
Sterling cables $4.83 3-4.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—The egg market is unchanged with Eastern points remaining firm under recent advances. A car of storage seconds is rolling from Winnipeg to Montreal costing 32 cents delivered.

Toronto—The market is very firm with jobbing prices unchanged. Fresh specials 70, extras 65, storage extras 46, firsts 43, seconds 37.

Montreal—Egg market is firm at the recent advance. Poultry receips are moderate. A keen demand for turkeys from the United States is forcing prices up and sales are reported good. Dressed turkeys 36. There is much better enquiry for ducks, with prices ranging from 22 to 25, chickens 17 to 30, fowl 16 to 22.

Yesterday, we spoke of the black duck experience we had while down in the Magdalen Islands, in the Laurentian Sea.

In case you read that story, you will naturally be wanting to know something about how we got along without our attempts to take moving pictures of the Horned Grebe and her nest and all that.

Well, it would take more than a week to tell it right, but I can relate part of it here, say one incident.

Her nest was a mass of floating dead reeds; sort of a boggy raft. We had set up a curtain of small spruce trees, stuck in the swamp not for from her nest, and we were hidden with the movie camera, in this contraption.

Of course, you know, we had rubber boots on, and were up to our knees in swampy muck.

W took movies of Mrs. Horned Grebe fussing about her eggs, then covering them with a few reed strips to hide them from crows, while she went off to market. Then we took her coming home, removing the reed strips and settling down on the eggs to hatch them. So far, so good. Now listen!

By this time, Mrs. Horned Grebe was so used to the click of the movie machine, that she did not care a rap or tap for us or anyone. She stayed "sot" on those eggs. She was minding her own business and expected us to do likewise.

Now, you can't take movies of something which is motionless, so I poked my arm out of the blind and said "Shoo!" but she just gave us a stony stare, as much to say, "How do you get that way, huh?"

I finally had to come right out in the open, while the other man ran the machine. Even when I was in full view before her, the movie camera was still, for she held the fort and would not do one single stunt for us. I couldn't rush at her, as the swamp made my movements slow, but, to our surprise and delight, she hopped off and rushed at me, and I just naturally took a full flop in the swamp. But we got wonderful movies of her. The Horned Grebe looks like a beautiful duck, but it is a diving bird and eats fish. Its horns are just feather decorations.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN VANCE.

BETHANY, Nov. 27—The funeral of the late Mrs. John Vance, who passed away Sunday evening, took place Wednesday afternoon. A very short service was held at the house, after which the funeral wended its way to St. Mary's church and cemetery (one of the most beautiful burying grounds in Canada). Long before the appointed hour for service the church was filled, room being left for the mourners. The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. Fierheller, assisted by Rev. A. T. Weir of Omemee, a former rector. Hymns 600 and 280 were sung. Rev. Weir read for the lesson the 15th chapter of 1st Corinthian, reading for his text the 6th verse of the 64th chapter of Isa., "We all do fade as a leaf." The speaker compared the human life to a leaf which in the spring buds and bursts forth, develops and develops until the leaf displays a beautiful green to the glowing sun, which is pleasing to the eye. When Autumn comes it takes upon itself another color and we admire the beautiful picture. Later the leaf flutters to the ground and the winter comes on. That is the end. There may be a leaf which, while in its development is marred by the canker worm or some other insect and while it persists in growing it becomes ugly to the eye and has no beauty, so it is with the human life. We see it in its infancy It develops to young manhood or womanhood but the cankerworm of sin mars that life, destroys the character and the very being becomes ugly and disagreeable. Old age comes and there is no joy to look back upon and at last the grave which is the end of all. We see another life which develops with a beautiful character filled with the Holy Spirit, a life built upon the principles of Jesus Christ. The Autumn or old age of that life comes and when we are in the company of it we realize that we could be Christians and be followers of the Christ and to that life when the end is drawing near there is no pain, there is no fear, no hardship in passing. It does not want to stay here any longer but can say with Paul "For me to die is gain, for I have fought a good fight."

Is this not the kind of a life that has just closed. One in which there was no outward show, never complaining, always showing the spirit of her Saviour through that life. Jesus is speaking to us and saying, "Come unto me all that are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

In closing the speaker spoke a few words of comfort to those who mourned the loss of a loving mother.

After the close of the service interment took place in the cemetery adjoining the church.

The pall-bearers were Archie Staples, Offa Staples, Richard Staples, Thomas Edmund Staples, Cephas Staples and Frank Staples, who were all nephews of the deceased.

The flowers were many and beautiful, showing the love and respect felt for the deceased. The sons and daughters have the sympathy of the entire community.

Robert Vance of Cutknife, Sask., whom the mother had asked for before she passed away arrived Tuesday at eleven o'clock.

Why, he thought, should he suddenly remember that American girl, seen but once, who had had the power of upsetting him? It was a long time ago that he had seen her and spoken to her for five minutes—more than two years—and yet there she was, stuck in his brain. By Jove! A girl like that! One might marry her and be satisfied for life. That would be an expedience to be underlined three times in red.

All at once, moved by an over-whelming impulse he turned and said, "I say, Sister Dannemora——"

"Connemara" she corrected him in a cool, level voice.

"I say——" But he did not continue. One glance at her was enough. The nun had outwitted him. At some time or other during the past ten minutes she had slipped from somewhere in the folds of her white robe a mask of white silk that now hid her face, all save the eyes, which regarded him with a roguish air out of all keeping with her shining garments. And her hair. It too lay hidden beneath the cowl. Why hadn't he noticed that until this moment?

"I say," he began again, "you can't wear that thing—the mask, I mean. We'll be in Greenwich in a moment or two, and the police will hold us up. They'll take you for a bandit! We'll be arrested!"

For a moment Sister Connemara hesitated. Then in a voice like a choir of innocent angels, she said, "I throw myself at your mercy, sir. I dare not trust you to protect me."

Again he turned to look at her, so sharply that the car veered suddenly and very nearly collided with a vegetable stand which stood before the gate of a roadside farmhouse.

"We just missed the tomatoes," observed Sister Connemara. "What a smash they would have made—and me all in white too."

On the road before them the lights of Greenwich began to appear, little lozenges of light twinkling through the faint mist which had begun to drift up from the salt marshes.

The redoubtable Mr. Lacy grew sulky. He resolved not to speak to this sophisticated nun by his side. For a time he drove without paying any heed to her. She might have been a part of the motor itself, the speedometer, or the piston rod, for all he cared. Yet, after two or three minutes, he said, quite unwillingly, "But what am I going to do with you when I get to town? I can't turn you loose in the streets. You'd be arrested in that rig."

From behind the mask came the faintest gurgling sound, as if Sister Connemara were laughing at him. "Just like a man," she murmured, "putting all the blame on the woman."

Lacy swore. "My God!" he said, "are you saving me or am I saving you?"

"My Aunt Celimena," retorted the mimosa-scented mask, "says there is no more chivalry in the world. I've had two proposals tonight and I believe her. You would too if you had heard their language."

A nun having two proposals in one evening! A nun. . . . ! Lacy decided this adventure must be underscored twice in red. There had never been anything quite like it.

The villas were now whizzing past in a stream of neat lawns, well-trimmed privet hedges, porch swings, and canna beds.

"I have an apartment in town," he began helplessly. "On Park Avenue. It's closed, but I've kept a room open for myself. I might take you there and hide you until you get some other clothes."

"Oh, I couldn't do that," cooed Sister Connemara, "that would compromise me."

This time Lacy swore violently and not altogether under his breath. Then remembering the white-robed figure beside him, he checked himself in time to hear a voice say sweetly, "I don't know what all those words mean."

And then into the midst of Lacy's fury came the sound which was an omen of the worst that could happen. Steadily from somewhere behind the big Isotta-Franchina there rose with increasing volume the chug-chug of a motorcycle. He turned fiercely to his companion.

"Now you see what you've done," he muttered. "There's a motorcop after us."

"Blaming it on the woman again," came the sweet voice.

He couldn't increase his speed, for they were now in the heart of Greenwich. If they had been on an open country road . . . chug. . . . chug . . . . chug-chug! The fatal sound came near and nearer until David Lacy, swearing silently this time, drew up to the curb and the motorcycle came along side. It was hopeless.

"What the hell d'you think this is?" began the policeman, balancing himself on the motorcycle. "A speedway?"

"I hadn't thought much about it," replied Lacy. "I had my mind on other things." And he gave his companion what is known as a dirty look.

The motor had stopped in the shadow of a great elm, so that it was impossible to distinguish the face of the policeman. "Don't you read the papers? They've been digging up dirt on us."

The wallet slipped back into the pocket just as the policeman switched an electric torch full into the motor.

"Ah," he began, with an exasperating drawl. "What's this? A woman in a mask. . . . Some kind of dirty work. So that's it."

Now the glib and worldly Lacy had faced in his time many trying situations. For days he had lied at bay a band of head hunters in wildest New Guinea; he had negotiated the escape of the notorious Baroness Simkovich across the Russian border through the very teeth of the Bolsheviks into Finland; he had stabbed to death a gorilla with a table knife when the monster invaded his tent during a shooting expedition in the wild regions near Mount Hokmoji; he had. . . . All these things flashed through his mind but none seemed the proper solution.

The subtle frail scent of mimosa smote his nostrils. "I—mean to say. . . ." But he was unable to get any further.

Then the soft, insinuating voice of the nun beside him reached his ear. She had removed the mask and was now facing the full glare of the policeman's light, but her back was turned: he could not see her face.

"Don't step us, officer," she was saying in a voice that would have wrung the heart of a stone idol. "We're on our way to see my sick aunt. I'm sure she can't stand much longer what she has been going through. It's—" Here her speech was interrupted by a heartrending sob. "We must get there. Why, Aunt Celimena has been more than a mother to me."

She Coughed Night and Day

Until She Used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Mrs. S. E. Little, 103 Inkerman St., London, Ont., writes:—"I got a very severe cold which settled in my bronchial tubes.

I coughed night and day, and although I tried several different remedies I could get no relief until a friend advised me to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This I did, and I must say that it gave me almost immediate relief as I got rid of my cough very quickly. I hope this testimonial will be the means of helping others."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silcox

DOTTY LEARNS ABOUT MR. SEA URCHIN.

"Goodness!" Dotty exclaimed as a funny looking burr-like ball rolled up in front of her and stopped. "What in the world, dear, dear, I wish——"

"Just about time you were voicing that wish," laughed a merry voice and a wee little elfin stepped out of a tiny shell and bowed very politely to Dotty. "I nearly smothered in that shell wishing for you to get that wish out."

"Oh, Squeedee, you dear," cried Dotty. "I'm sure glad you're here. Tell me, what is that funny burr-like ball. I'd love to touch it, yet I'm——"

"Don't let her do it," pleaded a tiny voice and Squeedee laughed merrily.

"There, there, Mr. Sea-urchin, this is Dotty, a little friend of mine," he said. "She wouldn't harm you I'm sure. Dotty, Mr. Sea-urchin."

"Ah! Is that a really-truly-live thing?" queered Dotty bowing to the prickly-burr-like ball. "I'm glad to know you Mr. Sea-urchin, goodness, it's a wonder I didn't step on you, you rolled so close to my feet."

"I knew I was safe," chuckled the queer little sea-man. "I saw Squeedee hiding in that shell. So you've never seen a sea-urchin before?"

"Not such a prickly one," laughed Dotty.

"Then you've never seen a live one," snapped Mr. Sea-urchin. "When you find one without the quills like mine, he's a dead one. All the quills drop off when we are dead. I couldn't live without them but with their aid, I can roll over the beach. See I can move and turn them any way I want to," so he suited the actions to the words and Dotty just had to laugh it looked so very funny.

"What are those rows like pin pricks?" questioned Dotty pointing to the double rows of pin-prick holes running around Mr. Sea-urchin's body.

"Those are where I keep my suckers," replied Mr. Sea-urchin. "They are to me, just what your legs are to you. I can't walk like you do. With them, I can cling to the rocks without falling."

"But how do you eat? Where's your mouth?" queried Dotty, who had been trying to find a mouth. "I can't see any opening, only that wee pin hole in the very top of your shell."

Mr. Sea-urchin laughed merrily and rolled over, showing Dotty the large opening on the bottom, where the spines didn't come together.

"Right out of that hole, I send out great long fishing lines, you might say, and catch my dinner. And I certainly have to fish to satisfy my appetite. I'm a big eater, I have to be for I must grow. I'll bet your Mother would be glad if your clothes would grow with you like mine do with me."

"You see Mr. Sea-urchin's shell is covered with wee little plates, set like bricks in a dome, all lined with a silk-like mantle," said Squeedee. "This mantle-like lining is made up of particles of lime taken from the waters. As Mr. Sea-urchin grows, he must take up more lime and build, build all the time."

"Yes and if I don't get busy, I'll outgrow myself," he laughed and away he rolled on another wave out to sea.

Dotty and Squeedee watched him disappear from sight, then they ran on down the beach in search of new adventure.

WHERE MEN WEAR FLOWERS IN THEIR EARS

Polynesia has long been a land of dreams and longings to most people of Western lands. Poets and artists have combined to fill our imagination with vague dreams of beauty. Lands of coral and tropical foliage of brilliant birds and beautiful people with lithe, supple brown bodies.

The visitors to these islands of the Pacific are usually surprised to find the natives dressed in manufactured cloths. They have adopted the manufactured cotton prints of Western civilizations although they wear them in a manner all their own. They drape these strips of material about their bodies, fastened under one armpit just as they wore the tapa of their own manufacture, in years gone by.

The men have adopted the trousers of civilization as a general rule, although they wear little or nothing else. But they retain the custom of wearing wreaths of flowers about their heads or a flower behind the ear.

The native population has been sadly thinned out of late years. Small pox and tuberculosis have wiped out whole tribes. Within a year a tribe of four hundred was left with two survivors to commemorate the memory of a once prosperous community.

This rapidly vanishing people have to a high degree the virtues we esteem in civilized communities. They are loyal, generous, friendly, honest. They have a high conception of justice and honor, and an exceptional capacity for thought and imaginative creation.

They Wear Wreaths of Flowers.

The most important staple food of the Polynesians is "poipoi," a sticky, yeasty, doughy substance, made from the root of the taro. The roots are pounded into a paste and then baked somewhat. It is finally served, wrapped in the green leaves of the rauti plant.

Breadfruit is another of the staple foods and there has long been a custom among the Polynesians of planting a breadtree on the birth of each child, that there may be food enough for him.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It is a common thing for somebody to write me for an opinion as to the good or bad effects of having a burning lamp or other light in the sleeping room.

I am opposed to this practice. Restful sleep is promoted by darkness, quiet and free ventilation.

The special senses—seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting and feeling—are responsible for the impulses we get from the outside world. Through these senses we get our stimulation to action. The nervous system operates because of these stimuli.

No mother would sit up all night, tickling the bottoms of her child's feet with a chicken feather. The Board of Health would cause your arrest for creating a nuisance if you pounded a drum and blew a horn the whole of every night. You would consider it an insane act if your neighbor were to keep stirring some vile compound to raise a stench through the dark hours. What would happen to a mother if she kept dripping in her baby's mouth, molasses or some other substance of strong taste?

These ridiculous acts would excite the senses of feeling, hearing, smelling and tasting. You will agree at once that it would disturb sleep and rest to have these senses under constant stimulation. Then why excite the special sense of sight?

Close your eyes gently, just as you do in sleep. Turn your head about; in the daylight you can locate every window and open outside door. At night you can easily tell exactly where the light is through your closed eyelids.

Even though there is sleep, the optic nerve is under constant stimulation if there is a light in the room. So long as there is stimulation of the seeing part of the eye, there are disturbing impulses going to the brain.

Just as you can get used to sleeping on a moving train or in a vile smelling slaughter house, you can get used to sleeping in a light place. But sleep under such conditions does not begin to be as restful as sleep in a dark room.

It is particularly true of nervous and irritable children, that the sleeping quarters should be chosen with reference to darkness and stillness. It is likewise true of all persons, young or old, that the sleep will be more refreshing and the health will be promoted by having a dark quiet, well ventilated sleeping room. In this way, vigor, efficiency and length of days will be increased.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. F. H. Y. Q.—How can one reduce?

A.—Weight reduction is chiefly a matter of self-control as regards diet. For full particulars send stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

M. H. Q.—What would you suggest for a painful bunion?

A.—Wearing a broad-toed shoe should give relief. In some instances a pad of cotton between the great toe and the second toe, to keep the great toe straight, will prove helpful. Where the trouble is of long standing and very painful, surgery may be necessary.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 28.

According to this day's lunar operations hostile forces seem to occupy the principal angles, holding threat of quarrels, litigation and danger from accident. There is also presage of business difficulties and obstructions with serious loss, unless affairs be manipulated with unusual sagacity. This discernment will have the assistance of the major benefic, Jupiter, in aspect with the orb of the unexpected, Uranus, presaging sudden succor.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year calling for extraordinary acumec to turn their affairs into safe and successful channels. This may be done through unexpected assistance, but they should be on guard against loss, quarrels, litigation and accident. A child born on this day may require early training and discipline in the matter of self-control and good temper, else many difficulties will hamper its life. There is an augury of an inheritance but this may be lost through quarrels or litigation.

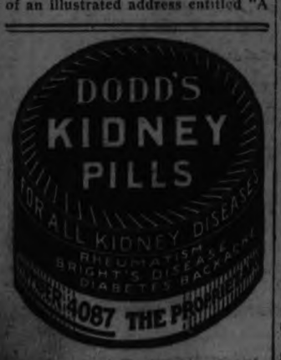
Y.P.L. ATTENDANCE LARGE THIS WEEK

Good Programme Was Given Under Lead of Social Vice-President.

BETHANY, Nov. 27.—The attendance at the Young People's Leagues on Wednesday evening was over eighty. After the usual opening exercises, led by the president, the social vice president, Mr. P. C. Brown, took the chair and the following programme was given: a reading by Hazel Jackson; a duet by Verna Belle Lee and Ed Bray, accompanied by Mrs. P. C. Brown at the organ; a reading by Margaret Jackson, and a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Dave Greenlaw, Mrs. Thorndyke at the organ. Then the chief feature of the evening in the form of an illustrated address entitled "A Trip Across Canada", was given by the Rev. A. Poulter. The slides which were shown, showed the chief industries of Canada, fishing, mining, lumbering, farming, etc., and were educative as well as entertaining. The programme closed with the National Anthem. A silver collection was received to defray expenses.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. P. C. Brown. Six members were present. As the secretary was absent the minutes of the last meet were unread and Mrs. Thorndyke acted as secretary for the meeting. After discussion it was decided to withdraw the meeting in December unless important business demanded one, but the January meeting would be held earlier in the month and take the form of a social gathering which would be held at the parsonage at the invitation of Mrs. Poulter. It was also thought wise to have some sort of an entertainment early in the New Year as the funds in the treasury were becoming low again. This is to be decided at the next meeting.



MEMORY OF BELOVED QUEEN

"Edward VII. died on May 6, 1910," continued the speaker, "and for the first time in many years Britain had a Dowager Queen. It became a matter of no little delicacy as to who should rank as the first lady in the land, but these fears proved unfounded, and Her Majesty graciously gave way to the new queen. She maintained a quiet dignity, however, that kept her place in the hearts of her people.

"As Queen Mother, Alexandra, while giving place to Queen Mary, always retained her deep interest in her philanthropies. She didn't shut herself up in a state of seclusion, but kept in touch with the affairs of the people. During the World War she served as head of the British Red Cross, the Queen Alexandra Imperial Nursing Service, and many other allied nursing services. When a new nurses' home in London was named in her honor, "Alexandra Home for Nurses," she protested strongly, and requested that it be named instead, "The Edith Cavell Home for Nurses," in memory of the martyred British nurse. Thus again was her unselfish and magnanimous spirit revealed.,

"Whatever changes time may bring in the social order," said Mr. Langford, "her life will always stand out as the fulfilment of a national ideal, deep, true and symbolic of the race. Womanliness was the keynote of her life, and she will always be an example to British women."

Mr. Langford referred to the fact that from the first day she set foot on British soil, Alexandra was one of the most popular figures of the Royal Family, and he quoted one of her biographers, who said: "Magnetic charm is her chief characteristic, that indefinable something that is not beauty, though beauty so helps in making it; that is not merely kindness and benignant graciousness, though without these it cannot exist; that is not intellect, though it includes a fine tact that belongs to the higher mental faculties; but that is a combination of so many gifts and graces that it can be neither defined nor taught. This charm Alexandra has in full measure."

"This biographer spoke truly," said Mr. Langford. "Ever since she arrived on Britain's shores she represented something outside the bustle of daily life. Though she never shrank from facing the stern realities of life or the responsibilities of her high position, her pleasures were not those of the crowd, sought in gay festival and merry assemblies. Her happiness was rather found in the sound of children's laughter, and in the quietude of home life. This was to be expected from the training of the home where she was raised. The highest ambition of her life was to be of service. Of Queen Alexandra it may truly be said that she had 'an infinite capacity for doing good.'"

Mr. Langford quoted Tennyson's poem of welcome:

"Sea King's daughter from over the sea, Alexandra
Saxon and Norman and Dane are we.
But all of Danes in our welcome to thee, Alexandra.
Welcome her, thunders of fort and of fleet.
Welcome her, thundering cheer of the street.
Welcome her, all things youthful and sweet,
Scatter the blossoms under her feet.
Break happy land into earlier flowers.
Make music, A bird, in the new-budded bowers."

He also quoted the comment made by a biographer:

"Thus was Princess Alexandra greeted by England's poet laureate, Alfred, Lord Tennyson, when she landed in England in March, 1863, as the bride of England's heir to the throne. With flowers she was greeted, and with flowers ever since has her name been associated. Each year one day is dedicated to Alexandra. It has been named Alexandra Rose Day, and on it the people of the Empire give freely to charity in her honor.

"In London, England, it was always a day of wonderful demonstration, when the stately Dowager Queen drove through the streets of the metropolis, receiving the acclamations of the people and bestowing her patronage on the charitable purpose of the day.

"Over a million pounds have passed in this way into the coffers of struggling hospitals, much to the aid of children destitute and bedridden, and it is safe to prophesy that though My Lady Bountiful has passed on to her everlasting reward, in her name many another million will be collected from a reverently mindful public for the same ever-present cause."

Mr. Langford closed his address by quoting the poem, "Farewell to Alexandra," written by Grace Davis Vanamee as a reply to Tennyson's poem, and which is reprinted on this page.

The singing of "Abide with Me," by the choir, followed by the entire assembly singing "Now the Labor-er's task is o'er," was then followed by the "Dead March in Saul," played by the Salvation Army Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Robinson. The service was closed with the benediction, pronounced by the Rev. M. C. Mackinnon.

CANCER DUE TO THOUGHTLESS FOOD SELECTION.

Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane of London, one of the foremost surgeons of the world, has written to the London Daily Mail, and he has also a letter in a recent issue of a Canadian Medical Journal, charging that cancer is caused by our idiotic refinement of our chief foodstuffs, the grains. He lays especial blame upon white flour and refined cereals.

Dr. Robt. G. Jackson of Toronto, Editor of the Dietetic Age of New York City, a journal circulating among physicians, has been teaching this for years, and, because he was convinced of this fact and also that food deficiencies cause a lot of the other diseases of our civilized peoples ,he invented Roman Meal, a food made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran, these blended scientifically in proportion to make a balanced human food. It supplies the deficiencies of flour and other refined "ghost cereals" and should be used in some form daily, or at least several times each week. It prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation. Because of its growth-promoting properties, it is especially valuable in feeding nursing and expectant mothers and children from the 10th. month. At grocers.

We have reached the point where the canny motorist carries a bicycle along so he can ride to work after he finds a place to park.

Provision is made in the draft of the constitution for active participation in the new organization of men at present serving with the military forces of the Empire and those who will serve in the future.

BISHOP O'BRIEN NARRATES HIS EXPERIENCES AND IMPRESSIONS OF RECENT TRIP ACROSS EUROPE

Guest of the Knights of Columbus at Empress Banquet.

LIKES LONDONERS.

Tells of Hyde Park, Mussolini, English Schools and Other Incidents.

Of the many expressions of welcome and affection that have been showered upon His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, D.D., since his return from his Holy Year visit to Rome, none of them was more cordial and charged with feeling than the Knights of Columbus dinner in his honor at the Empress hotel last night. With the season of Advent closing in next week no other date was available, and although arranged on comparatively short notice, the reception was a fine success. And to that end the co-operation of the Empress management was a great assistance.

After all the greetings and congratulations upon his safe return to his home city and diocese were said and were in effect, the main purpose of the evening, its feature was Bishop O'Brien's account of his travels, his observations and the ideas that had been impressed upon him in England, France and Italy.

Mr. J. J. Duffus presided, and among those present were, Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Rev. Father McFadden, of Wooller, Rev. J. V. McAuley, of Ennismore; Rev. Paul Costello and Rev. J. T. Finn. The chairman proposed the opening toast jointly to Pope Pius and King George, which was followed by a period of bowed silence in memory of Queen Alexandra.

Monsignor McColl proposed the toast to Bishop O'Brien, who, in his, repy said he had been overwhelmed by the kindness of the people upon his return. The public welcome on his arrival and the greetings of the children on Wednesday had touched him to the soul. His Lordship said he realized that these honors were paid to him not so much as an individual but as the administrator in this diocese of the universal Church founded by St. Peter. Persons may come and go, the individual may be successful or not but the Church goes on, enlarging its work and its fold.

Glimpse of London.

Bishop O'Brien first sketched his itinerary through England, France and Italy, and then retraced his steps to tarry and reflect along the way. He paused first at Plymouth, pictured the beauties of Devon and Cornwall, and the Cornish riviera, told of the present rebuilding of Buckfast Abbey by the monks themselves, after a long lapse of ruin, and then proceeded to London. The heart of the Empire is a vast and mighty city, his Lordship said, and because it is the seat and centre of the Empire its people cannot help but take a big, broad outlook upon the world.

"London is big every way you regard it, and this spirit is quickly sensed by strangers. The kindness and forbearances of the people, the politeness and unobtrusive efficiency of the police are striking features of London's thronging life. And in that atmosphere the Canadian immediately feels at home."

Bishop O'Brien dwelt at length upon the personality of the native Englishman, mentioning especially the English people's love of liberty, their sense and practice of justice, their insistence upon freedom of speech and their integrity. The Englishman's love of liberty is symbolized in his home which he has always regarded as his castle, this sentiment being fulfilled in the way he hedges himself in by fences. Though he may live in a terrace, he has his fence in front, symbolic of his estate as a freeman.

Bishop O'Brien recounted his observations in Hyde Park, London's forum of free speech, where the dignity of the individual Englishman was so impressively respected and protected. Of particular interest to Catholics was the work of the Catholic Evidence Guild, laymen from all walks of English life, whose leader is Miss Ward, grandniece of the late Duke of Norfolk.

"These Catholic men and women, after weeks and weeks of preparation, go out into Hyde Park and preach Catholic doctrine as soundly as one of the clergy. They anticipate heckling by being heckled during the course of their training. This movement has grown to such an extent that it is carried on in sixty different places in England."

Bishop O'Brien recalled an incident at one of these meetings in Hyde Park in which a Catholic Englishwoman was discussing the need of revelation for man's salvation, and declared that he was deeply moved by her ability and the effect which he witnessed.

"I enquired about the members of the Catholic Evidence Guild from some of its active members, one of whom was a former member of Parliament, and I was informed that they came from the professions and business, from the offices and virtually all walks of life, giving their spare time on Sundays and then on four nights during the week to the work. They haven't time for theatres and such distractions, but are expending themselves for the fellow-men, and surely there is no higher work in God's creation than making known the truths of God's Church."

School Facilities.

The fairness of the English people was evidenced in their provision for public education, Bishop O'Brien continued. "Over there," he said, "there are three distinct denominational or separate schools, Anglican, Catholic and non-conformist, because the people of England desire that religion be taught in the common schools. In fact, there is a fourth school, the central school, intended for the man who wants no religion at all. And this arrangement doesn't make for any cleavage among the people. It makes better citizens by building up a religious edifice in men's souls. In this country it is worth remembering that if we have one denominational or separate school there are three in England. And the manner in which they are assisted by the Government is decidedly proper to England. There is no such thing as Catholic and Protestant taxes. The Englishman looks upon education as a public utility, and they pay for it as citizens and not as Anglicans, Catholics or non-conformists. At the end of this year the board of a Catholic school, for example, will present its budget for 1926. The budget is passed upon by the school inspector, and then referred to the city clerk, under whom the tax bills are prepared. The taxes are pooled, and the amount requested is turned over to the particular school board. You can't beat the English system for fairness. Let us, too, be British all the way along the line. We are not asking for any favor, but for a generous meed of British justice."

His Lordship touched upon Britain's unemployment problem which, he said, is the one sad observation in the old land. The dole system had served its purpose immediately after the war. Some remedy was needed now and Bishop O'Brien expressed his confidence that it would be found.

In conclusion he said that it was a great pleasure to visit London. Her people were generous and kind and charming, some of them a little reserved, but warm-hearted in acquaintance and friendship.

Italy and Mussolini.

Bishop O'Brien said he noticed a change in Italy from the conditions that existed five years ago. Then there was a spirit of anarchy in the country, Russian Reds were stirring up trouble, the streets were unsafe and the nation seemed headed toward revolution. Today the Italian people were busy, the streets were as safe as in other lands and the nation was prosperous and striving to pay off its indebtedness.

Bishop O'Brien said that press despatches carried references to the suppression of Italian masonry and he hoped that the sharp differences between the Masonic order as it was known in English-speaking countries and the Grand Orient lodge of France and Italy were generally understood here.

"The Masons of this country are a fraternal order similar to your own Knights of Columbus. I have been on trains when they were returning from initiations, and I knew they wanted to be by themselves to talk over their initiations, in just the same way as you would like to talk over yours. The Masons in this country are Christian men, but the Grand Orient is atheistic. It is not only anti-Catholic, but it shows a diabolical hatred of God. When I was a student in Rome, the Masons there used to paste up blasphemous posters in the streets and market places, actually proclaiming that there was no God. And Italy, remember, is a Catholic country. No, they are not Masons as we know them here and what I have mentioned is but one point of difference."

Bishop O'Brien briefly reviewed the career of Mussolini. Before the war he was a radical socialist, editing a small, obscure socialist paper. He enlisted in 1917, deserting his family, who were looked after by the Cardinal of Milan. He returned seriously wounded and changed by his experience in the Italian army.

Three years ago he led a host of 100,000 ex-soldiers to the capital, when Italy seemed on the verge of following Red Russia's bolshevist example, and was invited into Rome by the King to take over the supreme authority.

"I don't know what Mussolini is today," said Bishop O'Brien. "He was baptized a Catholic but fell in with extreme socialists in Milan prior to the war. Certainly he was greatly affected when he learned that his wife and family had been properly cared for by the Church while he was at the front. At any rate, he has put back the cross in every school and public building in Italy, and he has ordered religious teaching in the schools, and he has stamped out the public blasphemies."

Bishop O'Brien spoke of his audience with Pope Pius XI. "I told him of the good works of the priests and people of this diocese and I also said that there was peace and harmony between ourselves and our non-Catholic neighbours. He replied—'That consoles me very much. I wish you could tell them how pleased I am to hear that. You know they belong to us. A little distant from us but we would welcome them back."

Reference to Alexandra.

His Lordship spoke of the reverential tribute to the memory of Queen Alexandra by the Knights and recalled her thoughtfulness in an incident at Birmingham in 1887. Delegated by Queen Victoria to open an exposition in that city, Alexandra was introduced by the mayor to the prominent citizens and clergymen who were present. She noticed the absence of the Catholic bishop and was told that he had not been invited. Alexandra declined to perform the opening ceremony until the Catholic bishop arrived.

Bishop O'Brien referred with deep sentiment to the respect the Queen Mother had shown for her Catholic people, and related the following incident. Arriving at Marseilles from Naples on his recent trip he visited the votive church of Notre Dame de la Garde, erected on a high promontory, overlooking the sea in fulfilment of the pledge of sailors who had escaped death in a storm. Around the statue of the Blessed virgin in that church, His Lordship read the inscriptions upon marble slabs and other memorials, signifying acknowledgment of favors received.

"I made a memorandum of quite a number of those tributes and one of them read as follows: 'January 31, 1905.—In gratitude for a great mercy. Alexandra.' And beneath that slab were two others inscribed thus—'Visited, April 5, 1903—Edward; Alexandra.'

"'Visited—April 5, 1906—Edward; Alexandra.' It was an evidence that King Edward and Queen Alexandra had visited this shrine erected to the honor and glory of God through the intercession of the Virgin Mary."

The reference on the first slab, Bishop O'Brien said, was probably to an illness of King Edward, and the Queen's erection of the grateful marble among so many others at that shrine.

In conclusion he appealed to the Knights of Columbus to fill their hours with useful acts, purposeful study and co-operation in the affairs of the community. He had mentioned in his audience with Pope Pius the many splendid public services which were carried on in the towns and cities of this diocese, and His Lordship urged that the Knights of Columbus assist in all such worthy enterprises.

Mr. J. J. Dorris moved a vote of thanks to Bishop O'Brien, which was seconded by Mr. Vincent McCabe.

A toast to Peterboro Council was proposed by Dr. F. P. McNulty and seconded by Father Costello. Others who spoke briefly were: Dr. Coughlin, of Belleville; Rev. J. J. O'Brien and Dr. J. V. Gallivan.

Mr. Arthur Costello had charge of the music with Mr. Sarsefield Sheehy at the piano. The evening concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

BAZAAR HELD AT ST. JOHN'S

Church Women's Association is Holding Successful Christmas Sale.

IN PARISH HALL.

The Church Women's Association of St. John's Church is holding its annual bazaar in the Parish Hall, commencing yesterday, for a two-day sale, which will continue until this evening. Afternoon tea and high tea are being served in connection with the bazaar, and the ladies have contrived their usual very attractive interior with the aid of the Christmas decorations of red and green and the evergreens which give such a bright and cheerful note to the arrangements.

The People's Chimes announced the opening of the bazaar yesterday, and the formal words that proclaimed the two-day sale open to the citizens were said at three o'clock by Rev. Dr. Blagrave.

The president of the C.W.A., Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, acts as general convenor, and a corps of willing helpers are engaged in the business of carrying through the bazaar with success.

Mrs. D. Mulholland has charge of the sale of lingerie and white-wear, assisted by Mrs. R. N. Jones, Mrs. K. Dishart, Mrs. J. H. Ferguson and the Misses Waddingham, Hugel, and G. Denne. Mrs. H. W. Morphet has the candy booth, where daintily colored paper baskets hold delicious home-made candy, and is assisted by Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, Mrs. W. E. Detlor and Mrs. R. C. Heiderman. The sale of babies' wear is in charge of Mrs. W. T. Hall, with Mrs. W. J. Hopwood assisting, and Mrs. R. Denne and Mrs. Lionel Scott have the doll counter. A sale of long cut flowers is supervised by Mrs. Arthur McClellan, with Miss Mabel Collins, and a funny "White Elephant" booth is in charge of Mrs. A. L. Amys and Mrs. C. L. Brewer.

A particularly noticeable section is the long counter over which is the sign "Remembrance," with gifts for the bazaar from former members of St. John's C.W.A. whose names appear on long lists above the table. There are numerous pretty things on view here, with the sale in charge of the Misses Rubidge, assisted by Mrs. E. Sorby.

Mrs. J. Rigden and Mrs. D. Melton have a table devoted to the sale of pretty church calendars, and an attractive "Kitchen Booth," decorated with orange paper streamers and big orange paper California poppies, is in charge of Mrs. Jack Comstock, assisted by Mrs. Webber Turner and Miss S. A. Tomkins. Christmas gifts and fancy articles are sold at a section supervised by Miss Margaret English, assisted by Mrs. W. J. Kent, Mrs. J. Cridland and Miss Maude Rush; and linens, towels and aprons are sold by Mrs. Joseph Mills, assisted by Mrs. H. W. Darcy, Mrs. George Wesley and Mrs. W. M. Lang. A book table sale is in charge of Mrs. T. W. H. Young, with Mrs. C. D. Hewitt and Mrs. Bender assisting.

Mrs. L. E. Lang officiates in the mysterious-looking fortune-telling tent at the entrance, assisted by Mrs. F. A. Rathbone and Mrs. F. Clayton, and the fish pond is in charge of the Misses Mary Mulholland, Mary Comstock and Clare Morris.

Japanese lanterns and flower-decked tables make a pretty tea-room on the stage, where afternoon tea is served, in charge of Mrs. Alex. Gibson, Mrs. E. W. Borbridge and Mrs. F. B. Clegg, assisted by the Misses Margaret Denne, Margaret Borbridge, Virginia Detlor and Bernardine Detlor.

Downstairs, a cheerful interior has been contrived for the service of high tea, with Mrs. A. H. Stratton and Mrs. W. T. Holloway as joint convenors. The ladies have made a very attractive centre here with the aid of long white-clothed tables which are arranged with colored candles, plants, cut flowers and smilax.

Last evening, an enjoyable musical programme, arranged by Mr. F. G. Mann, was rendered, with ensemble and solo numbers by a group of musicians, including Mrs. G. [illegible] piano, and violins played by Mrs. M. B. Hoyland, Miss C. Taylor, Robert Wyllie, and William Gaskin.

SMART TOPCOATS OF ENGLISH TWEED SUITINGS

The Vogue of the Mannish Cut Still Holds for Practical Wear.

By Annette Bradshaw.

The immense vogue of mannish topcoats has made itself very evident in Paris and in America. Wherever we see tastefully dressed women on shopping bent, we are very likely to find them clad in topcoats similar to the two sketched here.

The materials are of coarse English suitings, tweeds and mannish mixtures claiming the largest favor.

At the left is shown a double-breasted tailored coat, made with a slit up the back, and ever so slightly fitted at the waistline. This particular one is made in a diagonal suiting which mixes shades of brown with a line of white. The sleeves are tight, and the coat comes to within two inches of the hemline of the frock.

At the right we have another tailored topcoat with mannish lapels. This model flares from the waist, and also shows the double-breasted fastening. The color is gray, which we see occasionally, but which is a less usual color in the topcoat than the tannish mixtures. This model covers the hem of the frock.

The scarf of plain color, or which mixes bright colors, makes a very fitting accompaniment to the mannish topcoat. Since the Paris Exposition, we see numerous scarfs of cubist design, showing the gayest possible colors against a background of white.

Gilt leather flowers make the newest boutonnieres for simple coats and frocks.

Gilt pins also interpret the flare for metallic touches.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

The girl of today may find various criticisms heaped upon her head, but despite the opinions of those who seem bent upon taking as pessimistic a view as possible, no one can say she is not attractive looking.

She may wear short skirts and use lipstick, but she manages to be healthy in appearance and fact. Despite any use she may make of artificial coloring, and such aids to beauty, we see abundant beauty shining through the artifices, and we know that it is the beauty which bespeaks radiant health.

The girl of today rates a high average of health. She is very likely to have skin that shows a healthy color, rather than the white pallor that marked the complexion of the girl of yesterday. This was because the girl of yesterday did not have the chances for healthy outdoor exercise that the present day girl finds on every side.

However, the thing I want to urge the modern girl to adopt is consistency in all things. Because she may have chances on her week-ends in the country to indulge in pleasurable outdoor exercises, I do not want her to neglect her daily bit of exercise. Keep your body fit by day-by-day exercises, then when you have the time and opportunity to play a strenuous outdoor game, the extra exertion will be a pleasure rather than a strain.

There are certain exercises which are especially recommended because of their benefit, to our inner organs. Unfortunately, many women suffer from a slight dropping of the organs, principally the stomach and intestines, and do not even know that this is the case. Muscles strengthened by the exercise I am going to give here will push such organs back into the positions nature intended for them.

The exercise is as follows:

Lie flat on your back on the floor. You should be loosely clad. A bathing suit makes an excellent garment for such exercises.

Now raise your feet up above your head, as shown in the sketch. At the same time bring your hands up to your hips, to act as supports. Your arms should be resting on the floor from your shoulders to your elbows.

Next, bend both your knees so as to bring them down toward your face as far as possible.

This Exercise Will Strengthen Muscles and Reduce Fat.

This exercise may be alternated with a kicking up and down with your feet. It is excellent to reduce your hips and abdomen, as well as to take superfluous fat off your legs and make them strong and graceful. Keep this up for ten minutes each morning. It may be difficult at first, but you can master it.

SCARFS.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(United Press).—Scarfs must be small to be smart this season. The long, flowing affairs of batiked silk which were worn haphazardly beneath the coat are passe and in their place are smart little muffler-scarfs which fit close to the neck and tie smartly at the rear, side or front. Plaids, futuristic designs and plain silks with figured ends are those most popular.

One of the smartest models is merely a wide double band of black satin with fringed ends. It is worn crossed in front and with ends falling from either shoulder to the rear. The modern scarf looks like a smart little short stole. In fact some of them are fur-trimmed as in the case of a taupe crepe scarf with ends of mole fur ornamented with appliques of cretonne on the fur. Silk plaids are extremely smart for wear with costumes of tailored type.

For evening purposes the scarf is still extremely important. It is usually cut in one with the gown although in one case the scarf which matches the frock is merely a long strip of chiffon worn folded and tight about the throat in front and tied in a knot at the rear of the neck with long ends falling to the hem. This acted as a smart adjunct to the chiffon frock which was made with a deep V-front and rounded rear neckline.

Double shoulder scarfs, which are merely scarfs tied in loose bows at the shoulders with ends falling gracefully to the front and rear, trim many of the better class evening gowns. An example of this usage of the double scarf is used on a rose chiffon dance frock where each shoulder has a bow knot of pink chiffon which ends with tan chiffon at the border. The sash placed at the low-waistline ties in front and is likewish bordered in tan chiffon. In other words, three separate scarfs act as the entire trimming to a simple chiffon frock.

It is proposed to pay 1 pound a week to a widow with children and for each child she has under 14 years of age 10 shillings additional. CAMPBELLFORD SCHOOL BOARD CONSIDERS INSPECTOR'S REPORT

Condition of Buildings Given as First Class, But Water Supply is Poor.

EQUIPMENT GOOD.

Teachers Are All Qualified and Are Doing Excellent Work.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 27. —At the meeting of the Board of Education on Thursday night the report of P. S. Inspector . Boyes, of his recent inspection of the Public school, was received. The condition of the buildings, including ventilation was given as first class, but some fault was found with the lighting and water supply.

With regard to the latter it was stated by some of the trustees that when the water which supplies the school was tested it was given a higher mark by the analyists than that taken from any well in the town. Caretaker Massie was of the opinion that Inspector Boyes' objection was not to the purity of the water but to the fact that the pupils are obliged to go outside to get it.

Inspector Boyes recommended that a narrow platform be built below the blackboard in the old high school building, which is now occupied by the primary department; or that the blackboards be lowered. He again calls attention to the fact that there is only one way of getting down from the top flat of the old High School.

The equipment of the school is up-to-date and in good conditon, and the work of the caretaker is excellent. The inspector recommends that a number of cheap story books be placed in some of the Junior rooms.

The teachers are all properly qualified and the organization is satisfactory. The pupils and the work are fairly divided among the teachers, and no teacher has too many pupils. All the teachers are doing excellent work and have good control of their classes.

The number on the roll is 457, and the average attendance during September was 413. While recognizing the fact that pupils cannot always be present Inspector Boyes says that the number of absentees is large.

The pupils are well advanced with their year's work and are making good progress. Their deportment is satisfactory.

After the property committee had been instructed to look after the matter of building the platforms recommended by the inspector, the report was filed.

Secretary Stephens was instructed to secure a car load of lump coal for use in the new High School.

It was announced that the High School had been rented for the purpose of holding a reception to M. E. Maybee, M.P.-elect and Mrs. Maybee on Friday evening of next week, a non-partisan function to which the public generally is invited.

The members of the Board present were: Major J. M. Bygott, chairman; Trustees Jeff. Benor, Cock, Dr Richardson, Dr. Watson, Dr. Longmore, Lynch, Irwin and O'Sullivan.

Maintains His Record

Charles S. Gillespie, the oldest man to go from Campbellford to the hunting woods, has maintained the record which he has kept up for the past 40 years and this season has brought home a fine deer. In curling and lawn bowling as in hunting Mr. Gillespie is the dean of them all.

Curlers Are Ready

The curling rink has been thoroughly overhauled and is now in first class condition. All is ready to turn on the water when the proper degree of frost is registered.

CHEESE MAKERS BANQUETED FOR HIGH STANDARD

MADE BEST CHEESE.

Appreciation of Big Achievement By Central Ontario Cheese Makers.

(By a Staff Reporter).

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 27.—Those hard working agricultural college graduates who have been employed in the cheese factories of Central Ontario during the past season rendered such efficient and faithful service that they put their district's name in red letters on the commercial map at home and abroad. The cheese produced in Central Ontario in 1925 graded the highest of any made in the Dominion, according to the official record, and this means that Central Ontario cheese commanded the highest price in the home and foreign markets.

Entertained at Banquet.

As a mark of appreciation of their good work during the year, the cheese makers were entertained at a banquet held in the Queen's Hotel, Belleville, Wednesday night by the officials of the United Dairymen's Co-operative, the organization which was formed about two years ago for the systematic marketing of cheese and with which so many factories are affiliated. One hundred and seventeen guests sat down to the sumptuous feast which had been provided by Landlord Powers, and all parts of the district was represented. When the time for the speech-making arrived, W. W. Moore, of Montreal, the energetic manager of the U.D.C., introduced H. B. Cowan, of Peterbroough, who acted as toastmaster. Another notable present was Joseph Burgess, of Montreal, chief Government grader.

The chief speakers of the evening were the officials referred to and J. L. Irwin, grader of Campbellford, and John A. Murray, dairy instructor for the Campbellford district. The situation during the past year was carefully reviewed, the conclusion being that the season had been one of the most successful, if not, indeed, the banner one, in the history of the industry. Owing to the favorable weather conditions, the grass had been abundant, the flow of milk was maintained to the end, and best of all, the price had been satisfactory from the start.

Canadian cheese holds a place in the foreign market that it never attained before. The cheese men, however, are always striving for a higher standard, and although at times the discussion at the banquet may have been of too technical a nature to interest the general public, there were matters brought up that even outsiders could understand.

The Turnip Menace.

Mr. Murray, the Campbellford instructor, gave an interesting talk. It seems that the greatest menace to the cheese industry is one that can be controlled by the dairymen themselves, and that is the feeding of turnips and turnip tops, and that matter, which is discussed at nearly every meeting of milk producers, was thoroughly threshed out Wednesday night by Mr. Murray and other speakers.

Mr. Murray said that in his district, early in the season, before turnips were ready for use as fodder, out of 31,000 boxes of cheese shipped from the Campbellford depot, a total of only 865, an average of about 160 boxes a week, had been under grade. As soon as the cows were fed turnips, these conditions were changed, and last week alone 339 boxes were marked down by the grader. Low-grade cheese sells at a decrease of one cent a pound, so that the total loss on 339 boxes was approximately $339, estimating 100 pounds to the box.

Not all dairymen feed turnips to their milk cows, but the injustice of the system is that those who do not suffer financial loss, due to the consequent low grading, with those who do.

Whether it is safe to feed turnips immediately after milking, is still a disputed question among cheese men, some being of the opinion that the use of turnips should be done away with altogether.

Mr. Murray says that the chief trouble is with the dairymen who give their cows the run of their turnip fields after the crops is harvested to allow the animals to feed on the tops.

In the Campbellford District.

In Mr. Murray's district there are 26 factories. Two of these were successful in winning prizes offered by a farm paper for the best kept premises, the factory at Menie taking second, and the Woodland factory fifth place. Frank Little is maker at Menie and George Wheatley at Woodland.

Of these 26 factories, the following 11 are affiliated with the U.D.C., the remainder selling subject to the price on the Belleville Board: Stanwood, Rlystone, Crow Bay, Brae, Menie, Hoard's, Meyersburg, Trent River, Brickley, Castleton and Ormonde.

The factory at Spring Valley sells its entire output locally, a truck man calling every week. The cheese is sold to grocers and private individuals in Western Ontario.

Last year, according to Mr. Murray's figures, the average price paid for cheese in his district was 16 cents, while this year the average exceeds 20 cents.

A Word to the Makers.

J. L. Irwin, the grader, whose home is in Campbellford, spoke directly to the makers, asking them, in their own interests, to do something to better their conditions. Something should be done to keep out incompetents, and cheese-making should be regarded as a profession, and paid accordingly. As it is it is too often the man who is willing to accept low wages who gets the job. The work, at best, is seasonal, the maker being employed for only about six months in the year, and during the other six he has to turn his hand to something else.

VILLAGERS BID LONG FAREWELL TO ALEXANDRA

Body of Queen Mother Conveyed From Sandringham to London.

SIMPLE CEREMONY.

Procession Through Lanes To Little Church and Station.

LONDON, November 27. Canadian Press. — The body of Queen Mother Alexandra rested last night in the chapel of St. James' Palace, guarded by gentlemen-at-arms and yeoman of the guard. At a few minutes before 11 o'clock this morning the coffin was taken to Westminster Abbey where funeral services were held. Throughout the afternoon the general public will be permitted to pass through the Abbey to pay their respects to the Queen Mother. In the evening the body will be taken to Windsor Castle, and on Saturday morning, after a committal service, attended only by the Royal Family and the members of Alexandra's household, will be placed in the Roval tomb house under the chapel. Upon completion of the Sarcophagus for Edward VII. and Alexandra in the chapel, the body will be placed there.

With the simplicity that marked her life, the Queen Mother made her last journey from Sandringham to London yesterday. After luncheon the Royal Family went to the little Sandringham Church, where the body had rested since last Sunday.

There was a short service, and then ten tall Grenadiers carried the coffin to a gun carriage, on which it was borne to a black draped train waiting at the Wolferton station for the journey to London—a distance of about 100 miles.

As the procession passed through lanes made through a fine layer of snow the King walked immediately behind the coffin with the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York and Prince Henry. Queen Mary and other ladies of the Royal party followed in carriages, then came the household staff, the country gentry, tenants, and even the most humble of the servants.

There was only a momentary suspension of traffic as the motor hearse proceeded from the railway station in London to St. James' Palace. The time and the route had been kept an official secret out of deference to the wishes of the Royal family, hence there were no crowds along the way.

TWO KILLED IN SHOOTING FRAY

Policeman and One Assailant Killed—Two Others Hurt.

FUGITIVE KNOWN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Two men, one a policeman, were killed and two others, including a policeman, were wounded in a south side tobacco shop early today in a shooting affray in which one of the four assailants was described by the wounded policeman as Martin Durkin, fugitive police slayer. The attackers escaped.

The policemen had been spending the last five nights in the shop. Shortly after midnight, while they were talking to five loungers in the shop, a quartette entered and the shooting began. It was thought the policemen had been assigned to the shop on a tip that Durkin might visit there.

James Carroll, a policeman, and Ben Custer, a taxicab driver, were killed; James Henry, the other policeman, probably fatally wounded, and Gus Soeldner, a lounger, slightly injured. Henry said Durkin was one of the men.

The shop is located in an area known as a habitat of gangsters, and is not far from the flat where Durkin escaped a police trap after killing a detective-sergeant nearly a month ago.

WINTER HITS ITALY.

ROME, Nov. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Italy got its first taste of real winter Thursday, with an abundant snowfall reported all along the Apennine range. The temperature even in Rome dropped to two degrees above freezing, which is unusual even in the dead of winter.

The cold comes as an aftermath of several weeks of incessant rain, mingled with the depressing atmosphere produced by the sirroco winds from Africa.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. — (United Press).—The Merchants' Association is in favor of a new calendar. CRIME ON WANE.

Gunmen Casualties Many in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. — Gunmen and gangsters, bootleggers and hijackers are decreasing in number in Chicago, due to their own war of elimination, Coroner Oscar Wolff revealed to-day, in reporting that 31 gangsters had been slain since the first of the year.

Rivalries and jealousies between rival factions in beer and rum-running were blamed for most of the killings, but some of the bad men were killed by police bullets.

Three of the notorious Genna brothers, Walter O'Donnell, Sammy Amatuna and Sam Vinci were among the most celebrated of the gunmen to die in battle.

DIXIE MINSTRELS DREW BIG CROWD TO LYCEUM HALL

Successful Entertainment Was Given By Local Young Men.

HEARTY APPLAUSE.

Fine Singing and Clever Comedy Were Much Appreciated.

(By Jeannette.)

The Dixie Minstrels filled the Assembly Hall of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last night to overflowing. About five hundred people were crowded into the interior, with a number standing at the rear, and they accorded hearty and insistent applause to every number on the programme.

The Dixie Minstrels, who present their show under the auspices of the Immaculate Conception Holy Name Society, made a name for themselves last season as entertainers of outstanding ability, and their performance last night equalled former exploits along this line. They have a bright, snappy show, with plenty of clever quips and cracks that kept their hearers in a continuous giggle, a number of fine voices that were heard to advantage in solo numbers and an exceptionally well-trained chorus. The effect of this chorus combined with the playing of the orchestra which formed its accompaniment, was especially good and made an outstanding portion of an entertainment that was worth while from start to finish.

Another item in the presentation was the stage arrangement, which was in the capable hands of Mr. Frank McMahon, who also directed the show. Mr. McMahon, who was assisted in the stage management and decoration by Bog Gilman, contrived a setting which was professional in its appearance. The orchestra played on a raised platform at the rear of the stage, and the performers occupied the space in front, the soloists in snappy black and white suits, the end men in black face, with white trousers, red and green jackets and dinky little straw hats adorned with vari-colored feathers. A marquee roof arrangement of red, white and blue, with dark velvet hangings and tall vases of artificial flowers, completed a very attractive stage setting. In the oleo, black and silver draperies were used.

The trio of popular entertainers, George Wesley, Dave Quinlan, and Jack Primeau, were included in the sextette of black face comedians who entertained the crowd. Mr. Wesley made his usual hit with his audience in one of his popular monologues that always contain something unexpected and are delivered in a characteristic manner that brings down the house. Mr. Frank Clarke also, with his fine banjo selections, was another welcome addition to the programme.

A noticeable element in the smoothness of the performance was the orchestra, whose assistance is the backbone of a show of this type. The clever group of musicians who played last evening under the expert leadership of Mr. Joseph Minicolo, added immensely to the excellence of the programme. Mr. A. Weatherhead was at the piano, and provided accompaniments also for solos.

The programme opened with several selections by the orchestra, including "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," "On the Waikiki Islands," and "Dixie Bungalows." The opening chorus was a repetition of the catchy 'Waikiki Islands" song, followed by vocal numbers, dances, and a collection of merry gags by the black face bunch, with Mr. Dan Leonard acting as interlocutor. Vocal numbers, with choruses in unison, were rendered by Michael Clancy, "You Got to Know How"; John Holland, "Oh, How I Miss You To-night"; Fermie Holland, "Red Hot Henry Brown"; Martin Guerin, "Out of the Dust"; Frank McMahon, "I Don't Think So"; Dan Leonard, "Carolina Moon"; John Madden, "Pal of My Cradle Days"; Dave Quinlan, "Ain't My Baby Grand"; the last with a number of steps that brought forth much applause; Joseph Clancy, "Love Comes Calling"; Jack Primeau, "Dixie Bungalows," with Dave Quinlan again in the limelight in the line of a footwork accompaniment; and George Wesley, who sang "Get Yourself a Broom," with a catchy refrain, and a trio of dance steps by Messrs. Wesley, Quinlan and Primeau.

The orchestra played during intermission, "Ain't My Baby Grand?" and the oleo which followed contained a number of splendidly-rendered solos and duets. Mrs. J. Dwyer sang "In the Garden of My Heart," with an encore in "All Alone"; George Wesley gave a short "gab" speech in his own inimitable manner, to much enthusiastic appreciation; Miss Dora Quinlan and Mr. Martin Guerin sang in duet "The Song of Love" from "Blossom Time," and an encore, "Because of You"; and Miss Dora Quinlan gave as a solo, 'Dreamy Carolina Moon."

An effective number in this section was the duet of Jerry Collins, playing the violin, and Alphonse Brioux, the mouth organ, in a musical novelty interlude, that was out of the ordinary and very well done. Their selections included "Home, Sweet Home," and encores in brief bits of "Because They All Love You," "I Miss My Swiss,' 'and "Alabamy Bound."

Mr. Frank Clarke's banjo rendition of variations of "Believe me, if all those Endearing Young Charms," was done in his usual splendid style, and received much applause. After an encore, Mr. Clarke provided banjo accompaniments for a demonstration of soft shoe stepping by Dave Quinlan, that called forth a triple encore.

Mr. Joseph Minicolo sang "One Fleeting Hour," with violin obligato by Mr. Al. Smith, and also played as a cornet selection, "Carolina Moon."

Jack Primeau made a hit with his monologue, all about the confused lover who got his proposal to his best girl and his speech to the bricklayers' union very much mixed up when he called on his lady love, with consequences that were ludicrous and amusing. Mr. Primeau was fetchingly attired in a costume that included a portion of a dress suit superimposed on a red-sleeved shirt and over white trousers, with small straw hat, and a large black umbrella.

The concluding number was a unison chorus by the "Waikiki Islands" selection, with some snappy music by the orchestra as the crowd filed out.

Included in the cast on the stage was Dan Leonard, interlocutor, John Holland, Martin Guerin, John Madden and Joseph Clancy, a sextette of black face comedians, in Fermie Holland, Frank McMahon, George Wesley, Jack Primeau, Dave Quinlan, and Michael Clancy; and the orchestra, composed of Alf. Weatherhead at the piano, Joseph Minicolo, cornet, Al. Smith, P. O'Toole, Harold Nicholls, and Jerry Collins, violins, Joseph Kearns, saxaphone, Paul Koster, banjo and Harold Whaley, drums.

MAN IS MISSING FROM STEAMER

S. Parker Bremer, of Boston, Left Note in His Stateroom.

FINANCIAL WORRIES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (Canadian Press).—S. Parker Bremer of Boston, head of the drygoods and cotton firm of Parker, Wilder and Company, and a member of an old Massachusetts family, was missed from the Furnish-Bermuda liner Fort Victoria as that vessel, delayed by heavy seas, steamed toward New York from Bermuda yesterday.

A room steward found Bremer's stateroom deserted and a note on the table which read:

"Please notify Parker, Wilder and Company, No. 215 Fourth Avenue, New York, and No. 99 Chauncey Street, Boston.

Mr. Bremer's clothing was hanging on a chair. Apparently he had left his stateroom in pyjamas.

Mrs. Bremer, who had expected to spend Thanksgiving Day with her husband and was awaiting him there, said that her husband had been depressed over financial reverses.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS MEMBER ON DEMOCRACY

Joseph Wearing's Address Called Most Logical and Eloquent.

REPORT ON SHOW.

Si Perkins Tells Club of "Bob White" Prospects To-night.

Joseph Wearing, the retiring but energetic arranger of speakers for Kiwanis, was himself in the main role to-day, delivering a splendid address on "The Growth of British Democracy." So highly thought of was the talk that Chairman Charles Cook promised more by the same speaker.

George N. Gordon, in moving the vote of thanks, characterized the address as the most eloquent and logical presentation of facts delivered in the local Kiwanis Club.

One of the items of business today was the report given by Director Si Perkins on the progress of the Kiwanis show, "Bob White," which is being presented to-night and to-morrow night in the Grand Opera House. In his opinion, the show is going over well, and will be away ahead of last year's.

Prize-winners to-day were Jack Allen, Charles Cummer and Dr. E. H. Wood. Walter Kidd was the booster, and several of the members play the goat to perfection, thereby earning penalties of degree in keeping with their culpability.

Joe Wearing, in his address, said:

No great nation since the world began can show a growth from practically aboriginal conditions to world-wide empire with responsible government in almost every section, and full civic freedom in every remote corner, except that aggregate of countries known as the British Empire. We are all proud of our empire because of its vaster extent and immeasurable power; we should be prouder still to belong to a nation which has remarkably little internal disorder or discord has not only developed in such a way as to make one think it must be the evolution of a divine plan, but also has been at the same time strong to all its centuries of development, a recognized world bulwark against the forces of tyranny, oppression and reaction wherever these forces have been found.

In order that you may fully appreciate the importance of our national evolution I propose to take a few moments to draw a parallel between the empire to which we belong and the only other empire to which it can in any way be compared, namely, the Roman Empire.

The Rise of Empire.

We have no historical knowledge of the Roman people in a wild, savage, aboriginal condition or as the ancient Britons were described in Julius Caesar's famous commentaries. In the earliest times that we know very much about the Romans their state was a republic and so much afraid were the people of anything in the nature of a king that instead of one man at their head they established the famous dual consular system, knowing that when two men ruled, each would try to prevent the other from seizing supreme authority. For me there is no portion of history quite so thrilling as that which portrays the passing of the Roman Republic into the Empire; we see the prosperity which came with conquest and the arrogance resulting from what are known as the Punic wars; then the rivalry of Julius Caesar and Pompey, with the latter's defeat at Pharsalia; then followed by the short reign of Julius Caesar and his spectacular death at the hands of Brutus; then the overthrow of Antony at Actium and the final establishment of Augustus as Proconsul and Imperator. By a strange irony of fate this stirring page of history has not yet been sketched by any immortal pen. It was the choice of Edward Gibbon, that master of historians, to show not the rise but the decline and fall of that great empire founded by Augustus. What I wish to draw your attention to in this parallel is the history of the Roman people from a democratic standpoint, that is from the standpoint of government by the people themselves. Without going into details the early history shows a struggle between the patricians and the plebs, resulting in a most democratic form of government on the part of the thirty-five tribes through two popular assemblies known as the Centuriate Assembly and the Assembly of the Tribes. Both these assemblies were elective and both had legislative power. Above these was the Senate which was practically the executive body and, although the Senators were appointed for life as in the case of our own, they entered office as the popular choice of the people. This was the form of government for at least five centuries, and the story of the decline and fall of Rome is the story of a free people allowing the right of government to be taken from them so that the popular assemblies pass away, the Senate becomes impotent, the concentration of power passes to one man and, finally, becomes so great, that each succeeding emperor arrogates to himself more and more the rights and privileges of a god, until finally the weight of the imperial throne crashes through the crumbling structure of that world-wide empire, built in the beginning upon such sure foundations. It is not to be wondered that Gibbon describes this final passing of an ancient nation in these words: "the greatest, perhaps, and most awful scene in the history of mankind."

It is significant that once again the Roman people have allowed one man to secure absolute power, showing for one thing that the lessons to be found in the history of their own country have been lost upon them, and for another, that Latin peoples seem to be lacking in the genius of self-government.

The British Empire.

I would like you to keep in mind the epitome which I have given you of the greatest of the ancient empires while I turn your attention for a few minutes to the growth of the greatest of modern empires. It can be taken for granted I suppose that the history of Great Britain practically commences with the Norman Conquest and the feudal system introduced by William certainly made no provision for government by the people, that is the common people. I think I am safe in saying that most of us here this morning are descended from those early tillers of the soil who became known as the yeomen and the very backbone of old England and the constitutional development of Great Britain is chiefly concerned with the struggle for liberty on the part of these men—the workers of the land. The poet asks:

"Who were the Yeomen, the Yeomen of England?
The free men were the Yeomen, the free men of England!
Stout were the bows they bore;
When they went out to war,
Stouter their courage for the honour of England!
And nations to eastward
And nations to westward
As foeman did curse them,
The Yeomen of England.
No other land could nurse them,
But their Motherland, Old England!
And on her broad bosom did they ever thrive!"
